There is a fair carlot trade. Three loads were shipped to the West last week and one car was sent to Montreal at the beginning of this week. The animals for the West were mostly mares, while the Montreal shipment consisted of good large horses weighing 1,300 to 1,400 pounds.

Women seldom care about the answers to all the questions they propound.

A SPLENDID RECORD

FIGURES AND COMPARISONS INDICATE WHAT CANADA HAS DONE IN THE WAR.

It will be easier to appreciate the military effort put forth by Canada if the record of Great Britain in two previous wars be examined, says The Toronto News. At the time of the war with Revolutionary France, which began in 1793, the British Isles had a population of about 15,000,000. The Mother Country had months of warning, but six months after the declaration of war she had but 10,000 poorly-conditioned troops on the battle line in Flanders.

At the outbreak of the Crimean war, the United Kingdom had a population of 27,000,000, and was exceedingly prosperous. Here again, ample notice was given of the outbreak of the war. The expedition which Great Britain sent, first to Turkey and then to the Crimea, with abundant leisure for preparation, consisted of 31 battalions of infantry and 10 regiments of cavalry, with 60 guns. The imperfect provision made for this force, and the difficulty experienced in keeping up its numerical strength, constitute a commonplace of British history. All told, less than 90,000 men proceeded overseas from Great Britain to Russia during the Crimean war.

The present war broke out suddenly, but Canada, with a population of 8,000,000, sent 33,000 men, gathered from the whole of the Dominion, across the ocean two months after hostilities began. This force was improvised and so presented some of the imperfections of haste and emergency, but it was far more scientifically organized, and it had far better medical, transport, and supply services than the armies sent forth by a much more populous Britain in earlier wars. Let us recapitulate:

Great Britain, in 1793, sent abroad about 10,000 men, badly found, in about six months.

Great Britain, in 1854, sent abroad about 90,000 men, badly found, in about six months.

Canada, in 1914, sent abroad about 33,000 men, on the whole well found, in two months.

Even Wellington never had more than 40,000 or 45,000 British infantry, cavalry, and artillery at his command, and that was after the Peninsular war had been several years under way. Always a peace-loving country, Great Britain never would keep a considerable standing army, and so it was that she always made a poor showing in the early stages of every military conflict into which she was drawn. She never armed on a large scale until the cause of human freedom was well nigh lost. Then she went in and saved it. Over and over again in the last three centuries she has gone late to the rescue, and always in the end successfully, if at great cost. In the present instance she had only her navy ready—a navy strong enough to hold the enemy in check until she prepared her land forces to join the embattled forces of the Allies. As an eminent American observer has said, "never before in the history of the world has there been such speedy preparation as Britain's. The aviation, artillery, ammunition, and commissary supplies of the British forces in France are miraculous, when it is considered how they started with nothing when hostilities began. Britain will reach the acme of her preparation for war next spring, when she will have five guns for every one she has in the field now."

But Canada's effort has also been marvellous. Two years and a quarter after the declaration of war the Dominion has over 100,000 men in France, 140,000 in England and on the way there, and well on to another 100,000 in training here at home. Altogether we have enlisted 370,000, and sent 260,000 overseas. The Canadian troops are supported by splendid transport, artillery, commissariat and medical services. For a country with a small population, scattered over half a continent, the Dominion has done, and is doing, amazingly well.

How cheerful the average married man is when his wife's away on a visit!

TWO PARTIES IN GERMANY

THE TOTALLY DIVERGENT VIEWS OF THE TWO WAR LEADERS.

The two bitterly contested views about the war in German politics are described in The New Republic by William E. Bullitt, who has just returned from the Central Empires.

"The supporters of the Chancellor still see in the war the same conflict which existed before England came in. To them, this is essentially a struggle between Russia and the Austro-Hungarian-German bloc for predominance in the Balkans and Asia Minor. Their hope is to establish a confederation of Central Europe stretching from Hamburg to Bagdad. As they see it, the war is deciding, chiefly, how wide shall be the boundaries of Central Europe. They are almost ready to give up northern France and the whole of Belgium. They are ready to pay Belgium an indemnity of two billion marks, if Belgium will pretend that it is part of the purchase price of a section of Belgian Congo. Their eyes are on the East. They hope to annex Courland, and to create an independent Poland from Russia's Polish territories, which they expect to take into the German Zollverein. But the most vital piece of territory to them is north-eastern Serbia, which they call 'The dry Suez canal.' For across it, by way of Belgrade and Nish, runs the railway from Buda-Pest to Constantinople, control of which they must have if the Hamburg to Bagdad confederation is to become a reality.

"To the supporters of von Tirpitz, the war essentially is a struggle between England and Germany for control of the sea. They wish to purchase peace with Russia at any price, even at the cost of abandoning their ally Turkey, and to fight on until France and England are crushed. They believe that Germany should annex every foot of French and Belgium territory she can occupy; French territory so that France can never again offer serious resistance; Belgian territory so that she may have a springboard from which to dive at England. Von Tirpitz's notorious postal card puts matters thus: 'We must hold the coast of Belgium as a base from which to operate against our Anglo-American enemies.'"

Cured His RUPTURE

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation, if you write to me, Eugene M. ACTIVITIES AT THE Y.M.C.A.

A full attendance of the members of the Senior Collegiate Club is desired tomorrow evening, as this will be the last regular session of the club until Jan. 5. Mr. A. D. Hone will lead a discussion on an interesting subject.

Mr. T. W. Robinson is receiving payments of subscriptions for the current year. Subscribers may leave cheques at the Y.M.C.A. or for Mr. Robinson at the Canada Life Insurance office, Hunter St., or Mr. Robinson will call for payments. These subscriptions should not be confused with the special contributions now being made to overseas work, although 10 per cent. of the subscriptions received by the Peterborough Y goes overseas.

The work of the association has been somewhat interrupted during the past week because of the illness of General Secretary Meserve and Boys' Secretary Galley. Mr. Meserve was ill from Friday until Monday last and Mr. Galley has been confined to the house since Friday, December 1, but was back at the building today.

The bowling alleys are very busy at the present time caring for the Inter-Church League and leagues organized at St. Andrews and George St. Churches.

Circumstances have made it necessary to postpone the supper that was to have been served the winning contest teams tonight, but this supper will be served at a very early date and teams will receive proper notice of the same.

All of the offers made during the membership contest to individual workers hold good during December and there is a chance for an energetic worker having his membership extended for one year if he secures five paid members this month. A Y.M.C.A. emblem is being offered to any young man who secures two members.

Capt. Jones, who has been the representative of the National Council in conducting the canvass for overseas subscriptions leaves for Toronto this afternoon to be present at a farewell being tendered a dozen Y.M.C.A. officers, who, with himself, are soon to leave on overseas duties. The subscription lists to the overseas work are still open and any person desiring to contribute to this very worthy work may send a cheque to the local Y.M.C.A office or Mr. W. R. Morris, of Bennet and Goodwill's office, or F. M. Dela Fosse at the Public Library.

To Subscribers

We are adding from twenty to thirty new subscribers to our lists every day, the best of all assurances that the public regard The Review as the local paper that is worth reading. All that we ask for is a fair comparison with our contemporaries in the field.

With the sudden increase in the business of extending our circulation confusion is likely to arise and those just ordering the paper, as well as old subscribers, may not receive their papers promptly or regularly. Any of our readers who have cause for complaint on either score will confer a favor by telephoning the facts to the circulation department, calling phone 189.

WHAT ONE AGED PATRIOT HAS ACCOMPLISHED

OUTSTANDING RECORD OF MRS. JOS. CAVERLY, OVER EIGHTY YEARS OLD.

In war time old and young are expected to do their "bit," but in many cases the spirit of patriotism is lacking, especially so just now when so many young men are needed and are failing to respond to the call of King and country. On the other hand, those who realize the situation are working night and day in order to do something to help win this war and crush German militarism. One of these patriots is Mrs. Joseph Caverly of this village, now over 80 years of age, says the Madoc Review. She has made and repaired 537 pieces of clothing, which she shipped last week to the Red Cross for the relief of the Belgian sufferers. Two large boxes weighing 500 lbs. have gone forward. Below will be found a list of the contents: Man's clothing, 15 pair boots, 24 pair pants, 1 sweater, 18 coats, 15 vests, 11 shirts, 11 under shirts, 13 pairs drawers, 10 caps, 8 collars, 6 ties. Boys' clothing, 2 suits, 1 small coat, 2 caps, 6 coats, 8 pairs pants, 5 sweaters. Women's clothing, 30 dark waists, 3 house dresses, 33 light waists, 18 vests, 11 pair boots, 2 hoods, 2 shawls, 38 coats, 100 pair stockings, big and little, 4 pair pyjamas, 32 dark skirts, 7 dresses, 3 sweater coats. Children's clothing: 12 pair drawers, 7 chemise, 5 white dresses, 27 skirts, 13 dresses, 8 bonnets, velvet cap, 6 hats; also 3 body bandages, 3 new quilts, 2 sets grey furs, muff, 3 ruffs, 3 pairs of gloves, a bundle of white cloths for hospital use, and a lot of small articles. Few, if any, can boast of having done as much as Mrs. Caverly, and when her age is considered, many wonder how she has accomplished such a feat. In March last, Mrs. Caverly sent a similar box.

LLOYD GEORGE GIVES CONSENT

LONDON, Dec. 7.—A Court circular last night announced that Mr. Lloyd George had consented at his Majesty's request to form a new government.

THE "A. B. C." OF RAILWAYS

THE BOX CAR

CANADIAN PACIFIC 210516

In the carrying out of its work there would be difficulty in finding an instrument that has been of more assistance to modern industry than the freight car. Its uses are manifold, from a traffic handling point of view, for it serves alike the shipper of merchandise, the coal dealer and at times the livestock man.

When we consider the history and development of the freight car we find there a reflection of the rapid progress made in the industrial world of recent years. It is but a short time ago, comparatively, when the standard car, of light wooden construction, had a maximum carrying capacity of only thirty thousand pounds, and to-day we have the modern car equipped with heavy trucks and constructed of steel throughout, transporting at high speed a load of from ninety-five to one hundred and ten thousand pounds.

The value of the box car to shipper and railway has increased to a degree commensurate with its development and particularly so during the past few years when the more expeditious release of equipment after reaching destination, has permitted an increase in car mileage which represents just so much more service to the public.

corner of Simcoe and Water Sts.

The immense business which has been going through the port of Peterborough made the facilities at the old receiving rooms too small to facilitate the rapid inspection and appraisal of the express and freight shipments.

The new office is in charge of Mr. James Lang, with Mr. J. F. Galvin in charge of the express department and Mr. William Dalladay, a returned soldier, looking after the examining and packing room.

The room for the office and express parcels is in front with examining and receiving rooms in the rear. The offices are all steam-heated and electric lighted. The phone is No. 76.

Samples of all shipments of goods must be sent to the warehouse before being cleared at the main office. Express parcels whose value does not exceed $50 can be cleared at the warehouse.

White Bros. have been awarded the contract for hauling the freight to and from the depots.

Mental Neutrality.

The "mental neutrality" which is born of ignorance or of lassitude is unworthy of reasoning beings. We have no intellectual right to be ignorant when information lies at our hand, and we have no spiritual right to be weary when great moral issues are at stake. To jest at rainbow documents is easier than to read them, and yet such reading does not lie so far beyond our scope. Because this war is greater and more terrible than all preceding wars, and because the civilized world is presumably concerned with its causes and results, a wealth of testimony has been laid before the nations. Papers, which were formerly the exclusive property of minister and cabinets, have been printed for all who choose to read them. They are neither too many for our patience, nor too involved for our comprehension. The Vatican library would hardly hold the books which have been written about the war during the past two years; but the famous five-foot shelf would be too roomy for the evidence in the case, for the material which will be the foundation of history.—Agnes Repplier, in the November Atlantic.

Starred Tortoise.

Origin of Some Slang.

A great many people use slang terms and expressions without knowing their real meaning or their origin. Ninety-nine out of every hundred, when their health is good, say they are "first rate." Why? "First rate" is a seafaring term and was originally used in the classification of the old wooden line of battleships.

"Sailing under false colors"—a term applied to a person who pretends to be other than he is—is a survival of the same period. This latter expression, like "to throw overboard"—to get rid of something—obviously nautical, but few people knew that "skyscraper" was originally sailors' slang.

"Close quarters" is another very common expression. This like "first rate" and its accompanying expressions, "second rate," "third rate" and so on, come from the days of wooden fighting ships. The "quarters" were projections erected along the bulwarks, behind which sailors could lie low, and which were used to help repel boarders.

"To sail against the wind"—to be very much in the minority—and "to lower your sail"—to confess yourself conquered—are both terms borrowed from the sea, and the same may be said of "high and dry," and "laid up" and "spliced," the slang term for getting married.

When we talk of a person being "knocked into a cocked hat" we mean that he was limp enough to be doubled up and carried under the arm like the cocked hat of a naval officer. And we say that so and so will be "on the rocks" if he does not "steer clear" of the money lenders.

TURKS IN GERMANY

NEW PLAN FOR SPREADING KULTUR IN THE ORIENT.

Some 250 Turkish scholars, including a few girls, recently arrived in Germany in order to avail themselves of arrangements which have been made for the more or less free education of a number of Turkish youths at German high schools. This is part of the Teuton scheme to Germanize Turkey. Up to the present 12 different German towns have offered to provide the necessary maintenance for one such scholar each, while 30 German families in Berlin and the provinces have declared their willingness to receive and educate one of the visitors free of charge, and the Turkish war office is paying for the journey and equipment of 15 others who will then be supported by the German-Turkish Association. In other cases semi-maintenance is to be provided, and in others still the children will be educated entirely at the expense of their parents. The choice of candidates was entrusted to a committee of the German-Turkish Association, which, it is stated, found it possible to accept almost all the applications received. Asked as to what profession they desired to follow, a large proportion of the children, who range from 14 to 17 years of age, promptly answered, engineering; and it was noticed that nearly all expressed a preference for a practical calling.

Dr. Wilhelm Feldmann, the special correspondent of the Berliner Tageblatt in Turkey, writing from Constantinople to his paper, made a point of recommending the visitors to the very special care of his fellow-countrymen. For one thing, he observed, it would probably be very difficult for the young Turks to accustom themselves to the German war menu. The majority of them, he explained, came from good Turkish families which, while the fare of the lower classes was very sparse indeed, were accustomed to live extremely well, while the war had made little difference to their mode of life, meat, eggs, fats, fruits, and excellent white bread being still available in Constantinople for those who could pay the high war prices. He further recommended the greatest circumspection and gentleness in dealing with the children on the ground that the majority of young Turks are very much spoiled, and therefore very sensitive and likely to permanently resent an affront to their pride. It is of great importance that these Turkish scholars should feel comfortable in Germany, wrote Dr. Feldmann. Teachers and foster-parents may assuredly be looked to to recognise clearly the importance of the mission entrusted to them.

Charge Was Excessive.

Four Canadians went into a barber shop yesterday, says a recent issue of The London Mirror. It was a small barber's shop. They had various operations performed, such as shaving, hair cuts, massage, etc. But there wasn't much more. When the bill was handed over it came to £1 15s. Then the Canadians, with great calmness, said that they would wreck the shop. The barber ran out into the road with a great fear upon him. A policeman came in and told the extortionate barber that the charge was excessive.

Queen Stranded in River.

Queen Mary had an amusing adventure on the Thames a few evenings ago, the circumstances of which became known in Windsor recently, says a London exchange. Her Majesty and Princess Mary, accompanied by three members of the royal household, had gone out in a motor-boat. When near the Victoria Bridge something went wrong with the boat and the royal party were stranded. A little later Mr. and Mrs. Mills, of Alma road, Windsor, came up in a punt and offered assistance. "Can you spare a paddle?" asked the Queen, and Mr. Mills, who had recognized her Majesty, handed a paddle to the royal party. The Queen cordially thanked Mr. Mills, and asked to what address she was to return the paddle. The boat had not been paddled far before the motor began to work, but the Queen said she would like to retain the paddle as the motor might go wrong again. The royal party then proceeded to Datchet Beach, where they landed. The same evening the paddle was returned with a message of thanks.

Professional vs. Amateur.

Little Nelly told little Anita what she termed a "little fib."

Anita—"A fib is the same as a story and a story is the same as a lie."

Nelly—"No, it's not."

Anita—"Yes, it is, because my father said so, and my father is a professor at the university."

Nelly—"I don't care if he is. My father is a real-estate man, and he knows more about lying than your father."—Auckland (N.Z.) News.

GERMANY'S REPLY TO U. S. SAYS STEAMER WAS A WARSHIP.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Germany in a note made public by the State Department today contends that the British steamer Arabia, sunk in the Mediterranean Nov. 6, was in reality "a transport ship for troops in the service of the British Government, which is to be considered as an auxiliary warship according to international law, and can therefore be treated like a warship."

The German Government's attitude, like that in the Marina case, is expressed to be one of readiness to make amends if shown that the submarine commander violated Germany's pledges to the United States.

Lloyd George's Program Direct Control By the State of Country's Resources; Feeling of Confidence Has Returned

Regluate the Whole Manhood of the Nation so That no Class May Complain

EVERY OUNCE OF NATION'S ENERGY IN THE CONFLICT

Extraordinarv Change in the British Public Temper and Confidence Has Been Restored.

EXTEND WAR PROFITS' ACT

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Dec. 9. — The Daily Chronicle says Lloyd George told the Labor leaders who conferred with him that a vigorous prosecution of the war to a victorious conclusion could be accomplished only by utilizing to the utmost the entire energies of the nation. He otulined his pragram, which amounts practically to the direct control by the State of the whole resources of the country.

It is proposed to control all the industries and means of transport both by land and sea, so that the man-power of the nation can be directed either into he producion of munitions or into maintaining that part of the export trade which is necessary to keep up exchanges.

Every effort will be made in the direction of increased production on farms and the cultivation of waste land. Food supplies and prices will be rigorously controlled. Attempts will be made to improve the scale of pensions and the return of soldiers to civil life will be expedited to the utmost.

Regarding the conscription of labor, the Prime Minister's answer was that the work of the whole manhood of the country would be regulated so that no class may complain. He also foreshadowed control of investments and savings and a large extension of the war profits tax..

Within the last forty hours there has been an extraordinary change in the public temper; doubt and depression have given place to confidence and good spirits.

Since Dec. 1st the ninth army and the Danube army have captured 70,000 Roumanians, with 184 cannon and 120 machine guns. Mr. F. W. Doan for the School Board

PRACTICAL BUSINESS MAN OF HIGH STANDING.

The Review is glad to learn that Mr. F. W. Doan, district superintendent of the Belle Telephone Co., has announced his intention of coming out to run for the Board of Education. It is particularly gratifying that the honor of being elected to the Board brings out men of the calibre of Mr. Doan. He being not only a good practical business man but one that has always been interested in education matters, particularly along technical lines, and, with the experience he has behind him, he should prove a valuable adjunct to the School Board.

AWARDED M.B. DEGREE.

RELIGION IN POLITICS.

IN A LETTER to the newspapers endorsing Mayor Duffus for a second term, Magistrate Dumble expresses the hope that in the coming contest the religious views of any candidate will not be taken into consideration.

It is certainly too bad that at this stage of our boasted civilization it should be necessary to drag the subject of church affiliation into a political contest. There is something wrong with the religion of the present day if it has made personal and political enemies instead of welding mankind into a universal brotherhood. To say this is in no sense a reflection on the fundamentals as preached by the Nazarene. The fault lies with the self-appointed champions of the faith, the men who would commercialize religion by making it a stepping stone to power.

The object of the Christian faith has been to make all men neighbors. How often has it really set friend against friend and even bred dissension in a family? Here again the offence lies with the misguided fanatics and the mercenaries. The religious agitator is still with us, pernicious as ever. How long is he and his methods to be tolerated?

The Review is opposed on principle to capital punishment, believing it to be a relic of the dark ages when might was the only right recognized. It would, however, favor exceptions, and recommend either the gallows or the blind wall for the adventurer who would turn human love as taught by the Saviour of the world into the gall of sectarian hate.

Magistrate Dumble's point is well taken and is an indication of the birth of a more charitable spirit among the various churches.

POOLROOMS AND THEATRES.

THE CITIZEN who favors the closing of the poolrooms is not illogical and unreasonable if he does not advocate the same course with regard to moving-picture houses and theatres. The two latter places of entertainment when properly conducted—and those in this city certainly are—have an educational value. The friends of the pool-room will hardly go so far as to claim as much for the resort they patronize and champion. Even if amusement does not help in the education of its devotees, it should at least have the virtue of developing physically those who indulge in it, bowling curling and the like, for example. Does playing pool ever do this? What has the game of pool to recommend it any more than an exciting contest in domnioes in which the stakes are five cents a corner?

A young man approached by a recruiting officer on *George street last night and asked to enlist, said he re*quired time to think the matter over. When askd how long, he replied, with a lame attempt at facetiousness that four or five years would suffice. Then he made for the nearest pool-room, as though in search of his level and his associates.

MR. MURRAY WRITES US.

MR. ALEX. MURRAY favors The Review with a well-written and interesting communication with reference to certain editorial comments we made on the address of Mr. Jimmie Simpson in Labor Hall Tuesday night. We regret exceedingly that we cannot reproduce Mr. Murray's letter in full. In the first place it is too long, and in the second it is considerably in the nature of a free advertisement of a commodity in which Mr. Murray appears to be financially interested. Our correspondent starts out as follaws:

> Editor Rview: I notice in your "Notes and Comments" last night you say that in spite of the forensic efforts of Mr. Jimmie Simpson, the price of food refuses to descend by as much as a notch.
> Judging from the sumary of Mr. Simpson's address which appeared in your paper on Wednesday night, you are not ignorant of the ways and means advocated by Mr. Simpson to reduce the high cost of living. What have you done along these lines? It seems to me that Mr. Simpson has knocked you off your equilibrium, and there is nothing I could suggest that will restore you to your normal condition quicker or better than a cup of —.

Here Mr. Murray, with the business instinct that quickens every Gaelic nature, launchs into a cleverly-worded and fervent eulogy of his favorite brand of the beverage that cheers, but pauses short of inebriating, a brand that, if we are corectly informed, he has for sale. The Review will be pleased to do business with Mr. Murray at regular rates.

We beg to assure Mr. Murray that we have survived the arguments advanced by Mr. Simpson with faith unshaken in the theories we have always tried to advance in these columns. We do not doubt the sincerity of the man from Toronto, but a speaker may be in earnest and in error at the same time. The particular part of the reasoning which appears to appeal most to Mr. Murray is the theory that the elimination of middlemen will reduce the cost of living.

That plan has been tried, found wanting and abandoned. A couple of decades or so ago the manufacturers of the United States formed trusts or combines with the idea of encouraging economy, and commercial travellers by the hundreds lost their jobs. It was contended that the consumers, at least the retailers, would be compelled to buy directly from the producer. Instead of this, sales fell off to such a degree that business contracted to an alarming extent, and a financial panic was precipitated. The old order was restored.

The middleman, like the poor, will be with us always, at least until the millennium arrives. He is really indispensable. In the first place, he is the great educator of the people with regard to what they want. The farmer as a rule will lose valuable time working with a machine that is out of date or tinkering with another that has outlived its usefulness, until a glib agent persuades him to increase his investments and provide himself with the most modern contraptions. The majority of people will continue to eat the same brand of food year after year until the grocer calls their attention to something better.

The middleman is everywhere. The farmer who drives to market with a load of produce, the woman who buys a dozen of eggs or a fowl on the farmers' market every Saturday and carries her purchases home in a basket, are their own middlemen. Under a proper system of bookkeeping the value of their time while so engaged should be added to the cost of the article handled.

We can think of no better illustration to strengthen this contention than that afforded by Mr. Murray himself. He becomes a middleman when he writes a letter to the newspapers booming the virtues of a particular brand of tea.

THE HIGH COST OF GOVERNMENT.

THE NEW YORK SUN gives expression to a suspicion that has for some time besett The Review— that the high cost of living may be after all due to a large extent to the high cost of government. If there is any foundation for this assertion in the United States there is certainly more ground in Canada upon which to base it, as the governing machinery comes higher here than it does in the Republic.

For example, the governor of the State of Michigan, which has about the same population as Ontario, has to worry along on a salary of $4000 a year and find his own residence. The Lieutenant-Governor of this Province is paid $10,000 a year and has a million-dollar mansion built and furnished for him. Michigan in its state legislature has about the same number of members as are in the provincial assembly here, but the latter are paid twice as much for their services. The neighboring State has fifteen representatives in the Federal Congress, their united salaries being $112,000, and they are required to devote practically all of their time to the public service. Ontario has over eighty members of Parliament who are paid more than $120,000 altogether for a few months' service every year.

In county affairs, too, the Canadian governing machinery is more complicated and costly. To take one instance, every county in Canada finds it impossible to get along without the services of two members of the legal profession on the pay roll, a crown attorney and a county solicitor, the latter being the professional monitor of the county councillors. In the United States one legal officer for each county is deemed sufficient. He is required to look after not only the criminal but the civil affairs as well, and in the rural districts his compensation is less than that paid the Canadian officials. It is only in counties that have large urban centres that the American prosecuting attorney is allowed a staff of assistants to help him out with the large amount of public business which accumulates.

If Canada has not the best legal machinery in the world it certainly should have, seeing that it is the most costly. In the United States every county disposes of its own law cases with its own officers. The county judges have jurisdiction in all matters except those in which Federal enactments are involved. The prosecuting attorney prosecutes all offenders against State laws. In Canada, a man accused of murder is tried by a judge from outside, and the county crown attorney is not deemed of sufficient weight to be permitted to prosecute him.

In Winnipeg recently a judge high up in his profession, sitting as a commissioner at $100 a day, in addition to his regular salary, sent three or four newspaper men to jail for criticising his official acts. Another judge, drawing big compensation, when called into the dispute, ruled that his learned brother, with the extra emoluments, was wrong. This decision is not regarded as final. There will be others called in to deliver learned opinions. All of which costs money, but it makes business good for the profession. The taxpayer foots the bill and the cost of living soars. Should anyone find difficulty in divining at least one cause?

DID ADAM EAT THE APPLE AND DID A WHALE SWALLOW THE PROPHET?

Did Adam and the whale eat respectively an apple and Jonah?

Connecticut is likely to have a judicial decision on these questions. If the facts themselves are not settled by a jury, at all events the jury will determine whether it is blasphemous to doubt the Bible versions of them.

Michael Mockus is to go on trial at Watrbury, Conn., before a jury on complaint that he violated a law passed in Connecticut 274 years ago, under which there have been no prosecutions for at least a century.

The law provides penalty for any one "who calls into question any portion of Holy Writ," and the specifications against Mockus, a Lithuanian minister of the Unitarian faith, are that he expressed his disbelief in the story of Jonah and the whale, and also in the apple that Adam ate.

Mockus was tried in September, but the jury disagreed. This time he has engaged as counsel Theodore Schroeder of New York, president of the Free Speech League, and Lawrance L. Lewis, of Waterbury.

Schroeder says he plans to argue that the statute of 1642 applied to all sacred beliefs and since those who framed the law believed in witchcraft and regarded that belief as orthodox and sacred everyone who today denies the existence of witches is guilty of violating the statute.

In 1895 an attempt was made to prosecute for blasphemy, but the case was thrown out of court on the ground that there was no law forbidding it in that State. In 1891 there was a similar prosecution in New Jersey, and the defendant was fined. Robert G. Ingersoll defended the accused and paid the fine himself.

But Life Has its Compensations

The man started home from his office.

As he departed the stenographer told him that shorthand pads had advanced 15 per cent.

An evening paper informed him that Mayor Duffus would be a candidate for re-election and that even he held out no hope of a lower tax rate next year.

When he sighted a street car headed for the western section of the city, where he resided, it occurred to him that he could save time by walking home, not to speak of the exercise.

While he waited at the railway crossing on Charlotte street for a freight train to get off the right-of-way a friend told him that the nation's expenses were increasing so rapidly that there was nothing but blue ruin in prospect.

Further up the street he heard a rumor that the embargo would be removed from oleomargarine, and he was interested in the dairy business.

A neighbor waylaid him and insisted upon discussing the Greek situation in detail, taking the gloomiest view of the outlook.

At his own door his wife met him and, to cap the climax, to add the last straw to his load of woe, told him, with a flood of tears, that the hired girl had quit to take a job in a munitions factory at $6 a day with chances for overtime.

Avaunt, dull care!

He lifted the cover and looked in. Then he began to whistle.

He was going out to dinner and he had a freshly laundered tie!

Wit and Wisdom

His Views

"I cough a great deal."

"Try rubbing your throat with gasoline."

"Huh! I'd as soon cough as honk."

A certain rector just before the service was called to the vestibule to meet a couple who wanted to be married. He explained that there wasn't time for the ceremony then, "but," said he, "if you will be seated I will give an opportunity at the end of the service for you to come forward, and I will then perform the ceremony."

The couple agreed, and at the proper moment the clergyman said: "Will those who wish to be united in the holy bonds of matrimony please come froward."

Whereupon thirteen women and one man proceeded to the altar.

"While you are asking papa for my hand in marriage, Philip, I'll be playing something lively on the piano," said the sweet young thing.

"No, I wouldn't do that, Jessica," replied the young man. "You know, some people can't keep their feet still when they hear lively music."

The young fellow who is willing to do a little more than his share is going to be the man that later on the shirkers will say is getting more than his share.

A Stronger Faith

Included in the last letter to his parents before he was killed in the battle of Ypres, a young officer of Frontenac county sends the following, which might be termed his "confession of faith":

"I have a much firmer belief in a Divine Being than ever before. I wish you to know that I believe in the God of my fathers, that I ame fighting here first and foremost because I believe absolutely that it is in His cause, and for the welfare of the world. I have faith enough in His cause to risk my life in it, and I believe that by a clean life I can do His work better than in any other way. I need not plan for the future.—Heaven will care for it."

LITERARY RAMBLES

THE IMPORTANCE OF A KNOWLEDGE OF GEOGRAPHY.

One of the most interesting of studies, yet, curiously enough, one of the most neglected, is that of Geography. In saying this, no special aspersion is cast on Canadians, for it is quite within the bounds of reasonable assertion to state that there is more crass ignorance of geography exhibited by the average Englishman than there is by the majority of Canadians. A short time ago a former Anglican bishop of Natal was asked by an English friend how he enjoyed living at the Cape! and even a Government official once enquired why a chaplain stationed at Capetown was unable to take an afternoon service at Grahamstown, a place 500 miles away. Most of us have had experiences tending to show similar lack of knowledge on the part of English friends and relatives. I remember, shortly after reaching this country, now many years ago, receiving several letters, all of which seemed to evince an awed admiration of the pluck shown by my unworthy self in braving the wild beasts, the fearsome winters, and the savages of the Canadian wilderness. Various questions were asked of me. Had I caught my wild horse yet? Were the Indians called Red because they had red complexions, or did they paint themselves red? Years have passed since then, and doubtless in the intervening period much has been done towards inculcating in the respective minds of English scholars the importance of a greater knowledge of geography and especially of the geography of the far-flung dependencies and Dominions of the Empire. If no great effort has been made in the schools, the war has at any rate had the effect of opening the eyes of everyone to the need of such knowledge. To-day, in England and in all the colonies, Russia is being studied as she certainly has never been studied before. To English-speaking people the world over she has always been more or less of a mystery. We knew her vaguely as a vast empire, embracing many semi-barbaric peoples in her fold, her so-called civilization marked on the one hand by the lowest depths to which licentiousness can fall, and on the other by the highest pinnacles to which religious ecstacy can reach. Her literature was regarded as altogether too realistic for refined tastes, her politics as honeycombed by bribery and corruption. But to us she was above all a nation to be feared, for we had been taught for generations that she coveted India, and we knew that her giant tentacles were stretching out and had been stretching out for centuries towards the East in the hope of gaining access to the open sea. The war has changed all that, and today we look upon Russia with totally different feelings. Everywhere Russian literature, Russian history, and the Russian religion are being widely discussed. Hundreds are studying the language and thousands are reading all that there is to read concerning the great Colossus to the North.

There are many books dealing with Russian life, in the Library. But would it not be as well, while making a note of this, to make a note also as to obtaining information concerning all the other nations that are engaged in the present great upheaval in the world? Without going further afield than the European portion of the Eastern Hemisphere, we can find ample scope therein to keep us busy for some time to come. We read mechanically, and scarcely ever think of looking up works of reference to elucidate some point that we cannot understand. How many of us know anything of the Tyrol, of the Dolomites, of Bukowina, or even of Roumania? Roumania, indeed, is one of the most interesting countries in Europe. It is a geographical anomaly, for it is very curious to find a Latin people in Eastern Europe, surrounded on all sides by Slavs and Hungarians. Not only do Roumanians speak a Latin tongue closely resembling Italian, but they retain very strong signs of their Italian blood, in spite of all admixture with Slavs, Turks and Greeks. Is not it worth while to find out something about the modern descendants of Trajan's Dacian colony? And, to go further,—what do we know of the units that make up our great and glorious Empire? It is an Empire worth fighting for. Note what it embraces: Newfoundland, with an area of 42,734 square miles; St. Helena, 47 square miles; Barbadoes, 166 square miles; Bermudas, 20 square miles; Bahamas, 4,466 square miles; Canada, 3,743,574 square miles; Gambia, 79 square miles; Jamaica, 4,207 square miles; Gold Coast, 80,000 square miles; Leeward Islands, 706 square miles; Gibraltar, 1⅞ miles; Tobago, 114 square miles; Windward Islands, 237 square miles; Falkland Islands, 6,500 square miles; British Honduras, 8,598 square miles; Sierra Leone, 30,000 square miles; Ceylon, 25,481 square miles; The Seychelles, 148 square miles; Trinidad, 1,754 square miles; Malta, 117 square miles; British Guiana, 109,000 square miles; Mauritius, or Isle of France, 795 square miles; Ascension Zanzibar, 7,420 square miles; Aden, 80 square miles; Sarawak, 42,000 square miles; India, 1,900,000 square miles; Labuan, 36 square miles; New Zealand, 102,471 square miles; Turk's Islands, 169 square miles; Lagos, 27,000 square miles; Straits Settlements, 1,600 square miles; Fiji, 8,045 square miles; North Borneo, 280,000 square miles; Malay States, 28,300 square miles; Somaliland, 68,000 square miles; Cyprus, 3,640 square miles; New Guinea, 234,768 square miles; Nigeria, North and South, 300,000 square miles; Central Africa, 42,200 square miles; British East Africa, 1,000,000 square miles; Uganda, 150,000 square miles; Australian Commonwealth, 2,974,581 square miles; South Africa, and, since the war started, German Southwest Africa and the Cameroons.

How many of us know anything about one-third even of our own Empire; how we came by any portions of it, and when? How many know that New Guinea, next to Australia, is the largest Island in the world?

There are in the Library over one thousand volumes dealing with Travel. Almost every portion of the world is represented in that section. We have maps to help in following out any particular line of reading. The means are therefore at hand for engaging ad libitum in one of the most interesting and absorbing branches of literature.

SEWAGE DISPOSAL PLANT PROBLEM IS PLACED ON SHOULDERS OF 1917 DADS

Aldermen, North Monaghan Councillors and Ratepayers Held Peaceful Conference,

The ratepayers of North Monaghan, who live in the neighborhood of the city's proposed disposal plant, were much intersted in the conference held last night in St. George's Hall. Every phase of the question was gone over carefully, and Mayor Duffus and the aldermen who attended hope that after due consideration many of the objections and misunderstandings will be removed.

There were over eighty people in the hall when the meeting was called to order by Reeve McIntosh, and he called on City Engineer Parsons to exhibit to the ratepayers the plans as proposed by the city, and asked those present who were curious about the workings of the disposal plant to ask questions.

Mr. Parsonsw ent over a brief history of the sewage disposal experiments that had been tried in different sections of the country, and by means of a blackboard gave sketches of the workings, first of the old septic tank, second, the Imhoff tanks, and third, the activated sludge method, which was the proposed one for Peterborough. Milwaukee's plant, built on the latter plan, has absolutely no odor, and the effluent when it passes into the lake contains practically no bacteria at all and therefore is purer than any other system yet discovered. In answer to a question, Mr. Parsons stated that the settling tanks necessary for the local plant would cover an area of 120 feet by 180 feet; the whole plant could be put on two acres, but it required more area than this in order to give it a neat appearance. The plant on Jones Island in Milwaukee handles two million gallons a day, and it is now proposed to place four or five additional ones in different sections of the city, one of them in the built-up section, and the whole of them would be capable of handling 100,000,000 gallons a day.

Works Well in Winter.

Reeve McIntosh wanted to know if there would not be some trouble with the plant in the Canadian winter, and the engineer informed him that when he was in Milwaukee the weather was 16 degrees below zero and the coldest the sewage reached was 34 above, and generally ran about 44 degrees. The sludge, when it is removed from the settling tanks, is highly valued as a fertilizer and has a slight tar smell.

W. H. Andrews thought that the city should allow the residents of that section of North Monaghan, to connect up their places with hte sewer. If the residents got this permission there would not be so much objection to it.

Reeve McIntosh understood that the Provincial Board had given some instructions as to the people in the neighborhood being allowed to use the sewer.

Councillor Rye Speaks.

H. B. Rye, with the remark, "It's about time I started something," gave a review of the history connected with the building of the outfall sewer till the present time. Extracts were read from Judge Ketchum's award, which allowed the city to empty the sewage into the river for five years. This had afterwards been extended by special legislation. It was stipulated then that the sewage was to be purified, but he knew of horses and cattle, dying in Otonabee and North Monaghan from causes that veterinaries could trace to their eating grass growing on lands flooded by sewage water. He was absolutely opposed to the building of the plant in North Monaghan. The city had always put it over the township, and he referred to the fact that in spite of the Judge's ruling that the city pay the cost, they had induced the township council to pay 15 per cent. of the $4000.

Reeve McIntosh denied this. He was almost sure that the township paid only its own solicitor's fees. The reeve told the meeting that very little progress had been made at the joint meetings, and it was to get the ratepayers' opinions on the plan that the meeting was called before the township committed itself to the plans of the city. No one could say that the plant would be odorless.

Wesley Rose did not want the city to experiment in Monaghan. "Let them tell us what they are going to do," he said.

W. H. Andrews wanted the plant placed across the river on the Wilson property as had been planned in ex-Mayor Buller's time. He thought it would be a good idea for the new council to deal with it.

Conditions Changed.

Mayor Duffus told the harmonious meetings between the city and township councils, and he started in by showing that when the Otonabee site had been decided on it was the preferable one owing to the city intending to adopt the Imhoff system. Conditions had changed, and the latest system and the one approved of by the Provincial Board was the present site, which was flat. Why is the plant not placed in the city? Because it must be located at the lowest point possible. The Mayor also dealt with the "ruling out of order" motion of Reeve McIntosh at one of the joint meetings in which the tenor of the motion was to move the plant across the river. It was because the joint committee had no power to change a resolution of the City Council. It was a self-constituted committee to suggest changes. The city had made the extensive plans in order to see if some of the objections of the residents could not be removed. If the plans as drawn up were adopted, it would be good for the city, township and county. All would beneflet. But it was a question of costing quite a lot of money, and it was thought that if the Exhibition Company would assist and all the municipalities pull together the problem would be solved. The price asked for the lands was very high and was bound to drive the city back to the original plans. When the plant was completed the residents of the township would find that the city would arrange with them for sewerage connection.

One resident suggested that the Mayor and aldermen were trying to get the matter settled before the election. This was impossible as it would take three months to prepare the plans alone. The City Council were trying to carry on the business in the best way they knew how.

Another resident wanted to know why the rush until plans were ready, and the Mayor stated that the townships interested were objecting to the sewage going into the river, and the Provincial Board were asking, "Why the delay?"

It would suit the city fine to leave the matter stand as it is for two or three years. It was also pointed out that the city did not have to submit a bylaw to the people, as the Health Act covered the expenditure of money for health purposes.

Mr. Wilson, a South Monaghan resident, remarked: "Do you really intend to put the plant on the approved site? If so, we want the Exhibition grounds with it."

Mr. Rye—If Otonabee wants it, North Monaghan don't want it. Why not be neighborly and give it to them?

Mayor Duffus pointed out the maintenance cost and the future growth of the city as arguments against the Otonabee site, but a few thousand dollars in improvement cost was not going to stop the city from getting the best.

The residents seemed to think that there was no need for hurry, and they would hear what the new council had to say.

Those present from the City Council were: Mayor Duffus, Aldermen Edgar, Saunders, Dobbin, Stratton and McIntyre, City Clerk Armstrong and City Engineer Parsons.

Famous House Demolished.

Boswell's house in Great Queen street, which is about to be demolished, is rich in associations with famous men, says The London Chronicle. Thomas Hudson, the portrait painter, occupied it when for three years he had Reynolds under his roof as a pupil, and previous to that Kneller had lived there. Hoole, the translator of Dante, and Chippendale, of furniture fame, followed, and another well-known portrait painter, Thomas Worlidge, completes the list. Great Queen street was so named in compliment to Henrietta Maria, whose statue stood there until 1651, when it was broken up by order of Parliament.

Size of Man.

The ancients contended that the first men on earth were mighty and godlike, and that they degenerated in vigor and size, while later historians have tried to prove that they were of dwarfish appearance. At any rate the present average height of the whole human species is five feet five inches, yet the tallest Greek exceeds this by about 4.6 inches.

BEGIN HOT WATER DRINKING IF YOU DON'T FEEL RIGHT

If you wake up with a bad taste, bad breath, and tongue is coated; if your head is dull or aching; if what you eat sours and forms gas and acid in stomach, or you are bilious, constipated, nervous, sallow, and can't get feeling just right, begin inside bathing. Drink before breakfast a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This will flush the poisons and toxins from stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels and cleanse, sweeten and purify the entire alimentary tract. Do your inside bathing immediately upon arising in the morning, to wash out of the system all the previous day's poisonous waste, gases and sour bile before putting more food into the stomach.

To feel like young folks feel; like you felt before your blood, nerves and muscles became loaded with body impurities, get from your pharmacist a quarter pound of limestone phosphate, which is inexpensive and almost tasteless, except for a sourish twinge, which is not unpleasant.

Just as soap and hot water act on the skin, cleansing, sweetening and freshening, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. Men and women who are usually constipated, bilious, headachy or have any stomach disorder should begin this inside bathing before breakfast. They are assured they will become real cranks on the subject shortly.

Real Knockouts.

"Don't go home yet, old man!" said the convivial Englishman at 9.30. Drop in at my place and have one more and a cigar. I've just got a new brand I'd like you to try."

The voice of the tempter prevailed, and they went in together, and soon the victim was lighting one of the new smokes.

They puffed and puffed and the room became full of a strong, green smoke.

"Fine things, aren't they?" asked the host. "Quite a new kind. I chose 'em myself. You can't get 'em everywhere. I'm thinking of sending a dozen boxes out to the front."

"Really," murmured the victim, whose face was turning purple and yellow. "I should if I were you. But how can you be sure that they'll reach the Germans."—Exchange.

Stops that Pain in the Back

Pain in the back is one of the most common symptoms of Kidney trouble. Every movement becomes a torture, and if neglected, the disorder finally confines the sufferer to bed.

This is exactly what happened in the case of Mr. Arnold McAskell, of Hants County, Nova Scotia. He sought in vain for relief until he decided to try

GinPills FOR THE KIDNEYS

Before he had used one box he began to feel better. Two boxes entirely relieved him. And best of all, up to the time he wrote us, he had had no further sign of the trouble. INSULTING THE UNIFORM

Scotland Yard Keeps close Watch on "Bogus Heroes"

Scotland Yard organised a special staff to round up bogus "heroes." The King's uniform has been abused to a greater extent than has been supposed. The military authorities saw the danger and made an effort themselves to deal with it, but the assistance of Scotland Yard was found to be desirable, and a strict look-out is kept for adventurers in military guise. Impostors trying to take advantage of public generosity find it very difficult in Britain to pursue their methods.

EVIDENCES OF GOOD TRANING

JUNIOR LEAGUE OF GEORGE ST. CHURCH GAVE FINE PROGRAM.

The concert given by the Junior Epworth League of George Street Church last night was a great success. The attendance was large and $40 was added to the mission fund of the League. The program was especially interesting in the fact that it was given by the juniors and was a splendid testimony to the ability of our youth when in the hands of good trainers. Mrs. (Dr.) Harvey, Mrs. McKay, Miss Elliott and Miss Armstrong gave their services to the League in this connection.

Miss Isobel Bair and Master Jock Renwick assisted the orchestra, and the young people gave excellent music.

The concert will be repeated on Friday, Dec. 15th, at the request of the ladies of the church, the proceeds to be used for comforts for the soldiers.

WOMEN'S PATRIOTIC LEAGUE.

The following articles were contributed by the Women's Patriotic League, Ashburnham, during November: 18 suits of pyjamas, 6 bed jackets, 5 personal property bags, to the Red Cross Society, and 68 pairs of socks, 16 gauze shirts, 4 pairs of wristlets, to the Canadian Field Comforts Commission. Fifty dollars was sent to the Prisoners of War Fund, and one hundred dollars to the Canadian Field Comforts Commission.

SOCKS FOR SOLDIERS.

The Canadian Kitchener League would like everyone who is knitting to turn in as many pairs of socks before the 16th inst. as possible. A steamer sails on that date, and the League are anxious to have a generous number of socks to send to our boys in the trenches.

Just Suppose—

Suppose that you were at a musicale in a private home or in a public concert room.

Suppose that a great singer whom you had been invited to hear, or had paid an admittance fee to hear, got up before you and sang in such a way that his voice sounded like a talking machine. What would you think and what would you do?

You would think that the singer was trying to play a joke on you and you would be offended, and if you had paid money at the door, you would demand its return.

No one expects realism from a talking machine

You do not expect a singer's real voice to sound like his talking machine records, and of course you don't expect his talking machine records to sound like his voice.

The New Edison is not a talking machine

When you hear a great artist in concert work or upon the stage, that artist's voice sounds exactly as it would sound when Re-created by the New Edison. In other words, there is absolutely no difference between an artist's real voice and Edison's Re-Creation of his voice.

A picture of ARTHUR MIDDLETON, great bass of the Metropolitan Opera Company, as he has appeared in public, singing in direct comparison with Edison's Re-creation of his voice to prove that one is indistinguishable from the other

Proved 300 Times

The fact that Edison's new invention, the New Edison, Re-creates the human voice with such literal fidelity that the living voice cannot be distinguished from the Re-Creation of it has been demonstrated in public more than 300 times.

Great Artists, such as Marie Rappold, Anna Case, Alice Verlet, Christine Miller, Arthur Middleton and Thomas Chalmers, standing beside the New Edison, have sung alternately with it, and it is a fact, which can be proved by accounts of these astounding tests in more than two hundred of America's leading newspapers, that it was impossible for the audience to distinguish the artists' living voices from Edison's Re-Creation of them on his latest and greatest invention, the New Edison.

Will there be Real Music in your home at Christmas?

The new Edison will bring into your home the literal Re-Creation of the voices—and instrumental performances—of the world's great artists.

When you hear Zenatello's magnificent tenor, or the wonderful voices of Matzenauer and Destinn, as Re-created by the New Edison, you are hearing those voices exactly as they sound upon the opera stage.

If you have the New Edison in your home, you don't have to imagine how a great artist's voice really sounds. You know how it sounds when you have heard it Re-created by the New Edison.

Come to our store and hear

The NEW EDISON

Before you decide what is to be the principal gift this year to your family, come to our store and hear the New Edison. Come at any hour. You will be welcome, and you will not be urged to buy,

MARKET PRICES

A heavy demand for turkeys was the feature of the market this morning and very few were on sale as a result. The farmers' wives got 30c and in some cases higher for their good young hens. The prices have been sent up locally owing to outside buyers offering 27c to 28c per lb. at the farm.

Chickens of good quality were offed today at 18c to 20c per lb. while those of poor quality sold anywhere from 50c to 75c each. Ducks sold at 90c to $1.25 and geese at $1.50 to $2.25 each, an average of 16c per lb.

Eggs were offered in two grades. Strictly fresh eggs sold as high as 52c and the packed at 45c. There were plenty of the latter grade on sale.

Honey sold at 75c per 5 lb. tin.

On the outside market there was plenty of dressed beef, pork and lamb, with prices unchanged from last week.

The usual supply of apples and vegetables was on sale at a slight advance in the apple section.

Several car loads of choice Christmas cattle were shipped out by Messrs. Morris and Brown.

Hogs have taken another jump and are quoted at $11.25 for next week's delivery.

An Epidemic

"Every employe in the Bank of England," says an attache of the British Embassy at Washington, "is required to sign his name in a book on his arrival in the morning, and if late must give the reason therefor. The chief cause of tardiness is usually fog, and the first man to arrive writes 'fog' opposite his name, and those who follow write 'ditto.'

"On day, however, the first late man gave as the reason, 'wife had twins,' and twenty other late men mechanically signed 'ditto' underneath."

JEWISH FEAST OF DEDICATION

The Feast of Dedication (Channukah) commences at sundown on Tuesday, Dec. 19, and lasts for eight days. It celebrates the successful ending of a war against religious tyranny. Its predominant message, therefore, is religious liberty.

In the year 162 before the present era, the Syrian king, Antiochus Epiphanes, set up a statue of a pagan deity in the Jewish Temple of Jerusalem, and tried to compel the Jews to worship it and abandon their own historic faith. This effort at forcing an alien religion upon the Jewish people provoked a bitter revolt in which the Jews, led by the famous Judas Maccabeus and his brothers, finally defeated the Syrian armies, re-entered the Temple and rededicated it as the centre of Jewish worship. In honor of this rededication the feast of Channukah (dedication) was established, its eight days to be holidays, days of song and thanksgiving.

The holiday is marked by special prayers of thanks and psalms of praise inserted into the daily ritual, and by the kindling of the Channukah lights. The usual custom is to light one light on the first day, two on the second, three on the third, and so on, adding one each successive day of the feast. As to the reason for this custom of kindling the lights, legend tells that when Judas Maccabeus and his victorious army re-dedicated the Temple and cleansed it of all the impurities of idolatry he found that there was only enough pure oil to keep the perpetual light burning for one day, and it would be long before new oil could be procured. But miraculously, this small amount of oil lasted for eight days, and the perpetual light was not extinguished. For this reason it was ordained that every year lights should be kindled for eight days in every household. It became customary for the lights to be placed in the windows and the doorways, so that the streets of the cities be lighted up. Thus the feast came to be known as he Feast of Lights.

The Jewish date for the beginning of this feast is the 25th of the month of Kislev. According to one tradition, the reason that Judas selected this date is because it fell exactly three years after Antiochus had defiled the Temple; according to another tradition it is because that was also the day when the Israelites, after being delivered from Egypt, completed the Tabernacle in the wilderness.

HELPING THE BLIND SOLDIERS

Lance-Corp. A. G. Viets, P.P.C. L.I., is one of the Canadian soldiers who have sacrificed the precious possession of sight in the service of the Empire. Mr. Viets joined the Princess Pats in Calgary, and was one of the original immortal band who went into the trenches on Jan. 6, 1915. He had a premonition of the catastrophe after two months, when a shell, exploding directly in front of his portion of the trench, filled his eyes with sand and sent him to the hospital for two weeks. On May 2 he left the trenches for the last time in the arms of Jack Munroe, former miner, former prize fighter, and former mayor of Elk Lake, wounded by a mortar bomb. He emerged from a long term in hospital with the light of day extinguished for all time.

At St. Dunstan's Hostel for Blinded Soldiers and Sailors in London, Viets met Lieut. E. A. Baker, of the 6th Field Company, Canadian Engineers, who had also lost his eyesight in Flanders. For several months they studied together the Braille alphabet and other devices which give to the sightless a measure of independence. Together they became associates of the Canadian Free Library for the Blind, and since their return to Canada have been elected members of the board of directors of that institution.

Mr. Viets is a native of Digby, Nova Scotia, where two of his ancestors—father and son, United Empire Loyalists—were successively rectors of that little town in the days of its first settlement. There is in the possession of the family of the writer of this note the manuscript of a sermon preached—for the first time—in Trinity Church, New York, by Rev. Roger Viets, some time about 1770, and frequently thereafter, by father and son in Trinity Church, New York; Trinity Church, Digby, and Trinity Church, St. John, N.B. It might very appropriately be preached any current Sunday, for, in the old rector's quaint phraseology, it is inscribed "Sermon for the Twenty-first Sunday Past Trinity," and its subject is "Gratitude."

There is no want of that feeling about such men at Viets and Baker. They are grateful that the catastrophe which took away their sight left them their strength, their whole bodies, their reason, and they are thankful for the work of such men as Sir Arthur Pearson, who have done so much for them and for others less resourceful than themselves. They are grateful for the fact that there are still Canadians who are willing to do what they have done, and they are anxious that this feeling of gratitude shall suffuse the nation, for whose liberty and every other valuable possession they and thousands of heroes have sacrificed their all, and shall make its presence known. Lance-Corp. Viets has joined the staff of a large insurance company in Toronto, and in spite of his blindness his studies at St. Dunstan's Hostel have made it possible for him to undertake duties in the business world.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

The members of the Peterborough Operatic and Dramatic Society met last night to combine business with pleasure after the strenuous work of the last few months in connection with the Geisha. Most of the ticket returns were in and checked, after which a most enjoyable evening was spent. Refreshments were served at 10 p.m. and songs sung by Misses Allen and Rathbone and Messrs. Liddell and Thompson. Mr. R. J. Devey congratulated the company on their recent success and heartily thanked the members for their most faithful rehearsing, which had produced such a splendid representation of a heavy musical work. There was an effort made to produce the play at Lindsay, but the transportation of so large a company was impracticable. A matinee and night would likely be arranged in this city for Christmas week. On the motion of Mr. Liddell, musical honors were heartily accorded Mr. and Mrs. Devey, Cunningham and Wun Hi chairing the musical director round the room. A pleasant evening ended with "God Save the King" and "Auld Lang Syne."

W. D. Ketchison official bailiff for Belleville, is in the city on a short visit.

A very special meeting of the Canadian Kitchener League is called for Monday evening, Dec. 11th, at the Y. M. C. A. at 8 o'clock sharp. It is most important that every member be present.

Mrs. (Rev.) H. J. Keith of Edmonton, is visiting in the city and is the guest of Dr. Malcolm and Mrs. McCulloch, Charlotte Street.

A very pleasant drawing room recital was held on Thursday, evening, under the auspices of the Otonabee Chapter, I.O.D.E. at the residence of Mr. R.R. Hall.

Mr. F. Whithouse again very kindly furnished the programme on the Aerolian Vocalion, which was very much enjoyed by all present.

The thanks of the chapter are due to Mrs. Hall, for so kindly offering the use of her house and also to Mr. Whitehouse, for a delightful musical treat.

How to Recoup.

Cordial Custard.—Suppose your boiled custard curdles. Try putting it in a very cold basin and beating it briskly. Another plan is to add a teaspoonful of corn flour mixed to a paste with water. Cook this for a few minutes, then strain the thickened custard into a glass dish.

To Thicken Batter.—In mixing any pudding made with batter you may add too much liquid if you are in a hurry. If your batter is too thin, thicken it with white breadcrumbs.

When cream doesn't whip stand it where it will get very cold, then add to it the white of an egg and beat them together thoroughly.

If mayonnaise curdles put the yolk of an egg into a very cold basin and add the curdled sauce drop by drop, stirring steadily all the time.

Beading in Colors.

Beading to match and contrast with the bright colors of wool and silk jersey suits is the latest fad. Conventional designs, old fashioned sampler patterns and stiff square of circle inclosed flowers are chosen for the bead work which appears on the left side of the coat, at the sash ends and on the pockets of coats and skirts alike.

Fur Trimmings.

More fur trimmings than ever is the outlook for fall. The favorite trimming furs are silver dyed rabbit, moleskin, Hudson seal and raccoon. Instead of the high funnel collar on coats the deep sailor collar which can be held close to the neck with a strap will take its place.

Women would be happy if they would live long without getting very old.

MR. AND MRS. JAS. NELSON OBSERVE GOLDEN WEDDING

KENE, Dec. 9. — The home of Mr. and Mrs. James Nelson was the scene of a very happy event when about sixty guests gathered to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding on Tuesday evening, Dec. 5. A sumptuous wedding dinner was served the guests at 6 o'clock, after which gifts and addresses were presented from members of the family, all of whom were present but Mr. and Mrs. Esau Tucker, of Portland, Ore., who sent their gifts and hearty congratulations. In behalf of the family Mr. Peter Gillespie of Hastings read the following address:

Dear Father and Mother:

While your many friends bring their congratulations on this occasion, we your children feel that we would like to express our thankfulness that you are spared to us, and our deep gratitude for the love and devotion you have always bestowed upon us. During our lives we have been surrounded by your care and love for us. We hope to have the privilege of making your lives bright and cheerful during your remaining years, that the eventide of your lives may be spent in happiness and content and in the knowledge of duty well done. We pray that God's blessing may make your last years your best years and that His grace may keep us in the paths of peace and rectitude wherein you have always endeavored to lead us.

We ask you to accept these small gifts as a token of our appreciation and love, and trust that you may be spared for many years.

A number of short congratulatory speeches were given, in which fitting references were made to the kindness and fine neighborly spirit of the bride and groom.

Music and refreshments filled in a happy hour, after which the bride and groom and numbers of their friends danced Scotch reels, music being furnished by the violinist, Mr. Archibald Bryer, who played at their wedding fifty years ago.

This makes the second golden wedding celebrated in this community within a month, which speaks volumes for the quality of the pioneers who settled in this district.

REV. DR. GRANT GIFTED SPEAKER AT KNOX CHURCH

SIXTH ANNIVERSARY OF OPENING WILL BE OBSERVED ON SUNDAY.

Tomorrow will be a day of great interest and importance in Knox Church. The celebration of the sixth anniversary of the opening of the present building will be suitably observed. The Session has been fortunate in securing the services of Rev. Dr. Andrew S. Grant, Toronto, for the day. Dr. Grant has a wide and through experience of church life and work in this country, and this fact, coupled with his speaking gifts, which are of a high order, insures that all who hear him will benefit by his messages. All members and adherents of the church are specially requested to be present that they may all share in this benifit. Friends of the congregation will be made cordially welcome.

The choir will render suitable music. A special offering will be taken on behalf of the building fund.

Any who wish to attend these services but are unable to walk to and from them may have transportation by auto arranged by calling up Mr. MacKenzie, No. 1634.

The anniversary rally in the Sunday school will in no way interfere with the regular working of the classes.

MISS TELGMANN STOOD THE TEST

PLAYED WITH ALBERT SPAULDING, NEW EDISON STAR.

An unique musical treat was given in the Collegiate Institute assembly hall last night when a tone test was given on the New Edison with Miss Mignon Telgmann, Peterborough's clever violin artiste, in comparative test with the reproductions of Albert Spaulding, one of the numerous stars of the musical world, whose renditions contribute so much to the enjoyment of New Edison owners. Miss Telgmann's ability as a violiniste was demonstrated to a very marked degree and her work was liberally applauded. Miss Dorothy Allan contributed vocal numbers, being accompanied by Mr. John Allan.

Mr. Butters, of the J. M. Greene Music Co., was in charge of the New Edison.

LLOYD GEORGE IGNORED AND THWARTED IN WORK

British Weekly Gives Story of Present Political Crisis---Concessions Made to Popular Demand Never Carried Out

TORONTO, Dec. 8.—Sir Robertson Nicoll, in the British Weekly, gives what is supposed to be an authoritative story of the present political crisis. He says Lloyd George accepted the war secretaryship without enthusiasm, and was able to effect something, but was continually thwarted. His remonstrances and memoranda were ignored. The war went from bad to worse. Every day brought the story of humiliation, indecision and disaster. Lloyd George became convinced that we were not winning the war and that with present methods we never should win it. Everything was stagnant and the governmnet was apparently unable to do anything. Even when verbal concessions were made to the popular demand, they were not carried into effect. The country was willing to follow any direction, but it had none.

ROBERTSON AND JELLICOE IN COUNCIL.

At last on Friday he wrote the Prime Minister demanding that the direction of the war be taken from the Cabinet and committed to a council of two or three with Sir William Robertson and Sir John Jellicoe. The Prime Minister was to have a vote and also the right to be present when he wished to be.. Mr. Asquith replied at once, and a very friendly conference was held between the two statesmen, after which it seemed likely that matters might be arranged. Then on Saturday the Prime Minister went to see the King, and afterwards proceeded to the Walmer, thinking the matter might rest until Monday, but he was informed by telegram that the business would brook no delay, and came back on Sunday. There was another friendly interview in which the Premier agreed that the methods for the conduct of the war required reformation, and agreed with certain modifications to Lloyd George's proposals. Sunday night he issued a statement to the nation containing the announcement that the Government was to be reconstructed.

PREMIER REJECTED PROPOSALS.

....On Monday symptoms of a change in the Prime Minister were visible, and on Tuesday a letter was received from him in which he rejected the proposals to which he had agreed by letter and by word of mouth. To this course, no doubt, certain members of the Cabinet urged him. On this, Lloyd George's resignation followed immediately, as no alternative was left him.

93rd BANDSMEN REACH CANADA

OTHERS UNDER ORDERS TO LEAVE ENGLAND AND PASSES STOPPED.

Several members of the 93rd Battalion Band have arrived at Halifax on their return to Peterborough Bugler Garfield Torrance is one of them.

Writing under date of Nov. 17. Bandmaster Frank Wells of the 93rd Band says: Ten members of the 93rd Band are playing in the 39th band under Bandmaster Peryer, and the remainder of the band are on fatigue. We are under orders for Canada. I think there must be something doing, or they would give us a pass. I have been up for a pass six times, but it has been cancelled every time. M. Gilbert, H. Wood, A. Brisco and P. Doughty, I believe, are on their way back to Canada.

I was up to London again to the Lord Mayor's show and we sure had some time. The folowing day we gave a concert at the Westminster Hall, where a sale of work was in progress. I saw the first German monoplane to be brought down in France, and some parts of a Zeppelin brought down about Sept. 31. I got a piece for a souvenir. The funds are for the Red Cross.

JACK PETHICK KILLED AS HE LAY ASLEEP IN DUGOUT

Driver Bert Janes Tells How Former Teammate on Local Hockey Club Met Death.

In a letter just received Driver Bert Janes of the 40th Battery, writes of the death of Jack Pethick, who played with the Peterborough Intermediate O.H.A. team two years ago, when Driver Janes was goaltender. He says:—

"I have very bad news to write you. My pal and bosom friend, Jack Pethick, was killed last night. It is a terrible blow to me. Jack, Stanley Wainman, Jim and Frank O'Connor and Mawk McKenzie were in the dugout, having just finished their supper. They had been firing pretty steadily for several hours and were well tired out. Jack was asleep on his bed and the other four boys were having a smoke before retiring, when a Fritz 5.9 hit at the door and killed poor Jack almost instantly. The other four boys were uninjured. It was certainly a miracle how they escaped as the shell blew the dugout mostly to pieces. Jack Pethick was very popular with all the boys, and all feel the loss very keenly. Please do not worry as the supreme sacrifice is done for God, king and country, and is an honorable death. I will miss Jack more than words can tell."

That the boys in France fully appreciate gifts of tobacco is again evidenced by the following postal card from a man in the 2nd Battalion (the Iron Second), the members of which have covered themselves with honor and glory. The card runs thus:

Mr. F. Russell,
376½ Water street,
Peterborough, Canada.
On active service in France.

Dear Sir: Just to thank you for your kindness in sending those cigarettes, which we received today. Hoping this will find you well. Thanking you again.

W. G. Denman,
2nd Battalion.

KING WILL PIN MEDAL ON TUNIC OF LOCAL HERO

LIEUT. J. R. STRATTON

Lt. J. R. Stratton Sends Letter to Friends at Home.

Ald. A. H. Stratton has received a letter from his son, Lieut. J. R. Stratton, with the Royal Engineers in Europe, and who was recently awarded the Military Cross for distinguished bravery in rescuing wounded comrades. King George will personally pin the medal upon the young officer's tunic, the date for the ceremony not yet being set. Lieut. Stratton writes as follows:

Dear Dad: Just a word, as I am going into the fighting line for three weeks tomorrow, and won't have much time for letters.

I have had a good four days' rest after my leave, and I flatter myself that I needed it. We had a big parade this morning for the presentation of medal ribbons. The corps commander pinned the Military Cross ribbon on my tunic and nearly shoved the pin into me. Capt. Matheson, my O. C., got the ribbon, too, for the same day as mine. It was the second card I got.

It never rains but it pours. My third card from the general came through this morning, and, as usual, mentions the name of a village. I'll send it home as soon as I can. Personally I don't want the cards. All I want is a sound body after the war. But I must say it is nice to have a collection of curios that everybody else hasn't got.

I am looking forward to five days' leave to have the King pin the medal on, but have no idea when it will come.

It is pretty cold and wet here now, which doesn't make the war too pleasant, but we are all cheerful.

Your loving son,
REG.

PETERBOROUGH, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 8, 1916

SOME WAYS OF RAISING MONEY.

PETERBOROUGH may be hard up, as Mayor Duffus and other officials tell us, but the city is not so urgently in need of money as to be obliged to dispose of its garments to provide funds.

The illuminated waste paper receptacles installed by aldermanic sanction at various prominent corners bring in a revenue of $3 a month each. Twenty receptacles mean a total monthly revenue of $60, and twenty receptacles mean so many blots on the civic landscape. The boxes are unsightly as well as unsanitary and should not be tolerated even on the plea that the city needs the money. Peterborough has surely outgrow village policies and politics.

The pool room must go. The best classes in the community demand that these places be closed. Even if the licenses brought in $1080 this year, that fact does not justify the maintenance of refuges where the idlers and the slackers can congregate.

WITH BOTH FEET.

A LOCAL LIBERAL with ambitions and a record of public service is reported as saying that he is in politics with both feet, out for anything in the gift of his party.

There can be no objection taken to this stand. Any man who seeks to establish himself in the political garden plot does well to drag both pedal extremities with him, and not leave one member halting hesitatingly on the other side of the fence.

However, the time was when the local gentleman referred to never could content himself until he had placed his number tens right in the trencher.

LLOYD GEORGE'S GOVERNMENT.

THE FIRST GREAT ACT of Lloyd George, when he is installed as Premier of England, we are assured, will be to form a national Government. It will not be in any sense what is termed a coalition cabinet. For the latter, the men are chosen by the party in power chiefly for what they represent and for what following they possess rather than for the fitness they may have for the duties they are expected to perform.

Premier George will surround himself with all of the great men of the nation, no matter with what faction they train or from what rank in society they may come. All party lines are to be obliterated and partisan jealousies are to be swept aside.

England is on the brink of what may prove to be the greatest revolution—peaceful and bloodless as it may be—in her history. Democracy, instead of a theory, is to become a condition, a reality is to follow a dream that has lasted for ages. The whole world will watch eagerly the outcome of Premier George's experiment. Leaders in all countries who call statesmen to their councils have an object lesson before them.

Canada may well take a leaf from the book of the new British Prime Minister. In this country the patronage system is at its worst. Men are chosen for public positions of trust, not so much for their ability to discharge a certain line of duties as in consideration of their fidelity and service in some particular political party. When a new cabinet is formed, the men selected are chosen generally with regard to geographical location. A man may be appointed Minister of Public Works, even if he never has had experience to the extent of building an addition to his private residence. In the Justice Department alone is any attempt made to recognize training.

It may be said, by way of apology for such a system, that the minister in charge of a department is only a figurehead, and that the chief responsibility devolves upon his deputy, who is supposed to hold office under the civil service rules for life or good conduct, the latter requirement consisting large of keeping himself free from embarrassing political entanglements. If this figurehead theory is correct, then the Lloyd George idea can be introduced with advantage into this country.

In private life it has never yet been the custom to put a house carpenter at the head of a piano factory or to entrust a lawyer with the active management of an institution the chief business of which is the construction of agricultural machinery.

BONAR LAW ANOTHER CAESAR.

MARK ANTONY, taking his own statement as his authority, at the Supercal thrice presented Julius Caesar with a kingly crown and begged his acceptance of it as a favor to the Roman nation. Three times Caesar waved away the proffered emblem of authority, knowing as he did that the temper of the people would never stand for such a change in administering their affairs.

Acting on the advice of his official counsellors, King George invited Bonar Law to form a cabinet, but with the wisdom and foresight of a Caesar Mr. Law declined, being averse, let it be said to his credit, to precipitate a dissension. But there was strategy in the move. The element that Mr. Law represents will probably be appeased and flattered by the honor offered their leader, just as the wily Roman of old, aimed by his byplay with Mark Antony to convince the common people that he was still one of themselves with no ambition for kingly circumstance.

SIR WILFRID'S CHARITY.

IT IS LIKE Sir Wilfrid Laurier to deal charitably with the atrocious Germans. It will be remembered how in a public address in Montreal four years ago he besought heaven to forgive those who voted against him in 1911, seeing that they did not realize the enormity of their offences.

FOUR CANADAS.

THE WINNIPEG Free Press says that there are three Canadas, the Canada of Sacrifice, the Canada of Selfishness and the Canada of Indifference.

Our contemporary might have extended the list to a fourth. The fourth Canada is the Canada of Alien Enemies, who as a rule fare tolerably well. Even if they are interned, they are not compelled to labor excessively and are regaled with turkey and other delicacies in season.

It is only when alien enemies fall out and welch on each other that patriots can hope to get their dues.

WHERE COMPULSION IS REQUIRED.

SIR ROBERT BORDEN is surely convinced by this time that something more than moral suasion is required to induce the people of the Province of Quebec to do their duty as subjects of the British Empire. At the first meeting under the auspices of the National Service Commission, which the Premier addressed at Montreal, he was accorded a respectful hearing, but Mr. Patenaude, the Minister of Inland Revenue, who attempted to speak, was jeered at and hooted by those of his own race. The conditions are indeed serious when an appeal for recruits is heard in such a spirit as that which incited the audience to disorder at the Montreal meeting.

Why was Sir Robert Borden given an uninterrupted hearing while a French-Canadian Minister was howled down by his own people? Simply because the audience could tolerate one of British descent, expecting nothing different from him. The other was no doubt regarded as recreant to his own race, a man false to the teachings and the traditions of Quebec as promulgated by Lavergne, Bourassa and the rest of them. Sir Wilfrid Laurier can no longer boast of the loyalty of his people. If he has influence with them, it is apparent in which direction that influence lies. There is scarcely a doubt that if he had consented to act in co-operation with the Government by serving on the National Service Commission and had appeared on the platform at Montreal in company with Sir Robert Borden, he would have been met with the same boisterous hostilities as were meted out to Mr. Patenaude. When Sir Wilfrid declined to collaborate in recruiting, he did so knowing well the temper of the people of his own lineage.

In a city or province where there flourishes what cannot be regarded as other than militant treason, something more than soft persuasion is required. If such an incident occurred in Germany, how would it be interpreted with regard to the unanimity of the populace on the war issue?

"JIMMY" SIMPSON'S LOGIC.

SPEAKING IN Labor Hall here Tuesday night, Mr. "Jimmy" Simpson, the Toronto Socialist, said that in Scotland bread made from Canadian wheat sells for considerably less than does the staff of life in Canada, a statement that appears plausible enough if no attempt is made to go behind the returns.

The average audience have no objection to a lecturer pulling the wool over their eyes so long as the process involves no torture but tickles instead of wounding their sensibilities.

Mr. Simpson believes in fair compensation for the workingman. When he talks about cheap goods in Europe, however, he takes no account of the wage scale there. Bread from Canadian wheat may be cheaper in Glasgow than in Canada, goods from raw Canadian wool or American cotton can be produced cheaper in England than on this side of the Atlantic, but it is at the expense of the workers for whose welfare Mr. Simpson professes so much solicitude.

The acorns that Sir John Macdonald was wont to refer to in one of his apt illustrations are still falling from the oak under exactly the same conditions. The Canadian tariff is yet in force, accomplishing more for the benefit of the workingman than all the theoretical teachings of Mr. Simpson can bring about in a lifetime. His misfortune is that he appears unable to appreciate the source of his material blessings.

"REFORM" IN QUEBEC.

THE LEGISLATURE now in session in Quebec has declined to close the bars in those portions of the province that are not already under local option. The temperance people in the dry sections of the Dominion have accordingly no hope left that the entire country will be made dry.

But Quebec will "reform" its present license system by adopting the one that was abandoned in Ontario years ago. The cafe plan will be tried. That means that people who want to drink can combine eating with that pastime and seat themselves so as to enjoy their refreshments in bodily ease. This cannot fail to benefit the dealer by encouraging his patrons to linger over their libations. Some provinces may go forward, but others seem intent upon retrogression.

WAR HAS TAXED HORSE SUPPLY OF WORLD TO THE VERY LIMIT

Prophecies that the motor-propelled vehicle is destined ultimately to supplant entirely the horse were characterized as "ill-advised" by Dr. Clarence J. Marshall, professor of veterinary medicine in the University of Pennsylvania. Dr. Marshall, who is state veterinarian, recently returned from abroad, where he studied for several months the method of caring for wounded horses on the various front on the continent. Dr. Marshall lectured in Houston Hall on the Horse and the Great War.

"The war," said Dr. Marshall "has taxed the horse supply of the world to its fullest capacity. All countries realise now more fully than ever the importance of horse breeding. Commissions have been appointed in foreign countries to look after the conservation of horses. Careful records are being kept of the best mares in the service. Those that are living and suitable after the war will be used for breeding purposes."

Records compiled by the federal bureau of foreign commerce show that the value of horses, mules, wagons and saddles shipped during the last two years to the warring nations amounts approximately to 200,000,000 according to Dr. Marshall.

"This, it will be noted," continued Dr. Marshall, "is about $50,000,000 more than the value of motor-propelled vehicles shipped abroad during the same period. These figures show the necessity of ohrses in war. Without them an army would be greatly handicapped."

"The British army," said Professor Marshall, "is especially well organized to look after horses unfit for service. "They are cured for by veterinary corps," added Dr. Marshall, "which has charge of the animals until they are ready again for service. Every effort is being made to give deceased and incapacitated horses the best bedical and surgical attention. Of the first 100,000 horses that were treated in the British veterinary hospitals, 70 per cent. were cured and returned to the army service."

IS SOLDIER'S FAMILY OVERPAID?

No! A thousand times, no!

Yet unthinking people, learning that Mrs. Smith, or Mrs. Jones, or Mrs. Robinson is getting from the Government and the Canadian Patriotic fund fifty or fifty-five dollars a month, complain that this poor woman is better off than when her husband was home—the Patriotic Fund therefore, must be wasting money!

Is that a proper attitude? Do the people of Canada wish the administrators of the Patriotic Fund to keep the families of our soldiers close to the starvation line, but not so close, of course, as to be in danger of falling across?

No! A thousand times, no!

The aim of the fund is to maintain each family in a state of comfort equal, as least, to that to which it has been accustomed. If in cases, perhaps of families that through a husband's improvidence, have never been properly housed, fed or clothed, this standard is raised, who will condemn the fund?

Shall we keep those who are down, down? Or shall we try to bring those who are down, up?

The woman has given her man to the country. She has done what she could. Her consent was necessary before he enlisted. She gave it. Has she, has he, deserved well of us, or are the rules of the swat-shop to be invoked when we come to appraise the value of what this woman and her man have given the state?

Is our paltry silver and his precious life to be placed in the scales over against each other?

No! A thousand times, no!

If we are in danger of erring, let our error lean to generosity's side. Let us keep our memories green, and forget not that it is our battles these people are fighting. The man—God save him!—is standing between us and German bullets, facing toils, wounds, death. The woman—God bless her!—is bearing loneliness and anxiety, the pangs of fear that convert every door-knock into a death-knell. Shall we stay-at-homes, some of us slackers, few of us doing our whole duty, all of us beneficiaries of the sacrifices of this man and woman—shall we add Grim Want to the spectres that accost them?

No! A thousand times, no!

EDITOR'S MAIL

The Review has received a letter, properly signed by a local Greek who attacks a prominent member of that race, doing business in this city. The name of the latter has not appeared in print in connection with a matter that has been referred to in these columns and it would hardly be just to him to drag it in at this stage.

The Review and the reading public are not interested in personal jealousies and disputes. All that concerns them is the attitude of citizens of whatever nationality with regard to the main issue—the trouble between the Allies and other Powers. It would accomplish nothing in the interests of harmony to publish the letter in question.—Ed. Review.

MR. RYE REPLIES

Editor Review: I did not expect that Mayor Duffus would favor me with a reply, but as he has extended me that courtesy, I feel that it is only fair to Mayor Duffus to acknowledge his letter and to accept his correction. When he says that the City Council had not "expressed" the intention of giving this land to the Agricultural Society as a gift, I stand corrected.

The Council had not expressed that intention, but in following closely the discussions at these various meetings and also from what I gathered from remarks of some members of the Agricultural Society, it was the only logical conclusion I could come to. I am glad to see, Mr. Mayor, that the site was selected by the city and approved by the Provincial Board and not ordered by the board, as the city committee endeavored to make the Monaghan Council believe.

The Provincial Board, I think, advised the city to buy Mrs. O'Shea's property, but I also most certainly heard that the City Council would not buy any more land. Now what? If the prices so far obtained were prohibitive and it was unanimous that they were so, why did the City Council have the City Engineer waste valuable time making out an elaborate plan of disposal plant and exhibition grounds? Exhibition grounds to the fore, and then rush off to Toronto Friday a.m. (we as committee met Thursday evening) to get the plan approved of, putting the disposal plant on Mrs. O'Shea's property? Did the committee want a free ride to the city?

Why was the motion moved by Ald McIntyre and seconded by Reeve McIntosh to secure options on other property ruled out of order by you, Mr. Mayor? We were joint committees.

Why, Mr. Mayor, when Mr. Peck, solicitor for the township, Mr. D. O'Connell, solicitor for some ratepayers of the township, and Reeve McIntosh asked that the engineer give full description of the workings of the "new system," did the City Solicitor, Mr. Gordon, say, "No, he did not see why the city should put all the cards on the table"?

If the plant is not and will not be objectionable, what are the City Council afraid of? "Co-operate," Mr Mayor.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor,

H. B. RYE.

"I'll have another pair of these $5.00 "———" Shoes I've been wearing, but in a rather heavier weight, for the bad weather."

"This is the model for winter, madam. Good strong leather and solid, heavy sole. You'll find them very comfortable."

"That feels fine! The price, I suppose, is the same?"
"No, madam. These are $7.50."

"$7.50 ! ! !"
"I'm sorry to say, yes. All shoes are away up—good ones especially—and going higher. Leather is getting terribly scarce, and no one knows where it will end."

"Well, I suppose I can't do any better. These fit splendidly, and I'll take them."
"Thank you, madam."

"I need a pair of rubbers for these shoes I am wearing. I suppose they are away up in price, too?"

"Not at all. They are practically as cheap as ever."
"That's a wonder. Everything else seems to have gone up. I'll take this pair."

"Hadn't you better have a pair of rubbers to fit the new shoes, too? They'll cost you only 80c, and the shoes will wear half as long again if you keep them dry."

"I believe you're right. Have you rubbers to fit over these wide, heavy soles?"
"Certainly, madam—rubbers to fit perfectly over every shoe we sell."

"How about children's sizes?"
"We can fit them with rubbers just as well as the adults. Look at the range on these shelves!"

LATER—

"Don't you think, John, we'd better have a pair of rubbers to wear with each pair of our own shoes, and the children's as well? With shoes at such prices they'll pay for themselves several times over."

"Send those rubbers all up to-night, will you? . . . .
"Yes, dear, I'm glad you brought me over to see about this footwear business. Getting rubbers all round is what I call practical economy!"

APPRECIATION ON STATEMENT OF SHAUGHNESSY

COMPULSORY TEACHING OF FRENCH LANGUAGE FOR THE YOUNG.

The English newspapers have expressed themselves in terms of appreciation on the recent statement of Lord Shaughnessy in connection with the compulsory teaching of French in schools. The following editorial is taken from a Brighton paper:—

"In discussing the problems involved in the great matter of 'reconstruction after the war,' no question more frequently recurs that this, namely, is our present system of school education a sound one? Has it kept abreast of modern requirements and if not what is lacking? The majority of commercial men and women today will unhesitatingly answer, that it is not up to date, because foreign languages are neglected. It is pleasing, therefore to record Lord Shaughnessy, the distinguished president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, who is once more amongst us as an honored guest, voiced in the first interview he gave upon landing the crying need for greater attention being paid in our schools to universal instruction in foreign languages if we are to conduct a successful trade after the war. Lord Shaughnessy is pre-eminently one of the men who are qualified to speak for 'all the Britains'; engaged as he is in one of the wealthiest and most attractive countries in the world and in laying deep the foundations of British civilization in the great Dominion of the West. 'In the past,' said Lord Shaughnessy, 'we have been content to give our boys and girls just an adequate education in their own tongue. If the lessons of the war are to be taken to heart and if we are to extend our trade, then we must make our youngsters familiar with the language of other nations. The French language should be made compulsory in every common school throughout the Empire, for it is the most common medium of exchange of thought all over the world. Russian and Italian, too, should be studied.'

"These are wise words. How many of us when travelling upon the continent have had to deplore the fact that we could only speak our own mother tongue? Our merchants and business men were forced to take into their employ countless thousands of German clerks to translate their foreign correspondence, answer their letters and so learn the innermost secrets of their business because thy could not obtain British employees who were proficient in foreign languages. Why? Not because our people are less intelligent than other peoples, but because at school, when the mind is being formed, it was not made compulsory for foreign languages to be taught. What better compliment could be paid to our gallant Ally, France, than that this suggestion of Lord Shaughnessy's should be carried out and the teaching of French be made compulsory in every school throughout the Empire. It is better far than spending thousands of pounds on monuments and statues, of which we have already a superabundance. And then, how many of us realize that in the great Dominion of Canada there are today over 2,000,000 French-Canadians, loyal British subjects, who speak the tongue of their Motherland—France? They are the descendants of those gallant French soldiers, sailors and farmers who four hundred years ago began the settlement of Canada and in the years to come they will be counted, not by two, but by twenty millions at their present rate of increase. Modern conditions demand a modern education for our children, and the living languages will ensure them successful careers in the business world, whereas the dead languages, which are still so largely, have merely an academic interest.'

"Needs Our Money as Well as Our Men"

MOTHER'S APPRECIATION OF THE Y.M.C.A. OVERSEAS.

A mother of Lindsay sends the following to the Y. M. C. A. headquarters at Toronto, to voice her sentiments towards the good work being carried on overseas by the institution:

C. H. Wood, Toronto:

Dear Sir,—Please find enclosed my mite (one dollar) towards your good work among our soldiers. My boy enlisted Dec. 29, 1914, and has recently been wounded, but, thank God, is recovering in hospital at Manchester, and I know from him what the Y. M. C. A. are doing. My husband is also serving with the 109th, but it needs our money as well as our men, and I earn a little at scrubbing and washing to help the Red Cross, the Belgians, and send comforts to my loved ones, too.

Wishing your good work every success and God's richest blessing.

Yours sincerely.

P.S.—I sent once before, and will send again, when possible, my mite.

FIGHT AMONG BAKERS BRINGS CHEAPER BREAD

WHY THE STAFF OF LIFE DROPPED IN PRICE AT HAMILTON.

The drop in the price of bread at Hamilton is accounted for by reason of a fight being waged in the Ambitious City. The Herald sums up the situation as follows:—

This morning all the leading bakers dropped their price to seven cents per loaf, to meet the competition of eight-cent bread, which some of the shops have been selling. As these eight-centers refuse to raise their price, the nine-centers planned a big drive against the cheaper bread men, and as a result people are eating seven-cent bread today. When several of the bakers were asked if they had called a meeting or entered into an agreement to lower the prices, they evaded the question.

Asked how long the price will remain down, one of the leading kneaders replied: "Until someone gets tired of the fight, and puts the price up again. We are not making any money out of seven-cent bread. We might make a small profit at that price if we didn't have to deliver it. The cost of delivery is a big item of expense, equal to the cost of baking the bread. The expense of delivery is one cent per loaf."

The grocers who retail bread will now have to pay as much for it as the ultimate consumer. Many of them will refuse to handle it at that price, as the public will hardly pay a grocer eight cents for the same bread the baker is selling for seven cents. However, a few grocers will buy and sell at seven cents as an accommodation to their customers.

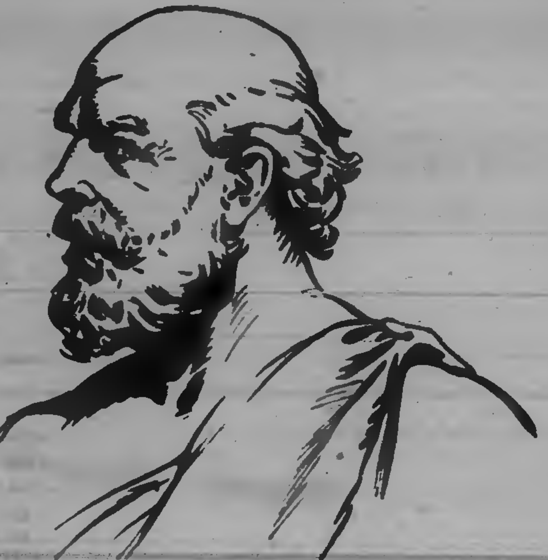
Nicholas Peter Thoume died last evening at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. William Simmons, Orpington Road, North Monaghan, after a lengthy illness. He was born in the Island of Guernsey sixty four years ago. His wife predeceased him some years.

The funeral will take place from the residence of his daughter on Saturday afternoon and proceed to Little Lake Cemetery.



Socrates Was Right!

This wise old man of science when treating on the daily diet, and speaking of an Ideal Race, athletically built and wholesome mentally, said:

"They will feed on barley and wheat, baking the wheat and kneading the flour, making noble puddings and loaves; * * * * thus shall they be great of limb."

Today Grape-Nuts is more and more becoming the favorite food of sturdy Canadians.

Made of whole wheat and malted barley, this famous food supplies all the nourishment of the grains including their vital mineral salts—lacking in many foods—but all-important for keen mental activity and sturdy physical strength.

CONCERT BY RED CROSS WORKERS

FAIRMOUNT AND MONAGHAN SOCIETY REPORT ON YEAR'S WORK.

The Monaghan ladies of the Red Cross Society of Fairmount and N. Monaghan gave a very successful concert in the Salvation Army hall Tuesday evening, Dec. 5th.

At 8 o'clock Reeve McIntosh took the chair and the audience listened with pleasure and profit to the splendid patriotic entertainment which ensued.

Master Percy Luther rendered his readings in an effective manner.

Lieut.-Col. Ackerman took his audience to the trenches and outlined the method of taking the wounded from the battle ground to the convalescent hospital and also showed that the cause would be lost to us were it not for the work of the Red Cross Societies that are making it possible to care for the wounded, as well as providing suitable socks, etc., to ensure better efficiency on the part of the men in the trenches.

All were greatly interested in seeing the trophies which Col. Ackerman had with him, a number of which had belonged to his brother who died of wounds.

Mr. Jos. Wearing made a strong appeal to each one to do his or her bit, and to let it be the biggest bit possible. Addresses were also delivered by Rev. Geo. I. Craw and Adjt. McElhiney, also a patriotic reading was contributed by Miss Colin. Mrs. Jas. Young of Smith moved the audience with her patriotic songs.

A collection was taken, amounting to $38.13.

The following report, covering one year's Red Cross work of Fairmount and North Monaghan was read: [illegible] Amputation dressings; 604 12 x 16 dressings, 630 9 x 12 dressings, 136 9 x 9 dressings, 400 6 x 7 dressings, 3,275 compresses, 5,350 gauze sponges, 100 abdominal sponges, 500 absorbent swabs, 750 wash cloths, 1,042 handkerchiefs, 2,500 mouth wipes, 2,420 bandages, 100 jaw bandages, 475 many-tailed bandages, 20 many-tailed bandages (long), 600 triangular bandages, 170 personal property bags, 36 hot water bag covers, 35 ring pillows, 30 square pillows, 95 fomentation cloths, 15 woolen boots, 33 sheets, 18 draw sheets, 40 pillow cases, 42 towels, 43 pairs pyjamas, 95 pairs socks, 40 quarts of jam and jelly.

This work was forwarded to Kingston and reshipped to Queen's University Hospital first, in France, and later transferred to Cairo, Egypt, and now transferred to France again, where it was found to be most needed.

The socks, however, were forwarded directly to those who were serving in the trenches.

BOBCAYGEON GUIDE'S SON REMEMBERED IN WILL.

BOBCAYGEON, Dec. 8.— News came to town last week that Deputy Attorney-General Frederick R. Fleits of Pennsylvania, had died in the State hospital following an operation. Mr. Fleits has been an annual visitor to Bobcaygeon for years, and last summer was here as usual, apparently in his usual health. During his stay here he always occupied rooms at the Rockland, and Mr. Percy Nicholls acted as his guide. Today news comes to hand that by his will Mr. Fleits leaves Freddie Nichols, son of Mr. Percy Nichols, the sum of $1,000. Freddie is three years old, and has already over $35 in the bank of tid bits received from his benefactor.

CHART TALK.

Those who had the privilege of hearing Pastor Doner in Bethany Tabernacle last Sunday night introduce his series of talks on Dispensational truths, are looking forward with pleasure to hear the remainder of these talks. Mr. Doner bases his address on Scripture, illustrated by a large and beautiful chart of his own design. Many of those who heard him and have had the privilege of hearing this subject discussed in the past, agree that it was the most forceful and eloquent address on prophetic teaching they have ever listened to. The interest was greatly increased by a beautiful solo from Miss Jones, the Deaconness of Bethany congrgation.

WHAT BRITISH OWE TO NAVY

MORE RECRUITS NEEDED FOR THE SERVICE.

Canada owes many millions of the money that goes to make up its material prosperity, from year to year, to the protection of the British navy. Canadian trade and commerce figures prove this beyond the shadow of a doubt.

The products of farm and factory alike are conserved and literally convoyed to the markets of the world, to the ever-increasing profit of the Canadian producer, by the eternal vigilance of the ships of the British Navy.

It is gratifying, therefore, to note that Canadians are beginning to realize that it is their duty to don the blue of the British navy, as well as the khaki of the British army, and thus bear their fair share of the burden of the defence of the Empire in these trying times.

Th Canadian who joins the navy gets the same pay and privileges as those who join the army, and he goes overseas immediately to complete his training, side by side with the experienced seamen who man the British Dreadnoughts and destroyers that, luckily for Canada and the Canadians, control the maritime channels of the commerce of the world.

Your King and country need you —now—in the navy as well as the army.

APPLE CROP IN CANADA

There were 10,408,457 bushels of apples produced in Canada in 1910, according to the census of the following year. Of this quantity, 6,250,672 bushels were produced in Ontario, 1,666,382 bushels in Nova Scotia, 1,481,239 in Quebec, and 575,377 in British Columbia. New Brunswick produced 272,886 bushels and Prince Edward Island 160,124 bushels. In the prairie provinces apple-growing was in its infancy, but there was every indication of rapid development, as shown by the number of trees coming forward. These facts are pointed out in a valuable and most comprehensive bulletin recently issued, of which the Dominion Horticulturist, Mr. W. T. Macoun, is the author, and which can be had free on application to the publications branch, department of agriculture, Ottawa. Mr. Macoun notes the prominent place the Dominion has come to occupy in the world's fruit industry and especially as regards the apple. He tells us that there are probably 3,000 named varieties, that 734 have been tested at the Central Experimental Farm and that 613 are now growing there. He takes a survey of the different provinces, pointing out the varieties that are probably the best adapted to certain districts. Quebec is the oldest apple-growing province and Nova Scotia comes next, but Ontario is a long way the greatest producer, although in 1911 no fewer than 1,734 barrels were packed and sold from the Annapolis and adjacent valleys in Nova Scotia. Mr. Macoun lists and describes the varieties suitable to Canada, records the results of the numerous experiments and tests at the Central Experimental Farm, gives complete instruction on the cultivation of the apple, describes in full the necessary treatment of the trees, advises as to the soil that is best adapted for orchard, says how [illegible] combatted, counsels as to picking, packing, shipping and marketing, tells of the keeping qualities of different varieties, and in short, has written a bulletin [illegible] pages of the utmost worth to the apple grower and all interested, or likely to be interested, in the industry.

SPONSORS FOR FISTIC BATTLE

BETWEEN JESS WILLARD AND GEORGES CARPENTIER.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—The proposed ten-round no-decision boxing bout between Georges Carpentier, heavyweight champion of Europe, and Jess Willard, the American champion, has among its sponsors Miss Anne Morgan, daughter of the late J. Pierpont Morgan, and Miss Elizabeth Marbury, it was learned here. Miss Morgan is treasurer of the American Fund for French Wounded, under the auspices of which it is hoped to bring Carpentier here.

Miss Marbury, who is also actively interested in the French Fund, said that her interest in the proposed bout was solely to see that the $50,000 which she hopes the fund would receive from the proceeds was properly handled.

"Miss Anne Morgan and I willingly consented several weeks ago, when approached on the subject, to see that the funds, whether amounting to this sum or more, be forwarded to France for the purpose intended," Miss Marbury is quoted as saying.

SCHOOL FAIRS HAVE VALUE

Kent county has been fortunate this year in having a number of very successful school fairs, held under the direction and with the assistance of the local representative of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. The object of the school fair is to interest children in the home life of the farm and to get them interested also in the growing of farm crop, in chickens and stock, as well as to teach them proper methods of raising crops and live stock so that better results may be obtained. The purpose is to show the boys and girls that there are better opportunities for the average person on the farm than in the cities, to encourage the young people to stay on the farms and to also encourage them in making the home life on the farm more cheerful and interesting and to benefit the social relations of the communities in which they live. Such objects and purposes as laid down for the school fairs are worthy of the most hearty co-operation and assistance of all classes of people.

The arguments against young people rushing to the commercial centres are many; the needs of increased production on the farms are fairly clearly understood and the need of overcoming some of the unfavorable conditions attached to residence in the rural sections have been emphasized repeatedly. Those who are on the farms or who come closely in touch with the farming community realise fully the manifold advantages of better and more modern methods in farm work. There is just as much reason why a farmer should use his head as there is for the manufacturer to adopt business methods in his plant. The farmer who uses his head more and his hands less than was the system a few years ago is the man who ranks first in the community and the educating of the children to this principle and plan means more success for the rural sections and a corresponding advantage for the cities and towns. All classes of people benefit by the results obtained from better methods on the farm and this advance in method can only continue when the children are shown the advantages and the opportunities which are before them.

The influence of the school fair should be extended.

Canadian Humor.

A writer in The Victoria Colonist discusses Canadian humor and Canadian humorists with freshness and penetration. He confesses that once or twice in his own clumsy way he has tried to be funny but someone has always got mad. Someone would read him a lecture, pointing out how inferior he was to Punch. Someone else would protest against anything resembling frivolity. As a result the fountains of fun within him that once seemed inclined, with a little coaxing, to bubble, have dried up, and now he would no more dare to make a joke on a public man than he would dynamite the Parliament Buildings. He speaks of humorists who have been "spoiled by the politicians," and recalls that when Bengough made his cartoons for Grip there was no one except Sir John Macdonald who did not get cross over the pictures. He speaks of Mr. Edward Blake's unbridled indignation because of a cartoon by Bengough bearing the legend "Go hang a calf-skin on thy recreant limbs." He concludes that the difficulty about developing Canadian humor is that we are all too new, that we all know one another too well, and that we see one another too often.

If it were not for his wife and the bunko men the average citizen would be able to save a lot of money.

NORWAY'S METEOR

The Greatest Tennis Player of Her Sex In the World.

EVEN MEN CAN'T BEAT HER.

There Is One Outstanding Feature of Her Play That Is Evident to Even the Untrained Eye—That Is Her Powerful Forehand Drive.

In the world of lawn tennis Miss Molla Bjurstedt has accomplished that for which others have often striven, but which none has ever before attained. She occupies a unique and envied place in the sphere of her athletic activity. Having spent less than two years in this country, she is the holder of three women's national championships, a record that did not fall to the lot of even the redoubtable Mrs. May Sutton Bundy when she was at the height of her career and with whom she may only be compared. And more, this girl of Norway is the only foreigner to be chosen for the premier position by the ranking committee.

MISS MOLLA BJURSTEDT.

Miss Bjurstedt came to this country unheralded—almost unknown. In December, 1914, a short, sturdy girl stepped from a transatlantic liner to visit New York and passed, comparatively unknown, into the confines of the big city. There was no applause for her then—she was just one of the many—but in less than three months her name was known wherever tennis is played.

Today Miss Bjurstedt is known as the "greatest tennis player of her sex in the world." Indeed, few men can beat her at the game.

To Subscribers

We are adding from twenty to thirty new subscribers to our lists every day, the best of all assurances that the public regard The Review as the local paper that is worth reading. All that we ask for is a fair comparison with our contemporaries in the field.

With the sudden increase in the business of extending our circulation confusion is likely to arise and those just ordering the paper, as well as old subscribers, may not receive their papers promptly or regularly. Any of our readers who have cause for complaint on either score will confer a favor by telephoning the facts to the circulation department, calling phone 189.

Jolly Fine, Too.

"It's a pity to put his overcoat on," exclaimed the fond parent, as she gazed admiringly at her young hopeful attired for a party in a new velveteen suit with lace collar and cuffs.

"Oh, it won't rain!" said Master Montagu.

Ignoring the remark, ma gazed apprehensively out of the window.

"Look here, Montagu," she said, "take this quarter, and if it rains when you come out of Mrs. Pinfoot's, take a cab home."

"Right, ma," remarked young Montagu.

Three hours later it was raining cats and dogs, and the fond ma blessed her forethought. But Monty returned wet to the skin, with the velveteens clinging to him like a bathing suit.

"Didn't you come back in a cab as I told you?" indignantly demanded the mother, surveying the spectacle with anger.

"'Course I did, ma," came the excited answer. "It was jolly fine, too! I rode on the box by the driver!"

FORMER PETERBORO MAN SAVED FROM FLAMES AT WAREHOUSE

David Woodhead, a former resident of Peterborough, who will be remembered by many of the older residents, was injured and saved from death recently at Winnipeg, when the [illegible] Saddlery Co's warehouse was destroyed by fire. One life was lost and five persons were injured. A Winnipeg exchange says:

Among the several thrilling rescues was that of David Woodhead, 65 years old, and for 30 years a resident of the city, by C. Lowry. Woodhead was engaged on electrical work near the elevator shaft. At the first alarm of fire, the old man fell two floors to the bottom of the elevator shaft. Lowry, badly burned, also fell down the shaft on top of the unconscious electrician.

Realizing that to leave the old man there would mean that he would be burned to death, Lowry smashed the doors opening into the elevator shaft, and picking up the prostrate Woodhead, dashed through the flames out of the building.

Ackerman was quite pleased to learn that at the Peterborough Metal Products Co. women have taken the place of men in the manufacture of shells

Successful Sale At St. George's by Ladies Aid

A very successful sale of work and fancy articles was begun yesterday afternoon in the school room of St. George's Church in South Peterborough. The Ladies' Aid held one stall of fancy articles, amongst these being an exquisitely worked and embroidered guest towel and a delicious lady's collar largely done in tatting. This stall was presided over by Mrs. Price.

The Mission Band had also a fancy work stall. Here were all sorts of articles to conjure coin from one's pockets, the able sales ladies being Mrs. Roy Price, Miss Tay and Miss Mary Leserf. At the adjoining fishpond the Misses Bessie Houghton and Gladys Jay demonstrated that all was fish that came to their rods.

The school room had been very prettily decorated for the occasion, flags, festoons and tinsel entering largely into a red, white and blue color scheme.

In the evening the affair resolved itself into a social, at which tea was served to a capacity crowd by Mesdames H. Rew, W. Rew, Cole, Price and Wilson. Many musical numbers were given on a Victrola kindly lent by Mrs. Thornton. Mrs. Cooper ably fulfilled her duties at the receipt of custom, seeing that no one slipped in without the necessary tribute being forthcoming.

The affair was terminated by an impromptu program, in which among others the Misses May and Rose Cole, two pretty girls, contributed vocal duets, notably "List to the Convent Bell"; Mr. Heafield sang some songs very acceptably; Messrs. Parkins and son had a good reception for their duet on banjo and accordion; Mrs. Everett recited; Mr. Kearns sang; the rector, Rev. James Price, told some humorous anecdotes, and Mr. Turner, the organist of the church, accompanied throughout.

As usual, a considerable number of friends from St. John's congregation who take a lively interest in the welfare of the daughter church, were present during the afternoon and evening. The whole affair was pronounced a thorough success from every point of view, and about 10 o'clock the National Anthem was sung and the proceedings terminated.

Lloyd George's Program Direct Control By the State of Country's Resources; Feeling of Confidence Has Returned

Regluate the Whole Manhood of the Nation so That no Class May Complain

EVERY OUNCE OF NATION'S ENERGY IN THE CONFLICT

Extraordinarv Change in the British Public Temper and Confidence Has Been Restored.

EXTEND WAR PROFITS' ACT

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Dec. 9. — The Daily Chronicle says Lloyd George told the Labor leaders who conferred with him that a vigorous prosecution of the war to a victorious conclusion could be accomplished only by utilizing to the utmost the entire energies of the nation. He otulined his pragram, which amounts practically to the direct control by the State of the whole resources of the country.

It is proposed to control all the industries and means of transport both by land and sea, so that the man-power of the nation can be directed either into he producion of munitions or into maintaining that part of the export trade which is necessary to keep up exchanges.

Every effort will be made in the direction of increased production on farms and the cultivation of waste land. Food supplies and prices will be rigorously controlled. Attempts will be made to improve the scale of pensions and the return of soldiers to civil life will be expedited to the utmost.

Regarding the conscription of labor, the Prime Minister's answer was that the work of the whole manhood of the country would be regulated so that no class may complain. He also foreshadowed control of investments and savings and a large extension of the war profits tax.

Within the last forty hours there has been an extraordinary change in the public temper; doubt and depression have given place to confidence and good spirits.

SAMPSON TRAPPED

Authorities Plan to Apprehend Him Succeeds.

(Special to The Review.)

WATERTOWN, N. Y., Dec. 9.— Clarence Sampson, arrested here Friday on a warrant charging him with cattle-stealing in Canada was taken to Peterboro, Ont., this morning by Detective Newhall, who arrived in the city Friday afternoon, after being notified of the arrest of man by local authorities. All necessary arrangements for the extradition of Sampson were quickly completed.

Clarance Sampson of Dummer who is wanted by the county authorities in connection with cases of cattle stealing, has been arrested in Watertown, N.Y., he having fallen into a trap carefully laid by County Constable Archie Moore. Some time ago when Sampson seemed to have eluded the authorities, constable Moore, Mapped out his plan of campaign and having secured the address of Sampson's sister in Watertown N.Y. notified the chief of Police there to be on the lookout for the man and then waited for the latter to make the move which constable Moore believed he would make. The constable's deductions proved correct as Sampson reached Watertown after a round trip and his arrest followed on Thursday.

Chief of Police Thompson also has had an important part in bringing about the apprehension of Sampson. Detective Newhall left last night for Watertown to take charge of the prisoner.

PETERBOROUGH, SATURDAY, DECEMBER 9, 1916

RELIGION IN POLITICS.

IN A LETTER to the newspapers endorsing Mayor Duffus for a second term, Magistrate Dumble expresses the hope that in the coming contest the religious views of any candidate will not be taken into consideration.

It is certainly too bad that at this stage of our boasted civilization it should be necessary to drag the subject of church affiliation into a political contest. There is something wrong with the religion of the present day if it has made personal and political enemies instead of welding mankind into a universal brotherhood. To say this is in no sense a reflection on the fundamentals as preached by the Nazarene. The fault lies with the self-appointed champions of the faith, the men who would commercialize religion by making it a stepping stone to power.

The object of the Christian faith has been to make all men neighbors. How often has it really set friend against friend and even bred dissension in a family? Here again the offence lies with the misguided fanatics and the mercenaries. The religious agitator is still with us, pernicious as ever. How long is he and his methods to be tolerated?

The Review is opposed on principle to capital punishment, believing it to be a relic of the dark ages when might was the only right recognized. It would, however, favor exceptions, and recommend either the gallows or the blind wall for the adventurer who would turn human love as taught by the Saviour of the world into the gall of sectarian hate.

Magistrate Dumble's point is well taken and is an indication of the birth of a more charitable spirit among the various churches.

POOLROOMS AND THEATRES.

THE CITIZEN who favors the closing of the pool-rooms is not illogical and unreasonable if he does not advocate the same course with regard to moving-picture houses and theatres. The two latter places of entertainment when properly conducted—and those in this city crtainly are—have an educational value. The friends of the pool-room will hardly go so far as to claim as much for the resort they patronize and champion. Even if amusement does not help in the education of its devotees, it should at least have the virtue of developing physically those who indulge in it, bowling curling and the like, for example. Does playing pool ever do this? What has the game of pool to recommend it any more than an exciting contest in domnioes in which the stakes are five cents a corner?

A young man approached by a recruiting officer on George street last night and asked to enlist, said he required time to think the matter over. When askd how long, he replied, with a lame attempt at facetiousness that four or five years would suffice. Then he made for the nearest pool-room, as though in search of his level and his associates.

MR. MURRAY WRITES US.

MR. ALEX. MURRAY favors The Review with a well-written and interesting communication with reference to certain editorial comments we made on the address of Mr. Jimmie Simpson in Labor Hall Tuesday night. We regret exceedingly that we cannot reproduce Mr. Murray's letter in full. In the first place it is too long, and in the second it is considerably in the nature of a free advertisement of a commodity in which Mr. Murray appears to be financially interested. Our correspondent starts out as follaws:

Editor Rview: I notice in your "Notes and Comments" last night you say that in spite of the forensic efforts of Mr. Jimmie Simpson, the price of food refused to descend by as much as a notch.

Judging from the sumary of Mr. Simpson's address which appeared in your paper on Wednesday night, you are not ignorant of the ways and means advocated by Mr. Simpson to reduce the high cost of living. What have you done along these lines? It seems to me that Mr. Simpson has knocked you off your equilibrium, and there is nothing I could suggest that will restore you to your normal condition quicker or better than a cup of —.

Here Mr. Murray, with the business instinct that quickens every Gaelic nature, launchs into a cleverly-worded and fervent eulogy of his favorite brand of the beverage that cheers, but pauses short of inebriating, a brand that, if we are corectly informed, he has for sale. The Review will be [illegible] with Mr. Murray at regular rates.

We beg to assure Mr. Murray that we have survived the arguments advanced by Mr. Simpson with faith unshaken in the theories we have always tried to advance in these columns. We do not doubt the sincerity of the man from Toronto, but a speaker may be in earnest and in error at the same time. The particular part of the reasoning which appears to appeal most to Mr. Murray is the theory that the elimination of middlemen will reduce the cost of living.

That plan has been tried, found wanting and abandoned. A couple of decades or so ago the manufacturers of the United States formed trusts or combines with the idea of encouraging economy, and commercial travellers by the hundreds lost their jobs. It was contended that the consumers, at least the retailers, would be compelled to buy directly from the producer. Instead of this, sales fell off to such a degree that business contracted to an alarming extent, and a financial panic was precipitated. The old order was restored.

The middleman, like the poor, will be with us always, at least until the millennium arrives. He is really indispensable. In the first place, he is the great educator of the people with regard to what they want. The farmer as a rule will lose valuable time working with a machine that is out of date or tinkering with another that has outlived its usefulness, until a glib agent persuades him to increase his investments and provide himself with the most modern contraptions. The majority of people will continue to eat the same brand of food year after year until the grocer calls their attention to something better.

The middleman is everywhere. The farmer who drives to market with a load of produce, the woman who buys a dozen of eggs or a fowl on the farmers' market every Saturday and carries her purchases home in a basket, are their own middlemen. Under a proper system of bookkeeping the value of their time while so engaged should be added to the cost of the article handled.

We can think of no better illustration to strengthen this contention than that afforded by Mr. Murray himself. He becomes a middleman when he writes a letter to the newspapers booming the virtues of a particular brand of tea.

THE HIGH COST OF GOVERNMENT.

THE NEW YORK SUN gives expression to a suspicion that has for some time besett The Review— that the high cost of living may be after all due to a large extent to the high cost of government. If there is any foundation for this assertion in the United States there is certainly more ground in Canada upon which to base it, as the governing machinery comes higher here than it does in the Republic.

For example, the governor of the State of Michigan, which has about the same population as Ontario, has to worry along on a salary of $4000 a year and find his own residence. The Lieutenant-Governor of this Province is paid $10,000 a year and has a million-dollar mansion built and furnished for him. Michigan in its state legislature has about the same number of members as are in the provincial assembly here, but the latter are paid twice as much for their services. The neighboring State has fifteen representatives in the Federal Congress, their united salaries being $112,000, and they are required to devote practically all of their time to the public service. Ontario has over eighty members of Parliament who are paid more than $120,000 altogether for a few months' service every year.

In county affairs, too, the Canadian governing machinery is more complicated and costly. To take one instance, every county in Canada finds it impossible to get along without the services of two members of the legal profession on the pay roll, a crown attorney and a county solicitor, the latter being the professional monitor of the county councillors. In the United States one legal officer for each county is deemed sufficient. He is required to look after not only the criminal but the civil affairs as well, and in the rural districts his compensation is less than that paid the Canadian officials. It is only in counties that have largo urban centres that the American prosecuting attorney is allowed a staff of assistants to help him out with the large amount of public business which accumulates.

If Canada has not the best legal machinery in the world it certainly should have, seeing that it is the most costly. In the United States every county disposes of its own law cases with its own officers. The county judges have jurisdiction in all matters except those in which Federal enactments are involved. The prosecuting attorney prosecutes all offenders against State laws. In Canada, a man accused of murder is tried by a judge from outside, and the county crown attorney is not deemed of sufficient weight to be permitted to prosecute him.

In Winnipeg recently a judge high up in his profession, sitting as a commissioner at $100 a day, in addition to his regular salary, sent three or four newspaper men to jail for criticizing his official acts. Another judge, drawing big compensation, when called into the dispute, ruled that his learned brother, with the extra emoluments, was wrong. This decision is not regarded as final. There will be others called in to deliver learned opinions. All of which costs money, but it makes business good for the profession. The taxpayer foots the bill and the cost of living soars. Should anyone find difficulty in divining at least one cause?

DID ADAM EAT THE APPLE AND DID A WHALE SWALLOW THE PROPHET?

Did Adam and the whale eat respectively an apple and Jonah?

Connecticut is likely to have a judicial decision on these questions. If the facts themselves are not settled by a jury, at all events the jury will determine whether it is blasphemous to doubt the Bible versions of them.

Michiael Mockus is to go on trial at Watrbury, Conn., before a jury on complaint that he violated a law passed in Connecticut 274 years ago, under which there have been no prosecutions for at least a century.

The law provides penalty for any one "who calls into question any portion of Holy Writ," and the specifications against Mockus, a Lithuanian minister of the Unitarian faith, are that he expressed his disbelief in the story of Jonah and the whale, and also in the apple that Adam ate.

Other specifications against Mockus contain details that would generally be termed blasphemous.

Mockus was tried in September, but the jury disagreed. This time he has engaged as counsel Theodore Schroeder of New York, president of the Free Speech League, and Lawrence L. Lewis, of Waterbury.

Schroeder says he plans to argue that the statute of 1642 applied to all sacred beliefs and since those who framed the law believed in witchcraft and regarded that belief as orthodox and sacred, everyone who today denies the existence of witches is guilty of violating the statute.

In 1895 an attempt was made to prosecute for blasphemy, but the case was thrown out of court on the ground that there was no law forbidding it in that State. In 1891 there was a similar prosecution in New Jersey, and the defendant was fined. Robert G. Ingersoll defended the accused and paid the fine himself.

But Life Has its Compensations

The man started home from his office.

As he departed the stenographer told him that shorthand pads had advanced 15 per cent.

An evening paper informed him that Mayor Duffus would be a candidate for re-election and that even he held out no hope of a lower tax rate next year.

When he sighted a street car headed for the western section of the city, where he resided, it occurred to him that he could save time by walking home, not to speak of the exercise.

While he waited at the railway crossing on Charlotte street for a freight train to get off the right-of-way a friend told him that the nation's expenses were increasing so rapidly that there was nothing but blue ruin in prospect.

Further up the street he heard a rumor that the embargo would be removed from oleomargarine, and he was interested in the dairy business.

A neighbor waylaid him and insisted upon discussing the Greek situation in detail, taking the gloomiest view of the outlook.

At his own door his wife met him and, to cap the climax, to add the last straw to his load of woe, told him, with a flood of tears, that the hired girl had quit to take a job in a munitions factory at $6 a day with chances for overtime.

Avaunt, dull care!

He lifted the cover and looked in:—Then he began to whistle.

He was going out to dinner and he had a freshly laundered tie!

This is not so hard an old world after all.

Wit and Wisdom

His Views

"I cough a great deal."

"Try rubbing your throat with gazoline."

"Huh! I'd as soon cough as honk."

A certain rector just before the service was called to the vestibule to meet a couple who wanted to be married. He explained that there wasn't time for the ceremony then, "but," said he, "if you will be seated I will give an opportunity at the end of the service for you to come forward, and I will then perform the ceremony."

The couple agreed, and at the proper moment the clergyman said: "Wil those who wish to be united in the holy bonds of matrimony please come froward."

Whereupon thirteen women and one man proceeded to the altar.

"While you are asking papa for my hand in marriage, Philip, I'll be playing something lively on the piano," asid the sweet young thing.

"No, I wouldn't do that, Jessica," replied the young man. "You know, some people can't keep their feet still when they hear lively music."

The young fellow who is willing to do a little more than his share is going to be the man that later on the shirkers will say is getting more than his share.

A Stronger Faith

Included in the last letter to his parents before he was killed in the battle of Ypres, a young officer of Frontenac county sends the following, which might be termed his "confession of faith":

"I have a much firmer belief in a Divine Being than ever before. I wish you to know that I believe in the God of my fathers, that I ame fighting here first and foremost because I believe absolutely that it is in His cause, and for the welfare of the world. I have faith enough in His cause to risk my life in it, and I believe that by a clean life I can do His work better than in any other way. I need not plan for the future.—Heaven will care for it."

LITERARY RAMBLES

THE IMPORTANCE OF A KNOWLEDGE OF GEOGRAPHY.

One of the most interesting of studies, yet, curiously enough, one of the most neglected, is that of Geography. In saying this, no special aspersion is cast on Canadians, for it is quite within the bounds of reasonable assertion to state that there is more crass ignorance of geography exhibited by the average Englishman than there is by the majority of Canadians. A short time ago a former Anglican bishop of Natal was asked by an English friend how he enjoyed living at the Cape! and even a Government official once enquired why a chaplain stationed at Capetown was unable to take an afternoon service at Grahamstown, a place 500 miles away. Most of us have had experiences tending to show similar lack of knowledge on the part of English friends and relatives. I remember, shortly after reaching this country, now many years ago, receiving several letters, all of which seemed to evince an awed admiration of the pluck shown by my unworthy self in braving the wild beasts, the fearsome winters, and the savages of the Canadian wilderness. Various questions were asked of me. Had I caught my wild horse yet? Were the Indians called Red because they had red complexions, or did they paint themselves red? Years have passed since then, and doubtless in the intervening period much has been done towards inculcating in the respective minds of English scholars the importance of a greater knowledge of geography and especially of the geography of the far-flung dependencies and Dominions of the Empire. If no great effort has been made in the schools, the war has at any rate had the effect of opening the eyes of everyone to the need of such knowledge. To-day, in England and in all the colonies, Russia is being studied as she certainly has never been studied before. To English-speaking people the world over she has always been more or less of a mystery. We knew her vaguely as a vast empire, embracing many semi-barbaric peoples in her fold, her so-called civilization marked on the one hand by the lowest depths to which licentiousness can fall, and on the other by the highest pinnacles to which religious ecstacy can reach. Her literature was regarded as altogether too realistic for refined tastes, her politics as honeycombed by bribery and corruption. But to us she was above all a nation to be feared, for we had been taught for generations that she coveted India, and we knew that her giant tentacles were stretching out and had been stretching out for centuries towards the East in the hope of gaining access to the open sea. The war has changed all that, and today we look upon Russia with totally different feelings. Everywhere Russian literature, Russian history, and the Russian religion are being widely discussed. Hundreds are studying the language and thousands are reading all that there is to read concerning the great Colossus to the North.

There are many books dealing with Russian life, in the Library. But would it not be as well, while making a note of this, to make a note also as to obtaining information concerning all the other nations that are engaged in the present great upheaval in the world? Without going further afield than the European portion of the Eastern Hemisphere, we can find ample scope therein to keep us busy for some time to come. We read mechanically, and scarcely ever think of looking up works of reference to elucidate some point that we cannot understand. How many of us know anything of the Tyrol, of the Dolomites, of Bukowina, or even of Roumania? Roumania, indeed, is one of the most interesting countries in Europe. It is a geographical anomaly, for it is very curious to find a Latin people in Eastern Europe, surrounded on all sides by Slavs and Hungarians. Not only do Roumanians speak a Latin tongue closely resembling Italian, but they retain very strong signs of their Italian blood, in spite of all admixture with Slavs, Turks and Greeks. Is not it worth while to find out something about the modern descendants of Trajan's Dacian colony? And, to go further,—what do we know of the units that make up our great and glorious Empire? It is an Empire worth fighting for. Note what it embraces. Newfoundland, with an area of 42,734 square miles; St. Helena, 47 square miles; Barbadoes, 166 square miles; Bermudas, 20 square miles; Bahamas, 4,466 square miles; Canada, 3,743,574 square miles; Gambia, 79 square miles; Jamaica, 4,207 square miles; Gold Coast, 80,000 square miles; Leeward Islands, 706 square miles; Gibraltar, 1⅞ miles; Tobago, 114 square miles; Windward Islands, [illegible] square miles; Falkland Islands, 5,500 square miles; British Honduras, 8,598 square miles; Sierra Leone, 30,000 square miles; Ceylon, 25,481 square miles; The Seychelles, 148 square miles; Trinidad, 1,754 square miles; Malta, 117 square miles; British Guiana, 109,000 square miles; Mauritius, or Isle of France, 795 square miles; Ascension Zanzibar, 7,420 square miles; Aden, 80 square miles; Sarawak, 42,000 square miles; India, 1,900,000 square miles; Labuan, 36 square miles; New Zealand, 102,471 square miles; Turk's Islands, 169 square miles; Lagos, 27,000 square miles; Straits Settlements, 1,600 square miles; Fiji, 8,045 square miles; North Borneo, 280,000 square miles; Malay States, 28,300 square miles; Somaliland, 68,000 square miles; Cyprus, 3,640 square miles; New Guinea, 234,768 square miles; Nigeria, North and South, 300,000 square miles; Central Africa, 42,300 square miles; British East Africa, 1,000,000 square miles; Uganda, 150,000 square miles; Australian Commonwealth, 2,974,581 square miles; South Africa, and, since the war started, German Southwest Africa and the Cameroons.

How many of us know anything about one-third even of our own Empire; how we came by any portions of it, and when? How many know that New Guinea, next to Australia, is the largest Island in the world?

There are in the Library over one thousand volumes dealing with Travel. Almost every portion of the world is represented in that section. We have maps to help in following out any particular line of reading. The means are therefore at hand for engaging ad libitum in one of the most interesting and absorbing branches of literature.

Aldermen, North Monaghan Councillors and Ratepayers Held Peaceful Conference,

The ratepayers of North Monaghan, who live in the neighborhood of the city's proposed disposal plant, were much intersted in the conference held last night in St. George's Hall. Every phase of the question was gone over carefully, and Mayor Duffus and the aldermen who attended hope that after due consideration many of the objections and misunderstandings will be removed.

There were over eighty people in the hall when the meeting was called to order by Reeve McIntosh, and he called on City Engineer Parsons to exhibit to the ratepayers the plans as proposed by the city, and asked those present who were curious about the workings of the disposal plant to ask questions.

Mr. Parsonsw ent over a brief history of the sewage disposal experiments that had been tried in different sections of the country, and by means of a blackboard gave sketches of the workings, first of the old septic tank, second, the Imhoff tanks, and third, the activated sludge method, which was the proposed one for Peterborough. Milwaukee's plant, built on the latter plan, has absolutely no odor, and the effluent when it passes into the lake contains practically no bacteria at all and therefore is purer than any other system yet discovered. In answer to a question, Mr. Parsons stated that the settling tanks necessary for the local plant would cover an area of 120 feet by 180 feet; the whole plant could be put on two acres, but it required more area than this in order to give it a neat appearance. The plant on Jones Island in Milwaukee handles two million gallons a day, and it is now proposed to place four or five additional ones in different sections of the city, one of them in the built-up section, and the whole of them would be capable of handling 100,000,000 gallons a day.

Works Well in Winter.

Reeve McIntosh wanted to know if there would not be some trouble with the plant in the Canadian winter, and the engineer informed him that when he was in Milwaukee the weather was 16 degrees below zero and the coldest the sewage reached was 34 above, and generally ran about 44 degrees. The sludge, when it is removed from the settling tanks, is highly valued as a fertiliser and has a slight tar smell.

W. H. Andrews thought that the city should allow the residents of that section of North Monaghan to connect up their places with hte sewer. If the residents got this permission there would not be so much objection to it.

Reeve McIntosh understood that the Provincial Board had given some instructions as to the people in the neighborhood being allowed to use the sewer.

A voice—Thec ity at one time had refused them both sewerage and light.

Councillor Rye Speaks.

H. B. Rye, with the remark, "It's about time I started something," gave a review of the history connected with the building of the outfall sewer till the present time. Extracts were read from Judge Ketchum's award, which allowed the city to empty the sewage into the river for five years. This had afterwards been extended by special legislation. It was stipulated then that the sewage was to be purified, but he knew of horses and cattle, dying in Otonabee and North Monaghan from causes that veterinaries could trace to their eating grass growing on lands flooded by sewage water. He was absolutely opposed to the building of the plant in North Monaghan. The city had always put it over the township, and he referred to the fact that in spite of the Judge's ruling that the city pay the cost, they had induced the township council to pay 15 per cent. of the $4000.

Reeve McIntosh denied this. He was almost sure that the township paid only its own solicitor's fees. The reeve told the meeting that very little progress had been made at the joint meetings, and it was to get the ratepayers' opinions on the plan that the meeting was called before the township committed itself to the plans of the city. No one could say that the plant would be odorless.

Wesley Rose did not want the city to experiment in Monaghan. "Let them tell us what they are going to do," he said.

W. H. Andrews wanted the plant placed across the river on the Wilson property as had been planned in ex-Mayor Buller's time. He thought it would be a good idea for the new council to deal with it.

Conditions Changed.

Mayor Duffus told the harmonious meetings between the city and township councils, and he started in by showing that when the Otonabee site had been decided on it was the preferable one owing to the city intending to adopt the Imhoff system. Conditions had changed, and the latest system and the one approved of by the Provincial Board was the present site, which was flat. Why is the plant not placed in the city? Because it must be located at the lowest point possible. The Mayor also dealt with the "ruling out of order" motion of Reeve McIntosh at one of the joint meetings in which the tenor of the motion was to move the plant across the river. It was because the joint committee had no power to change a resolution of the City Council. It was a self-constituted committee to suggest changes. The city had made the extensive plans in order to see if some of the objections of the residents could not be removed. If the plans as drawn up were adopted, it would be good for the city, township and county. All would benefit. But it was a question of costing quite a lot of money, and it was thought that if the Exhibition Company would assist and all the municipalities pull together the problem would be solved. The price asked for the lands was very high and was bound to drive the city back to the original plans. When the plant was completed the residents of the township would find that the city would arrange with them for sewerage connection.

One resident suggested that the Mayor and aldermen were trying to get the matter settled before the election. This was impossible as it would take three months to prepare the plans alone. The City Council were trying to carry on the business in the best way they knew how.

Another resident wanted to know why the rush until plans were ready, and the Mayor stated that the townships interested were objecting to the sewage going into the river, and the Provincial Board were asking, "Why the delay?"

It would suit the city fine to leave the matter stand as it is for two or three years. It was also pointed out that the city did not have to submit a bylaw to the people, as the Health Act covered the expenditure of money for health purposes.

Mr. Wilson, a South Monaghan resident, remarked: "Do you really intend to put the plant on the approved site? If so, we want the Exhibition grounds with it."

Mr. Rye—If Otonabee wants it, North Monaghan don't want it. Why not be neighborly and give it to them?

Mayor Duffus pointed out the maintenance cost and the future growth of the city as arguments against the Otonabee site, but a few thousand dollars in improvement cost was not going to stop the city from getting the best.

The residents seemed to think that there was no need for hurry, and they would hear what the new council had to say.

Those present from the City Council were: Mayor Duffus, Aldermen Edgar, Saunders, Dobbin, Stratton and McIntyre, City Clerk Armstrong and City Engineer Parsons.

Famous House Demolished.

Boswell's house in Great Queen street, which is about to be demolished, is rich in associations with famous men, says The London Chronicle. Thomas Hudson, the portrait painter, occupied it when for three years he had Reynolds under his roof as a pupil, and previous to that Kneller had lived there. Hoole, the translator of Dante, and Chippendale, of furniture fame, followed, and another well-known portrait painter, Thomas Worlidge, completes the list. Great Queen street was so named in compliment to Henrietta Maria, whose statue stood there until 1651, when it was broken up by order of Parliament.

Size of Man.

The ancients contended that the first men on earth were mighty and godlike, and that they degenerated in vigor and size, while later historians have tried to prove that they were of dwarfish appearance. At any rate the present average height of the whole human species is five feet five inches, yet the tallest Greek exceeds this by about 4.6 inches.

Real Knockouts.

"Don't go home yet, old man!" said the convivial Englishman at 9.30. Drop in at my place and have one more and a cigar. I've just got a new brand I'd like you to try."

The voice of the tempter prevailed, and they went in together, and soon the victim was lighting one of the new smokes.

They puffed and puffed and the room became full of a strong, green smoke.

"Fine things, aren't they?" asked the host. "Quite a new kind. I chose 'em myself. You can't get 'em everywhere. I'm thinking of sending a dozen boxes out to the front."

"Really," murmured the victim, whose face was turning purple and yellow. "I should. if I were you. But how can you be sure that they'll reach the Germans."—Exchange.

E. C. Drury of Crown Hill was nominated by the Liberals of North Simcoe, in Federal convention at Stayner.

If you wake up with a bad taste, bad breath and tongue is coated; if your head is dull or aching; if what you eat sours and forms gas and acid in stomach, or you are bilious, constipated, nervous, sallow, and can't get feeling just right, begin inside bathing. Drink before breakfast a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This will flush the poisons and toxins from stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels and cleanse, sweeten and purify the entire alimentary tract. Do your inside bathing immediately upon arising in the morning, to wash out of the system all the previous day's poisonous waste, gases and sour bile before putting more food into the stomach.

To feel like young folks feel; like you felt before your blood, nerves and muscles became loaded with body impurities, get from your pharmacist a quarter pound of limestone phosphate, which is inexpensive and almost tasteless, except for a sourish twinge, which is not unpleasant.

Just as soap and hot water act on the skin, cleansing, sweetening and freshening, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. Men and women who are usually constipated, bilious, headachy or have any stomach disorder should begin this inside bathing before breakfast. They are assured they will become real cranks on the subject shortly.

STARTLING FACTS ---READ THEM

United States Government Statistics Reveal:

That Only 358,000 out of their 100,000,000 population report incomes in excess of $2,500 per year.
That Nineteen out of every twenty fail to provide either for their families or old age.
That Every second man of the population at age twenty-five will be dependent upon someone else at sixty-five. Which class will you be in?
That Nine out of ten men leave no estate.
That Life Insurance Companies are distributing more than $2,000,000 per day.
That Life Insurance has decreased pauperism more than thirty-three and one-third per cent. in thirty-five years.
That Less than seven per cent. of the value of American lives is covered by Life Insurance.
That Life Insurance saves the nation more than $80,000,000 per year in maintaining the poor.

Under such conditions, what is your plain duty, aye, and privilege? Clearly to insure your life while you can. You say where and how can this best be done?

We answer — A monthly Income Policy for your family or an Endowment for yourself in the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada.

Stops that Pain in the Back

Pain in the back is one of the most common symptoms of Kidney trouble. Every movement becomes a torture, and if neglected, the disorder finally confines the sufferer to bed.

This is exactly what happened in the case of Mr. Arnold McAskell, of Hants County, Nova Scotia. He sought in vain for relief until he decided to try

GinPills FOR THE KIDNEYS

Before he had used one box he began to feel better. Two boxes entirely relieved him. And best of all, up to the time he wrote us, he had had no further sign of the trouble. Mr. McAskell concludes his letter of gratitude by saying, "I cannot say too much in favor of these great pills and would recommend them to anyone suffering from Kidney trouble."

GIN PILLS FOR THE KIDNEYS

Kidney or Bladder trouble may also take the form of swollen joints, rheumatism, Lumbago, gravel, irregularity of urinary system or constant headaches. Don't neglect these symptoms. Take Gin Pills in time and escape worse ills.

INSULTING THE UNIFORM

Scotland Yard Keeps close Watch on "Bogus Heroes"

Scotland Yard organized a special staff to round up bogus "heroes." The King's uniform has been abused to a greater extent than has been supposed. The military authorities saw the danger and made an effort themselves to deal with it, but the assistance of Scotland Yard was found to be desirable, and a strict look-out is kept for adventurers in military guise. Imposters trying to take advantage of public generosity find it very difficult in Britain to pursue their methods.

EVIDENCES OF GOOD TRANING

JUNIOR LEAGUE OF GEORGE ST. CHURCH GAVE FINE PROGRAM.

The concert given by the Junior Epworth League of George Street Church last night was a great success. The attendance was large and $40 was added to the mission fund of the League. The program was especially interesting in the fact that it was given by the juniors and was a splendid testimony to the ability of our youth when in the hands of good trainers. Mrs. (Dr.) Harvey, Mrs. McKay, Miss Elliott and Miss Armstrong gave their services to the League in this connection.

Miss Isobel Bair and Master Jock Renwick assisted the orchestra, and the young people gave excellent music.

The concert will be repeated on Friday, Dec. 15th, at the request of the ladies of the church, the proceeds to be used for comforts for the soldiers.

WOMEN'S PATRIOTIC LEAGUE.

The following articles were contributed by the Women's Patriotic League, Ashburnham, during November: 18 suits of pyjamas, 6 bed jackets, 5 personal property bags, to the Red Cross Society, and 68 pairs of socks, 16 gauze shirts, 4 pairs of wristlets, to the Canadian Field Comforts Commission. Fifty dollars was sent to the Prisoners of War Fund, and one hundred dollars to the Canadian Field Comforts Commission.

SOCKS FOR SOLDIERS.

The Canadian Kitchener League would like everyone who is knitting to turn in as many pairs of socks before the 16th inst. as possible. A steamer sails on that date, and the League are anxious to have a generous number of socks to send to our boys in the trenches.

Just Suppose—

Suppose that you were at a musicale in a private home or in a public concert room.

Suppose that a great singer whom you had been invited to hear, or had paid an admittance fee to hear, got up before you and sang in such a way that his voice sounded like a talking machine. What would you think and what would you do?

You would think that the singer was trying to play a joke on you and you would be offended, and if you had paid money at the door, you would demand its return.

No one expects realism from a talking machine

You do not expect a singer's real voice to sound like his talking machine records, and of course you don't expect his talking machine records to sound like his voice.

When you hear a great artist in concert work or upon the stage, that artist's voice sounds exactly as it would sound when Re-created by the New Edison. In other words, there is absolutely no difference between an artist's real voice and Edison's Re-Creation of his voice.

A picture of ARTHUR MIDDLETON, great bass of the Metropolitan Opera Company, as he has appeared in public, singing in direct comparison with Edison's Re-creation of his voice to prove that one is indistinguishable from the other

Proved 300 Times

The fact that Edison's new invention, the New Edison, Re-creates the human voice with such literal fidelity that the living voice cannot be distinguished from the Re-Creation of it has been demonstrated in public more than 300 times.

Great Artists, such as Marie Rappold, Anna Case, Alice Verlet, Christine Miller, Arthur Middleton and Thomas Chalmers, standing beside the New Edison, have sung alternately with it, and it is a fact, which can be proved by accounts of these astounding tests in more than two hundred of America's leading newspapers, that it was impossible for the audience to distinguish the artists' living voices from Edison's Re-Creation of them on his latest and greatest invention, the New Edison.

Will there be Real Music in your home at Christmas?

The new Edison will bring into your home the literal Re-Creation of the voices and instrumental performances of the world's great artists.

When you hear Zenatello's magnificent tenor, or the wonderful voices of Matzenauer and Destinn, as Re-created by the New Edison, you are hearing those voices exactly as they sound upon the opera stage.

If you have the New Edison in your home, you don't have to imagine how a great artist's voice really sounds. You know how it sounds when you have heard it Re-created by the New Edison.

Come to our store and hear

The NEW EDISON

Before you decide what is to be the principal gift this year to your family, come to our store and hear the New Edison. Come at any hour. You will be welcome, and you will not be urged to buy.

MARKET PRICES

A heavy demand for turkeys was the feature of the market this morning and very few were on sale as a result. The farmers' wives got 30c and in some cases higher for their good young hens. The prices have been sent up locally owing to outside buyers offering 27c to 28c per lb. at the farm.

Chickens of good quality were offed today at 18c to 20c per lb. while those of poor quality sold anywhere from 50c to 75c each. Ducks sold at 90c to $1.25 and geese at $1.50 to $2.25 each, an average of 16c per lb.

Eggs were offered in two grades. Strictly fresh eggs sold as high as 52c and the packed at 45c. There were plenty of the latter grade on sale.

Butter remained at 45c with a good supply.

Honey sold at 75c per 5 lb. tin.

On the outside market there was plenty of dressed beef, pork and lamb, with prices unchanged from last week.

The usual supply of apples and vegetables was on sale at a slight advance in the apple section.

Several car loads of choice Christmas cattle were shipped out by Messrs. Morris and Brown.

Hogs have taken another jump and are quoted at $11.25 for next week's delivery.

An Epidemic

"Every employe in the Bank of England," says an attache of the British Embassy at Washington, "is required to sign his name in a book on his arrival in the morning, and if late must give the reason therefor. The chief cause of tardiness is usually fog, and the first man to arrive writes 'fog' opposite his name, and those who follow write 'ditto.'

"On day," however, the first late man gave as the reason, 'wife had twins,' and twenty other late men mechanically signed 'ditto' underneath."

The Feast of Dedication (Channukah) commences at sundown on Tuesday, Dec. 19, and lasts for eight days. It celebrates the successful ending of a war against religious tyranny. Its predominant message, therefore, is religious liberty.

In the year 162 before the present era, the Syrian king, Antiochus Epiphanes, set up a statue of a pagan deity in the Jewish Temple of Jerusalem, and tried to compel the Jews to worship it and abandon their own historic faith. This effort at forcing an alien religion upon the Jewish people provoked a bitter revolt in which the Jews, led by the famous Judas Maccabeus and his brothers, finally defeated the Syrian armies, re-entered the Temple and rededicated it as the centre of Jewish worship. In honor of this rededication the feast of Channukah (dedication) was established, its eight days to be holidays, days of song and thanksgiving.

The holiday is marked by special prayers of thanks and psalms of praise inserted into the daily ritual, and by the kindling of the Channukah lights. The usual custom is to light one light on the first day, two on the second, three on the third, and so on, adding one each successive day of the feast. As to the reason for this custom of kindling the lights, legend tells that when Judas Maccabeus and his victorious army re-dedicated the Temple and cleansed it of all the impurities of idolatry he found that there was only enough pure oil to keep the perpetual light burning for one day, and it would be long before new oil could be procured. But miraculously, this small amount of oil lasted for eight days, and the perpetual light was not extinguished. For this reason it was ordained that every year lights should be kindled for eight days in every household. It became customary for the lights to be placed in the windows and the doorways, so that the streets of the cities be lighted up. Thus the feast came to be known as he Feast of Lights.

The Jewish date for the beginning of this feast is the 25th of the month of Kislev. According to one tradition, the reason that Judas selected this date is because it fell exactly three years after Antiochus had defiled the Temple; according to another tradition it is because that was also the day when the Israelites, after being delivered from Egypt, completed the Tabernacle in the wilderness.

HELPING THE BLIND SOLDIERS

Lance-Corp. A. G. Viets, P.P.C. L.I., is one of the Canadian soldiers who have sacrificed the precious possession of sight in the service of the Empire. Mr. Viets joined the Princess Pats in Calgary, and was one of the original immortal band who went into the trenches on Jan. 6, 1915. He had a premonition of the catastrophe after two months, when a shell, exploding directly in front of his portion of the trench, filled his eyes with sand and sent him to the hospital for two weeks. On May 2 he left the trenches for the last time in the arms of Jack Munroe, former miner, former prize fighter, and former mayor of Elk Lake, wounded by a mortar bomb. He emerged from a long term in hospital with the light of day extinguished for all time.

At St. Dunstan's Hostel for Blinded Soldiers and Sailors in London, Viets met Lieut. E. A. Baker, of the 6th Field Company, Canadian Engineers, who had also lost his eyesight in Flanders. For several months they studied together the Braille alphabet and other devices which give to the sightless a measure of independence. Together they became associates of the Canadian Free Library for the Blind, and since their return to Canada have been elected members of the board of directors of that institution.

Mr. Viets is a native of Digby, Nova Scotia, where two of his ancestors—father and son, United Empire Loyalists—were successively rectors of that little town in the days of its first settlement. There is in the possession of the family of the writer of this note the manuscript of a sermon preached—for the first time—in Trinity Church, New York, by Rev. Roger Viets, some time about 1770, and frequently thereafter, by father and son in Trinity Church, New York; Trinity Church, Digby, and Trinity Church, St. John, N.B. It might very appropriately be preached any current Sunday, for, in the old rector's quaint phraseology, it is inscribed "Sermon for the Twenty-first Sunday Past Trinity," and its subject is "Gratitude."

There is no want of that feeling about such men at Viets and Baker. They are grateful that the catastrophe which took away their sight left them their strength, their whole bodies, their reason, and they are thankful for the work of such men as Sir Arthur Pearson, who have done so much for them and for others less resourceful than themselves. They are grateful for the fact that there are still Canadians who are willing to do what they have done, and they are anxious that this feeling of gratitude shall suffuse the nation, for whose liberty and every other valuable possession they and thousands of heroes have sacrificed their all, and shall make its presence known. Lance-Corp. Veits has joined the staff of a large insurance company in Toronto, and in spite of his blindness his studies at St. Dunstan's Hostel have made it possible for him to undertake duties in the business world.

The members of the Peterborough Operatic and Dramatic Society met last night to combine business with pleasure after the strenuous work of the last few months in connection with the Geisha. Most of the ticket returns were in and checked, after which a most enjoyable evening was spent. Refreshments were served at 10 p.m. and songs sung by Misses Allen and Rathbone and Messrs. Liddell and Thompson. Mr. R. J. Devey congratulated the company on their recent success and heartily thanked the members for their most faithful rehearsing, which had produced such a splendid representation of a heavy musical work. There was an effort made to produce the play at Lindsay, but the transportation of so large a company was impracticable. A matinee and night would likely be arranged in this city for Christmas week. On the motion of Mr. Liddell, musical honors were heartily accorded Mr. and Mrs. Devey, Cunningham and Wun Hi chairing the musical director round the room. A pleasant evening ended with "God Save the King" and "Auld Lang Syne."

W. D. Ketchison official bailiff for Belleville, is in the city on a short visit.

A very special meeting of the Canadian Kitchener League is called for Monday evening, Dec. 11th, at the Y. M. C. A. at 8 o'clock sharp. It is most important that every member be present.

Mrs. (Rev.) H. J. Keith of Edmonton, is visiting in the city and is the guest of Dr. Malcolm and Mrs. McCulloch, Charlotte Street.

A very pleasant drawing room recital was held on Thursday, evening, under the auspices of the Otonabee Chapter, I.O.D.E. at the residence of Mr. R.R. Hall.

Mr. F. Whithouse again very kindly furnished the programme on the Aerolian Vocalion, which was very much enjoyed by all present.

The thanks of the chapter are due to Mrs. Hall, for so kindly offering the use of her house and also to Mr. Whitehouse, for a delightful musical treat.

How to Recoup.

Curdled Custard.—Suppose your boiled custard curdles. Try putting it in a very cold basin and beating it briskly. Another plan is to add a teaspoonful of corn flour mixed to a paste with water. Cook this for a few minutes, then strain the thickened custard into a glass dish.

To Thicken Batter.—In mixing any pudding made with batter you may add too much liquid if you are in a hurry. If your batter is too thin, thicken it with white breadcrumbs.

When cream doesn't whip stand it where it will get very cold, then add to it the white of an egg and beat them together thoroughly.

If mayonnaise curdles put the yolk of an egg into a very cold basin and add the curdled sauce drop by drop stirring steadily all the time.

Beading in Colors.

Beading to match and contrast with the bright colors of wool and silk jersey suits is the latest fad. Conventional designs, old fashioned sampler patterns and stiff square or circle inclosed flowers are chosen for the bead work which appears on the left side of the coat, at the sash ends and on the pockets of coats and skirts alike

Fur Trimmings.

More fur trimmings than ever is the outlook for fall. The favorite trimming furs are silver dyed rabbit, mole skin, Hudson seal and raccoon. Instead of the high funnel collar on coats the deep sailor collar which can be held close to the neck with a strap will take its place.

Women would be happy if they could live long without getting very old.

MR. AND MRS. JAS. NELSON OBSERVE GOLDEN WEDDING

KENE, Dec. 9. — The home of Mr. and Mrs. James Nelson was the scene of a very happy event when about sixty guests gathered to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding on Tuesday evening, Dec. 5. A sumptuous wedding dinner was served the guests at 6 o'clock, after which gifts and addresses were presented from members of the family, all of whom were present but Mr. and Mrs. Esau Tucker, of Portland, Ore., who sent their gifts and hearty congratulations. In behalf of the family Mr. Peter Gillespie of Hastings read the following address:

Dear Father and Mother:

While your many friends bring their congratulations on this occasion, we your children feel that we would like to express our thankfulness that you are spared to us, and our deep gratitude for the love and devotion you have always bestowed upon us. During our lives we have been surrounded by your care and love for us. We hope to have the privilege of making your lives bright and cheerful during your remaining years, that the eventide of your lives may be spent in happiness and content and in the knowledge of duty well done. We pray that God's blessing may make your last years your best years and that His grace may keep us in the paths of peace and rectitude wherein you have always endeavored to lead us.

We ask you to accept these small gifts as a token of our appreciation and love, and trust that you may be spared for many years.

A number of short congratulatory speeches were given, in which fitting references were made to the kindness and fine neighborly spirit of the bride and groom.

Music and refreshments filled in a happy hour, after which the bride and groom and numbers of their friends danced Scotch reels, music being furnished by the violinist, Mr. Archibald Bryer, who played at their wedding fifty years ago.

This makes the second golden wedding celebrated in this community within a month, which speaks volumes for the quality of the pioneers who settled in this district.

BODY RECOVERED

Ned Howley.

The body of D. Howley was taken from the debris of the boiler room early this afternoon. He was seen taking coal into the building just before the explosion. The body was burned and mutilated almost beyond recognition.

The Quaker Oats Company's plant, one of the finest of its kind in Canada, is this afternoon a mass of ruins. Two employees are dead, six are missing and eighteen others are in the city hospitals suffaring from burns and injuries, the result of an explosion and fire at the plant this morning at 10.30, when the boiler room and dry room above were demolished and rapidly consumed by the fire that immediately followed. It is supposed that the explosion was in the dry room and was caused by combustion.

Sparks Carried Far

Sparks from the conflagration were carried as far west as the Bonner-Worth Company's plant, and several houses caught fire. No damage of any account was caused either at the factory or to the houses.

Wind Fanned Flames

A northeast wind coming from across the river fanned the flames so that the ate through the whole length of the building, made up of the boiler rooms, dry rooms, oatmeal department, package department, where the girls are employed and the large offices and shipping rooms. The fire raged in all the fury imaginable and the firemen were powerless to stay its course. Wall after wall tumbled down, until at noon the whole building had gone and the elevators to the west were on fire, and early this afternoon were gutted. Eighteen individual concrete elevators at the northern end of the plant alone were saved. Houses within a stone's throw of the plant caught fire, as did also the court house, three hundred yards to the west.

Suspended from Window Sill

One of the workmen in Wand's planing mill across the river was an eye-witness of the first results of the explosion, the boiler house and the dry room above being blown up and the east wall blown out, some of the material going into the river. This exposed the whole interior of the several floors, and each was burning fiercely. One of the workmen was seen to come running out of the building, his clothes a mass of flames. After some delay others came to his rescue and the flames were extinguished, after which the victim was placed in an auto and hurried to the hospital.

Another workman hung suspended from an upper storey window of an adjoining plant for some time before a ladder was placed against the wall and his rescue was affected.

All Girls Escaped

Following the noise of the explosion and the cry of fire, the two hundred girls and women in the packing department made for the exits. Some fainted and fell and were assisted down the stairs and out into the yards. Several girls had parts of their clothing and also their hair burned by the flames. How they all escaped without serious injury is almost a miracle, so greatw as the headway made by the fire.

Ruin at the Court House

At the county building firemen had several streams still playing on the building at three o'clock. The central portion of the building is a total wreck, the court room, of course, included. The wings did not fare so badly. On the right-hand side the judges' chambers and the office of School Inspector Lees escaped. The residenc of Turnkey Rae was untouched. The county clerk's office is gutted and the sheriff's office was damaged, although all the effects were saved.

It is now believed that the law library will be a total loss.

The prisoners were removed from the jail to the police station but the jail was unharmed.

It is believed that the walls of the Court House are practically uninjured and that they will not need to be replaced.

Court House on Fire

The Court House took fire shortly after 12 o'clock and all the exertions of the firemen, supported by a small army of active volunteers, could not save it. The old landmark burned like tinder. In less than half an hour the whole building was a glowing furnace and the roof fell in. Lines of hose were laid to it from every direction but the odds were all against the fire fighters. The building was doomed from the start.

Alexander & Miller Suffer

Red-hot cinders were carried by the wind from the court house fire all over the city, the wind appearing to change every few minutes. One ember was swept around the corner of Brock Street and started a fire in the basement of Alexander & Mil George Street. A volunteer brigade saved the building but not before considerable damage was done by smoke and water.

Lindsay Sends Aid

A call for help was sent to Lindsay and the response was prompt. Fire Chief J. E. Bell of this town left with the fire truck at 12.03 and reached this city at 1.25. He had a force of three men with him and 1,200 feet of hose. They got down to business at once and soon had a heavy stream turned on the fire. Another truck manned by seven men arrived later.

550 Are Out of Work

One of Peterborough's largest industries, the manufactory that carried the name of this city on its products all over the world, is in ashes. The loss is complete.

The Quaker Oats Company's building was one of the largest of its kind in America. It employed over 550 hands and the daily pay roll must have been nearly $1,500. What this meant to a city the size of Peterborough is easily seen. Just at the bginning of winter a heavy calamity has overtaken the city.

The City's Heavy Loss

The loss to the company will probably be covered by insurance although this makes no provision for the loss due to a plant destroyed and the consequent falling-off in business. The working people of the city who had employment there are the real victims of the catastrophe. But even the pecuniary loss is a small matter compared to the list of dead and the dying and the injured.

Suspicion Will Not Down

There seems to be an epidemic of fires in Canada. It is a remarkable fact that disaster is overtaking those firms that are engaged in the production of foodstuffs or munitions for the use of the Allies. Last night the munition plant in Campbellford was mysteriously destroyed. Barns all over Ontario are being burned down almost daily. It is a significant fact that only those barns that contain a large amount of grain are destroyed. The theory of spontaneous combustion so popular in the early stages of the disaster is no longer entertained by experts who have made an investigation.

Is not th suspicion, gradually speeding, that some unseen foe is striving to aid the cause of the enemy by shortening the food supply and bringing famine to Canada?

Pensions and Allowances

It seems almost inhuman to plead material advantage in face of the loss of life and the frightful injuries that so many met with in the explosion this morning. But the employees will be provided for and the dependants of the victims will not be left destitute. The company is not the only sufferer who will be reimbursed for their losses.

Under the present law the widows of all men killed in an industrial accident or catastrophe such as that of this morning will be granted a pension and if she has children these also will be beneficiaries. The pension allowed amounts to $20 a month to the widow and $5 a month to each child under 16 years of age, but the pension for the entire family is not to exceed $40 a month.

So long as those who were injured are unable to work they will be allowed 55 per cent. of the amount they were earning bfore the accident.

Taken to His Home.

D. O'Brien was one of the first of the injured to be taken out. He was taken to his home on Union street.

Hurled Into Space

J. Walsh, who is among the injured, was hurled many feet in the air when the explosion took place, and was picked up on the bank and taken to the hospital. Eyewitnesses were dumbfounded at the sight. He was conveyed in an automobile to St. Joseph's Hospital.

Covered by Insurance

It is impossible to get an accurate statement on the loss to the company. It is understood that the loss is covered by insurance. The buildings alone would represent about half a million dollars.

ALEX. MILLER NOT AT POST

CHIEF ENGINEER AT QUAKER OATS PLANT SAFE AT HIS HOME.

Alexander Miller, chief engineer at the Quaker Oats plant, did not go to work this morning, and he no doubt owes his life to the fact that he did not feel well on arising this morning and decided not to go to work.

His duties would have taken him into the boiler room, where he probably would have met instant death.

BERLIN STATEMENT OF FIGHTING

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

BERLIN, Dec. 11.—A war offic estatement says: "On the Western front artillery activity increased considerably yesterday. On the Roumanian front, north of Tartar, in the Bystritza sector, and in Trotus Valley, the Russian again yesterday attacked with strong forces without any effect. An advance of German patrols north of Smotrec resulted in the bringing in of fourteen prisoners and one mine-thrower.

"On Mackensen's front our pursuing armies in some places encountered resistance which has been broken. Our movements, despite pouring rain, soaked ground, and complete destruction of bridges, are proceeding as intended. We have made several thousand additional prisoners.

"On the Macedonian front on Sunday the enemy launched a very considerable force of artillery and infantry.

"All French and Serbian attacks between Dabromir and Makovo failed."

LLYOD GEORGE ILL WITH COLD

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Dec. 11.—Premier Lloyd George is ill. He was unable to go to Buckingham Palace today with members of the Cabinet to receive the seals of office from King George. He is suffering from a severe chill and is remaining indoors, on the advice of his physician.

SAMPSON NOT CALLED

A

Fire Responsible for Enlargement of Hearing.

The appearance of Clarence Sampson, who was brought back from Watertown by Detective Newhall, before Magistrate Langley this morning in county police court, did not take place on account of the fire. Sampson was one of the prisoners in the jail when the court house caught fire. All were taken to the police station cells.

The Standard, Watertown, N.Y., has the following story on Sampson's arrest:—

To arrest a man for cattle stealing in Watertown seems to be a far fetched idea. Were it a city of the west where this sort of thing is read of as a vacation pastime it might be different. Armed with a warrant charging "cattle stealing" (a technical crime not specified in this state) Detective Captain Alfred Wood, who has been searching for a man named Clarence Sampson for the past two weeks, landed him this morning.

About two weeks ago Chief Constable Daniel Thompson of Peterborough, Ont., notified Chief Singleton that he held a warant for Clarence Sampson charging cattle stealing, and that he had information to believe that the fellow might be in this city. Aside from the fact that the man was smooth shaven, of certain appearance and measurements, and 26 years of age, there was nothing to follow. Capt. Wood was assigned to the case.

He discovered in some way that Mrs. Charles Morison, No. 1213 Huntington St., was from Canada and her maiden name was Sampson. He learned that a young man had come to this home a few weeks ago, and also that he worked in a factory. At the Wise plant there was a man who worked one day and received an injury to his thumb, but nowhere could the name Sampson be found. After Captain Wood had traced suspicions to the Morrison home sufficiently he mapped out a decision of having officers visit the place early this morning.

Night Captain Edghill and Patrolmen Knight and Tauroney went to the home at one o'clock this morning and roused Sampson from bed and placed him under arrest. He was taken to city hall and locked up, admitting his identity. It is said he went by another name while here. He offered no resistance, but was very reserved in his conversation, admitting nothing. Chief Thompson was notified of the arrest and is on his way here. Sampson stated that he would not resist returning to Canada making legal proceedings necessary.

A Standard representative interviewed Sampson today. At first he refused to talk at all. Later he said that he had resided on a farm of 300 acres about 20 miles east of Peterborough. That about five weeks ago he sold his farm, and, leaving his wife and one child with her parents in the vicinity, came to Watertown

LLOYD GEORGE'S STATEMENT

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Dec. 11.—The Prime Minister has sent the following to all members of the Commons: "The King has entrusted me with the task of forming a Government. I have carried out his command. I had hoped to make a statement to the House on Tuesday, but now I find it to be impossible. On Tuesday, Mr. Bonar Law, as leader of the House, will move an adjournament till Thursday. One predominant task before the Government is the vigorous prosecution of the war to a triumphant conclusion. I feel the Government can rely on your support as long as they devote their energies effectively to that end."

USE BRITISH FREIGHT CARS

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, Dec. 11.—The British Government has arranged to send immediately to France ten thousand freight cars taken from British railways to replace French cars now in use in the British operations in France.

EXCHANGE CIVILIAN PRISONERS

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Dec. 11.—After protracted negotiations, arrangements have been made for an exchange of British and German civilian prisoners over 45 years. About four thousand Germans are interned in Britain, of whom only twenty-two hundred expressed the desire to return to Germany, and seven hundred British in Germany. It remains for the Admiralty to provide a neutral steamer on which to make the exchange.

NEW MINISTRY WELL RECEIVED

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Dec. 11. — Lloyd George's new Ministry is generally received with enthusiasm, and there is no hostile criticism. Critics are impressed but not frightened by the innovation whereby the Cabinet Government is virtually dispensed with and the Government concentrated in the hands of four men. The Daily Telegraph says that Cromwell himself never designed a bolder experiment.

REVOLUTION IN GREEK ISLANDS

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Dec. 11.—A telegram from Athens says a revolution has broken out in the Cyclades, the group of Greek islands in the Aegean Sea.

FOUR AIRPLANES BROUGHT DOWN

THE PERSONAL IN POLITICS.

MR. GEORGE LEADER, or any other citizen who essays to pelt a municipal candidate with mud balls, cannot escape soiling his own hands even if the missiles he hurls fall far short of the mark. One year ago The Review stood for a clean civic campaign. It was the first paper in this city to lay down the rule that no anonymous communication attacking a particular candidate or public man would be published and that those dealing in personalities would be denied space, even if they bore the name of the writer. This rule will be rigidly observed during the campaign in prospect.

The religious or the family affairs of a candidate either for alderman or mayor is none of the business of the voters. The first is a matter between himself and his Maker, the last is something sacred from public scrutiny. It is not given to any one man to single out a particular individual and dictate to him with regard to what is required of him in a military sense. To attack a candidate because he does not enlist is on the same plane as to endeavor to create a prejudice against him for the reason that he worships in this or that church. It is simply peanut politics, with nothing left of the peanuts but the empty shells.

When a man has been in office in Peterborough for seven long years and in that time has established a record which stands the X-rays of criticism, when he receives time after time a gratifying renewal of the confidence of the people, then it is indeed anything but a manly course to attempt to divert the attention of the people from the main issue and to breed petty spite against him. Mayor Duffus' private life will bear investigation. His public record is before the people, and his friends are satisfied to have the popular verdict based upon that alone. He has been this city's chief executive for the past year. The only objection ever urged against him was that he is inclined to be over-cautious. If this is true, then that characteristic is a virtue born of a desire to give the people what they want. He is entitled to a second term both on his record and according to a precedent long established in this city. Such criticism and insinuation as Mr. Leader directs against him will not influence any thinking and fair-minded voter. Personal prejudice or sectarian rancor is not the force in politics that it once was, when more men like Mr. Leader could find newspapers willing to act as channels through which they could reach the ears of the voters.

What will strike the public most of all in connection with Mr. Leader's communication is how any newspaper would be willing to print his letter when the cap he weaves for the Mayor is a perfect fit for a prominent member of the staff of the journal in question.

CONSTABLE MOORE'S COUP.

COUNTY CONSTABLE Archie Moore showed the true detective instinct when, off his own bat and without dictation from the provincial authorities, he traced Clarence Sampson, wanted on a charge of cattle stealing, from his home in Dummer to his hiding place in Watertown, N. Y. It was a triumph of professional skill for which he deserves the entire credit. If our own county constable had been given a free hand from the start in the case of the Dummer outlaws, the outcome would have been different. The brass band methods would not have been adopted, there would have been no fruitless arrests, and none of those whom it was most desirable to capture would have succeeded in escaping across the line.

Provincial police officers as a rule have a weakness for publicity. County officers in this vicinity are content to receive honors when they have accomplished what they set out to do. Sampson would probably have remained at large indefinitely if outside talent had been relied upon to effect his capture.

PARTY BEFORE EMPIRE.

A PROMINENT Cabinet Minister addressed a recruiting meeting in the local Armories one week ago. Did any one of the several thousands who heard him note any attempt from beginning to end of his appeal to turn the meeting into a defence of the Government which he represents?

Premier Borden is making a tour of Quebec in the interests of the National Service Commission. His addresses are as free of anything like a political tinge as are the sermons on military duty one hears in the churches from time to time. The safety of the Empire is the paramount issue. The fortunes of a party or of a government are of secondary interest, not to be noted in the blackness of the calamity that overshadows the nation.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier addressed a meeting in Quebec recently, and as usual devoted a considerable portion of his oration to the consideration of a purely party matter, involving as it did the record of himself while in power. His naval policy was placed on trial and he defended it with a cyclone of well-rounded periods.

The past of any party is of little importance now. The mistakes of either should be allowed to rest while the outcome of the war is still in doubt. Sir Wilfrid cannot explain away the fact that through all the naval debate of 1913 he obstinately refused to believe that the world had anything to fear from German aggression. The most he would admit in the way of a menace lay in the direction of the Orient. Not in one hundred years, if life was spared him for that time and he remained in office, would Sir Wilfrid Laurier's naval policy have provided safety for his country from the danger he recognized.

"The sum and substance of Sir Wilfrid's creed since the war broke out is contained in a sentence, repeated in every public address which he makes, "When England is at war, Canada is at war." He relies entirely upon that sentiment as a vindication of his devotion to the Empire.

The truth which he reiterates so frequently is self-evident. There is no virtue in a necessity. No individual should give himself commendation nor look to others for it when he follows the plainly blazed trail of duty. This is Canada's war as much as it is that of France's or Belgium's. It is a clear case of self-defence. That the scene of the conflict is thousands of miles away does not affect the issue. Any man gifted with ordinary wisdom will turn out to help fight a conflagration in the distance when he is convinced that if it is not checked it will spread and reduce his own home to ruins.

In the event of war between the United States and Britain, Canada would be dragged into the quarrel and could not parade her patriotism when the country participated to save its own existence. Self interest is after all more potent in influencing the masses than is mere sentiment. The recruiting orator who appeals for recruits because Canada is in danger is generally more successful than the speaker who relies entirely upon arousing the patriotic fervor of his hearers.

Yes, Canada is at war when England is, not by choice but by necessity. Canada's safety can be assured only by co-operation with the Mother Country, in naval matters especially. This was a truth that never appeared to dawn upon Sir Wilfrid when he was in power or during the debate on the Borden naval policy. Canada has every reason to be thankful that when the war broke out Sir Wilfrid Laurier was in Opposition. His so-called recruiting addresses today are simply so many bids for another term in office.

NO NATIONALISM IN THE CABINET.

SIR ROBERT BORDEN is certainly not encouraging Nationalism when he undertakes a recruiting tour of Quebec, the stronghold of the cult. It is unfair and false to allege, as Liberal papers do, that his Minister of Inland Revenue is a Nationalist, when he was hooted while making an address in Montreal by the people who accept Bourassa as their guide and whose minds have become poisoned by his teachings.

OPTIMISM RUNS RIOT.

IS IT MATERIALISM or what that induces a prominent financier to find solace in the fact that after all the war has been considerable of a blessing seeing that it has brought money in loads to htis country and given remunerative employment to thousands? Probably the most of us have fortunately escaped this variety of commercialism and so cannot take a similar view of the situation. There are still left those who hold that money is not everything. All the millions paid for the making of shells in Canada is not worth one life lost in the trenches. Even the claim that the war has drawn the different parts of the Empire closer together seems somehow out of place. The fact that a family dwells together in unity is not emphasised by the necessity of banding together to save the house from flames or burglary.

It is too much to ask us to be grateful because the war has made times good. The price is out of all proportion to the benefits received. Prosperity would have returned to Canada by a different avenue than the dank battle trench. Civilized people cannot be expected to thank God that misfortune has come to others to their own advantage. Blight may take a neighbor's crop and increase the value of our own, but the circumstance does not call for unseemly jubilation.

War is hideous, no matter from what angle it is regarded. The hundreds of Canadians who are mourning for its victims are not to be comforted by the philosophy of a materialistic banker who dreams in dollars and estimates everything with an eye single on the revenue it brings in.

DIPLOMACY THAT FAILED.

AN ERUDITE EXCHANGE, in a plea for the compulsory teaching of the French language in Ontario schools, says that language is now the one used in diplomatic circles in Europe. This is certainly rather a dubious compliment to pay any tongue, to associate it with a system that would now be the laughing stock of the world if it had not involved civilisation in the bloodiest tragedies in history. Diplomacy as it has existed for ages is receiving its death blow in this war. It has broken down everywhere.

The Kaiser was not slow to recognize this fact when he found nation after nation rising up in arms against him in Europe. He warned his diplomatic corps, that had failed him in so many cases to make allies of other powers, to persuade Britain to remain neutral while he settled with France and Russia, that they might take up other occupations as their services would no longer be required in their former capacities when the war was over.

British diplomacy failed in Belgium and has accomplished nothing in Greece. It dragged Roumania into the war simply to bring new responsibilities and disasters to the Allies. Diplomacy in the United States has degenerated into a ghastly joke.

The diplomatic corps of the various nations have been responsible for the wars of the past. The present conflict is to a large extent due to their bungling. If this conflict is to end war forever and crush militarism, the system of shaping the relations of the powers will go in the crash.

OUR CAUSE IS RIGHTEOUS

(Sir Robert Borden at Montreal.)

"I have said that in France and Belgium humanity itself calls us to the rescue. The hundred thousand Canadians now in the battle line and those who beyond the seas eagerly await the word, do not these also call us to their aid? There are those who speak of peace. I read not long since in an American journal the words which Abraham Lincoln uttered on the 16th June, 1864: 'We accepted this war for an object, a worthy object, and the war will end when that object is attained. Under God, I hope it will never end until that time.' The words of Lincoln express the spirit of Canada in this war which we have accepted for a righteous cause."

Woman's Real Worth to be Determined By This War Says English Writer

How much are women really worth? We don't know yet, but we are beginning to find out. The war is teaching us. Writing in the Athenaeum, an English writer of prominence says that previous to the war nobody knew much about women except that the majority of them were married and economically dependent; the majority worked at home or outside, while a minority lived in idleness; the majority were apathetic about woman suffrage and a minority were keen supporters or bitter opponents.

The worth of women could not be gauged by their spending capacity. A labor's wife with $5 a week to cover all expenses and a stock broker's wife with $100 a week to buy clothes might be equally efficient or equally worthless. The real earning capacity of women was unknown because the conventional attitude was that women did not and should not work except for a brief period before marriage. They were neither equally trained nor equally paid. Hence they took less interest in their work and were less ambitious than men.

The first effect of the war was to throw millions of these undertrained, underpaid women out of work. Industry was demoralized. Only men's trades, so called, were active. The great domestic question of the hour was what was to become of women and children.

Women solved that question themselves. Untrained, unskilled, undisciplined, ignorant of commerce or of business, they threw themselves into the industrial struggles, and in an amazingly short time proved themselves equal to the hardest physical labor, the most highly skilled tasks.

With what result? That the thinking men of England now appraise women's value as fully equal if not superior to their own, and that, if England is to survive, the whole of society must be changed to suit women's requirements. Women must be given the same training for work as men, the same opportunity for development and promotion, the same rewards. But that is not all.

The whole business of bearing and rearing children must receive more help and more recognition. Women must be recognized both as wealth producers and as race bearers. Hours of work and all industrial conditions must be adjusted to their needs, not men's. Truly the promise of a revolution—the greatest the world has ever beheld.

THE GEISHA TRUST COMPANY LTD.

The trust has invaded Japan. The government trust, or monopoly, is seen in the sugar, salt and camphor businesses and in the nationalization of railways and such institutions. And the following clipping from the Japan Advertiser of Tokio indicates another interesting development of the trust principle:

"The Geisha, famed in every corner of the world, an institution as old as aJpan herself is now threatened by that octopus of modern industry, the trust. At least such a calamity is hinted in a report from Nagoya, the sixth city of Japan, which tells of the organization of the Geisha Trust Company, Limited.

"Capitalized at 10,000 yen, the Nagoya company represents the first attempt in Japan to commercialize the geisha, her beauty and her talents, along such advanced lines of trade. The promoter whose keen sighted mind originated the idea of a geisha company, is Shosaku Kawada, a Nagoya man. He persuaded several restaurant and geisha house proprietors, along with a few magnates of the city, to invest 10,000 yen. He proceeded to organize the company, which, it is announced, 'guarantees to supply geisha girls for public demand.'

"The venture has been recognized by the government, having been legally sanctioned in Friday's Official Gazette. The concern has 100 shareholders, who have invested from 40 to 500 yen.

"As yet no announcement has been made of an increase in the rates for geisha entertainment. But then the movement is only in its infancy."

EDITOR'S MAIL

Editor Review: If our City Council issue any poolroom licenses next year, why not give them to the owners of the standard hotels, whose guests from outside the city require and look for some form of amusement during the long winter evenings? These hotels find their revenues reduced by the Ontario Temperance Act. Every one of them submitted to the new law without a murmur and I am satisfied that they are all living up to the law. If there are any violations it is not the hotelkeepers who are guilty.

There can be no objections to pool or billiards as a form of amusement so long as the men to whom licenses are issued operate according to law and boys undr age are not allowed to congregate. The standard hotels are the place for them. These hotels are a necessity in the community and are entitled to any encouragement that it is in the power of the city to give them.

WAS IT AN APPLE THAT ADAM ATE?

Our correspondent who points out that the Bible doesn't specify Adam as eating an apple at the instigation of Eve wonders why tradition should have fixed on this particular fruit as the instrument of the Fall, says the New York Sun. Such compendiums of religious knowledge as we have consulted are silent on the point. But we may draw his attention to another famous fruit which has invariably been described as an apple. This was the rosy sphere which Eris threw among the guests at one of the more notable marriages in Olympian society. Hera, Aphrodite and Athena each claimed it, for Eris had written that it should be awarded "to the fairest." The arbitration of Paris was singularly unsuccessful and was one of the causes of the Trojan war.

Possibly the fruit of discord and the fruit of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil were both identified as apples because the apple is one of the oldest and commonest fruits known to man, and one of the most uncertain in quality. The smoothest exterior, the choicest coloring, oft disguise the detestable Ben Davis. Or it may be that Eve plucked the apple before it was sufficiently ripe.

FOR YOUNG FOLKS

Sleepy Time Story About a Boy Who Was Nearly Lost.

HOW IT ALL CAME ABOUT.

An Amusing Incident That Caused Some Alarm For a Time—Where the Missing Youngster Was Finally Discovered—A Russian Princess.

Tonight, said Uncle Ren to little Ned and Polly Ann, I am going to tell you about A LOST BOY.

When I was a boy we lived on a farm, and my father had a large barn in which the children liked to play. I'll never forget the fun I used to have when I was a boy climbing up the haymow.

Our barn was quite a little way from the house, and father seldom locked it. One afternoon mother said that a neighbor spoke of having seen tramps going by, and after that he thought he would lock up the barn.

That afternoon we had a glorious game of robbers' cave in the barn. Our children and the children of two or three neighbors were there.

When it was nearly supper time we stopped playing. The other children got ready to go home, and we, too, started to the house.

"Where's Billy?" some one said. Billy was a three-year-old neighbor and had come with his sister, who was my sister's chum.

"Oh, Billy must have gone home," said his sister. "He would want something to eat before this." Then we said good night very merrily and went our ways.

It was almost dark, and a little later our father came in after having fed the animals and locked the barn.

We were just sitting down to supper when some one knocked at the door.

It was Billy's mother, and she was crying. "Oh, my little boy is lost! Hattie says he came home when the children were playing together, but I haven't seen him. We've searched everywhere, and now my husband is going down to look in the creek."

"Cheer up," father said heartily. "The creek is too shallow to drown a cat. Sit down a bit and tell us all about it."

Father asked if any of us had noticed Billy start home. No one could remember to have seen him.

"I'll go with a lantern and take a look around the barn," said father.

We all followed him, and, though we looked in every corner, we could not see any traces of Billy. We noticed Don, our neighbor's dog, hunting about. After awhile he went up into the haymow and began scratching and whining. After he had tossed the hay to one side we saw what he was after. Little Billy, tired out with play, had gone to sleep under the hay, which he had drawn over himself in our game of hide and seek.

A Daughter of the Czar.

The czar and czarina of Russia have five children, four daughters and a son. The young girl here pictured is the Grand Duchess Marie, next to the youngest of the family. She was born in 1899 and is therefore seventeen years old. She was photographed in soldier's uniform, warlike costume being very much in fashion in Europe just now. Doubtless she is an honorary officer in one of the czar's regiments. Anyway, she makes a very handsome soldier.

GRAND DUCHESS MARIE.

The Ferryman.

Dear ferryman, with beard of gray,
We are very tired of play.

Our heads are nodding, and our eyes
Are wet with misty, sleepy-byes.

So wrap us in your shadow coat
And let us climb into your boat.

Then row us gently down the stream
Of a sweet and quiet dream.

THE LIBRARY FURNISHINGS

An interesting use of cretonne, brocade or any of the many materials which one encounters in the search for library fixings is shown in a set of five articles, all for the library, and which, when separated, will not give that fixed look of having everything to match.

First of all there is a pillow. It may be square, oblong, round or oval. The material, if cretonne or soft silk, is shirred on cords and caught in the middle under a covered button. A bit of plain material or an appliqued figure from the cretonne or figured linen may be substituted for the middle instead of the button.

Next there is a runner for the library or living room table. This is very plain, with ends braided or showing set on pieces of the plain or figured material, as the case may be.

A cover for the telephone book is another member of the set. It is lined with the contrasting material and well made with either buckram or light pasteboard foundation to give a real support to the paper covered book. A bright cord is substituted for the usual cord on the telephone book and passed through eyelets in the cover.

With the telephone goes a screen of cardboard covered with the selected material and lined with the contrasting one. The screen is threefold, and the middle portion is higher than the side wings.

A portfolio for the desk uses more of the material. It, too, can be made from a lightweight cardboard and is lined with contrasting material. On one flap a corner of the outer covering holds a blotter of the lining color in place. On the other flap is a pocket for note paper, postals, telegraph blanks, stamps, etc.

With the exception of the pillow this set might be used in the hall to introduce a note of bright color, for it is the style now to provide your hall with a table desk and telephone stand.

Uses For Glycerin.

Tea stains on linen should be rubbed with glycerin before the article is laundered to prevent the yellow discoloration.

Glycerin should be added to hot lemonade in place of sugar for a cold. It makes the remedy more efficacious.

When black kid gloves become shabby rub them with equal parts of glycerin and black ink. This is a good dressing for black leather of any sort. Wet shoes rubbed with this are not so hard when dried as if allowed to dry first. Fill shoes with paper to absorb some of the dampness and to help them keep their shape.

Use a few drops of glycerin and a small lump of borax to a quart of water when wiping off paint or oilcloth if you wish to have the polish of new articles.

THE ANSWER IS WEAR RUBBERS

Many People Will Don Goloshes Early This Season to Combat the High Cost of Leather Foot-wear

"Buy rubbers," says the shoeman, the dealer who plays fair with his customers.

Leather is up and shoes are up to such an extent that the buying of a pair of shoes is almost on a level with the acquiring of a new suit or coat. Shoes must be worn, but the economical person will don rubbers as soon as the weather gets the least bit "damp under foot"; not only for the protection to the health that the rubbers afford, but to save the costly shoes he or she wears.

There was never a problem in economics that was not solved sooner or later, and rubbers and overshoes seem to be the answer to the augmented price of shoes this winter. 34

"The Red Watch"

By Lieut.-Col. Curry

ONE of the officers of the first contingent of the Canadian Expeditionary Force has published a book bearing the title "The Red Watch" in which he tells the story of the first men who went across the water to uphold the honor of Canada on the battlefields of Europe. The book is from the pen of Lieut.-Colonel J. A. Curry, M.P., commandant of the 15th Battalion, drawn from the 48th Highlanders of Toronto. The Canadian Kilties, now known as the Red Watch, crossed to Flanders with the First Canadian Division, and Lieut.-Colonel Curry remained at the front until after the Battle of St. Julien. His book recounts the story of the first Canadian contingent from the time of the mobilization in August, 1914, until after the historic struggle on the Salient of Ypres climaxed in the Battle of St. Julien. This is indeed the climax of the story, for after the battle only 212 of the Toronto Highlanders out of 1,034 answered the roll call.

The book contains glimpses of the light and the dark side of warfare. One incident attending the departure for the front deserves to be recorded:

"The men were in great good humor. They were singing like larks. Some of them had left newly married wives at home in England. One at least, one of my best men, was too much married, as he had left two wives behind. He had joined the regiment in Toronto and had given his separation allowance to a wife in Paisley. When we got to Salisbury another woman wrote from Glasgow saying she was his wife and claiming the allowance. In an unfortunate moment he had taken a trip to Paisley, and wife No. 1 had pounced on him while he was visiting wife No. 2, and there was a scene. She wrote to me threatening to have him arrested for bigamy. I saw this would not do, as there were three interests demanding satisfaction. First, there was his duty to the King. It had cost a lot of money to train him and bring him so far. He would be no use to the King in jail for bigamy, and would be only a further expense to the country, and a good soldier would be lost to the service. So I suggested to wife No. 1 that she leave him alone till after the war if he gave her an assignment of his pay of twenty dollars a month. Like a sensible Scotch woman, she saw the wisdom of Solomon in my suggestion and accepted it. Wife No. 2 received the separation allowance, and the King got the services of a first-class soldier, and all three interests were satisfied."

Aided the Canadians.

That the Canadians are more or less constantly in the actual fighting is proved by a story which comes from a British newspaper anent the doings of the Royal West Kent Regiment. The Kentist Mercury, of recent date gives a connected if somewhat incomplete story of the action of the "Queen's Own" — the Royal West Kents—beginning on October 3rd and lasting till October 7th, which was undertaken to relieve the Canadians.

It seems that, for some inexplicable but doubtless perfectly good reason, there were no communication trenches, and the holding of the front line was therefore a tough job. Canadians had to undertake it for a certain time until the Royal West Kents relieved them. This is given as the cause of the heavy casualties at the beginning of October. The enemy subjected the tenants of the front line trench to grilling fire, and indeed it was so heavy that the troops could not secure water at times, the danger being too great.

The "Queen's Own" of Kent, is a regiment that has never lost a yard of trench. It determined that this record should not be broken now. A message was sent that the regiment might retire and retake the trench later. The officers and men replied, "We prefer to hold it and get on with it." Orders were that at dawn on October 7th the attack was to be made, and in accordance with that the West Kents swung over the parapet, only to be swept by Hun machine guns. The first rush carried the West Kents forward about four hundred yards. Captain Purver, a brother of Mr. H. W. Purver, Toronto, directed his men, and while waiting for the barrage fire to lift, was fatally wounded. His gallantry in previous engagements found echo in this. He fell, but shouted to his brother officer, "Carry on, Morley." His commanding officer, in a letter to the gallant captain's wife, said, "He died doing his duty in a way that could not be excelled."

THE BEAUTY OF HOLINESS AN UNCONSCIOUS CHARM

Rev. T. H. Mitchell Preaches Anniversary Sermons to Lakefield Presbyterians--Congregation is 53 Years Old.

The congregation of the Lakefield Presbyterian Church marked their fifty-third anniversary yesterday, the services morning and evening being conducted by Rev. T. H. Mitchell, minister in charge of St. Andrew's Church in this city. The attendance was large, the Methodists cancelling their service in the evening in order to unite in worship with the Presbyterians.

The Lakefield church was organized when that now flourishing village was a cross roads hamlet and the surrounding country was a forest. It is now one of the strongest rural congregations in the Peterborough Presbytery, and has a large and modern home, well furnished throughout. The present popular pastor is Rev. T. J. Robinson. The music is furnished by an excellent choir of over twenty-five voices, trained and led by Miss Nettie Nelson. Miss Alice Hunter makes an efficient organist. A special musical program was furnished yesterday, a quartette rendering Lead Kindly Light with admirable taste at the evening service.

The members of the session, besides the minister, are Messrs. R. Graham, A. Fairbairn, clerk, T. Cullen, A. J. Young, Richard White, A. J. Kidd and Hugh Sutton. The business management of the church is in the hands of Messrs. A. E. Kennedy, Webster Blewett, J. H. Chant, Frank Burgess, W. A. Fairbairn and Richard White.

What the Face Shows

At the evening service Mr. Mitchell chose as his text Exodus xxiv., 29: "And it came to pass when Moses came down Mount Sinai with the two tables of testimony in Moses' hand, when he came down from the mount, that Moses wist not, that the skin of his face shone while he talked with him."

The point emphasized by the preacher was that those who are truly good and holy do not find it necessary to boast about it any more than does the really clever man speak of his attainments. The countenance of Moses was lighted up and still he was unconscious of it. The really clever man does not boast, but is rather, like Tennyson, willing to admit that, after all, he is only like an infant that finding itself in the darkness cries for light.

To illustrate his point Mr. Mitchell told the following story of a self righteous man whom he knew while holding a charge in a New England city. This man claimed that he had not sinned in seven years. Relating his experience at a church meeting one night, he told how while fixing the roof of his woodshed one day he slipped and fell to the ground, alighting with considerable force and injuring himself rather severely. But he did not swear as the unregenerate would have done, or even lose his temper. Instead, he raised his voice in sacred song, the hymn that occurred to him as most fitting for the occasion being

"All hail the power of Jesus' name Let angels prostrate fall."

The Soul Makes the Face

It is the soul that makes the face and just as did the face of Moses, the countenance of the good may shine with holiness and they remain unconscious of the fact. One condition of communion with God is solitude. In England the owner of a beautiful garden surrounds it with a high wall. In Canada the fences are torn down. Mr. Mitchell used to think that in this regard the Canadians were right that no man should seek to shut out the world, but he has changed his mind. Every person should have some place reserved for himself.

In concluding his remarks, Mr Mitchell referred to the war. Horrible as it is, he believes that good will come out of it and that the Almighty will yet make the wrath of man to praise Him.

The choir san[illegible] National Anthem and one [illegible] of "God Save Our Men."

Rev. T. J. Robinson, pastor of the church, took Mr. Mitchell's place in this city yesterday, preaching very acceptably both morning and evening. He is an eloquent preacher and an earnest church worker and the congregation at Lakefield appreciate the good work he is doing in the village.

CURIOUS BELIEFS

Superstitious Londoners Believe in Certain "Cures"

A London paper says: Most numerous and perhaps queerest of all, are the "cures" which Mr. Lovett has discovered to be used by simple-minded folk in London for many of the ills the flesh is heir to. They include amulets made of amber or shaped like a heart to promote good health, flints for the gout, and bones and skins of cats for rheumatism. A necklace of blue beads is also regarded as a certain cure for bronchitis by many London people. Mr. Lovett says he has found 137 instances of the most implicit belief in this "remedy." But perhaps the most picturesque of all his discoveries of this kind is the following: Lovett was asked by a woman who dealt in second-hand clothes if he would like to know of a good cure for whooping cough? She told him she had cured several cases by cutting off some hair from the back of the neck of a child who was suffering from the disease, placing the hair between two pieces of bread and butter, and giving it to the first passing dog or cat! The disease would then pass from the child to the dog, and the former would be cured. It is amazing to find this belief, which is common to savage races in many parts of the world, existing in London to-day.

MOVIES OF CANADA

Shown to Thousands of People in the United States

Western Canada attractions are made known in all the chief centres of the United States in a more attractive form and on a more extensive scale than has been hitherto attempted. By means of the moving picture camera the life and resources of the West are shown over a circuit covering 4,000 theatres, and in this way many thousands of people are reached and interested in the Dominion who might otherwise only hear of the country incidentally. The films were taken under the auspices of the Grand Trunk Pacific and include a variety of pictures in the prairie harvest fields and through the Canadian Rockies. One of the most interesting pictures is the arrival of a fishing boat at Prince Rupert with 90,000 pounds of halibut on board, which enabled the photographer to secure a series of views showing the expeditious method of transferring the fish from the boat to the cars for Eastern shipment.

Scandinavian Nations Becoming More Friendly

EVER since the famous meeting of the Scandinavian kings at Malmo, in December, 1914, a strong undercurrent of good-will has been manifested among the three nations, a goodwill that has come to be visibly expressed of late, in various ways, notably in the exchange of ideas in dramatic art, natural science, and so forth. Meetings and conferences have also been held in the three countries, which have helped to draw the Scandinavian nations more closely together through mutual respect, and the willingness of each to learn from the other.

In May, this year, for instance, the actors from the National theater, Christiania, visited Stockholm and gave performances there, while the Swedish actors played at the National theatre, Christiania, the friendly criticism of the press being highly appreciated in both countries. During the summer months, too, meetings of naturalists and archæologists from the three nations have been held in Christiania, and various sport meetings have been arranged in all three countries from time to time. A delegation of farmers from Norway and Denmark visited Sweden recently, and commercial men from the three nations have lately held a conference. At all these various meetings and functions the idea of the unity of the Scandinavian countries has been emphasized in speeches, King Haakon making special reference to it in his address of welcome to the Scandinavian naturalists when they were his guests at the Royal palace in Christiania.

KING HAAKON.

Another interesting speech was made by General Balch at the opening of the Svenska Spelen in Stockholm this year, where sportsmen from the Scandinavian countries were competing in friendly rivalry. The General said: "At this meeting we have overstepped the limits originally laid down for the Svenska Spelen, by inviting our kinsmen, the Norwegians and Danes, to compete with us, and we have done this because the northern nations are linked together, more especially in these grave times. We are striving for the same goal, a strong race, and in these circumstances the victory is a common one."

It is evident that these countries have opened their doors to each other, and that goodwill is sweeping away strife and misunderstanding. This was especially apparent in the visit of the women students' choir to Sweden last May. In an account of the visit "Nylende" writes that when the Norwegian students left Upsala the Swedes sang the Norwegian national anthem, "Ja ci elsker," this being the first occasion on which it had been sung there since 1905. Writing to one of the Christiania papers, one of the Swedish hostesses says: "It is somewhat unusual to find a choir of 80 women giving concerts, but it is still more remarkable when every one of the 80 is entitled to wear the student's cap. The fact that the choir was led by a university professor inspired such respect even in this country where women are voteless that it made one wonder, and even the press was stirred. The first concert in the Academy of Music was filled to overflowing. The platform was like a garden, and last, but not least, the two nations' flags floated together. Within a few minutes after the concert commenced the enthusiasm of the audience was aroused, and this enthusiasm accompanied the singers wherever they went, in Upsala as in Stockholm, and at concert after concert. Yes, it was a great joy, so great that no one who loves his country will ever forget it."

When Your Foot Sleeps.

If we sit for some time with our legs crossed our foot "goes to sleep." We are really pressing on the sciatic nerve, which supplies nearly all of the nerves of the leg and foot, says London Answers. The nerve is elastic, and is flattened by pressure just like a rubber hose. The fibres which make up the nerve are sensory, that is to say, they carry sensations to the brain. Motor nerves carry sensations from the brain to the body. The only ways to stop a nerve carrying sensations are but cutting it or by pressure, which pushes apart the soft nerve matter, which is covered with a sheath, just as the water is pushed apart if you press a hose. When the pressure is on the nerve, messages cannot pass backwards and forwards. If the pressure is released the nerve matter returns to its place and does its work.

THE FIGHTING AT YSER WAS A HOMERIC BATTLE THAT SAVED THE COAST

YPRES has obscured Yser. For many the mighty fighting of British men about the Flanders town in the autumn of 1914 has dimmed the vision for the fighting, as mighty and as splendid, that held the line on either flank. Who of us knows really well the story of French valor that held obdurate against all assaults the grim fronts of Arras? How many know, even in essence, the history of that superb Belgian remnant that beat the rules of war, that held where it should not have held, and that, along the charnel reaches of Yser, staunched the German passion for the Channel coast as effectively and as marvellously as did our own men?

Yet the story of those Belgians is as marvellous as our own Ypres story, so that now when the second anniversary of this Thermopylæ of the marshes has passed, it is perhaps fair for us to consider and appreciate some of the marvels done by a handful of brave men in the flurry and mud of the first wild months of Armageddon.

The Belgian army that fell back to the coastal regions after Antwerp had capitulated was a handful, and a battered handful. Eighty thousand men were there, but 48,000 of these alone had the means to fight. They had suffered savage blows, they had endured comfortless conditions, they lacked food and water, ammunition and equipment, their clothes were a mockery of covering, they had endured the bitterness and depression of unrelieved defeat. They fell back mournfully, leaving their homeland in the hands of the Germans, and as they retired the Germans, outnumbering them three to one, came after. There was no opportunity to reorganise in the face of that pursuit until they came to safety and connected up with their Allies. That point of safety seemed to be the line of the Yser. Here, the tired men thought, we will reorganize, we will re-equip, and rest our wounds. Here at the Yser they received the order "Hold on for 48 hours. Reserves are not up yet. Hold on."

The "Ragged Army" turned and held on. There were 48,000 tired men, equal, one would say, to holding a front of ten miles. The front they were asked to hold on October 13 was 25 miles long. Nieuport and the sea was on their left, the vital bridge-heads of Schoorbakke and Dixmude were in the centre, the tenuous left wing stretched out in the mud along the Yser to Zuydschoote. Against that front 150,000 Germans and 500 guns hammered to break a road to Dunkerque and the coast. "Once in the positions in which I will place you," commanded the heroic Belgian King, "let your eyes be turned only in front of you and consider as a traitor to the country the man who shall utter the word retreat before the formal order is given." Heroic king, heroic Belgians, the order was obeyed to the letter.

For forty-eight hours the Belgians were to hold on; they held on for two weeks. Six thousand French marines fought an epic fight at their shoulders in Dixmude during the first week; a French division helped to fill the gaps during the second. That was all the aid they got. For twelve days beyond the two ordained, a handful of men already badly spent held back all the power, the passion, and eagerness of Germany. Trenches there were none, in shallow and extemporized ditches, behind crazy walls, lying huddled beneath meagre piles of sandbags that hellish bombardments from guns of all calibres rent to rags, the tattered battalions held staunch. Enormous assaults were launched at them, enormous assaults were broken and beaten. Physically at their last gasp, the Belgian few yet expended their last forces of spirit and courage and strength in resisting the power that should have crushed them, of holding inviolable the vital, coastal wing of the Allies. It was a stubborn and incredible battle strung over a range of days. October 16 saw the first of the pressure, October 31 came before the Germans knew they had lost.

There is anxiety with the Germans by this time. If these obstinate Belgians were not removed, time would bring up its reinforcements, and the road would be irrevocably lost. The battle through the days raged with vehement intensity. The assaults were piled up all along the line. Exhaustion was telling. It was no longer possible or human to resist. So the waters are called in to Belgium's aid and the waters rise. The Germans were now exhausted, also, and their fighting became enfeebled. They put out one effort, took Ramscapelle, and were flung from it in headlong fashion, and waters and fatigue then drowned the dying embers of battle.

Twenty thousand Belgians went down in that bitter but Homeric encounter. A "Ragged Army" went in, and but rags of battalions came out. But it had held the left. The coast was ours, the flank was strong. So Yser stands with Ypres, so Yser stands with Arras. Yser, Ypres, and Arras a new, a triple Thermopylae that saved Europe in the West.

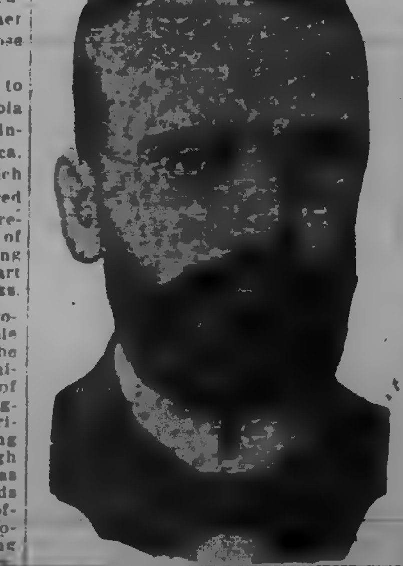
VENIZELOS, GREATEST OF GREEKS, LOVES POWER FOR THE GOOD OF HIS COUNTRY

OPPORTUNITY is again knocking at the door of Mr. Eleutherios Venizelos, former Greek Premier, in whose hands lies the fate of his country.

Mr. Venizelos foresaw the peril to Greece from the invasion of Serbia and did his best to forestall it by inviting the Allies to land at Salonica.

Of an ancient Greek family, which migrated to Crete about a hundred years ago, Mr. Venizelos was a Cretan by birth, but was a graduate of the University of Athens. Returning to Crete, he took a prominent part in the insurrection against the Turks. When Prince George of Greece, brother of King Constantine, was made High Commissioner of Crete by the Powers, in 1898, he called Mr. Venizelos to office in the Department of Justice. The Prince was later obliged to retire on account of his intrigues, and the Powers asked the King of Greece to appoint a new High Commissioner. The man chosen was Mr. Alexander Zaimis, afterwards Premier. Mr. Venizelos declined office under him, but retained his position as leader of an overwhelming majority in the Cretan Legislature and pursued unrelentingly his object of the union of Crete to Greece.



ELEUTHERIOS VENIZELOS.

When this was finally accomplished by the Powers abandoning their half-hearted support of Turkish rule elections to the assembly were held in the island. Mr. Venizelos was chosen by many constituencies and went to Athens. He reorganized the Government, giving loyal support to the old King monarch, as he did later to his son, King Constantine, for which he was rewarded by expulsion from office and a campaign of calumny in the interests of a court party exploiting their country to the benefit of Prussian designs.

At any time Mr. Venizelos could have assumed supreme authority himself, but he was too loyal, too conscientious to attempt a coup d'etat. This was a reproach often addressed to him. "You would have served better the cause of the Serbians, of the Allies, and, above all, of Greece by remaining in power, even if you had to be neutral," his friends told him, and Mr. Joseph Reinach gave him highest praise, saying he always scrupulously conformed his acts to his words.

"He loves power," says Mr. Reinach, "not for its paltry enjoyments, but because it is one of the two great levers with which the world is moved. He is not lacking in finesse, but his character is thoroughly honest.

PRAISE FOR THE DOMINION

Well Known American General Makes Very Startling Speech.

Major-General Leonard Wood commander of the United States army, is necessarily a neutral with regard to the war, but he is the sort of neutral extremely distasteful to Germany, for in the course of a short speech he delivered at the New York luncheon given to Sir Robert Borden, he did not hesitate to praise Canada's part in the war. According to The New York Sun, his remarks "startled" the diners, but they were warmly applauded; and, according to another New York paper, this gathering turned into a regular pro-British and pro-Ally demonstration. Major-General Wood said: "We can admire the splendid spirit and conduct of Canada and her people, and take unto ourselves—we are not entirely dead—a lesson from her free and splendid performance of duty. While suffering and bleeding in this war, Canada appreciates the meaning of the words of Ruskin, a lover of peace, who said that while war is very dreadful, the conclusion is unavoidable that all great works and deeds have their origin among fighting people." There was strong implied condemnation of the policy of the United States Government in the remark of General Wood to the effect that "when nations decline to declare their positions, refuse to take any stand on great questions, refuse to say whether these questions are moral or immoral, then the period of decadence begins, the period of money-getting, and it is the beginning of the period of death." He assured Sir Robert Borden that the Canadian people would emerge more vigorous and moral from the war.

General Wood, an intimate friend of Colonel Roosevelt, by whom he was appointed Chief of Staff of the United States army, showed by his presence at a dinner to Canada's Prime Minister, as well as by the words quoted, where his sympathies lie; and also what he thinks of the warning issued by President Wilson, that the American people must be neutral "even in thought" toward the issues raised by the war. His quotation from Ruskin is an apt retort to an assertion made a few weeks ago by the President that nothing of lasting importance had ever been gained by force. In The Sun's report of this dinner we note that among the guests was Mr. Robt. Bacon, formerly American Minister to France, who openly declared himself pro-Ally when contesting the Republican nomination for the vacant Senatorship in New York State. In this campaign he was defeated by William A. Calder, who also was at the dinner, and said that he was proud of his British ancestry. These indications of understanding and sympathy from such prominent American citizens are particularly gratifying to Canadians.

HISTORICAL DOCUMENT TRANSLATED INTO ENGLISH

German Admiral Who Won Battle of Corelon in Which Rear Admiral Sir C. Cradock Was Killed, Gives His Impressions of the Fight and Victory Over British.

THE following description by ~~Admiral von Spee, the~~ German commander of the Battle of Coronel, fought off the Chilian coast on November 1, 1914, when the British cruisers Good Hope and Monmouth were sunk with all their men and the British commander, Rear-Admiral Sir C. Cradock, was killed, is published in The London Daily Mail. This document is of extreme interest, as von Spee perished a few weeks after his victory in the Battle of the Falkland Islands. It is a letter from him, which was sent to Europe in a neutral ship before he met with disaster and which is now published in English for the first time. It has appeared in Admiral Kirchoff's recent book "Der Seekrieg, 1914-15."

November 2, 1914.— Yesterday was All Saints' Day and a lucky day for us. I was cruising with the squadron southwards along the coast when I received intelligence that an English cruiser had put in to Coronel, a small coaling harbor near Concepcion.

As a warship cannot stay longer than twenty-four hours in a neutral port I determined to intercept her. I placed my ships so that the Nurnberg should run up before the harbor to see if the enemy ship was still in there, while my remaining ships waited somewhat farther out. At 4.25 my squadron was somewhat spread out when it was reported that two ships had been sighted in the west-south-west.

Ordering the other ships to join me I held in that direction, for it was evident that they must be enemy ships—in fact, the Monmouth and Glasgow. Soon afterwards the auxiliary cruiser Otranto appeared and then a little later the armored cruiser Good Hope. The enemy attempted some manoeuvres with the object, I believe, of getting nearer to the coast, which would have been very harmful to me.

I immediately ordered Scharnhorst and Gniesenau to get all their boilers to work, and in fifteen minutes I was running at twenty knots against a heavy sea and got parallel to the enemy, but had to await the other ships. The enemy was so obliging as not to disturb me in this undertaking. The distance between us was about 18,000 yards.

When my ships—except the Nurnberg, which was nowhere in sight—had come up at ten minutes past six, I began to diminish the distance. And when we were about 10,000 yards off I ordered the firing to commence. The battle had begun, and with a few changes, of course, I led the line quite calmly.

I had manoeuvred so that the sun in the west could not disturb me. The moon in the east was not yet full, but promised a bright night. There were scuds of rain in various directions.

My ships fired rapidly and with success against the big ships. Scharnhorst engaged Good Hope (Admiral Cradock's flagship); Gneisenau fired on the Monmouth, Leipzig against Glasgow, and the Dresden against Otranto. The last-named ship left the line after a time and I believe escaped.

Fires broke out in the Good Hope and Monmouth. There was a tremendous explosion in the former which looked like a splendid firework display against the dark sky. The glowing white flames mingled with bright green stars, shot up to a great height. I felt sure that the ship would sink; but no, she was still afloat, and the fight went on uninterruptedly.

Meanwhile it had become dark. I had diminished the distance between us to 5,000 yards, then I turned so far that it gradually increased. The enemy's ships could only be made out by the fires, but the cannonade was kept up against them and only ceased when the gunners could no longer aim. The enemy fire had ceased, and I ordered the small cruisers to take up the pursuit. But as it seemed that he had succeeded in extinguishing the fires on board, no trace of him could be found, and steaming round the enemy's line, in order to get it into a favorable light, brought no further result. The artillery battle had lasted 52 minutes.

At 8.40 p.m. I was on a N.W. course and heard artillery fire ahead at a very great distance (estimated at 10 to 11 miles). I made towards it to help if necessary. It came from the Nurnberg, which had failed to get into touch with us and had accidentally fallen in with the Monmouth in flight. The latter listed heavily to the starboard side. Nurnberg went close in (ging dicht heran) and finished her off with gunfire. Monmouth turned over and went down.

Unfortunately the heavy seas rendered rescue work impossible, added to which the Nurnberg thought she had seen Good Hope in the vicinity—an assumption which was doubtless incorrect.

Probably in the moonlight at a great distance she mistook one of our cruisers for the Good Hope. I do not know what became of the latter. Lieutenant G., who had opportunity to observe, believed that she too, had a heavy list, and when I recall the incidents I am inclined to think he was right, although during the battle I believed it to have been an appearance caused by the movements of the ship in a heavy sea. It is quite possible that she sank; in any case, she was completely disabled. The Glasgow could hardly be seen; it is supposed that she got hit too, but in my opinion she made good her escape.

Thus we are victorious along the whole line, and I thank God for the victory. We have been protected in an absolutely marvellous manner; I do not know what unfortunate circumstances could have prevailed with the opponent which deprived him of any and every success. The enthusiasm among our men is enormous. I was especially pleased that the Nurnberg, which, through no fault of her own, took no part in the battle itself, was still able at the end to contribute to our success.

If Good Hope has escaped, then in my opinion she will be compelled by her injuries to put into a Chilian harbor. In order to find out I am going to-morrow with Gneisenau and Nurnberg into Valparaiso. Should the Good Hope have sought refuge there I shall endeavor to have her disarmed and interned by the Chilian authorities, and shall then be rid of two strong opponents.

Good Hope is bigger than Scharnhorst, but her artillery is not so powerful. It is true she has heavy guns, but only two of them. Monmouth, on the other hand, is inferior to the Scharnhorst, as she had only 6-in. guns. The English have another ship out here like the Monmouth, and, I believe further, a ship of the line Queen's class), with 12-in. guns. Against the latter we could hardly do anything at all. If the English had kept their forces together then we should certainly have got the worst of it.

You can hardly imagine the joy which prevails among us. At least we have been able to add to the glory of our arms.

Nov. 3, 1914.

We have arrived at Valparaiso this morning. Legation Secretary von Erckert and Consul Gumprecht came on board. The news of our naval victory had not preceded us, but it very soon spread. On landing to visit the chief of the station there was a huge crowd round the landing-stage, while groups here and there shouted "Hurrah!"

Altering German Plans.

The fall of the capital of German East Africa, the only colony in which German forces are still fighting, marks a further stage in the conquest of one of the largest areas of Africa under the control of a European nation. The significance of the surrender is not confined solely to the military sphere, but is important from the political and economic aspects. With regard to the first, it may be pointed out that the town is the terminus of, and the seaport for, the great central railway which crosses the colony from east to west. Practically the whole of this railway is now in British hands and has been for some time of little use to the German troops. Dar-es-Salaam was useless to the German forces as a port of supply or of escape owing to the presence of British naval forces off the coast, yet it was a symbol of authority and prestige in that region, and its surrender is considered to be important in view of its possible effects on the morale of the native troops under the German command. These are gradually being penned in against the south-eastern borders of the colony, fighting a stubborn but losing battle all the time.

From the point of view of German colonial aspirations the surrender of Dar-es-Salaam is a notable event. A great deal had been expected as a result of the development of the port. It was intended as the eastern terminus of an ocean-to-ocean route across the centre of Africa. This route was to extend from Dar-es-Salaam to Kigonia on Lake Tanganyika. From that port a service of steamers plied to Lukuga on the Belgian side, from which a series of railways were being built to connect up with the Congo river. Rich agricultural and cattle raising districts were to be exploited by the project when the advent of hostilities put a stop to the plan. German financiers hoped to have interests, not only in these projects, but also in a scheme for extending the terminus of the Algerian railway system through the Sahara of the south-west, then eastward to the Cape Cairo line, with a branch line to the shore of Victoria Nyanza to join the Uganda line. A different complexion is put upon these schemes by the military operations carried out in co-operation by the British, Belgians, and Portuguese.

Someone Ought to Tell Her.

Dear little Willie was only recently married, and for the last fortnight he had been wearing that famous smile which a man wears on only two occasions—when he is first married and when the first baby arrives. That smile, which suggests a codfish in paradise is extremely annoying to the onlooker. Therefore, Willie's friends were relieved to see him appear one morning looking very glum.

"Hallo, Willie! What's the matter?" they cried in chorus.

"Oh, don't chaff, boys — don't chaff! Marriage isn't what I thought it was! My wife can't sing!"

"Can't sing? Why, you ought to be thankful for that!"

"Yes, I dare say. And I might be—only, you see, she doesn't know it!"

Proclamation to Deserters

P. C. 2814.--- Certified copy of a report of the Committee of the Privy Council, approved by His Excellendy the Governor-General, of the 24th November, 1916. --- 652-17-22.

The Committee of the Privy Council have had before them a report, dated the 9th November, 1916, from the Minister of Militia and Defence, representing that many soldiers of the Canadian Expeditionary Force are absent from their units without leave. It is probable that the larger number of them did not, when leaving, appreciate the seriousness of their offence, and that they are now desirous of coming back, but fearing severe punishment hesitate to do so.

Further, soldiers of the Overseas Force, now undergoing imprisonment for "Desertion" or "Absence Without Leave" are available for service with the Force, if pardoned and released from imprisonment.

The Minister, Therefore, recommends, that your Excellency, as an act of grace, on assuming the government of the Dominion, be pleased to

to such persons, by issuing a proclamation to the effect that those soldiers of the Expeditionary, Force who are now absent without leave provided they surrender themselves to the Office Commanding the unit to which they belonged, where that unit is still in Canada, or if it be not, to the District Officer Commanding any Military District in Canada.

Be Pardoned for Such Offence

Not later than the 15th Day of December, 1916 for the purpose of completing their engagements; and that those soldiers of the said Force who are now under sentence of imprisonment or detention for desertion or absence without leave be pardoned for such offences be released from imprisonment or detention, and be handed over to the Officer Commanding the unit to which they belong or to the Officer Commanding the Military District in which they are, for the purpose of being returned to some other units of the Expeditionary Force, in order to complete their engagements.

The Committee Concur in the foregoing recommendation and submit the same for approval.

(Signed) RODOLPHE BOUDREAU,
Clerk of the Privy Council.

GREAT SUCCESS ATTENDS KNOX CHURCH ANNIVERSARY

Magnificent Amount Contributed for the Building Fund.

The congregation of Knox Presbyterian Church rose to great heights on Sunday, the occasion of the sixth anniversary of the opening of their church. The givings of the day toward the building fund amounted to nearly $1,300, a magnificent response to the appeal of Rev. J. A. MacKenzie that each member of the church put his shoulder to the wheel. Some time ago the minister originated a "on day's pay" system of raising $1,000 for the building and every home in the congregation was visited. Yesterday's response spoke eloquently for that spirit of loyalty of the congregation towards the minister, to which Rev. H. J. Keith referred when on a visit to the church some weeks ago.

Some returns have yet to be made so it is confidently expected that the [illegible] will [illegible] $1,300. The loose collections were $80. The large congregations included several kind friends of Knox Church who every year express their interest in the church in a practical manner and contribute to the anniversary collection. Another visitor was Mrs. (Rev.) H. J. Keith, from Edmonton, who was welcomed to the services by the minister and was greeted heartily by all.

Mr. George Kenyon and his large choir made a special effort at anniversary music and acquitted themselves well. Two anthems were sung at the morning service, while at the evening servic, besides the anthem, Miss Hinchcliffe, Mr. Smith and Mr. Humpage contributed a trio. At the conclusion of each service the National Anthem was sung.

The congregations were not disappointed in Rev. Dr. Grant of Toronto, who preached morning and evening and visited the several departments of the Sunday School at the afternoon session. As Rev. Mr. MacKenzie so well said, no mistake had been made in securing Dr. Grant for the anniversary. The beauty of Dr. Grant's discourses, secondary, of course, to the great truths he expounded, lay in the clear and simple method of placing his messages before his auditors. At the morning service, he spoke from Timothy II., 1-10: "But is now made manifest by the appearing of our Saviour Jesus Christ, who hath abolished death and hath brought life and immortality to light through the Gospel." This sounded like a travesty in the face of the present war tragedy, neverthe less it was true, the preacher said. Life and immortality was one of the most difficult subjects the ambassador of Christ has to deal with in seeking to place the truths before man.

Dr. Grant pointed out that it was because we had not entered into the light that Christ has caused to shine upon the pathway, that our thoughts of life and immortality of the soul is concerned. We came into being to continue, no matter what man or satan may do to the contrary.

The message of Christ to the thief [illegible] vain thing. It speaks of life beyond the grave. The story of Lazarus is not a vain or idle story, it reveals the destiny of man beyond the grave. If we believed in the doctrine of resurrection we would not sorrow for the dead as those who have no hope. Immortality belong to every man. All are candidates for immortaunity. The fact of the resurrection is a guarantee of immortality. "As to the transformation and change," said Dr. Grant, "tha's God's business and the fact that it is God's business is enough for me."

Christ's last message to a world of sin was the subject of Dr. Grant's discourse, the message being: "Behold I stand at the door and knock; if any man hear my voice and open the door, I will came in to him and will sup with him and him with Me. To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me on my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with My Father in his throne."

Birthrate Decline

The Marriage Rate in England is the Highest on Record.

Marriage rate—Highest on record. Birth rate—still falling.

These are among the most interesting points brought out in the report for 1915 of Dr. W. H. Hamer, Medical Officer of Health for the County of London, England.

The number of marriages registered in London was the highest ever recorded—58,345, as compared with 43,373 in 1914 and 41,409 in 1913. The increase over 1914 is 34 per cent., but as the corresponding increase for the rest of England and Wales is only 20 per cent., there is reason for thinking that a considerable number of these marriages may not properly belong to the London population.

The estimated "civil population" cannot be used for calculation of the rate, since the males married include a number of men on service, but taking the probable population of 4½ millions the rate would be 25.9 per 1,000. There has been a slight annual increase in the marriage rate since 1908, but the bulk of last year's increase must be directly attributed to the war.

The birth rate shows a further fall from 25.0 in 1909-13 and 24.3 in [illegible].

The increasing tendency to marry later in life is another factor which is examined. "The effect of postponement of marriage has hitherto been considered mainly from the point of view of its relation to the duration of marriage," Dr. Hamer says, "and insufficient allowance has been made for what might be termed the physiological effect."

The London Chronicle comments as follows on conditions:

"It may be urged that if the decline in the European birth rate be largely attributed to emigration, the countries to which the emigrants go should show high birth rates. It may be noted that the United States have received nearly 20 millions of young adults from Europe during the last 40 years, and, as H. P. Fairchild notes, 'the high birth rate of our now large foreign-born population' is notorious; moreover, the years of this great exodus are precisely those of the declining birth rate throughout Europe.

"One curious effect of the war to which Dr. Hamer draws attention is the arrestment of building activity, the result of which has undoubtedly been to check the outward movement of the population which has been going on for some time, more particularly north of the Thames."

FISH INDUSTRY WILL BENEFIT BY CHANGE IN DIET OF SOLDIERS

CANADA'S Minister of War, Sir Sam Hughes, after his recent visit to England and to the front to care for the interests of the Dominion's overseas forces, returns to report that, owing to the demand for a ration differing somewhat from that originally given them, the Dominion Government some time ago began to ship to the commissariat cod and haddock from the Maritime Provinces, salmon from British Columbia, and whitefish from the interior of Canada. Not only have the soldiers taken much satisfaction in the change in dietary, but so also have the treasury officials; for, with beef at the present high prices, to substitute fish for meat on one day in a week already has saved the Dominion not less than $750,000.

Nor is this all. Troops raised in England wish to try the experiment, and the home government is not at all unwilling, for pecuniary reasons if for no other. So a first order of more than 1,000,000 pounds of Canadian fish has been ordered, and, if it is satisfactory, there will probably be a steady business amounting to not less than $500,000 a week. Civilian middlemen in Britain also are turning to Canada as a possible source of fish supply. Indeed, the interest extends to the Continent, as both France and Italy have let General Hughes know that they will be glad to have information about the Canadian fish supply and the amount and cost of the product.

A satisfactory response from the Dominion, to this rapidly swelling demand, will not fail for lack of fish in sea and in lake. Our nation has an admirable fisheries bureau. Difficulty may more likely come in finding workers to do the requisite amount of fishing, packing, and shipping, since the volunteer army now overseas has drawn off so many of the men of the seaport towns. Besides, propaganda work now is on to induce enlistment in the British fleet by young men who still are available in the Maritime Provinces east and west. These problems, like others that have been caused by the war, should have a healthy effect upon the ingenuity of Canadians, who will rise to meet them and to profit by the experience gained. It is by raising such difficulties that the great struggle has been bringing out all that is best in the nation's manhood, making Canada a strong and self-reliant nation within the Empire.

In the last few years the fish industry of the Dominion has been growing by leaps and bounds. It is being carefully fostered and developed on both coasts, and an educational campaign has gone on to induce Canadians in the inland towns and cities to become fish eaters, which they have not been in the past. The new accidental development in the use of fish caused by the war will doubtless boom the export of fish and create a permanent extension of the important industry.

HIGH PRICES FOR TURKEYS

HEAVY SHIPMENTS TO OUTSIDE POINTS THE CAUSE.

Turkeys were never higher in price in Peterborough than they are at the present time and the housewife who tries to get one to grace the dinner table on the greatest festival occasion of the year will find that she will have to pay from 35 to 40c a pound for the bird. There were very few of them offered on Saturday owing to the fact that the big packing and commission firms have had buyers out in the country for weeks, offering first 22c, and later as high as 25c per pound live weight, and the farmers quickly got rid of their flocks.

Then, on the other hand, a local butcher who is buying for the Toronto market, went on the public market on Saturday and bid on all the turkeys on sale, offering 28c per lb. at any time they wanted to deliver them at his shop. The result was that the farmer lady got 30c to 32c per lb.

Shortage in General

There is a remarkable shortage of turkeys in Ontario this year and many farmers in the neighborhood who in former yearh had a flock of sixty or seventy have only one or two this fall, just enough to hold over for 1917.

Every drover, butcher, and, in some cases, the grocer have had tempting offers made to them to buy up turkeys for shipment to Toronto and Montreal and the high cost of turkeys in Peterborough can be attributed to the heavy shipments to outside points. The farmers will do well to market what they have locally as just as high prices will be paid here by local people for local consumption as the greedy buyers offer them.

A Canadian Christmsa dinner is not finished without a slice of a turkey or a goose, although the Englishman prefers his choice roast of beef.

BRITISH TRADE

A Canadian manufacturer called his chief traveller last spring and said:

"I want you to go to Australia and New Zealand. I don't expect you to get any orders, but size up the chances of our doing business over there. Take six months or more for the job, and let us know where we will get off at if we try to sell goods in Australia and New Zealand after the war."

The traveller departed, and the general results of his experience can be told in these words:

Wherever the traveller went the Australians and New Zealanders said: "There is the American price and there is the American sample. You meet the American price and produce the American quality and the orders are yours."

Thus one commercial traveller secured between $500,000 and $750,000 worth of business in Australia and New Zealand last summer. Every one of these orders was an order transferred to a Canadian factory from a United States factory. Australia and New Zealand are a type and symbol of every British and allied country after the war. The people who have fought together will want to buy from each other, rather than purchase goods from enemy or neutral peoples. Canadian manufacturers should prepare to enter in and possess the new world of opportunity that will open to Canadian industry in the markets of every British and allied country after the war. That world of opportunity will not be conquered by manufacturers who play whist all winter, play golf in summer, and spend the other seasons in the automobile. Canada's earnest-minded industrialists are not an easy-going class of manufacturers who would trifle away this country's greatest industrial opportunity.

Polygamy in Germany.

It may sound incredible, but some serious-minded people in Germany are canvassing the adoption of polygamy as a remedy for depopulation. At all events, several Herren Professoren are quite keen on the idea, and articles are devoted to the subject by, among others, Dr. Wecken, in The Familien geschichtliche Blaetter, Dr. Grahovsky in Das neue Deutschland, and Professor Christian Ehrenfels, of Prague University.

Dr. Wecken confines himself to the historical aspect of the question. He points out that similar proposals were heard in Germany in 1650, when the Fra[illegible] adopted a resolution in favor of bigamy, the marriage of priests, and the limitation of the number of monastic inmates as a means of making good the awful human losses of the Thirty Years' War.

Dr. Grahovsky, for his part, hesitates to plunge. His general attitude is summed up in a quotation from a phamphlet, "War and the Increase of Population," in which it is said:

"It is common knowledge that polygamy is an established institution in Eastern countries and among the Mormons. It is, unfortunately, not so well known in Germany that this has not led to any immoral state of things. But the introduction of polygamy into Germany would meet with extraordinary obstacles. Monogamy has taken too strong roots. Moreover, in consequences of the expense that would be incurred in the support of the family, polygamy could be practised only by the few."

BOYCOTT AGITATION PAYS

The Chicago News says the boycott agitation, together with the federa investigation relative to the high cost of living is playing havoc with butter and egg values. Some losses have been registered, especially for the latter. Consumption has taken a considerable drop, and dealers find that even substantial price recessions fail to attract buyers' attention. Supplies have increased materially and the tendency of value points to lower levels for both commodities. Although poultry is being offered in a heavy manner, a ready outlet at firm figures is found as the demand is of exceptionally good character. Potatoes are ruling weak on unfavorable weather conditions and a disappointing trade.

FACTS ABOUT THE LIFE OF THE NAVAL AVIATORS

CANADIANS have done a vast deal to give Britain her present supremacy in the air. It is said that sixty per cent. of the officers in the Royal Flying Corps and the Royal Naval Air Service are colonials, and a large percentage of these from Canada. Perhaps it is the glamor of the warships and the prospect of fighting Zepps and German destroyers and sneaking subs. that draws Canadians to the navy. Anyway one remarks on the number of young chaps in the smart navy blue and gold lace, whose accent proclaims them from the land of the maple leaf.

Like its mother service the Royal Navy, the R.N.A.S. is more difficult of entry than the Royal Flying Corps, the army's branch. They are great sticklers in the senior service. Before a man proves his right to wear the golden albatross, emblem of the dominion of the air, he must have passed a severe test. Moreover a probationary sub-lieutenant may be discharged at any time. "This will not necessarily indicate that any blame is attributable to the officer," states this regulation. "The special nature of the duties peculiar to the air service renders essential a very high standard of mental and physical fitness."

As with Canadian hockey and lacrosse players, the age at which most men are best fitted to start the nervy work of flying ranges between the years of nineteen and twenty-three. The navy prefers them to be within those years. No nomination by an M. P. or other potentate is necessary. If quite physically fit (and the stringent medical requirements which lay great stress on eyesight, give the doctor a loophole for getting rid of a sound but otherwise undesirable candidate) and in possession of a good education, the aspirer to the air service applies to the Secretary of the Admiralty at Whitehall, London. Here, several stern old sea dogs scrutinise him, question him, and examine his references, which must be satisfactory. Later an air service committee interviews each candidate. Then the case is passed on by the Lords Commissioners and the candidate informed of his fate.

Life in a naval air station consists largely of practice and patrols. Up at 6.30, the airmen get busy at once for this time of day is the best. Many is the Canadian boy who takes his daily run out over the cold North Sea. Work goes steadily on till dark and often at night the aviators stand by their machines waiting the word to go after zepps. Night flying is not nearly such a dangerous adventure as it used to be. Though even in daytime green pilots sometimes lose their aerodromes.

Testing the nerve of tyros at the game is a little task entrusted to the older hands. One young Canadian flyer delights in taking up a green aviator and spiralling straight down from several thousand feet.

"Many a chap cracks up at this test," quoth the adept. "The machine is away over on its side, of course, and though you are always strapped in, the strap is superfluous then. Centrifugal force presses you against the seat. In fact weak seats sometimes break under the strain. Most fellows get seasick in their first spiral, and I will defy the novice to tell where the ground is. The motion utterly confuses one, and a beginner asked to take the controls doesn't know what to steer for."

Soaring upwards the aviator enters the first layer of clouds at about 5,000 feet. Emerging from this he finds another layer at from 7,000 to 10,000 feet. Thus, on the dreariest day of winter when other Canadians sojourning in damp England bemoan the loss of Old Sol for weeks, the flyer can have bright sunshine whenever he wishes, for about the 10,000-foot level the sky is blue and bright on the wettest day.

The aviator's wardrobe is extensive. In winter he wears flying boots lamb wool lined, leather breeches and coat and fur gauntlets, fur-lined helmet and goggles. Even then it is cold. Apart from this, among ordinary kits one Canadian told me he had two jackets, three pairs of slacks, two caps and about seven pairs of boots, to say a thing of thick woollen socks in abundance. There is real gold, too, in all the gold lace which adorns the sleeves and cap.

Young Canadians, erstwhile bank clerks, students or commercial men, in this new sphere of life find the companionship of the mess very pleasant. Often there is only one Canadian at a station. But the Canuck airman is never lonely in his off hours. Good comradeship prevails. Should there be no barracks, the officers' quarters are situated in some comfortable hotel, where they have their own dining and sitting rooms, and generally a billiard table or two. In war time there is no useless ceremony at the mess. At dinner the officers wear stiff collars and No. 1 jackets, not working clothes, though at a few stations a dinner jacket is worn. At mess dinner the president always says: "Mr. Vice, the King." Mr. Vice replies: "Mr. President and gentlemen, the King." All remain seated, however, to drink the toast, largely done in non-intoxicants. The mention of a woman's name, gambling or swearing, is a direct breach of naval mess etiquette. All must remain at table until the King's health has been honored. After dinner the airmen while away the time smoking, chatting, or playing billiards. Early to bed is the rule where such early hours of rising are kept.

AUSTRALIA IN WAR TIMES

A report to the Department of Trade and Commerce by Canadian Trade Commissioner Ross of Melbourne gives some interesting details of the Commonwealth Government's methods of war financing. The Australian House has now before it legislation for a repatriation levy of one and a half per cent. upon all estates, real and personal, of the value of $2,500 and over, the levy to be paid in three equal yearly instalments. The second taxation proposal is a war-time profits tax of fifty per cent. of the profits of the year 1915-16, allowing an exemption of $1,000 and profit of seven per cent. for private firms or companies and six per cent. on public companies. For 1916-17 the Government will allow a profit standard of eight per cent. to private firms or companies, and seven per cent. to public companies, after which all the war profits will be retained for the Federal Treasury. The Commonwealth income tax is to be increased by twenty-five per cent. during this year of the war. In addition, there is to be a Federal tax on tickets for entertainments or amusements. The total revenue from the new taxation is estimated at $41,500,000.

The Commonwealth Prices Adjustment Board has grappled with the high cost of living problem by fixing maximum retail prices for groceries.

Mr. Ross reports that crop prospects in Australia indicate good average crops, with remunerative prices.

The Commonwealth Government is now operating thirty-five cargo steamers and five large sailing ships. Some of these Government-owned vessels have already loaded cargo at Montreal for Australian ports.

The amount subscribed to the third internal war loan was $114,000,000, applied for by 101,026 institutions, firms, and individuals.

Canada's trade with Australia has more than doubled during the past twelve months. Imports from Australia for the twelve months ending with August last totalled $3,142,000, as compared with $837,725 for the preceding twelve months. Exports to Australia totalled $8,255,000, as compared with $5,234,659 in 1914-15.

A Practical Patriot.

A lesson in practical patriotism is contained in a report which has just been received by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries from Vancouver. The Marine Department maintains a lighthouse on the edge of Stanley Park, Vancouver, in charge of a veteran Englishman named O. Jones. The light keeper has taken the keenest possible interest in the war and when there was opened last summer in Vancouver a fund for returned soldiers, he was anxious to contribute. Not having the means to spare out of his small salary, he set about getting more. He planted and cultivated flowers on the little bit of land around the lightkeeper's cottage, sold them to tourists and others passing through the park, and turned over to the fund $1,035, an amount far in excess of his salary.

To Visit Scouts.

Mr. H. G. Hammond, Assistant Commissioner for Ontario, is going overseas to represent the Boy Scout Association for Canada. He left Toronto last week to visit scout and ex-scout soldiers on active service in France.

ANOTHER NATION IS STRICKEN BY WAR

WHEN the daily press of Canada published the brief announcement recently that a great battle had been fought in Abyssinia, twenty five miles outside the capital, resulting in a complete victory for the new Government, the average reader did not realize that this battle affected 8,000,000 people living in a country larger than the combined areas of France, Holland, Belgium, England, Scotland, Ireland, and Wales.

And inasmuch as the despatches failed to give the name of the capital few Canadians could recall it—Adis Ababa, the city founded by that remarkable black monarch, Menelik II. in 1892, the third year of his eventful reign, which extended over a period of a quarter of a century.

Abyssinia is a wholly inland nation, being cut off from the Red Sea and the Gulf of Aden by French and Italian possessions, varying in width from forty to 250 miles. To the north is the Italian possession of Eritrea, to the east British, French, and Italian Somaliland territories, to the south British East Africa, and to the west the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan. The whole Empire, which was formerly known as Ethiopia, lies within the tropics, although most of the interior has such a high elevation that the climate is temperate and healthful.

Adis Ababa has an elevation of more than a mile and a quarter above sea level, so that although it is in the same latitude as the Isthmian seaport of Panama, it enjoys a most salubrious climate.

Except for its royal residence and grounds, which occupy a hill commanding a view of the country in all directions, the city resembles a temporary military camp more closely than the capital of a vast kingdom, for white tents and mean huts cover the country in a circle whose diameter is about three miles. No railroad connects this city of 40,000 inhabitants with the outside world, while the 'highways' of the country are scarcely more than narrow trails traveled by pack mules and donkeys. Even Harrar (population estimated at 50,000), the only other settlement in the kingdom having more than 5,000 inhabitants, has not yet been reached by the railway which is being constructed from Jibuti, the French Somaliland seaport on the Gulf of Aden. Harrar is 230 miles inland from Jibuti, and Adis Ababa is 220 miles still further west.

Of the four general groups of peoples inhabiting Abyssinia the two most important are the Gallas, a pastoral and agricultural tribe comprising fully half the population, and the Shoans, the warlike governing class. The Tigrians are lighter in color than their fellow-countrymen, and retain many evidences of their Semitic origin. The Dankalis are a practically independent people of the Mohammedan faith, whereas the other groups have been Christian since the Fourth century, being allied with the Alexandrian church.

Education has made slow progress in Abyssinia. In fact, it is said that the only native school in the entire country is located in the capital, and is attended most irregularly, the enrollment being not more than 100 pupils.

When Menelik II. died in December, 1913, he was succeeded by his 17-year-old grandson, Lij Yasu (also spelled Lidj Eyassu), the monarch whose party the 'new Government' will have displaced if the reported battle should prove to have been decisive. This boy ruler faced an almost impossible task during the last three years, for his wily grandparent was an exceptional man, of remarkable energy. A striking picture of the multiplicity of details handled by the old sovereign is given by A. Henry Savage Landor in his account of a year's journey across "Widest Africa." Mr. Landor says:

"Everything in Adis Ababa is referred to the Emperor. It is quite amazing what an amount of mental work Menelik must go through daily. While attending to most important political affairs, matters of the most trivial character are brought to him for assent. This is practically what happens every minute of the day at the palace: Menelik, with his head bandaged in a white shash (a sort of silk handkerchief) and with a cheap French felt hat far back upon his skull, is pondering with some Minister over some political problem of great importance—let us say, the projected railway between the sea and Adis Ababa. The Emperor is deeply absorbed in thought.

"Enters a servant, who whispers in the Emperor's ear, regardless of the presence of the foreign representative of a great European country: 'Your Majesty, the carpenter wants some more nails to mend the veranda.'

"'Here are the keys. Give him twenty nails,' says the Emperor. 'If he needs more, come again to tell me.'

"The Emperor is again deep in thought. Intruder number two comes up and whispers that a mule has escaped from the palace.

"The Emperor jumps down from his throne—a high packing case covered with Oriental carpets—slips quickly into the shoes which he has discarded, and hastens to his telescope, scanning the country all around with it, in order to see whether the missing animal can be detected upon the hills near Adis Ababa. The escaped mule is much more important to the Emperor than all the railroads in the world.

"The foreign representative vainly attempts to drive the Emperor again to his throne. The Emperor on his side endeavors to induce the Minister to come and look for the mule."

Abyssinia has a regular army of 250,000, but every man in the kingdom capable of bearing arms is subject to call.

Woman Betrayed Spies.

A powerful sensation has been produced in Holland by the unearthing of a cleverly organized system of German espionage in that country. For many months past it has been a cause of perplexity that the movements of neutral ships, leaving Rotterdam were speedily made known to German patrols and that so many in consequence have either been torpedoed or captured.

The mainspring of the system has now been located. A German named Dinkzwager, who was formerly British Consul at Maasluis, has been trapped handing out information to another man, also a German, called Hansen. This Hansen was able to convey the route of many ships to the enemy of the Allies.

The success that attended their destructive treachery multiplied, and they were compelled to add to their confederates, among whom was a woman, who, while trying to obtain information one day at Rotterdam about the passenger list of a steamer, the Batavier, aroused suspicion. She was shadowed immediately, and the lair of the nest of spies was eventually discovered.

The result has been that the ramifications of the system have been traced, and show that from one end of the country to the other Dinkzwager and his spies have been in constant communication with the Germans night and day for many months.

The Man Who Had Faith.

At Bourges, a sleepy French provincial capital well to the south of Paris, a captain of the French general staff reported at the local headquarters, writes Barton Blake in The Outlook.

This happened two years ago—late in August, 1914.

The captain of the general staff fell in with a group of officers, who were ignorant of the exact course of events. Their sole source of information was the official communique, and in those days things were happening fast.

The captain from headquarters acquainted his comrades with the situation as he saw it. In dark colors he painted a picture of the battle of Charleroi, of France invaded, of the lack of heavy artillery, and of reserve munitions, of the army of the republic in full retreat, of Paris menaced.

"What about the great general headquarters?" asked one of the disheartened officers at Bourges.

"At the end of their rope."

Another silence, then——

"And what does the boss say?" someone enquired.

"Joffre?" asked the captain of the general staff. The captain spoke in a frightened voice, as if he was uttering words of madness:

"Joffre? That man still believes that we'll win out!"

Still Buying Hun Goods.

Canada still does a little trading—or did until the end of last March — with our arch-enemy, Germany. The Department of Trade and Commerce report, just out, shows that for the year ending March 31 Canada imported $86,304 worth of German goods. Canadian exports to Hunland ceased at that time. Before the war our trade with Germany had rapidly grown until at the end of the trade year on March 31, 1914, it amounted to $19,039,000. Even after war was declared the trade continued, and for the year ending March 31, 1915, it totalled $7,248,000. Of this, over $5,000,000 was in German imports.

At the same time Canadian trade with the Allies has greatly increased. We sent France $26,000,000 worth of goods, and our trade with Italy increased from $3,313,000 to $11,653,000. Canada bought over $4,000,000 worth of goods from Japan, and sold the Mikado's subjects less than a million. Trade with Belgium—or that small part of it still free from the Hun heel—also increased largely.

Princess Pat Honored.

The Canadian Red Cross Society have leased and are fitting up St. Lawrence College at Ramsgate, England, as a convalescent hospital with accommodation for one thousand beds. It will bear the name of Princess Patricia. This will be turned over to the Canadian medical services to furnish the staff and operate it. A new departure in connection with the latest reforms is that all such hospitals will be operated by the medical services, the Red Cross continuing to be responsible for the buildings, the general fabric and the supply of motor ambulances, but the feeding of the patients will be undertaken by the medical authorities. This is not intended as a reflection upon the Red Cross, but only as an economic reform which will at the same time leave the Red Cross free to develop its work as regards the provision of comforts, which is greatly appreciated by the authorities.

Lawyers Enlist in Navy.

True patriotism was exemplified in Ontario by the enlistment of two young men in the Royal Canadian Volunteer Naval Reserve. The men were Stanley M. Scott; and G. Jackson. They are both promising young lawyers. The former is a son of Judge Scott of Perth, and he left his law practice in Lindsay, where he was practising as a member of the firm of Stewart and Scott. Mr. Jackson was practising law in Parry Sound. Mr. Scott had qualified as an officer in the A.S.C., but as he failed to obtain a commission, he was willing to enlist as a common seaman. It is seldom that an example of true bravery and patriotism comes to light, and this shows what the educated young men of our country are doing for their country.

The Non-cathartic Nature Cure for Constipation

Helps the System to Cure Itself.

You cannot cure constipation by violent methods. Violence is never effective against nature. That is why the use of morning salts and purgative pills so easily become a habit. These things do not cure the trouble; they only force matters, and in so doing weaken the bowels till natural action becomes impossible, and you have to go on taking your pills or salts indefinitely. Compare Dr. Cassell's Instant Relief. This great tonic laxative helps nature by strengthening the bowels, natural action is restored and a cure effected which is real and lasting.

Dr. CHAS. F. FORSHAW, D.Sc., F.R.M.S., a well-known British Scientist, writes:—"Never take Salines or Purgatives for Constipation—to force Bowel action is to aggravate the trouble and create the Constipation habit. I recommend as a superior and convenient treatment Dr. Cassell's Instant Relief."

Take Dr. Cassell's Instant Relief for constipation, biliousness, torpid liver, sick headache, dizziness, specks before the eyes, flatulence and windy spasms, acidity, heartburn, impure blood, and that dull, heavy feeling which is a sure indication of liver troubles.

Progressive Club

At the regular monthly meeting of the Peterborough Progressive Club held on Wednesday last, the matter of giving to the prisoners of war fund was brought before the members. It was explained that whereas in the past the club had been keeping twelve prisoners at a cost of $30 a month, in the future the sum required would be $84 a month for the same number of men. The matter was put to the vote and unanimously carried. This will necessitate much hard work and self-sacrifice on the part of the members. It was decided to open a subscription list to which everyone might give regularly and the club wishes to say to its friends and supporters that anyone desiring to give towards this fund may do so; no sum is so small that it will not help feed our men who have gone so willingly to the front that we may live here in peace and comfort and not suffer in any material way.

A most hearty vote of thanks was moved to Dr. and Mrs. Robinson for their gift of a colt, which realized a most substantial sum and has enabled the club to give their immediate increased amount to the prisoners of war fund. Dr. and Mrs. Robinson have been always warm friends and supporters of the club in its various undertakings and the members feel greatly indebted to them for their splendid co-operation and help now and in the past.

CARDINAL GIBBONS OPPOSED TO DEMAND OF WOMEN FOR BALLOT

Cardinal Gibbons of Baltimore sent a message to the anti-suffrage convention held recently in Washington, and among the arguments he used were the following:

"The insistence on a right of participation in active political life is undoubtedly calculated to rob woman of her grace of character and give her nothing in return but masculine boldness and effrontery.

"Any occupation, however alluring in its specious pretence, which draws woman's attention from her most exalted duties of motherhood will result in detriment to the nation and the race.

"As far as I have observed, it appears that woman suffrage to the extent that it has been granted in this country has not changed the result of the election. There has been a larger vote, but the results have been the same as they would have been if women had not voted. Thus it seems that our political life has not been benefited or purified by the entrance of woman into the political arena, though the domestic life of those engaged in this political work must have been neglected or at least impaired.

Enemy of Female Sex.

"I regard 'women's rights' women and the leaders of the new school of female progress as the worst enemies of the female sex. I wish I could impress upon American women the dangers that would attach to such innovations.

"The most precious, undeveloped asset of any nation is its children. An all-wise God, through the law of nature, has committed this precious treasure in a special manner to the mother. Women cannot vote intelligently unless they give time to an intelligent study of political questions, and all such time taken from the household will be injurious to the future generation without giving to the present generation any appreciable benefit in the purifying of the ballot.

"When I deprecate female suffrage I am pleading for the dignity of woman, I am contending for her honor, I am striving to perpetuate those peerless prerogatives inherent in her sex, those charms and graces which exalt womankind and make her the ornament and coveted companion of man. Woman is queen indeed, but her empire is the domestic kingdom. The greatest political triumps she could achieve in public life fade into insignificance compared with the serene glory which radiates from the domestic shrine and which she illumines and warms by her conjugal and motherly virtues."

The bazaar and rummage sale conducted by the Ladies' Aid of St Andrew's Church in the curling rink on Simcoe Street, came to an end Saturday night after two days of lively sales. The receipts from all sources will amount to nearly $500 and this will be expended in a new carpet for the church. Edmison, home-made cooking. Mrs. G. Kerr, tea room; Mrs. Atkinson, fish pond. Mesdames John and Sills conducted the rummage sale. Mrs. G. GERMANY HAS PEACE PROPOSALS

WOULD RESTORE BELGIUM AND FRANCE---CHANCELLOR MAKES ANNOUNCEMENT

GERMANY AND HER ALLIES HAVE PEACE PROPOSALS

Note Transmitted to Representatives of Neutral Nations With Request That Proposals Be Brought Before Britain and Her Allies

HENDERSON GIVES WARNING

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Dec. 12.—Arthur Henderson, Minister of Pensions, in the first public speech made by any minister of the new Cabinet, warned the country against premature peace, saying that he was as strongly in favor of peace as anybody, but that to talk peace now was a step toward having to fight the whole thing over again.

BERLIN, Dec. 12.—The following announcement was given out today by the semi-official Overseas News Agency:

"The Chancellor this morning received one after another of the representatives of the United States of America, Spain and Switzerland who are protecting German interests in hostile foreign countries. The Chancellor transmitted to them a note and asked them to bring it to the knowledge of hostile governments. The note will be read today in the Reichstag by the Chancellor. In the note the four allies of the Central Powers propose to enter forthwith on peace negotiations. Propositions which they bring for such negotiations are, according to their firm belief, appropriate for the establishment of lasting peace. The governmens at Vienna, Constantinople and Sofia transmitted identical notes, and also communicated with the Holy See and all other neutral powers."

BERLIN (via Saville wireless), Dec. 12. — Germany and her allies today proposed to enter forthwith into peace negotiations. Propositions which they will bring forward are, according to Chancellor Von Bethmann-Hollweg, appropriate for the establishment of lasting peace.

Austrian, Turkish and Bulgarian governments are making simialr proposals.

These proposals have been transmitted also to the Vatican.

KAISER NOTIFIES HIS GENERALS

LONDON, Dec. 12. — A Central News despatch from Amsterdam says it is announced officially in Berlin that Emperor William has notified his commanding generals of Germany's peace offer. The message is quoted as follows:

"Soldiers: In agreement with the sovereigns of my allies, and with the consciousness of victory, I have made an offer of peace to the enemy. Whether it will be accepted is still uncertain. Until that moment arrives you will fight on."

RESTORE BELGIUM AND FRANCE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12. — Advices from Berlin to the German embassy indicate that Germany's peace terms in a general measure propose the restoration of the status quo before the war with the exception of the establishment of an independen kingdom in Poland and in Lithuania. They are understood to propose a complete restoration of the occupied portions of Belgium and France in return for Germany's captured colonies, and to dispose of the Balkan situation because of its extremely complicated nature in a peace conference.

LIQUOR STORES ARE VOTED OUT

SASKATCHEWAN WILL BE PERFECTLY DRY BY END OF YEAR.

REGINA, Sask., Dec. 12.—Voting throughout the province on the question of liquor stores abolition, to go into effect Dec. 31, has resulted, so far as is known, in a big majority in favor of abolishing the stores.

When the bar was abolished in Saskatchewan the Government inaugurated a policy of maintaining liquor stores, or dispensaries, where liquor could be obtained in small quantities, and between the hours of 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. There were twenty-three of these established throughout the province and a year ago three of them were abolished. The vote yesterday was on the question of the abolition of the remaining twenty, and seemingly they are gone, too.

PERMIT TO MOVE BODY IS REFUSED

DOCTOR NOT CALLED BEFORE MRS. LOUISE KLEEMAN PASSED AWAY.

INQUEST OPENED.

Mrs. Louise Kleeman, of Schenectady, N.Y., came to Peterborough on Friday last to visit her daughter, Mrs. Paul Loescher, of East City. Saturday night she died before Dr. Eastwool the Loescher family physician, was called in, and when he made inquiries as to certain facts that were requisite, the answers were not satisfactory and he reported the matter to Coroner Greer, who issued a warrant stopping the shipment of the body to Schenectady until a coroner's jury had viewed the remains and an autopsy had been made.

The jury were summoned and empannelled this afternoon as follows: Messrs. W. R. Morris (foreman), F. Brownscombe, Chris. Wood, C. R shoe, C E. Hubbs, R. C. Braund, Geo. Evans, J. R. Bell, W. F. Nelson, E. N. McWilliams, Robt. Sutherland.

After the jury had viewed the body and it had been identified by Paul A. Loescher as that of his grandmother, the inquiry was adjourned until Thursday, Dec. 21, at 8 p.m. in the Council Chamber.

ATTITUDE OF GOVERNMENT IS THE SAME

BRITISH FOREIGN OFFICE HAS NOT RECEIVED GERMAN PEACE PROPOSALS.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Dec. 12.—The Foreign Office today informed the Associated Press it is unable to discuss the German peace offer until the terms have been received.

The attitude of the Government towards peace remains, as frequently stated by Mr. Asquith and Earl Grey.

A general note of pessimism prevails in London. One prominent official expressed himself to the Associated Press today as being very skeptical that the proposed terms would offer even a basis for negotiations.

Philip Carboni, Italian, Victoria Ave., succumbed to burns.

MISSING—BELIEVED DEAD

James Gordon, aged 44, 233 Stewart Street, married.

James Foster, [illegible] Union Street, married, father-in-law of Walter Holden, who died of injuries and burns

Ernest Staunton, aged 37, 20 Benson Ave., single.

Wm. Mesley, Wescott Street. Wife and several children. Father of Ernest Mesley, returned soldier.

Wm. Hogan, aged 60; 552 Harvey St., married, grown-up family. Father-in-law of Dennis O'Brien.

Thomas Parsons; wife and five children.

W. G. Vosberg, aged 30; Simcoe St., Leaves wife.

Wilbert Kemp, aged 19. Boarded at 224 Sherbrooke Street. Single; father lives in Douro.

Five known dead, eleven missing and believed dead, and several of the injured in the hospitals in a serious condition is the latest list of victims from the fire that yesterday destroyed the plant of the Quaker Oats Company. No hope is held out for those who are missing. Wm. Lytle has started a gang of men to remove the debris in an effort to locate the bodies.

The work of pulling down the remnants of the walls is under way and in these operations this morning George Armour, a spectator, was injured, but not seriously. Fire is burning in the debris of the main building and in the warehouse, the walls of which are cracked and will probably have to be torn down. This building was considered to be an absolutely fire-proof structure and an addition had been made during the past summer.

The past night was an anxious one for many citizens. The carrying of the sparks yesterday to different parts of the city made citizens uneasy and at many dwellings members of the family relieved one another in keeping watch during the night. The firemen remained on the scene of the fire all night but no incidents of importance occurred.

The male employes of the company reported at the temporary offices at the Barrie Building this morning and a roll call was held, but the result was not available late this afternoon as it was found necessary to make a visitation of the homes of many of the employees.

ERNEST STAUNTON AMONG DEAD

Among the missing is Albert Ernest Staunton, a [illegible] of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Staunton of this city. He was 37 years of age and came to Peterborough 30 years ago with his parents. In religion he was an Anglican, being a life-long member of St. John's. Since the death of his parents eight years ago he has resided with his sister, Mrs. S. F. M. Touchburn, 20 Benson Ave. He leaves to mourn his loss three brothers and four sisters, Capt. W. R. Staunton, Port Arthur; Wilfrid J. Staunton, Tuscon, Ariz., Corp. Harvey J. Staunton, Moor's Hospital, Shorncliffe; Mrs. F. W. Wood, Orillia; Mrs. S. F. M. Touchburn, 20 Benson Ave.; Mrs. J. P. Archer, Campbellford; Miss Maud Staunton, Toronto.

HUSBAND AND FATHER GONE

Walter Thomas Holden, who died at Nicholl's Hospital last evening from the effects of burns and injuries sustained in the fire at the Quaker Oats plant, leaves a widow and two children, his widow being the daughter of Thomas Foster, who is among the missing, and probably dead. The family live at 324 Euclid Ave. Deceased was 33 years old and was employed in the engine room.

Walter Thomas Holden was born in England and had lived in Peterborough for a number of years. He was employed by the Quaker Oats Co. as feed packer for nearly five years. His father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Holden, came to this country from Sussex, England only three weeks ago and reside with another son, Mr. Ernest Holden, 606 Bethune St. The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock to Little Lake Cemetery.

LEFT TO GET JOB, NEVER RETURNED

Yesterday morning, about eight o'clock, Wilbert Kemp, aged 19, left his boarding house on Sherbrooke St. and went in search of work. He has not returned and it is feared that he is among the missing. Tobias Fredenburg, 224 Sherbrooke St., with whom he boarded, and his father, Lance Kemp, a farmer in Douro township, investigated every clue last night but failed to find the missing man. At his boarding house it is thought that he first went to the C.G.E., and not getting employment there, went to the Quaker Oats plant and was given work. His uncle, John C. Kemp, 595 Division Street, was seriously burned in the fire.

FATHER AND SON-IN-LAW KILLED

At 552 Harvey Street the blow was doubly cruel. Dennis O'Brien, aged 39, with a wife and five children, and his father-in-law, Wm. Hogan, aged 65, left their home as usual in the morning and never returned. The home was filled by sympathizing friends when a reporter called there last night.

Wm. Hogan leaves a widow and grown-up family. He had worked at the plant for some years and was employed in that section of the building where the explosions killed and injured the majority of the workmen who fell victims.

Dennis O'Brien, his son-in-law, was employed as a motor grinder.

D. MARTINI DEAD

D. Martini, who died of burns and injuries at St. Joseph's Hospital last night, was an Italian who had lived in Peterborough for some years. He boarded at 284 Smith Street and leaves a wife and one child in his home town in Italy. He had intended to bring his wife and child to Canada and was saving his money with that object in view.

J. Fanara Dead

Another Italian who lost his life was J. Farnara who lived at 43 Jackson Ave. with his wife. There are no children. He succumbed to burns and injuries.

JURY IS EMPANELLED TO BRING OUT THE FACTS

W. O'Donnell and S. Griffin Positively Identify Body of Walter T. Holden, Victim of Fire,

Coroner Greer empanelled the following jury at the inquest on the remains of Walter Thomas Holden at Lane & Eano's undertaking parlors this morning:—Messrs. Thomas Barrie forman), Reg. Turner, T. Irwin, J. W. McDermid, Joseph Stewart, R. J. Kidd, W. Menzie, H. Routley, H. Meredith, L. G. Dobbin, M. J. Maher, J. White.

Corner Greer stated that the fire at the Quaker Oats Co.'s plant was the most serions catastrophe that had visited Peterborough in years, and demanded a thorough investigation. It would be necessary to adjourn for some days in order to get the necessary evidence. There may be nothing serious and it may be of the most serious import. He wanted the investigation carried on by an intelligent jury and he adjourned the investigation for a week.

The positive identification of the body was made by W. O'Donnell and T. Griffin.

PETERBOROUGH, TUESDAY, DECEMBER 12, 1916

PETERBOROUGH'S BIGGEST FIRE.

THE DESTRUCTION of the Quaker Oats Company's immense plant and the loss at the Court House by fire yesterday will mark a new epoch in the history of this city. Beyond all question it was the most disastrous conflagration that Peterborough has ever known. The loss, unfortunately, is not to be computed in money alone. Tragedy followed in the wake of destruction. At the time of writing, five deaths are recorded, while other victims of the calamity are suffering on hospital cots with all the chances against a number of them.

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

There will be a sad Christmas Day in many a home in this city, not only in the homes of those who have been bereaved by the fire of yesterday, but in others where the means of earning a comfortable living have been taken away. The Quaker Oats plant in operation meant the sustenance of a population sufficient in itself to form a village. The relation between employers and workers was always amicable. Only a short time ago the company voluntarily increased the compensation of a large number of their employes. A bonus system which was in force encouraged the workers in steady employment. The loss to the city is not to be reckoned by the figures that represent the value of the property destroyed. It required over two years to complete the plant. Even if the company decide to rebuild, it will take as long, or longer, to restore their works to their former high state of efficiency.

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

The idea that the disaster was other than an accident, that it was the result of an alien plot, is not entertained by those on the inside who understand all the circumstances. Explosions in cereal mills have always been all too common, something against which human ingenuity and vigilance are unable to provide. Mills have been blown up long before the war started and are being destroyed or injured by the same agency today. Even a nail or any other small metallic substance getting into the rapidly revolving machinery is sufficient to start a fire. Small fires have not been unusual in the Quaker Oats plant, but serious damage had up to yesterday been averted by an all but perfect automatic system of fire protection.

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

The explosion yesterday destroyed this system and disconnected the main that supplied it with water. The wall that crashed down upon the boiler house made the destruction complete, and caused the death of all the men who were employed in that part of the building. When the fire brigade arrived the flames had already gained such headway that there was no hope of saving the plant.

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

There is sure to be criticism of the work of the firemen, but the public will do well to suspend judgment until all the facts are before them. Chief Howard, as part of his duty, has studied every large building in the city, so as to know just how to proceed in the case of fire. He knew where the hydrants were located at the Quaker Oats plant and the lay of every department. But he never anticipated, probably, the conditions that confronted him yesterday. When he reached the scene of the disaster, he found the company's hydrants out of commission on account of the explosion, and was obliged to connect his hose with the city mains. This caused delay, but all the water in the river would hardly have been sufficient to stop the fire.

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

Saving the surrounding houses, however, was the task that confronted the firemen. The narrow passage between them and the burning building was so hot that it was almost impossible for a human being to live in it, and more than once the firemen were driven from their posts. But the houses in the vicinity are intact today, although the brigade had a high wind as well as the flames to contend with.

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

"Why was not the Court House saved?" was a question frequently asked yesterday. The general opinion seemed to be that as saving the Quaker Oats building was out of the question, the firemen should have devoted all their energy to surrounding property. The roof of the Court House was covered with tin, and no one imagined that it was in danger. It was the shingle roofs on the neighboring houses that caused alarm. In some way a cinder got under the metal protection of the Court House, and the damage was done. The fire had made headway before it was discovered, and by the time more lines of hose were laid to it, it was too late. If the firemen had saved the Court House at the expense of some of the houses in the vicinity, criticism of their action would not have been withheld.

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

Every town and city in the country sooner or later has its disastrous fire, with which even the most efficient fire brigade is unable to cope unaided or even to avert with outside aid. A few years ago Toronto had a conflagration in which property worth seven millions was reduced to ashes. Lindsay recently lost its leading industry. Yesterday fate appears to have singled out Peterborough for destruction. Fire alone is serious enough. It is doubly so when preceded or accompanied by explosions.

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

The loss yesterday will be covered by the insurance apportioned among the different companies. One of the lessons from yesterday's disaster is not to neglect the important matter of providing against such contingencies. Peterborough pays annually about $175,000 in insurance premiums. The loss yesterday will equal the payment of these premiums for fifteen or twenty years. In other words, the income of the insurance companies for that period will be required to settle their liabilities owing to yesterday's fire.

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

Peterborough's chief concern now is whether or not the company will rebuild their plant here. They have still valuable local assets left, and this city probably offers as many inducements to an industry of this kind as any in Canada.

LIP-LOYALISTS PUT TO SHAME.

SOON AFTER THE WAR broke out a teacher in one of the public schools in Toronto was charged with uttering disloyal sentiments during and outside of school hours. Some of the members of the school board demanded his head, and everywhere the people whose patriotism is of the noisy variety clamored for his discharge.

The teacher put all his detractors to shame. He was one of the first—the very first teacher—to enlist in Toronto. He was the first Toronto man to lose his life in batttle, and now those who assailed him talk of erecting a memorial in his honor.

The dead teacher was a practical patriot, a man ready to fight as he thought. He is in his grave, while the lip-loyalists are still spared, but his is the honor and glory of a hero's end.

There are lip-loyalists in Peterborough as well as in Toronto and elsewhere. It is as much out of place for a man to boast of his devotion to his country as it is for him to vaunt his attainments. The man who parades his holiness is generally the man whose true sentiments are cloaked with hypocrisy. Patriotism of the true kind needs no sounding brass or tinkling cymbal to herald it. As in the case of the Toronto teacher, it is not words but deeds that speak most clearly.

WOMEN ON THE SCHOOL BOARD.

GERMANY is recognizing the value of children as never before. The juveniles are the hope of the nation to supply the human wastage ni the war. Whatever food regulations may be made, the rising generation are not to be stinted. Babies are to be allowed full rations of milk even if the adults are deprived of it altogether. Unless the children grow up to vigorous manhood, the German race will be weakened both as to physical condition and numbers.

Children in all countries are coming into their own. They are more and more being regarded as assets rather than liabilities, and national hopes for the future are fixed upon them. The better they are nurtured, the more carefully they are trained and educated, the better men and women they will be when they grow up.

The children of Canada are entitled to special care at this time. When they reach man's estate the war will be over and they will be surrounded by conditions vastly different from those which their ancestors were called upon to face. The rising generation today should be taught what war means and how every human effort should be bent to ensure its avoidance.

It is really the women of the world who form the character of the children. The child receives its first lesson in life from its mother. When he goes to school it is a woman who generally takes him through the first stages of his education. But it is man who is generally regarded as alone competent to take charge of the business affairs of his school life. The members of school boards are almost invariably drawn from the male population, although here and there throughout the country a woman is occasionally elected, and the services of such are almost invariably found eminently satisfactory. A woman can beyond a doubt understand child nature and what is best for the development of a child better than any mere man.

In Ontario, where the franchise is given to spinsters and widows alone among women, those eligible for public office are limited in number, but under equal suffrage, which seems to be coming here just as it has to other provinces, this handicap will be removed.

Expensive school buildings are erected in Peterborough to be used only a few hours a day five days in the week. They are turned over to a janitor, who in time comes to regard them as his personal property. Any attempt to extend the educational value of these buildings by using them as places for public meetings is always frowned upon. One year ago an organization of women applied to the School Board for permission to establish a reading-room in one of the schools, this room to be used after hours by pupils whose reading could be carefully supervised and assisted by those competent to undertake such a work. The proposition was regarded as a fad by the school trustees and coldly and emphatically turned down.

If the local School Board was infused with the intelligence peculiar to womankind, such ideas would never prevail and such a conclusion would never be arrived at, at least not with such unanimity. The responsibility of the Board for the care of the children would not be regarded as confined to a few hours a day five days a week. The janitor would not be considered supreme at all times. The school buildings would be made educational institutions in earnest, places for the imparting of instruction not only to children but for the grown-ups who pay for the erection and maintenance of the institutions.

The women of Peterborough are not agitating as a class or in their organizations for representation on the School Board. They are content to wait their time. Nevertheless this is a reform that is coming. It will mean a recognition of woman's place in public affairs, and cannot fail to be of untold benefit to the children and others for whom our expensive system of education has been devised.

If women are fit to be entrusted with the sole care of children in their infancy, if the children are to be left under their charge during the most important period of their existence, when their plastic minds are being formed, then women are certainly entitled to have a voice in forming the environments of the rising generation.

MUNITIONS THE NEED OF THE ARMY

The Imperial Munitions Board have issued an appeal to the manufacturers and working men of Canada to be up and doing. The need of the army today is munitions and still more munitions.

The measure of a man's success is in what he has done, not in what he has gained. Remember this, workers in munitions factories.

When the war is ended and the victory won, Canadian munitions workers may well feel that they, too, have fought and won.

In delivering munitions to our gallant soldiers when they need them, munitions workers are rendering a service to the Empire second only to that of the soldiers in the field.

Britain's munitions workers have done marvellous things, and because Canada, industrially, is second only to Britain, her munitions workers are expected to put forth as mighty an effort proportionately as their sisters and brothers in the Motherland.

Play the game, munitions workers, play the game!

A shipment of munitions on time may save a Canadian regiment.

Munitions, munitions, and still more munitions, is the great need of our armies today.

"Quit yourselves like men"— and women! Speed up, munitions workers.

The civilians who may be satisfied with their work during this war are the munitions workers — but they must not relax their efforts.

Let your efforts be as swift and as accurate as the weaver's shuttle. Speed up, munitions workers.

Be strong, be resolute, be faithful to our soldiers in the trenches. Speed up, munitions workers.

The munitions worker's effort is mighty to save and swift to end the great tide of suffering and sacrifice for the right.

GOOD INVESTMENT FOR YOUR MONEY

A writer in Current Opinion recently alluded to a coming opportunity to invest in two promising railway enterprises in Canada— the Grand Trunk and the Canadian Northern.

Both roads are in trouble. Both are still in process of construction, and both have been projected under the usual Canadian Government guaranties.

Those roads were started when Canada was highly prosperous, and were regarded as seminational projects which were bound to pay well. In view of the wonderful success of the Canadian Pacific the prophecy did not seem extravagant.

Their troubles began before the outbreak of the war had cut off the usual supply of capital. Cost of construction far outran estimates, due largely to the high cost of labor. Tunnel workers, for instance, went on strike for more pay when they were already getting from $11 to $17 a day. Where it had been estimated that a mile of road would cost $6,000 the actual cost mounted to $30,000, in some cases to $90,000!

No wonder the coming of the war brought very serious difficulties to these two roads.

A commission of two British experts and one Canadian has been at work for a long time probing the financial affairs of the roads. It is said that it is going to recommend the flotation in New York of a loan of $150,000,000 in order to liquidate their indebtedness.

When the war ends and Canada is able once more to concentrate on her own affairs, it is certain that these two roads will be completed, that their indebtedness will be cared for. So that the investor who takes a portion of the forthcoming loan will probably see his bonds rise substantially in price.

If in the future the judgment of the roads' projectors is justified, and the Grand Trunk and Canadian Northern become moneymaking enterprises, those who buy their stock will profit.

CANADA'S NEW GOVERNOR-GENERAL

The Duke of Devonshire is a characteristic Englishman, and we use that phrase with all the positive qualities, as well as the limitations, which it connotes, says the London Telegraph. In this changing world the attributes of a great Englishman, for aught we know, suffer some alteration, but we can imagine no stage in the world's history which will not be as much dependent on strength, firmness of will, and robust commonsense as we are today. The man who represents Great Britain in the Dominion must have one indispensable element, in the absence of which the best graces and adornments inevitably lose their effect. He must have "character," that indefinable amalgam of self-control, patience, reserve of power, quick decision, and a resolute will which unite in what we term "personality." Those who met together yesterday afternoon in order to wish the Duke of Devonshire a favorable voyage and a happy future in his new home are well aware that the newly-appointed Governor-General possesses character in an eminent degree. "And to what a country he goes forth!" said Lord Curzon. "If in this war there are any of our fellowsubjects who in a superlative degree may be said to have shown the loyalty of the loyal and the bravery of the brave, it is our fellow-subjects from the Dominions across the seas." We are sure that our gallant Canadian kinsmen will not be long in discovering the sterling mental and moral endowments of a man who comes from an old English stock remarkable for stubborn strength, a slow-moving but powerful intelligence, and a deep sense of responsibility.

Is It Too Late?

(New York Sun.)

Twelve months ago less a fortnight the Minister of Munitions warned his countrymen in a memorable speech in the House of Commons that "unless we quicken our movements damnation will befall the great cause for which so much blood has been shed." There was a refrain in the speech that spurred Englishmen to fresh effort. It haunted them for many days. "I wonder," said Mr. Lloyd George, "if it is too late—too late, the fatal words of this war." The Allies were too late to save Belgium, too late to save Poland, too late to save Serbia, and now they have been too late to save Roumania. Is David Lloyd George, the first Welshman to become Prime Minister, arriving too late to save the day?

FATE OF VON RINTLEN REMAINS A MYSTERY SINCE HIS CAPTURE

WHAT was the fate of Frits von Rintlen, captain in the German army and a prominent figure in leading New York society circles, when it was discovered that he was involved in the passport frauds?

He was captured on the high seas and taken to Falmouth, and nothing more has been heard of him. Von Rintlen was supposed to have royal blood in his veins, and there have been hints that on this account he had been kept in a luxurious confinement in a castle near London. Another rumor is to the effect that he was shot. Still another report says that because of his distinguished, if anonymous, ancestry, and the warm affection the Kaiser has for him, the German Government surrendered a number of prominent British prisoners-of-war in order to recover this darling. Hans Adam von Wedell, another German inculpated in the passport scandal, was also taken by a British cruiser when attempting to escape to Sweden, and no word as to his fate has been forthcoming. When spies are executed it is the practice to suppress their names, and it is this fact that permits so many wild rumors and surmises to gain currency.

Among the war mysteries must be mentioned the troubles in India. From German sources early in the war were circulated many stories of serious uprisings against British authority, but these were doubted, until a member of the British Government stated a few weeks ago that since the beginning of the war there had been seven distinct raids on the north-western frontier, some of them very serious. The censorship from India is ironclad, and visitors to the empire are not welcomed, even Americans being shown that this is not the right time for them to tour the country. But since the Government has seen fit to acknowledge the existence of a serious situation some time ago, it is assumed that the trouble is over. In conclusion, it ought to be said that, while the policy of silence on these matters is no doubt well advised, it makes it possible for the wildest legends and most fantastic reports to be spread. While the censorship is responsible for the suppression of facts, it is equally responsible for the birth and circulation of falsehoods.

In Germany there is mourning for the crew of the Bremen, for now all hope of the undersea boat reaching her port has been given up. It is assumed that either something went wrong with her machinery and the boat went to the bottom with all hands, or else she has been taken by a British ship. The British Admiralty follows its usual course and remains silent. It is supposed that the psychologists of the Admiralty believe that to make no announcement concerning the fate of the many submarines that have been captured or destroyed has a more depressing effect upon the spirits of other German submarine crews than a definite statement as to what had become of them. Therefore, whatever has happened to the Bremen is likely to remain a mystery until the end of the war.

German Officers Amuse the British

A British territorial officer writing from the front says:

Yesterday morning Pozieres fell into our hands, after a terrific bombardment during the night. I never heard anything like it for intensity, although it did not last as long as some of the others I have heard. The Australians who were here the other day in the village took the place without great loss.

I had a long conversation with two officers who were taken prisoners and were in the prisoners' cage before going back behind the line. Both of them looked rather dilapidated, but the men, about ninety of them, were fairly fine specimens; the officers told me that they were mostly machine gunners and picked men. Although much on their dignity, one of the officers admitted that we had done well, but he excused himself by saying that the Australians were so fresh that it was impossible to expect his war-weary men to hold out against them. He also admitted that the Australians were "very brave and fearless men." "They seem to have no fear of death," he said.

What seemed to stick most in this officer's gizzard was the fact that he was shut up in the same cage as his men, although there was a piece of wire between them; also that his position was so terribly infra dig and uncomfortable. He said, "I am not used to sleeping in the open. Officers always sleep in houses with us!" So I reminded him it was war time. He replied, "Yes, yesterday I was a gentleman; to-day I am a monkey behind iron bars." True, they were not very comfortable, as they had to lie on some chalky ground alongside of a sunken road.

I could not help smiling myself at their lack of humor and absurd opinion they had of themselves. Just picture these two German officers anything but smart—in fact, very bedraggled after two days without a shave or wash—one in dark green uniform, the other in a Prussian blue uniform, with his long blue coat looking very dirty and worn and he himself most bedraggled. Then, to crown all, he was wearing a rather light pair of kid gloves, which seemed to give him an almost comedian's touch, so absurd did gloves appear in his present surroundings. I felt almost sorry for him, he looked so ridiculous and yet so much on his dignity. He seemed to cling to his gloves as an emblem of respectability, because when I saw him brought in yesterday evening he was still wearing them.

I gathered from these officers they were rather surprised that we have done as much as we had, and that our troops were as good as they are, and our artillery so accurate. I asked what they thought of the present situation. They said, "Yes, you have won five kilometers, but it is 100 from here to Brussels; but you will get no further." They were very much concerned as to whether there was any danger of being torpedoed when going over to England, as they heard that very few boats ever got across. I told them they might get across safely, but in all probability they would be sent to the Isle of Man, in which case there was a very good chance of going under. They replied, "Isn't there a signal given on the steamer that it is carrying German prisoners?" which I thought was rather priceless.

It isn't so easy to fool a man who knows himself.

Polish Author Who Wrote "Quo Vadis"

A MAN without a country and of international fame, Sienkiewicz died at the moment when the dream of his heart, the restoration of the kingdom of his people, seems to be on the eve of at least partial realization. His last public appearance was in the appeal he made in 1914 to his brethren in Galicia to take up arms for Russia, which at that moment made fair promises to their disrupted and oppressed race. That the proclamation of the establishment of an independent Russian Poland came to him in his last days from the two empires which he hated was the closing irony of a life which, amid all its successes, had been one of unremitting patriotic sorrow.

For the heart, the soul of Sienkiewicz must be sought not in his sensationally popular Polish historical trilogy (rich though that be in revelations of the soul of his race), and not in "Quo Vadis," but in his other books, which failed to interest the Canadian public. "Without Dogma" remains the most significant of Sienkiewicz's works—that disenchanted, hopeless picture of what a high-spirited race had become under the heel of the oppressor, frittering away its talents, its very life, in aimless resignation that saw no future.

A great artist he was withal, revelling in the chivalrous traditions of Poland's prowess, a creator of characters that will live, a vigorous entertainer of the type of the elder Dumas, a romanticist of heroic proportions. "With Fire and Sword," "The Deluge," and "Pan Michael" will survive the period of neglect into which the historical novel has fallen, to delight new generations of readers.

The outstanding fact of his career for Canadians will remain the huge success of "Quo Vadis." Into its causes—and they were many and various—there is no need to inquire. A protest may be registered here, however, against the superficial comparisons of this novel with "Ben-Hur," artistically a far inferior book, with which it had nothing in common except the accident of numbers of editions. It may be worth observing in conclusion that "Quo Vadis" seems to have marked the end of the production of popular novels of Imperial Rome and Early Christianity. Its imitations were many, but none won the interest of the large and profitable public which put the stamp of its approval upon this book, so hard to classify in its author's literary output.

Henryk Sienkiewicz was born in 1846, the son of a Polish country squire. He was educated in Poland, finishing at the University of Warsaw. While in the university he displayed a strong passion for Poland. Essays at first were the vehicle for the expression of his literary talent. They met with the approval of his professors and soon he began to write short stories over the signature of "Litwos" (Lithuanian).

Sienkiewicz left the university when 22 years old. In those days the native Polish tongue was forbidden at the university and every effort toward the denationalization of the Pole was being made by the Russian Government. Sienkiewicz began a gypsy life, traveling to almost every part of his native country, acquiring intimate facts and knowle[illegible]that proved afterward of incalculable value to him in his novel writing.

From Poland he drifted to St. Petersburg, where he edited a newspaper for a time; then to Paris, where he became interested in the scheme to found in America a Polish commonwealth of expatriated artists and musicians. Modjeska was one of the enthusiasts in this prospect, which resulted in the establishment of the settlement Anno Luni near Los Angeles, Cal.

After the failure of the colonization project Sienkiewicz returned to Poland and in 1880 began his series of historical novels. "Fire and Sword," "The Deluge," and "Pan Michael" were printed first in a Warsaw journal, and translations soon appeared in Berlin and Vienna. The three books, which cost eight years of hard work, were praised by critics as masterpieces of their kind.

Translations of them were made into English by Jeremiah Curtin in 1890. "Fire and Sword" described the Cossack invasion of Poland and introduced the brilliant character of Zagloba, said by some to be almost equal to the musketeers of Dumas.

"Without Dogma" was translated in 1893, and was followed by "Children of the Soil," a book of Polish life. Neither book brought much success, but when in 1896 a translation of "Quo Vadis" was made the author's publishers, who had great faith in Sienkiewicz, began to reap their reward. That book, giving a picture of Roman life in the days of Nero, had a sentimental, religious, and romantic appeal. The success of the book was extraordinary, and it brought prosperity to the author. It was translated into thirty different languages.

Other works by him are "A Prophet in His Own Country," "Yanko the Musician," "The Third Woman," "Hania," and "A Knight of the Cross." He won the Nobel prize in literature in 1905. Since the outbreak of the war, with the ravaging of Poland, Sienkiewicz had devoted himself entirely to alleviating the sufferings of his fellow countrymen. He issued appeal after appeal to the world, and he was president of the general relief committee for victims of the war in Poland.

Sacrificial Loyalty.

Part of the touching literature of the war is a little tract that has just appeared in London of quasi-official inspiration, named "Treasury Romances." James Douglas, who has compiled it, explains that often the patriotism of those who give to Britain's war fund is "buried five fathoms deep in the treasury files." He has brought to light with reticence and discretion a few typical instances of sacrificial loyalty. Here, for example, is a miner who sang at seventeen workmen's clubs and inns "for the benefit of the war," and thus gathered in driblets twenty pounds. An old woman writes: "I have much pleasure in sending you the pound," which leads the compiler to add: "Her particular and probably her only pound." A child of seven sends a shilling, a poor man transmits ninepence. From lonely Fanning Island, in the South Seas, come two contributions from natives of the Gilbert Islands at work there. A donkeyman aboard a ship bringing meat from Australia writes, at the close of an impassioned letter: "Do not mind the grammar. Grammar does not count as a rule with gentlemen. I inclose a pound as a start." And so it goes. The Imperial hope of England is in such hearts as these.

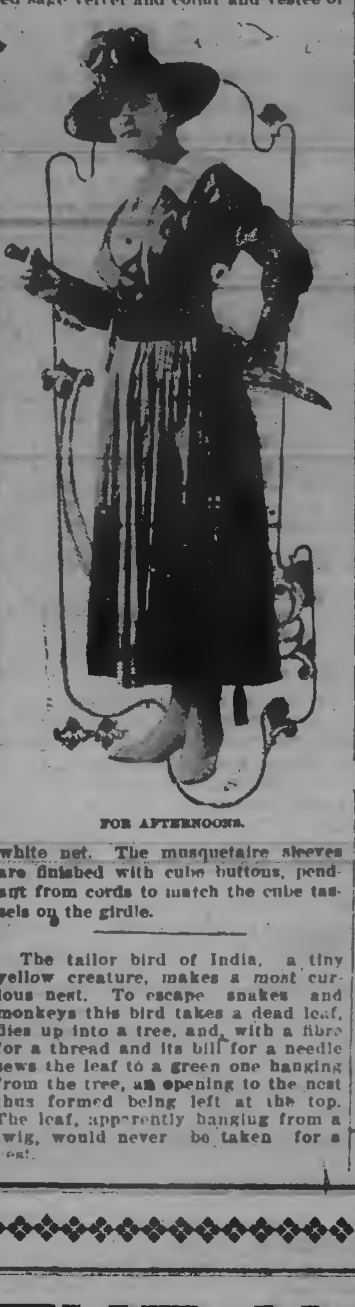
FASHION HINTS

Sage green taffeta is the fabric used here—a kilt skirt, deep girdle of crushed sage velvet and collar and vestee of white net. The musquetaire sleeves are finished with cube buttons, pendant from cords to match the cube tassels on the girdle.



FOR AFTERNOONS.

The tailor bird of India, a tiny yellow creature, makes a most curious nest. To escape snakes and monkeys this bird takes a dead leaf, flies up into a tree, and, with a fibre for a thread and its bill for a needle sews the leaf to a green one hanging from the tree, an opening to the nest thus formed being left at the top. The leaf, apparently hanging from a twig, would never be taken for a nest.

PAPER ROPE FOR WEAVING

Raffia and reed have long been popular for weaving, but now give way to the more practical material—paper ropes. In using this article all necessity of wetting and splicing disappears. It is soft and therefore easy on the hands. The lengths are greater, minimizing the need of continual piecing, and the possibilities in color combination make it far more adaptable. Dainty blue rooms, pink rooms, yellow or violet rooms may have woven wastebaskets, lamps and even whole desk and bureau sets of matching color. A soft finish is often preferred, but if something more durable is desired a coat or two of shellac will produce a hard, glossy finish that will stand any amount of wear. The shellac will keep the basket in shape and will shed dust.

It makes no difference how intricate the chosen shape may be, baskets can be made in curved lines or straight, with sharp angles or tapering lines. This is because the foundation is of wire—easy to bend, yet strong enough to hold a shape once formed. Reed baskets are often uneven when finished, for the material is springy and the spokes vary in flexibility.

Even more popular than the baskets just now are the butterfly rope trays and the electric lamps. They are beautiful in any home and also make handsome wedding presents. The work once started becomes of absorbing interest.

Somehow we can't help feeling sorry for an ex-hero.

CHIEF HOWARD FAILED TO GET HOSE AT ARMORIES

Soldier in Charge Refused to Let it go Without Written Order From Col.-Ackerman---Meantime Court House Fire Made Headway

There were fifteen streams of water playing on the fire yesterday and this called for the use of between nine and ten thousand feet of hose—over twice as much as the city owns. The hose belonging to the Quaker Oats Co. was requisitioned by the department at once. Chief Howard borrowed hose from the Henry Hope, from the C.G.E., and the Bonner-Worth Companies, all granting his request without hesitation. Chief Howard says that for all ordinary purposes the city's supply of hose is sufficient as in no place of the size of Peterborough is there a larger stock caried. Yesterday's fire, however, was an exception and a similar disaster is not likely to overtake the city in a lifetime.

The Trouble at the Court House

Chief Howard says that about noon he went up to the Court House and it was then untouched. The tin roof appeared adequate to protect it. He had no sooner returned to the Quaker Oats plant than word was received that the county building was on fire. A line of hose was laid from a hydrant on Water St., but it was too short to reach the new fire. The chief then sent the supply wagon to the Armories to borrow the hose that is kept there. When the firemen reached the Armories the soldier in charge, true to his training, refused to permit the removal of the hose without a written order from Col. Ackerman. The fire wagon returned empty to the scene. It was then necessary to disconnect a hose on Hunter Street and drag it up the hill on Sheridan Street to in front of the court house. The steep hill was icy and the fire team would never have been able to make the grade but for the assistance rendered them by the spectators. One of the gray horses came twice to his knees before the top of the ascent was reached. In the meantime the Court House fire was gaining headway. Chief Howard says that the damage to that structure would have been much less if he had been able to get the hose at the Armories that he sent for.

Firemen Trapped

Five firemen narrowly escaped with their lives in the early stages of the fire. James Ward, one of the veterans of the brigade, acting on the orders of the chief, led a party of four into the interior of the building and up a stairway, carrying with them a line of hose to fight the fire at close quarters. When Chief Howard went in to see how they were faring he found them almost completely hemmed in by fire and surrounded by smoke. He blew his whistle and they made for the open. Fred Markwick, a new man in the art of consuming smoke, was entirely overcome and fell in his tracks. The chief dragged him to safety. It was necessary to send him to the hospital for treatment, but he is around today little the worse for his experience.

Criticism Always Expected

Chief Howard says that criticism is always looked for after a big fire; the greater the loss the more pungent the comments of those who do not understand the circumstances or realize the efforts that are made. He did his best in this case and has nothing to regret. Mr. Harry Rush and other residents in the vicinity of the fire have thanked the chief and his men for the heroic fight they put up to save their homes.

Fire Marshall Coming

Fire Chief Howard this morning received the following despatch from E. P. Heaton, the provincial fire marshall at Toronto: "We join in universal expression of regret to your citizens over yesterday's disaster. Will visit you tomorrow by morning train."

In case of a small fire a report by the chief to the provincial office is all that is necessary, but after a conflagration like that of yesterday, an official visit is made with a view to ascertaining the cause of the fire and if incendiarism had anything to do with it.

When the firemen were trapped they were obliged to leave their hose in the building and about one thousand feet of line was burned altogether.

Chief Howard says that after the short delay due to the break in the water main the water pressure was all that could be desired. "Peterborough certainly has an excellent water department" was his comment.

TEUTONIC ATTACKS IN ROUMANIA FAIL

Russians Repulse Enemy and Three Heights Are Captured.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PETROGRAD, Dec. 12.—Failure of Teutonic attacks in Roumania reported in today's communication from the war office.

On Sunday the enemy made successful attacks in the valley of the River Buzeu, north of Tsalau, on the River Krikov, and west of Mizil.

In Dobrudja an exchange of fire is proceeding.

In the wooded Carpathians the enemy conducted attacks at a point five versts northeast of Chibena and in the region of Capul Mountains. Both attacks were arrested by our fire.

In the region east of Belbor the attacking enemy was beaten back. Our detachments pursued them and captured two heights.

In the valley of the Sultar River enemy attacks were repulsed on a front of six versts northeast of Glassiutte, south of the valley of the Caul River. We gained one of the heights.

PETROGRAD, Dec. 12.—Teutonic forces took the offensive yesterday in the region of Kiselin in Volhynia west of Lutska, today's war office report says. Russians were pressed back, but subsequently the position was regained.

MILITARY CROSS FOR LT. JUNKIN

FOR GALLANT WORK PERFORMED WHILE UNDER SHELL FIRE.

An extract from the London Daily Telegraph, London, Eng., Nov. 15, says: Lieut. R. L. Junkin, of the Engineers, has been awarded the Military Cross for conspicuous gallantry during operations. He built a strong point by day under heavy shell fire and in difficult circumstances. On another occasion he wired the front when the enemy was only sixty yards distant. He has done other fine work under fire.

Lieut. Junkin is the son of Robert Junkin, of Toronto, assistant manager of the Manufacturers' Life Association, who is well known here, having lived in Peterborough for many years.

FIVE DEAD

Edward Howley Dead

Edward Howley, whose body was recovered yesterday afternoon, lived on Sutherland Ave., Ashburnham, where he leaves a widow and grown-up family. He was aged 52 and was employed as a fireman.

The funeral will be held to the Church of the Immaculate Conception today. The remains were sent to Norwood for interment.

Weak Water Pressure

The weak water pressure from the hydrants on the company's plant is accounted for by the superintendent of the waterworks department, R. L. Dobbin. An eight-inch main was laid on the east side of the main building, it was continued along near the boiler house at the north end and on underneath the warehouse. The explosion and falling of the walls burst the main, leaving the pressure very weak. Inability to reach a hydrant to the west of the warehouse, where there is another eight-inch main, because of the intense heat, held up relief work. The lowered pressure prevailed for half an hour. During the whole course of the fire the city hydrants gave the normal pressure of about 75 lbs., and went as high as 110 lbs.

Damage at Court House

Official who had their headquarters at the court house have been provided with offices in the City Buildings and at other points where accommodation is to be had. The ruined sections are: County Clerk's offices, damaged by water, the law library, damaged by fire, water and smoke; the judges' chambers, damaged by water; the court room on the second floor badly damaged; and the roof gone. Sheriff Hall's offices escaped with slight damage and the Council Chamber is little the worse for the experience. The residences of Turnkey Rae and Jailer Nesbitt escaped unharmed, as did the jail.

"It's not a patch to what happened to those poor fellows down below," said County Clerk Elliott in discussing the situation at the court house. Warden Darling has been called to the city.

WAR HAS SERIOUS EFFECT ON TEA MARKETS.

Although the far-reaching influences of the war have added enormously to the cost of tea, the recent advance of five cents a pound in the price of "SALADA" only means that you will now get eight cups for a cent instead of nine, and then you get that unique flavour, absolutely unchanged.

WHAT BRANTFORD HAS DONE AND IS DOING FOR PATRIOTIC FUND

Now that public interest is again being focussed on the work of the Canadian Patriotic Fund, the following statement of the aims and views of the Brantford branch, one of the most active of the fund's subsidiaries, will be an inspiration to workers in the same good cause elsewhere. It is written by one of the officers of the branch.

We interpret the duties of the Canadian Patriotic Fund primarily as taking the position and assuming the responsibilities of the men who have left home and gone to the front.

In our experience the actual disbursement of the monthly allowance is the smallest part of the work. For instance, we make a determined effort to take in hand the matter of debts due by the soldiers' wives, and as far as possible endeavor to keep these women free of debt.

The system of trust savings accounts, which we have been successful in applying to practically all those who are drawing from the fund has been of great benefit. It will prove a valuable factor in providing for the family upon the return of the soldier, and before he is again earning money. Under the new order allowances from the fund cannot be continued when the soldier is killed, but in place of this we make loans. It has been found that the money saved for the soldiers' wives will carry them in most cases until the first pension cheque reaches them.

We repeatedly warn the wives against extravagance, and admonish them to shun the agent who would sell them useless articles. We have helped with their domestic affairs, and in case of other troubles. We have also at our disposal the services of a trained nurse, for those who may be suffering from an accident or from sickness.

We have in this city an organization called the Factories Patriotic Organisation, with some seventy members. These men are scattered throughout the city, and every soldier's wife has a list of their names and addresses, which list contains an invitation to her to appeal to them for advice or assistance of any kind. Our Ladies' Auxiliary also carries out a similar work.

A big service which is being rendered is that of getting in touch with the soldiers' dependents immediately casualties are reported. A visiting lady and the pastor of the church to which the family belongs call and offer help. In the case of death of the soldier we take charge of all business affairs for the family, and do the necessary work in connection with preparing the applications for pensions and so forth.

With regard to the granting of allowances in individual cases, we make a thorough investigation of these, and a determined effort is made to meet the ever-present criticism of paying fund money to people who can get along without it. For example, if it can be shown that grown-up members of a family, the head of which is at the front, are not now working, or dependents who are able to contribute to the support of the family are not contributing, we make deductions from the allowance.

In order to meet criticisms and dissatisfaction from subscribers and from soldiers' dependents, we hold once a month what is called an "Open Court," to which are invited all who have any question to ask, complaint to make, or wish information. These come to the office and meet the executive committee and their cases are dealt with.

In the matter of raising money for the Canadian Patriotic Fund and for Red Cross purposes and other worthy causes, in connection with the present war, the committee has felt for some time that throughout the community, individual appeals are continually being made, thus militating against the more essential call of the Patriotic Fund and Red Cross. At the present time we are endeavoring to frame a policy, in conjunction with other organizations within the county, whereby no appeal will be made for any patriotic cause unless the same is first submitted to an advisory committee.

AN OVERLAND BRANCH AT WINNIPEG

MADE NECESSARY BY BIG INCREASE IN SALES.

Sales of Willys-Knight and Overland cars in Winnipeg and surrounding territory have increased to such an extent that it has become necessary to establish a factory branch in Winnipeg. This branch will be used not only to serve local owners, but will be a distributing point for dealers in the whole province of Manitoba.

This branch will be under the management of Mr. T. R. Weir, who is well known to Western Canada car owners, and will be located in a new building now being erected at the corner of Maryland and Portage Avenue, which will be ready for occupancy about Feb. 1, 1917. This building will be 50 feet by 175 feet, and three stories high, the total floor space amounting to 32,000 square feet. For the convenience of customers, the showroom and service department will be located on the ground floor, the remainder of the building being used for stock rooms, offices, etc.

Overland owners will be assured of the highest grade of service that can be given, as the branch will be equipped with the latest time and labor saving machinery, and trained mechanics, thoroughly familiar with Overland cars, will be employed.

A complete stock of parts will be kept at the branch, thus doing away with the annoying delays frequently experienced by owners of cars not so generally in use. Volume sales decrease the cost of service, just as volume sales lower the cost of manufacture.

"When a man buys a car we believe that he is buying the utility that car gives him," says F. J. Sleght, general manager of Willys-Overland, Ltd., West Toronto. "Our chief object after selling him a car is to provide a means to keep that car running with the least possible interruption. That is the chief reason for our new branch in Winnipeg.

The establishment of this factory branch virtually brings the facilities of the Willys-Overland factory to the city of Winnipeg.

Pending the completion of the new building a temporary showroom, which is now open, has been secured in the Curry Block on Portage Ave. Prompt, courteous and efficient service is given to all Willys-Knight and Overland owners at the Palace Garage on Smith Street.

This is the third branch to be opened by Willys-Overland, Ltd., the others being located in Montreal, Que., and Regina, Sask.

USEFUL WORK DONE BY MEN NOT PRACTICAL SOLDIERS

PROF. JOHN C. McLENNAN, Professor of Physics of the University of Toronto, in an address to the Empire Club, delivered recently, said: "Canada ought to requisition the aid of every scientific man who has anything to offer toward the conduct of the war. One thing which strikes the scientific man on coming into Canada is the exceedingly small extent to which the scientists of Canada are making contributions to their country at this time of war. Most of the scientific men in this country are expending their efforts in the teaching of the young men.

"The same condition of affairs existed in England till last summer. The universities were all open and things were going along with the same complacency. Now university professors are being utilized for war inventions. National matters are handled by special boards such as the Navy Board. Boards of scientists were formed all over the country to help in the conduct of the war." The speaker acted on one of these boards and had a chance to observe the work which they did. The work that they did for the Empire thrilled him. He saw then that Canada did not realize that, to win this war, she needs the application of all the scientific knowledge held in the country.

The work done by the English boards of scientists is best known by some instances of the things they did in answer to the call. Our lines were being bombarded by a 42 cm gun which was stationed some miles behind the enemy lines, and which was so cleverly hidden that our aviators were unable to locate it. An ordinary scientist, who had never done anything but routine scientific work in his life before, evolved a plan for the establishment of three observation stations, where the sounds of the guns could be traced upon a sheet by the vibrations. Thus, the exact location of the gun was found by the direction from which the sound came and the gun was silenced.

Several other specific instances were given where problems occurring in the prosecution of the war had been solved by scientists, who, heretofore had given all their attention to routine work. One of the best inventions was made by a young Canadian, Mr. McLeod, son of a Toronto minister.

Prof. McLennan stated that the problem now occupying the minds of the scientists was to find a way to detect and destroy submarines. They now had an instrument by which a submarine might be detected at a distance of 4½ miles in clear weather and 1¾ miles in stormy weather. He also stated that the North Sea and the English Channel were being charted so that it was now possible to ascertain just how many subs were in that area at any time. The zeppelin menace had also been destroyed by recent inventions.

The solution of the problem offered by Prof. McLennan was the organization of the scientists of the country by the Government into a board which would follow the example of the English boards by helping in the conduct of the war.

A CALL TO THE LUMBERMEN

The Department of Trade and Commerce, in a bulletin just issued, advises Canadian lumbermen in all provinces to get together and concert measures for the efficient disposal of their products in the wide opening markets of the world. There will be, it is pointed out, an immense demand for lumber in Europe during the reconstruction period following the war. Belgium must be rebuilt entirely, northern France must be rebuilt and many miles of railways constructed, the timber resources of England and Scotland are being exhausted, the forests of Italy and Spain are gone, Russia has great resources of Baltic pine, but unsuited to the demand of other European countries.

These conditions have been laid before the lumber manufacturing organizations of the United States, whose representatives have been in conference with officials of the United States Government, with the result that experts from these organisations are starting for Europe to go over the ground. "Why," it is asked, "should not Canadian lumbermen get their share of this trade?"

Early last year the Government sent Mr. H. R. McMillan, chief forester of British Columbia, around the world in search of new lumber markets for Canada. His report will be issued shortly.

The "Dominion" of Canada.

We are accustomed to take the expression of the "Dominion" of Canada for granted; but the original of that somewhat unusual word is known to very few. When at length the great scheme of Sir John Macdonald was realized, and the nine provinces grouped themselves together into one great confederation, a seriously difficulty was presented by the choice of a suitable name. For a time almost a deadlock ensued.

At length one old member of Parliament rose from his seat and told his colleagues that he had read in his Bible that very morning the words: "His dominion shall be from the one sea to the other." Accordingly he suggested that Canada should be known as the Dominion, or God's Land. This suggestion seized upon the hearts and imaginations of those present, and it was promptly acted upon.

Why Watches Lose Time.

The reason for variations in the time keeping qualities of a well regulated watch have been the subject of investigation by scientists recently. The popular theories that animal magnetism and bodily temperature are causes are denied by the investigators. Rather, different rhythms of movement as well as the angle at which a watch hangs are given as real causes for irregularities.

Merely Incidental.

Chambermaid—Which bell, sir?

Visitor—The bell over the bath.

Chambermaid—Oh, we pay no attention to that bell, sir. That's only put there in case anyone feels faint.

A NEW WORK FOR WOMEN

LARGE ORGANIZATION IN TORONTO AIDS THE UNEMPLOYED.

Shortly after the outbreak of war the Toronto Women's Patriotic League started its activities to help our boys at the front, and any other patriotic work that might present itself. Hardly had the ladies started before the question of the unemployed loomed largely on the horizon. Hundreds of girls and women out of positions applied for assistance in getting work in the dark days of 1914 and 1915, when the bottom seemed knocked out of everything. It was seen at once that to adequately cope with the situation an employment bureau must be started, and some form of co-operation between the city and the country set afoot, as well as enlisting the help and sympathy of employers. Much has been written of the work of the league and its various departments, but now that the unemployment question is not so acute, the work at the bureau is apt to be overlooked. However it is going, and going strong. An item in the October number of the Labor Gazette shows how strong. Under the reports of employment bureaus we find that the number of casual jobs supplied by the Toronto Women's Patriotic League bureau was 578 for September, and here only women and girls register. It is worth while to compare this showing with the figures of the Winnipeg Free Bureau, where men, women, boys and girls register, the number there being 1,229. This is an indication of the usefulness of the Toronto bureau.

Miss Duff, who is in charge of city work, states that since the bureau opened there have been 5,125 registrations; 638 have been supplied with permanent positions in the city, and 398 in the country. During October 398 casuals were supplied. The classification includes such work as factory, domestic, sewing, office cleaning, stenographers, elevator and switchboard operators, and such odd occupations as millinery, packing, poultry farm assistant. Labelling boxes was another request filled, also a demonstrator was supplied.

Naturally the problem of getting the middle-aged woman (unskilled, most frequently) a position was a task. However, Miss Duff is most resourceful, and soon got in touch with employers who were sympathetic and co-operated with her desire to help these women. They did not judge solely by age. There is the usual dearth of domestics, and the only relief in sight will be some plan such as is being adopted in San Francisco, where women specialize and go by the hour to the homes, doing one particular thing: laundry work, cookery, or cleaning, and are paid by the hour as skilled laborers. Between former and new registrations the total passing through the bureau in one month was 666. Employers are availing themselves of the bureau, for 138 calls were received for help, and 367 casuals supplied in October. These were individual applications; often an employer will want more than one girl, so that more than 138 might get positions.

Did you ever see a prety girl who did not know it?

BAZAAR WAS CURTAILED

BUT WILL CONTINUE FOR THE REMAINDER OF THE WEEK.

In view of the disaster yesterday the bazaar under the auspices of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Ashburnham, which opened yesterday in the T.A.S. Rooms, Simcoe street, to continue during the rest of the week, was curtailed in many ways and last night the rooms were closed early and the orchestra was not employed.

The bazaar will, however, today resume the program decided upon, and for the remainder of the week meals will be served as announced.

The several booths will be open and all the activities of the bazaar will be in operation.

The ladies of the parish have incurred large expense and taken much trouble in an undertaking to raise funds for the building of the church and it is trusted that the public of Peterborough will extend a liberal patronage to the bazaar for any articles they may require.

Mass for the Dead

The Very Rev. Dean McColl celebrated this morning in the Church of the Immaculate Conception a mass for the dead and injured in yesterday's disaster. This parish will feel the loss to a greater degree and extent than any other part of the city as a very large proportion employed in the destroyed works were residents of Ashburnham.

MYSTERIOUS MESSENGERS

SERIES OF CHART TALKS BY PASTOR DONER AT TABERNACLE.

The interest in the series of Chart Talks by Pastor Doner in Bethany Tabernacle on Sunday evenings is increasing as shown by the large congregation gathered at Sunday night's service.

The pastor, in opening his address, gave a synopsis of the preceding Sunday evening talk, so that new hearers could intelligently follow the subject-showing as per the chart.—the seven cosmic ages, the seven time dispensations and the seven character lines. In the second address, he wished to bring before the people the three prophetic lines, or God's plan in dividing the nations. The first point in history began with the Adamic or Gentile. Before that was the pre-Adamic period, covered by the opening words of Genesis—"In the beginning" — which could easily cover a great period of time.

In the beginning of the Adamic or Gentile period the unity of the race was absolute, but as time passed on, the sin and darkness of man's heart so alienatel him from God that he chose a man named Abraham to come out and be separate from the world. From him sprang the Hebrew nation.

Farther on in the world's history God introduced another change. His chosen people Israel had fallen short in their office as His special messenger to a sin-cursed world, and now He brings in his third messenger, the Church, introduced and established by His own Son, Christ Jesus. Some men today speak of the Church as God's Israel, but such is not the truth and has no scriptural foundation. The Hebrew nation is God's Israel down through the ages.

Three Messengers

So we have the three messengers—the Gentile beginning with Adam, Israel beginning with Abraham, and the Church beginning with Christ. He taught that the Church had been called out from among the Gentiles (See Acts xv., 14,, to reveal the truth, so when men say that Israel and the Church of today are one, they misapply the Scriptures to the certain confusion of their hearers. The Church is predominately a Gentile body. Not only as the light holder for this dispensation, but specifically as the light bearer to both Jew and Gentile.

The Jew as an individual has access through Christ to the Church, but let a Jew become a Christian and he is at once considered dead by his fellow-Jews. The teaching of the creational Fatherhood of God and the creational brotherhood of man is repugnant to many. It sounds very fine, but ask the average man if he believes he is of one blood with the African, the Chinese or the Jew—and listen to his answer; and yet it is true as we see in Acts xvii., 26. We are not only brothers descended from Adam, but the natural man is at enmity with God.

Hatred, murder and war have been manifest from the beginning of human history and have continued down through the ages. How little the world realizes we are surrounded by demon spirits who are continually working to undermine God's plan for man's good. Satan hates God and is ever busy trying to lead God's creatures astray—but thanks be to God, there are also good or guardian spirits who are watching over us. Universal brotherhood is one of Satan's lies; there is nothing in the Word to support such teaching, because though descended from Adam, humanly speaking, yet in the spirit we are not brothers. The only fatherhood and brotherhood worth while is that procured by adoption through Christ (see Psalms xx., 27, 28).

God has not forgotten the world. The nations are rejectors of God, but He has not rejectel us. All nations have had the light and are in captivity to Satan. What we need and what the world needs today is a great revival or awakening in the hearts of God's people everywhere.

God Called the Jew

Today the Jew as we know him is looked upon with disrespect, but let us remember that God called them out from the Gentiles and therefore they are His chosen people for whom many of the promises were given. One of these is founds in Acts, xv., 17: "After this I will return and will build again the tabernacle of David, etc."

There is a time coming when the last member of His church will be called of God and then the Prince of the House of David will come again in His glory. Some say that means death. Did you ever hear of death coming like that? What comfort is there in saying the Coming of the Lord means death? Death is an enemy and the last enemy to be destroyed. Christ's coming again is the Coming of the King, and in that day if you are not His you will have to go through the sufferings of the great tribulation, a time of fearful trial.

Today Israel is the tail of all the nations, the time is coming soon when they will be the head. Today they are in the service of the nations involuntarily warring against each other. But the time is coming when they will come back to their own land. The Allies today see they cannot slice Palestine among them, so they are planning that the Jews will have it as their own. God is working among kings and governments to work out His plans.

Jesus said, "Salvation is of the Jews" (John, iv., 22). Do we think of this as we see the despised Jews in our midst—but of this nation came Christ our Lord. Treat them as you would be treated. Be kind to the Jew because they are brothers of our Christ.

Everyone who reads knows that the world is facing a great crisis. Today the nations are being tested; out of it will come the nations as predicted in God's Word. (Read Dan., 7th chapt). Corners, combines and unions are facing us everywhere—we are drawing near the time of Anti-Christ. Are we ready for the Coming of the Lord? Beware ere it be too late. We are at the very close of the Church dispensation, but before we pass into the next the Lord will come.

The service was closed with an earnest appeal to the unsaved to accept Christ and not reject Him.

JUDGE REFERS TO CALAMITY

The County Sessions opened this afternoon before His Honor Judge Huycke. The following members of the Bar were present: G. W. Hatton, F. D. Kerr, J. V. McElderry, G. N. Gordon, E. L. Goodwill, D. O'Connell.

The Grand Jury were empannelled as follows, with Warden C. P. J. Darling as foreman:

W. H. Comstock, Asphodel.
H. N. Drain, Asphodel.
Albert Darling, Douro.
George Duncan, Peterborough.
Frank Eano, Peterborough.
J. W. Kitchen, Belmont.
Wm. Mathieson, Havelock.
Wm. Montgomery, Norwood.
C. J. Darling, Smith.
George Elliott, Peterborough.
M. Brown, Asphodel.

Judge Huycke's Charge.

Judge Huycke in his charge to the Grand Jury referred to the unusual circumstances which necessitated their holding court in the City Council chamber. The great catastrophe which visited the city yesterday and the loss of valuable and promising lives was regretted. Sympathy was also extended to those who suffered. It was a great calamity to the city and country alike. Reference was made to the partial destruction of the old and historic court house, in which the old court room was completely destroyed, and it was decided that the kind offer of the city of Peterborough that the council chamber be used was accepted.

Judge Huycke, on behalf of the couty, the Crown and the Administration of Justice, expressed their appreciation of the kindness of the city. He also mentioned the name of J. J. Turner & Sons, W. G. Morrow and societies who had kindly offered to assist the court by giving the use the halls. He also told them of their duties and asked them to pay particular attention to the fire protection on public institutions.

The present conduct of the war was referred to in very feeling terms by the court, and asked them to do what they could to encourage recruiting.

A review of the criminal cases to come before them was made.

The first case to come before the court was that of Doxsee vs. Montgomery.

Sandy, the plumber, was working on a town job with an apprentice.

In the course of the forenoon the boss visited the job and, failing to find Sandy anywhere about the premises, decided to wait his return.

"Where have you been?" demanded the boss, when Sandy put in an appearance.

"Gettin' ma hair cut," answered Sandy quite coolly.

"And how dare you get your hair cut in my time?"

"Weel, disna it grow in your time?"

MAYOR DUFFUS EXTENDS SYMPATHY TO BEREAVED

Also Thanks Citizens Who Worked so Hard At Big Fire Yesterday and Lindsay for Prompt and Efficient Aid.

Editor Review: Permit me, on behalf of the citizens of Peterborough, to use your columns to express the deepest sympathy with those who suffered through the loss of relatives and friends in the deplorable fire at the Quaker Oats mills yesterday, and also with those who were injured in the catastrophe. While their loss and suffering is the keenest, the whole community mourns and [illegible] with them.

I would also express to the Quaker Oats Company our great regret on account of the loss and interruption to business they have met with and I would at the same time wish to make this expression personal to Mr. W. H. Denham, the superintendent, who has been for years a highly esteemed citizen of Peterborough.

To those citizens, ex-firemen, former members of the volunteer fire brigade and citizens generally, who so cheerfully and earnestly assisted the fire department; to those especially who by the use of their motor cars and in other ways assisted in rescuing the injured and in taking them to the hospitals, and to those who helped to save property from the burning and menaced buildings, I wish to express the deep-felt thanks of the Council and the community.

The disastrous explosion having not only destroyed the pumps of the Quaker Oats Co., but having also lowered the pressure on the waterworks system by breaking and opening the eight-inch connections with the sprinkler system in the mills, made the assistance given all the more appreciated.

The help which our neighbor Lindsay sent to us was also highly appreciated and will be directly acknowledged.

JOS. J. DUFFUS,
Mayor.

QUAKER OATS OFFICIALS ARE HERE FROM CHICAGO

Chief Engineer and Insurance Man Arrive in City and Consult With Manager Denham--- Will Plant be Rebuilt?

Messrs. O. C. Kirn and O. B. Holloway from the headquarters of the Quaker Oats Company in Chicago, reached the city this morning and are stopping at the Empress Hotel. Mr. Kirn is the chief engineer of the company and it was under his direction that the plant destroyed yesterday was built. Mr. Holloway is the manager of the insurance department of the company. The reason for his visit is obvious. The matter in hand is the adjustment of the indemnities which the various underwriters will be called upon to pay.

The visitors viewed the ruins immediately after their arrival. They were in consultation all afternoon at the hotel with Mr. W. H. Denham, the local manager.

The great question that is engaging the attention of the people of Peterborough now is whether the company will rebuild their plant here. It is too early to get an authoritative statement, but in the meantime the public have every reason to hope for the best. The company have established offices in the Barrie Building, where business today is proceeding as usual, a staff of thirty or forty clerks working as though nothing had happened.

Yesterday Mayor Duffus received the following telegrams:—

Mayor Duffus, Peterborough:

Mayor Duffus, Peterborough:

You have the sincere sympathy of people of Lindsay in your great loss. —R. Kylie, Mayor.

Mayor Duffus, Peterborough:

Much regret to learn of accident and personal injury Quaker Oats mill. Is there anything we can do to assist?—A. Purvis, Gen. Supt., C.P.R.

GREEK REGULARS FIGHT FRENCH

Russians Have Success in Fighting With Germans --- Bulk of Roumanian Army Escaped Flanking Movement --- Oil Reservoirs Drained in Retreat

TEUTON LINE OF TRENCHES CAPTURED BY RUSSIANS

Counter-Attacks of the Enemy Were Defeated With Great Losses to Them.

ROUMANIAN ARMY SAVED

Skillful Manocuvring Delayed Von Falkenhayn and Prevented Flanking Movement.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PETROGRAD, Dec. 13. — (Official.) — Russian troops yesterday captured a line of Teuton trenches on heights to the south of Agusalia in the region of the Trotus Valley of Roumania. Teutonic counter-attacks in an effort to regain the lost positions were repulsed with heavy losses.

OIL RESERVOIRS WERE DRAINED.

PETROGRAD, Dec. 13. — The evacuation of Bucharest, although delayed until the last moment, was made in perfect order, after the removal or destruction, according to reports from Jassy, of war supplies and most of the other properties of possible military advantage to the invaders. Enormous oil reservoirs at Ploechti were drained as soon as it became evident the Roumanians would have to abandon that point.

Despatches from the Roumanian front say that in executing their difficult retreat the Roumanians manoeuvred skilfully. By spirited rearguard actions along the road from Ploechti to Buseu they succeeded in delaying Gen. Von Falkenhayn's advance long enough to defeat a flanking movement which, if successful, would have closed the way to Moldavia and resulted in the capture of a large part of the Roumanian army. At present the way to Moldavia is still open and the Roumanians are presenting an unbroken front and have the opportunity of retreating in good order.

BERLIN REPORTS SUCCESSES.

BERLIN, Dec. 13. — On the Roumanian front in the wooded Carpathians, various patrol engagements undertaken by us were successful.

On the Transylvania Eastern Front yesterday Germans and Austrians again repulsed Russian attacks in Gyergyo Mountains and on both sides of the Trotus Valley. Reconnoitering parties followed the retreating enemy. They report considerable hostile loss ad brought back prisoners.

On Mackensen's front, the enemy, which had been reinforced by Russian cavalry and had made a stand along the Jalonitza River, where the waters had risen, is now again in full retreat towards the northeast of the Danube, and the ninth armies are pressing after him on the whole front.

On the road to Buzeu we gained considerable ground, taking three thousand prisoners, while in the mountains yesterday more than four thousand additional prisoners were taken.

On the Macedonian front, after recent enemy defeats, calm prevails on the Cerna, Struma, and along the coast.

CANADIAN TORPEDO BOAT IS LOST WITH ALL HANDS

Signals for Help Were Sent Out When Warship Was in Sinking Condition.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

OTTAWA, Dec. 13. — The Minister of Naval Service announces that it is feared His Majesty's Canadian torpedo boat Grilse, Lieut. Wingate in command, has been lost at sea with all hands. A press despatch late last night reported the Grilse signalling for help, reporting she was sinking.

VESSEL WAS CAUGHT IN STORM.

The Grilse left Halifax for Bermuda on Monday. Tuesday afternoon she wirelessed that she was returning to Shelburne for shelter from a storm. At 7:28 Tuesday evening she sent out calls for help and two minutes later signalled that she was sinking.

Appreciation

Dec. 13, 1916.

In behalf of the management, I wish to express our great appreciation of the faithful service of our employees, and also to thank the citizens, in general, of Peterborough, for the unselfish help so generously offered and given us on the occasion of our disastrous fire Monday.

BULGAR ATTACK ON ITALIANS WAS FAILURE

AFTER SPIRITED FIGHTING ON FRONT NORTH OF MONASTIR.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, December 13.—A counter-attack delivered by Bulgarian troops against Italians on the Macedonian front north of Monastir resulted in spirited fighting yesterday, the war office announced today. The attack failed.

BERLIN (via Sayville), Dec. 13.— Today's statement by army headquarters regarding the operations on the Franco-Belgian front, says aside from artillery fire in the Somme and Meuse sectors, which was temporarily livelier, and nightly clashes of patrols, there have been no important activities.

On the Russian front there is nothing important to report.

Find Bodies First Consideration

No definite statement is obtainable in regard to future operations of the Quaker Oats Company in Peterborough. It is hoped by all that the company will decide to rebuild the plant here.

This morning Mayor Duffus had a conference with Mr. W. H. Denham, the company's superintendent here, who stated that adjustments were being made as speedily as possible, but that the search for the bodies of the fire victims was claiming all their attention at the present time.

Mr. Robert Stuart, of Chicago, president of the company, has not yet arrived in the city.

PROMPT ACTION TAKEN BY GOVERNMENT IN CASE OF QUAKER OATS FIRE

N. B. Wormwith, Attorney of Board of Compensation, is in City Looking After Interests of Victims of Monday's Calamity.

The officials of the Ontario Government took prompt action in looking after the interests of the men injured in the Quaker Oats fire last Monday, as well as those of the dependents of the unfortunate men who lost their lives in the explosion or who have since died as a result of their injuries. Mr. N. B. Wormwith, attorney for the Workmen's Compensation Board, left Toronto for Peterborough as soon as news of the accident reached official circles, and has been busy ever since adjusting the losses. It will require some time to wind up the business, but in the meantime no one of the victims, either the bereaved or the injured, will be allowed to suffer through lack of funds. If any are in need of money the company is authorised to advance it, the amount to be repaid by the Compensation Board out of the sums due the beneficiaries.

The Greatest Calamity Yet.

Mr. Wormwith says that this is the most serious accident that has happened in Ontario since the Board was organised for business at the beginning of 1915, and the amount which will be necessary to satisfy the claims of the victims of the fire will be a heavy drain upon the resources, but it is assured that everything will be satisfactorily disposed of.

The rate of assessment levied on cereal milling companies for the benefit of their employes is 80 cents for every thousand dollars on their pay rolls. This rate is comparatively low, as milling has always been regarded as a safe industry so far as the workmen are concerned.

The catastrophe of Monday has, however, changed the aspect of affairs, and the Board may now decide to raise the assessment of milling companies in order to meet the obligations just incurred.

If the payroll of the Quaker Oats Company amounted to $1500 a day this would mean that the company paid the Government $12 a day toward a fund to care for their employes. Any man injured in the accident of Monday will be allowed 55 per cent. of the amount of his earnings. If he was getting $2 a day at the time of the accident he will draw $1.10 a day while unable to work. If he is permanently disabled the allowance will continue until the end of his life.

The widows and children of the men who lost their lives will also be cared for, the widows receiving $20 and each child under 16 the sum of $5 a month, provided, however, that 55 per cent. of the earings of the deceased amount to $40 a month. In no case shall the compensation allowed any family exceed that amount.

The Workmen's Compensation Act is one of the best measures ever devised to provide for the victims of industrial accidents. It is proving a beneficent arrangement to the wage-earners of Ontario, working out satisfactorily in every detail after two years of trial. It costs nothing for those who are benefited and it relieves the employers of labor from all responsibility and saves them from the annoyance and expense of defending suits for damages. These suits were often started on speculation, and even if a client was awarded damages, the amount so allowed was sometimes swallowed up in legal expenses.

But for the Compensation Board the victims of the Quaker Oats fire would have had no redress, no hope for assistance outside of any which the company might be disposed to grant as a charity. The calamity was an accident impossible to avert and no suit for damages could have been maintained.

GOLD WATCH IS PRESENTED TO REV. J. A. WILSON

TWELFTH ANNIVERSARY OF HIS PASTORATE IS CELEBRATED AT HAMILTON.

Rev. J. A. Wilson, of Hamilton, who preached so acceptably at St. Paul's Church here on Sunday, was on his return to Hamilton presented with a gold watch, and Mrs. Wilson received a bouquet of roses and carnations.

The occasion was the twelfth anniversary of his pastorate at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Hamilton.

Rev. Mr. Wilson spent several years in Peterborough, as assistant to Rev. Dr. Torrance, for many years pastor of St. Paul's.

Workmen Now Blasting to Bring Down the Walls---No Bodies Recovered To-day---Car Wheels Welded to Rails.

MISSING NUMBER TEN

Workmen are engaged this afternoon in blasting operations at the ruins of the Quaker Oats plant, with the object of bringing down the remnants of the walls. That portion of the warehouse which is standing will be torn down and the huge chimney that stood all the fury of the fire will also be demolished, it is expected.

The search for the missing continues without further success. It is thought that the bodies will be found well inside the ruins of the drying department and the boiler house. The operations at this point call for great exertions on the part of the searchers. So intense was the heat here that the four wheels of one truck which at one time helped to support a box car were found to be welded to the steel rails and the tangled mass defied the efforts of the strongest team of horses on the scene.

The death of Patrick O'Connell early this morning is the only death reported from the hospitals today. The seriously injured patients are having a hard battle, but in the majority of cases the prospects of recovery are brighter. The shock and injuries have gone hard with the older men who went through the terrible ordeal, and this is particularly true of Richard Chowen and John Kemp, who are both well up in years.

The dead—Edward Howley, Vincent Fornalo, Domonic Martino, Walter Holden, Philip Capone, Thomas Parson, Patrick O'Connell.

Wm. Miles Missing

William Miles, of 471 Rogers St., has been added to the list of missing. He was a retired farmer who had secured light work at the plant. William Miles, who also was employed at the mills and lives at 226 Murray St., is safe, as he worked at night. A son of the missing man has made a thorough investigation and is now convinced that his father's body will be found under the debris.

Wilbert Kemp Safe

Wilbert Kemp, who was reported missing after the fire at the Quaker Oats plant, is safe. After leaving his boarding house at 224 Sherbrooke St. Monday morning, he learned of an opportunity to go to the woods for the winter, and was given employment through Mr. Ted Cavanagh, who was sending a gang of men to the North country. Kemp did not communicate with his friends and they knew nothing of his whereambouts till a late hour yesterday. "He went off without telling anybody," said Tobias Fredenburg, with whom the young man boarded. The latter was very much upset over the young fellow's action, but was glad to know that he was safe and not among the dead.

The condition of John C. Kemp, Division Street, uncle of Wilbert Kemp, is serious. He was severely burned at the fire.

Philip Capone

The funeral of the late Philip Capone, who succumbed to injuries and burns, will be held from McFadden's undertaking rooms Thursday morning at 9 o'clock to St. Peter's Cathedral and Cemitery. He is survived by two sisters and one brother here and his parents in Italy. The father returned to his native home about a year ago after spending some years in Peterborough. The family were neighbors of Nicholas Minicolo when he lived in Italy.

Much Grain Saved

It is stated that the eighteen concrete elevators which escaped the fury of the flames contain 850,000 bushels of grain, which it is believed will not be damaged to any great extent. Thep roblem now is to remove the grain, an operation which must be from the top of the elevators. The carrier system is, of course, partly destroyed.

Thomas Parsons

The body of Thos. Parsons, 459 Chamberlain Street, was recovered late yesterday afternoon under a pile of bricks on the east side of the ruins, he having been buried when the wall fell out following the explosion. He was 50 years of age and leaves a widow and family of five. Deceased was a member of Knox Presbyterian Church. Infant twins of Mr. and Mrs. Parsons died this past summer.

The funeral will be held Thursday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock from the family residence to Little Lake Cemetery. The funeral service will be conducted by Rev. J. A. MacKensie.

PATRICK O'CONNELL

Patrick O'Connell, who sustained severe burns about the head and arms in the fire on Monday, died early this morning in Nicholl's Hospital. He was aged 47 and lived at 479 Parnell Street, where he leaves a widow and two daughters, Alice and Reta. Two sons, Walter and Vincent, are in New York. His mother resides at Lakefield and three brothers are John of Peterborough, Anthony of Chicago, and William of Rochester. The sisters are Mrs. (Dr.) Blanchard, city, Mrs. Hawley, Rochester, and Miss Margaret O'Connell of Lakefield. Deceased was a member of the C.O.F., St. Peter's Court. The funeral will be held ffom the late residence on Friday morning at 9 o'clock to Sacred Heart Church and St. Peter's Cemetery.

GERMANY'S MOVE FOR PEACE.

IT IS ALWAYS the part of discretion to suspect the motives that may impell Germany to adopt any particular line of policy. The nation may have an ulterior object in view when the announcement is made that those in authority are ready to consider terms of peace. It is no indication that the Germans have become discouraged and are willing to end all this bloodshed by acknowledging themselves defeated. They may simply be anxious to enlist the sympathy of the neutral powers by holding out the olive branch. Again, the Germans may be intent upon bringing about a lull in the hostilities so as to gain a breathing space in which they can recuperate and prepare for more active hostilities in the future.

Just what concessions Germany is willing to make are not yet apparent. Beyond a doubt, however, these would include the restoration of Belgium and a withdrawal from all the French territory now held by the Huns. Russia would be enabled to realize her ambition to secure an outlet at Constantinople. The Germans must realize that no other terms, especially the two first mentioned, would be considered by the Allies. The fate of Belgium has always been the issue with the British, and France will never lay down her arms until her country is left to her intact.

The British and the French authorities still declare that there must be no inconclusive peace, that before the fighting stops Germany must be so crushed as to render another such war impossible. If the public, however, become convinced that Germany is acting in this matter in good faith, there is sure to arise a faction who will favor a cessation of hostilities and an attempt to settle what remains of the dispute by arbitration. Plausible arguments in support of this position will not be lacking.

The international differences which caused the war could have been settled by arbitration. Is it too late even at this date for such methods? Germany may be on the down grade, but she has not by any means reached the bottom. There is plenty of vitality yet left in her forces. If the restoration of Belgium and the evacuation of France is the object of the Allies, it will at the present rate of progress require years of gruelling effort to accomplish their purpose, even with new men in charge of the military affairs of Britain.

When the late Lord Roberts defeated the Boer leader, Gen. Cronje, at Paardeberg in February, 1900, everybody believed that the South African forces had made their last stand and that the war was over. This belief was strengthened when President Kruger issued his famous appeal to the British for peace in the name of "a triune God." His overtures were rejected by Premier Balfour, and a guerilla war was carried on for two years longer, costing England dearly in human lives and treasure. Peace could have been secured on the same terms which were offered by President Kruger in 1900 as those finally agreed upon two years later when the late King Edward took so liberal a view of the situation. The continuation of the war did not cement South Africa to the British Empire. It was the treaty of peace, so generous in its provisions, that made the Boers the faithful allies of Britain in the present struggle.

If the Allies and the Central Powers would cease hostilities tomorrow to negotiate peace terms the war would not be really over. All the armies would still be kept in readiness. Recruiting would not be altogether abandoned, the manufacture of munitions would not be given up altogether, though both would probably be conducted on a less extensive scale. Peace negotiations might fall through, in which case hostilities would be resumed more intensely than ever, the months of rest restoring the fighting vigor of the various armies.

If the object of this war is to render future wars impossible, then the object can be accomplished by mutual agreement as effectively as by bloodshed. The powers could agree to disarmament, the scrapping of their navies, except such warships as are required for an international patrol to save the commercial fleets from piracy, and armies could be disbanded, only sufficient men being kept under arms to preserve internal peace in the various countries. The Powers in convention at The Hague several years ago discussed these propositions at the suggestion of the present Czar of Russia, but to no purpose. Universal consent was lacking. Two years of really indecisive warfare has probably convinced the rulers of the futility of their present policy.

Germany three years ago declined to enter into an agreement proposed by Winston Churchill to suspend naval construction for a stipulated period. With her fleet imprisoned and helpless, her ports blockaded and her commerce swept from the seas, the Huns are stupid indeed if they fail to realise that in naval equipment it is useless for them to attempt to keep pace with the country whose supremacy they are most ambitious to crush.

But one thing is certain—no matter by what means the war is ended, Germany's cause is lost. The Allies are the real victors in any case. Civilization and the rights of humanity will triumph and the world will live in amity for ages to come. Peace will be conclusive, whether the war continues until the Allied armies march through Berlin, or fighting is stopped now and the Germans, acknowledging themselves defeated, accept such conditions as the champions of human rights dictate.

"WE CANNOT SELL our wheat and leather and steel and labor to the rest of the world at war prices and buy our food at peace prices," says the Wall Street Journal. Sound logic this, but, unfortunately, it seems above the comprehension of some of our contemporaries.

"CAN WE HELP?"

A CALAMITY such as the destruction of the Quaker Oats plant and the consequent loss of life seems to bring out the best that is in human nature. Heavy misfortune makes brothers of an entire community. All day Monday while the fire raged, grief-stricken women who had relatives employed in the building and had not heard from them, wept because they feared the worst. Other women, perfect strangers to them, tried to comfort them in their anguish, weeping meanwhile in sympathy. Young men risked life and limb to help save the property of others. Auto owners offered their cars to convey the injured to the hospitals. Doctors volunteered their services to care for the sufferers. Everybody made the affair his own and did what he could to assist.

Telegrams of sympathy reached the city from all quarters. One to Mayor Duffus from A. Purvis, of Toronto, general superintendent of the Canadian Pacific Railway, asked, "Is there anything we can do to assist?"

After all, this is not such a bad old world. It is too good a place to be traduced by cynics or to be devastated by war when kings fall out and diplomats bungle the tasks entrusted to them.

AN APPEAL TO MUNITION WORKERS.

THE IMPERIAL Munitions Board appeal to Canadian manufactures and workers to speed up in the matter of making munitions. In a circular just issued they say that it is true today as it was in the time of Napoleon, that "an army fights on its stomach," but it is not the whole truth. Armament, high explosives and the most deadly destructive weapons that science can invent are assuming such importance in modern warfare that the chances of a well-munitioned army, even if poorly fed, are to be preferred to those of a well-provisioned army whose munitions and guns are inadequate, other conditions being equal.

With the seas open, the provisioning of our armies has never been a serious problem. With munitions it has been different. Who can picture the agony that was experienced in the early days of the war by our men who encountered that murderous German shell-fire, with neither guns nor shells to give answer? Who can describe the punishment that was meted out to the Canadian First Contingent by the enemy artillery during the struggle at the Ypres salient?

"Never again" has become the policy of the Imperial Munitions Board, and every nerve is being strained to provide an overwhelmingly adequate supply of munitions. The factories of Canada have been asked, not only to maintain but to increase their output. To do this more workers will be needed, even as more troops are needed to keep the four Canadian divisions at the front up to strength.

The call goes out, "Munition workers wanted!" Labor is scarce. Every available man is needed for active service overseas. Consequently the Imperial Munitions Board and manufacturers of munitions are looking to Canada's women for the additional workers, without whom no considerable increase in the output of munitions will be possible.

No call has gone unanswered by Canadian people since August, 1914. We are confident that the call to "Pile up Munitions" will be answered with the same devotion and the same patriotism that has characterised our efforts in the past.

IT'S DIFFERENT HERE.

IN THE UNITED STATES there are three million foreigners who are unable to speak the language of the country. A campaign has been started to make good citizens of them by teaching them to speak so that they can hold intercourse with their American neighbors. If they do acquire a fair working knowledge of the language, no one is likely to object if they pursue their studies further and pick up a smattering of French and German.

The United States, when it adopted the Philippine Islands, spent millions in educating the natives in English. The bilingual issue never arose there. The English language will in time be the official means of communication the world over. This consummation will not be delayed even by the papers that for political consideration would make the teaching of French compulsory in our public schools and permit the English language to take its chance with the other.

THE GOVERNMENT AS A DEADHEAD.

THE INCREASED COST of white paper, labor and everything else required in the business, has compelled the publishers of the country to resort to measures to protect themselves from a class of people who attempt to get free advertising in the newspapers. As a deadhead, the Government, either Federal or Provincial, probably holds the palm. Both flood the newspapers with matter, considerable of which is of a purely technical nature, expecting free publication. The copy provided seldom contains anything of interest to the average reader. The blue books issued by the various departments are volumes that as a rule are very little read. Then why ask the newspapers to burden their columns with extracts from these works?

Every man who in any way helps to prepare these official documents is paid, the compiler, the printers and the circulators. Even the postal clerks who handle them are not expected to give their services for nothing. It is only the newspapers that are supposed to be public-spirited enough to devote valuable space and costly labor in getting these somniferous reports before the people.

Is it fair to ask the newspapers to do this, especially at this particular time, when there are so many calls upon their generosity for patriotic purposes, calls which they are neither able nor inclined to ignore?

POLITICAL NOTES AND COMMENT

The nickel question has grown so that it now looks like thirty cents.

Sir Robert Borden has been carrying out Sir Wilfrid Laurier's promise to stump Quebec.

Don't you wish you had reciprocity now, so Canadian products could be bought up by United States speculators?

The scarcity of eggs will encourage a number of Grit speakers who would otherwise hesitate to appear on public platforms.

We will soon hear about as much from the Grit scandalmongers on the subject of nickel as we do about the army boot, a subject which is exceedingly painful to the Toronto Globe.

Who struck Billy Patterson and how old is Ann, and to whom did G. G. S. Lindsey, the Grit lawyer in Toronto, propose to ship Canadian nickel in thousand-ton lots? These are the great unanswered questions of the age.

One of those United States shell companies which Carvell, Kyte and Co. described as 'mushroom,' has just formed a million dollar company to build a plant in Canada. This is of no consequence to Carvell, Kyte or their sort. It is merely a fact.

Sir Robert Borden is touring Canada in the interest of National Service. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who refused to support an appeal for National Service, is giving his attention to various Liberal conventions which are being or have been called by his organizers for the purpose of playing party politics. This, after all, is the real Laurier.

The Department of Labor, which formerly served as a setting for the greatness of Mackenzie King and Rudolphe Lemieux, seems to have experienced a remarkable change. It is now under the direction of a man who avoids the limelight but manages to prevent or settle strikes. The work of the Department of Labor under these new conditions is a real service to all the people.

Work on the Welland Canal is to be stopped in order that the financial resources of the country may be conserved for war purposes. The money which was wasted on the Transcontinental, over and above what was required to build the road, would have paid for the whole Welland Canal project. That fact is not being mentioned in the various Liberal conventions which are being held throughout Canada.

With Sir John Jellicoe as First Sea Lord and Sir David Beatty in command of the Grand Fleet, things should go well at sea. But it should be remembered that Canada has no dreadnoughts there. In this great theatre of the great war Canada plays the humiliating part fo an unarmed belligerent. But, of course, as Sir Wilfrid Laurier said in killing the Naval Aid Bill, the German Emperor is a man of peace and of lofty ideals.

An Eastern Ontario Liberal convention spent the day in seeking, under Sir Wilfrid Laurier, to make trouble for the Government which is carrying on the war. A gathering of the so-called Ontario Reform Association at Toronto spent several days at the same congenial and patriotic task. A gathering of Central Ontario Grits is being held at Belleville for the same purpose. This is the work of the Laurier organisation, not of the decent individual Liberal.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier has just announced that the high cost of living is due to the tariff measures of the Borden Government. Investigation shows that one food hog in Chicago has seventy milloin eggs held in cold storage. They are American eggs. Under Laurier and reciprocity this pirate and his fellows would have been in a position to have cornered the Canadian egg harvest as well. Laurier seems to know about as much of tariffs and their operations as he always did. Or perhaps he had been listening to George P. Graham.

All that remains now is for Sir Wilfrid Laurier to pass judgment upon the British Government's pronouncement on the nickel question in the words which he applied to the Admiralty Memorandum. "There is nothing in it that we did not know before." It might be true enough, at that. The Liberal leaders have known all along that not a pound of Canadian nickel had gone to Germany since the war began. They knew this, but they didn't let that knowledge hamper their efforts to get a little partisan advantage out of the falsehoods that were being circulated by their supporters on the subject of nickel. Oh, and that reminds us, Where WAS G. G. S. Lindsey, the Laurier Liberal, proposing to find a market for Canadian nickel in large lots at a high price?

EDITOR'S MAIL

Editor Review: While I thank you for the acknowledgment of my letter of the 8th inst., I thought it very unfair to criticise same without publishing my part, and pardon me if I have over-estimated your intellectual ability, by only advancing one argument in favor of the movement. It would be needless of me attempting to put forward every argument it has creditably earned owing to the space it would occupy.

A few facts from the report of the 48th annual congress of the British Co-operative movement which was held at Lancaster last Whitsuntide will show the results of the arguments put into practice, and may suffice.

The reports of 1,491 societies showed an increase in membership for the year of 122,848. The aggregate membership at the end of last year was 3,310,724. The total of the productive and distributive turnover was $825,190,975, an increase during the year of $132,805,850. The surplus commonly called "net profit" amounted to $85,019,780, an increase of $8,999,290, the highest in the history of the movement.

The total capital invested by British co-operators in their societies is now $226,014,375, this representing an increase over the previous year of $18,067,050. Notwithstanding the great profits made by the above societies, speaking in the British House of Commons recent, Mr. Runciman, the president of the Board of Trade, a department of State, described the steps taken to prevent undue rises in the prices of commodities. He informed Parliament the prices agreed upon by the Government committee were "checked by reference to those retailers Not trading for profit, like the Co-operative Societies."

—It may be that co-operators are like the farmer who tinkers away with implements that have outlived their usefulness, but I hae ma doots.

ALEX. MURRAY.

We gladly make room for the above. However, it occurs to us that in conducting this argument The Review and Mr. Murray are like a couple of boys chasing each other around a table. At any stage of the performance it is hard to determine which is ahead and after long exertions both are likely to wind up in the same relative position as they held at the start. We realize the difficuly of bringing conviction to a man who talks in the dialect with which Mr. Murray concludes his letter.—Ed. Review.

(Philadelphia Public Ledger.)

In the axis, or upper burial ground of Germantown, there is a tombstone which gives the age of him who lies beneath it, one John Adam, as 969 years. The records, I believe, show that his age was rightly 69, and the explanation given is that the stonecutter cut his nine first and then found he had no room for the six. So he filled in the nine with cement and cut behind the first markings. Time having worn out the cement reveals the tomb of an ancient fit to be classed with those mentioned in Genesis.

THERE IS DANGER IN DUMBNESS

It has been said that business that is dumb is dangerous. Some go further and declare it is dangerous because it is dumb.

When there is power it must exert itself in some way. In man the normal way is through art — letters, painting, sculpture, music.

That is why art is the great civiliser. It furnishes an outlet for human energy, and such an outlet, such a mode of expression as conserves, develops, idealizes, and improves the quality of that energy.

Without art energy manifests itself destructively, or at least coarsely.

All power that is dumb is dangerous.

Let us take, for instance, a great public utility corporation, serving millions of people, a prime necessity of communal life. It goes along for years in prosperity, and then, when it approaches the legislature for a favor or when in some crisis it finds itself in a dispute where it needs the support of public opinion, it is suddenly made aware that there exists toward it among the people a dull hostility.

Its directors get together and are apt to exclaim against the ingratitude of people and to talk of envy, jealousy, socialism and the hate toward wealth.

It would do these directors good if they could be made to see what is the matter. The matter is that they have been dumb.

A persistent campaign of advertising would have changed all that hostility to friendship.

If you want me to feel friendly toward you, you must talk to me.

Human nature is human nature. If a man in a village never speaks he will be suspected of all manner of crimes.

A non-advertising corporation is to a state or nation what this dumb man is to the village. Things may go well with it until it needs public co-operation and help; then it discovers that it has foolishly alienated the people.

The more power a man or an organisation of men has, the more it needs advertising as a matter of self-preservation.

THE COUNCIL.

Now Hans and Jules and Tommy
Sneaked out of their trenches one night
And met in the dreaded mid region—
But they did not meet to fight.
They met, with Karl and Rustum,
With Jamie and Big Ivan,
To swap ideas and cigarettes,
And talk of the rights of man.

They talked of neglected labor,
Of crops and trade and things,
Of ruin and senseless slaughter
And the insane quarrels of kings.
And they talked of home and duty,
Of love and children and wives,
And the higher cost of killing,
And the cheapness of human lives.

And they spoke in tones of wonder,
Of what they were fighting for,
And they passed a resolution
To call off the senseless war.
For you can't have war, they decided,
Unless you have men to fight—
Of course this never has happened,
But then, you observe, it might!

BAR-LE-DUC CURRANTS.

Two Picked Recipes For a Delicious Winter Treat.

Take selected currants of large size, one by one, and with tiny embroidery scissors carefully cut the skin on one side, making a slit one-fourth an inch or less in length. Through this with a sharp needle remove the seeds, one at a time, to preserve the shape of the currant. Take the weight of the currants in strained honey and when hot add the currants. Let simmer two or three minutes, then seal as jelly. If the juice of the currants liquify the honey too much carefully skim out the currants and reduce the sirup at a gentle simmer to the desired consistency, then replace the currants and store as above.

The following recipe is less work, but gives a nice preserve: Get the largest size currants, red or white, and stem them without breaking. To each pound allow three pounds of sugar. Take some ordinary currants and bruise them while warm until you have a pint of juice. Put half a cupful of this into a porcelain kettle and three pounds of sugar. Bring slowly to a boil and skim carefully. After boiling five minutes drop in very carefully one pound of the large currants and let simmer four minutes. Take them out without breaking them and boil the sirup down five minutes or longer if not very thick, as the currants are sometimes less juicy than at others. A few minutes more will be needed at one time than another. When thick skim well and strain through a hot cloth over the fruit. Put into little jelly glasses and when cold cover as in jelly making.

A DAILY NOVELETTE

The flash of a lantern,
The click of a gun—
The command of "Hands up!"
A yell, and a run.

Second Story Sam drew a long, ominous breath and gritted his teeth.

"Can I be dreamin'?" he thought. "There must at least be a old bent stickpin or somep'n. There must be somep'n."

And he cautiously unslid the slide of his dark lantern once more and for the third time ransacked bureau drawers, closets, wardrobes, without coming across anything more valuable than a ben brass collar button.

Second Story Sam glared venomously at the sleeping man on the bed, whose gentle snores seemed to mock his wasted efforts.

"Coise you! I'll look once't more and if I falls again I'll fix you!" hissed the burglar.

And for the fourth and last time he made the rounds of the room in vain, while the snoring man slept like a log.

"I'll get back at you!" snarled Sam.

And spitefully readjusting the sleeper's alarm clock to go off at 5 instead of 6.30, he slipped with a bitter, noiseless snicker out through the window.

That Only 358,000 out of their 100,000,000 population report incomes in excess of $2,500 per year.

That Nineteen out of every twenty fail to provide either for their families or old age.

That Every second man of the population at age twenty-five will be dependent upon someone else at sixty-five. Which class will you be in?

That Life Insurance Companies are distributing more than $2,000,000 per day.

That Life Insurance has decreased pauperism more than thirty-three and one-third per cent. in thirty-five years.

That Less than seven per cent. of the value of American lives is covered by Life Insurance.

That Life Insurance saves the nation more than $80,000,000 per year in maintaining the poor.

Under such conditions, what is your plain duty, aye, and privilege? Clearly to insure your life while you can. You say where and how can this best be done?

We answer — A monthly Income Policy for your family or an Endowment for yourself in the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada.

With its $75,000,000 of assets, there is no Company represented in Canada, can offer you better, if any can offer you as good.

Let us show you what we have done, before placing your insurance. This places you under no obligation and may prove a decided advantage.

THE BRITISH FISHING TOWNS

MANY IMPORTANT CHANGES ARE CAUSED BY THE WAR.

The last two years have seen many changes in many places and in many things, but in no one thing, perhaps, more than in the fishing fleets, which, in times of peace, spread their brown sails to the winds from almost every port on the east coast of Great Britain, from Duncansbay Head to Dover. Many thousands of fishermen who, in times past, were wont to sweep the North sea for fish, are now sweeping many seas for mines, and those who may still launch out into the deeps in search of fish, launch out in other waters. Quite recently, for instance, there has come from Yarmouth, the town that made the bloater famous, news that the Admiralty has decided to prohibit herring fishing from the port this season, and that the time-honored invasion of the great fishing port by Scottish fisher-girls, who were wont to perform their office as cleaners and salters of innumerable herrings with bewildering rapidity, will not take place. The Scottish fisher-girls will, no doubt, be quite unmoved by the order. Here, too, are great changes. The large majority of such girls are surely "on munitions," and earning "better money."

But to return to the fishing fleet. There is a certain port on the east coast, greatly beloved of painters, where a fishing fleet is not the least of the many attractions, for the man with an eye for color and a heart for the ways of the sea. The place is built round the mouth of a little river which tumbles down, in much haste at first, but anon with more decorum, from the moorlands away to the west, and finds its way to the sea through a great dike in the cliffs. It is an old place. Its history goes back to the days of the Norsemen, and the ruins that crown the cliff to the south are those of an abbey once famous, as a place of song and of learning, the world over.

When the tide is high the estuary of the river between the hills is a wonderful lake, and brown-sailed ships and red-sailed ships move slowly or rapidly over its surface; whilst the fishing fleet, if it is in port, lies up, boat against boat, four and five and six deep, all along the quayside. There is a forest of masts, all leaning one way, a maze of ropes and tackle, with great brown fishing nets slung up at masthead, whilst in and out amidst innumerable crates and barrels move, slowly and leisurely,

The master, the mate,

A closer view shows much mending of nets going on; many brown-overalled groups gathered round hatches, working away, in between much desultory converse, with peg and line. Then dotted about the quay, leaning against capstans, or squatting, in true fisher fashion, on the jetty against the pile heads that line the edge, are yet other groups, men who, for the time being, are men of leisure, who have discarded brown overalls, and appear in all the wonder of the blue jersey and the blue trousers of the deep-front pockets. Great matters are often under discussion, and every now and again the channel of thought will be diverted by the man with the newspaper, who is forever discovering new matters of interest.

But to return once more to the fleet. It is always good to look upon; but it is specially good to catch a glimpse of when it is putting to sea, some night of a full moon; when the shadows are all purple; when voices carry with a strange clearness across still waters; when the ripples from the bows of the boats catch the moonlight, and the creaking of the halyards as the sails are slowly hoisted comes in, now from here, and now from there, and now from all around. Thereafter, silence, as the boats move slowly down towards the open sea.

Well-Dressed Ham.

A noted lawyer was once cross examining a very portly, very self-satisfied and very well-dressed witness.

"You are a man of independent means?" he asked.

"I ham!" replied the witness, emphatically.

The lawyer beamed upon him.

"And a very well-dressed ham, too," he remarked.

The Treacherous Prussian.

Canadian soldiers have learned to treat with good nature and trust the privates captured from the ranks of their German adversaries, but the Teuton officers "have gained a reputation for unspeakable treachery," according to an official communique issued by the Canadian war records office describing in detail the taking of the Regina trench by Dominion troops at midnight of November 10, after 48 hours' artillery bombardment.

"Instances of this treachery are all too numerous," the statement says. "The following must suffice as a specimen. One of our captains in a lull in the fighting found a Prussian officer lying desperately wounded, bleeding to death. He knelt down under heavy shell fire and gave his enemy first aid, bandaging his wounds so that he could be removed. Then he turned away to get the stretcher-bearers. The moment his back was turned the German drew a bomb from his pocket and threw it with deadly aim. The Canadian officer was blown to pieces. The Prussian evidently thought his villainy would pass unnoticed in the confusion of flying death, but several of our men had seen the whole affair and he paid the penalty. It is not strange therefore, if the German officer when captured does not always find quite so amiable a reception as greets his rank and file."

POLES IN SOUTH AMERICA

If it is true that the Russian Government is planning to foster colonization of Poles in South America, as is reported from Petrograd, the movement will mark a departure from the customary policy of that Government. Despite the vast population of the Russian Empire, estimated recently at 186,000,000, with an annual increase of more than 4,000,000, Russia has not appeared among the nations encouraging emigration of its own inhabitants. The great area of Russia is in proportion to its population, and there is room for many millions more before the food problem will become at all acute; in addition to which the Czar is credited with definite colonization ambitions in the direction of certain regions in Northern China contiguous to his own Asiatic Russia.

One explanation suggested is that the Poles have proved a thorn in the side of the Russian Conservatives ever since formation of the Duma, and that it is desired to reduce their relative political power by finding homes for them elsewhere. The Polish people have long been strong individualists; they charge their lack of development in their own country to repressive measures rather than to lack of Polish enterprise; they assert that in a freer atmosphere they would take a place among Russians corresponding, for example, to that of the Bohemians in Austria.

The plan of colonization to which reference is made is said to contemplate the sending of 400,000 or 500,000 Poles to Venezuela. This would be a boon to Venezuela, and perhaps it might work out to the advantage of the new arrivals. The South American country is rich in natural resources and, so far as its soil is concerned, it could feed a goodly part of the world. Its need has been an industrious citizenship. The present population of mixed Latin and Indian is temperamentally better fitted for revolution than for continuity of effort in the direction of domestic development.

DR. THOMPSON RECOVERING

OMEMEE DOCTOR'S SERIOUS ATTACK OF BLOOD-POISONING.

MEMORIAL SERVICE.

OMEMEE, Dec. 13. — Mr. James McCaffrey of Toronto visited his father last week.

Miss Blanche Elliott, of the dead letter office staff, Toronto, is home on sick leave.

The many friends of Dr. J. N. Thompson will be pleased to know that he is slowly recovering after a very serious case of blood poisoning. Grave fears were entertained for his recovery during the latter part of the week, the family being summoned to his bedside. The doctor has practised in Omemee and Mt. Pleasant for almost forty years, and his genial face has been greatly missed around the village.

Miss Jewett has returned home after an extended visit with friends in Cannington.

Mrs. W. Watson of Coboconk is visiting with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Thompson.

Mr. R. J. Thompson and Miss Annie of Toronto are visiting under the parental roof.

Mr. J. Ashmore and Miss Thurston of Dunsford attended the memorial service which was held on Sunday night in the Methodist church for the late Sergeants Mills and Scott.

Dr. McKenzie of Colborne occupied the Presbyterian church pulpit on Sunday.

Mrs. Birney (nee Miss Sanderson) of Peterborough visited her sister-in-law, Mrs. Hodgetts, on Thursday of last week.

Mr. Hugh Murray was a visitor to Peterborough on Monday.

Mr. Wesley Thompson, St. Paul, Minn., is visiting under the parental roof.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Atwell and two children arrived in Omemee last week from the West. Mr. Atwell left Omemee about twelve years ago, and consequently notices great changes in our little village.

Mr. and Mrs. Morcombe of Whitby spent the week-end at the home of Mr. C. L. Morcombe.

Mr. C. Richards, editor of the Omemee and Millbrook Mirror, was a business visitor to Omemee on Saturday.

People of Omemee sympathise with Peterborough in the great loss by fire this week of the Quaker Oats plant. General alarm was felt, as a number from this vicinity were employed there. We are glad to report all safe.

A very impressive memorial service was held on Sunday night in the Methodist Church in memory of the late Sergt. Fred Mills and Sergt. Walter Scott, who died of wounds at a base hospital in France, Walter on Nov. 19 and Fred on the 20th. The service was a union service of the Anglican, Presbyterian and Methodist congregations. The Rev. Mr. Downe, pastor of the Methodist church, gave a very impressive address telling of the sterling qualities of our fallen heroes.

Rev. Dr. McKenzie of Colborne, representing the Presbyterian church, made a strong plea for young men to come forward and volunteer to take the places left vacant by the passing of Sergts. Scott and Mills. Rev. Mr. James, rector of Christ Church, conveyed the sincere sympathy of his church to the bereaved families and tried to impress upon his hearers the nearness of the war. The church was packed to its utmost capacity. Surely some young men of Omemee will feel it their duty to respond to the earnest appeal made, especially under such touching circumstances.

A recruiting meeting will be held in Coronation Hall Friday night. Lt. Foot, a returned hero, will address the meeting, also the Rev. Capt. Kenny.

A number of people from Omemee motored to Peterborough on Monday to view the fire and to find out how serious it all was.

TEXT OF GERMANY'S NOTE TO BRITAIN AND HER ALLIES

BERLIN, Dec. 13.—Following is the text of the note addressed by Germany and her allies to the hostile Governments and read in the Reichstag by the German Chancellor:—

"In the midst of the most terrific war ever experienced in history, which has been raging for the last two years and a half over a large part of the world — a catastrophe which thousands of years of common civilization was unable to prevent, and which injures the most precious achievements of humanity—our aims are not to shatter or annihilate our adversaries. In spite of our consciousness of our military and economic strength and our readiness to continue the war (which has been forced upon us) until the bitter end, if necessary, at the same time prompted by the desire to avoid further bloodshed and make an end to the atrocities of war, the four allied powers propose to enter forthwith into peace negotiations.

"The propositions which they bring forward for such negotiations, and which have for their object a guarantee of the existence, of the honor and liberty of evolution for their nations, are, according to their firm belief, an appropriate basis for the establishment of a lasting peace.

Forced to Take Up Arms

"The four allied powers have been obliged to take up arms to defend justice and the liberty of national evolution. The glorious deeds of our armies have in no way altered their purpose. We always maintained the firm belief that our own rights and justified claims in no way control the rights of these nations.

"The spiritual and material progress which were the pride of Europe at the beginning of the twentieth century are threatened with ruin. Germany and her allies, Austria-Hungary, Bulgaria and Turkey, gave proof of their unconquerable strength in this struggle. They gained gigantic advantages over adversaries, superior in number and war material. Our lines stand unshaken against ever-repeated attempts made by armies.

"The last attack in the Balkans has been rapidly and victoriously overcome. The most recent events have demonstrated that further continuance of the war will not result in breaking the resistance of our forces, and the whole situation with regard to our troops justified our expectation of further successes.

"If, in spite of this offer of peace and reconciliation, the struggle should go on, the four allies powers are resolved to continue to a victorious end, but they disclaim responsibility for this before humanity and history. The Imperial Government, through the good offices of your Excellency, ask the Government of (here is inserted the names of the neutral powers addressed in each instance) to bring this communication to the knowledge of the Government of (here are inserted the names of the belligerents)."

MARRIAGE OF LADY IRENE CURZON, LOVE MATCH

Still in Her Teens, Lady Irene Resembles Her American Mother and is Said to be Devoted to the United States.

LADY IRENE CURZON.

The marriage of Lord Curzon's eldest daughter, Lady Irene Curzon, to Mr. Guy Benson will be a love match and the engagement has astonished a great many people, who took it for granted that Lord Curzon would insist upon his daughter marrying a man connected with one of the great houses of the peerage. Lady Irene will, however, inherit her father's barony and become Baroness Ravensdale after his death, in case he does not marry again himself and have a son to assume all of his titles—Earl Curzon, Viscount Scarsdale and Baron Ravensdale. Only the last can descend through the female line. Lord Curzon, in marrying the former Mary Leiter of Chicago, made a romantic marriage, in spite of the bride possessing an enormous fortune. The two were deeply in love, and when separated by the Atlantic ocean during the engagement—Curzon being compelled to leave America and return to London—they exchanged cablegrams of greeting every day. Lady Irene is very like her mother in appearance, being tall and graceful, and she is credited with having a good deal of her father's strength of character.

The prospective groom is one of three sons of Robert Henry Benson, a very wealthy Londoner, who is a trustee of the British National gallery and a member of council of the Victoria and Albert museum and of the Royal College of Music, all in London.

Both Lady Irene and Mr. Benson are still in their teens.

Demoralized Railroads

At New London, Alberto Pani, who, incidentally, is Carranza's president of the $90,000,000 railroad system which gridirons Mexico with lines of rust and masses of wreckage, said that the national railways rapidly are being restored to normal, and that service over all the main lines was unmolested, says Harry H. Dunn in Cartoons Magazine. In El Paso, early in September, I met a wealthy exporter of flour whom I had known in Mexico City seven years before. He had been in El Paso two months trying to secure ten freight cars with which to ship flour to the starving half-million inhabitants of Mexico City, and could not get them. Does this look like the restoration of the Mexican railroads to normal conditions?

Big News in Brief

Mayor Kemp of Woodstock will not be a candidate for re-election. Aldermen Paul and West will be in the ring.

A coroner's jury at Hamilton found that Mrs. Bertha Webb had asphyxiated herself while temporarily deranged over charges of theft in Toronto.

The wife of Austin Church, aged 25, a farmer near Dungannon, found him dead in his barn, he having been kicked by a horse he was trying to harness.

The development of the scheme to double the capacity of the Ontario hospital at Orpington, England, is only awaiting settlement of the medical service affairs in London.

It is reported that Major Hedley Snider, at present second in command, will receive the command of the 215th Bn., and Capt. E. Sweet, the adjutant, will be given his majority.

FUNDS NEEDED FOR HEALTH ASSOCIATION

RECEPTION WILL BE HELD AT EMPRESS HOTEL ON DEC. 29.

It is probably an old story to tell the citizens that, owing to the numerous calls made upon the public of Peterborough, the Health Association has experienced very great difficulty in securing sufficient funds to carry on their work during the year 1916. While we realized that services were necessary for our people at home, at the same time we tried to interfere as little as possible with the various collections for our troops at the front. We find now on approaching the end of our year, that we have an ovedraft at the bank of some $200. The ladies of the nurses' supervision committee very kindly offered to raise this amount before Dec. 31. To do this they are giving a reception in the Empress Hotel on the afternoon and evening of Dec. 29, and to all those who are friends and well wishers of the Health Association we appeal for support at this time, and we feel sure in making this request we will not do it in vain. — Peterborough Health Association.

ACTIVITIES AT THE Y.M.C.A.

One of the most interesting Sunday meetings held this season was the service of Dec. 12, when the young men were favored with the novelty of a lady speaker. Mrs. Douglas, general secretary of the Young Women's Christian Association, addressed forty young men on the subject, "Shaping a Life," and the attentive hearing given the speaker showed that her words came as an inspiration to all present. The Y.W.C.A. and the Y.M.C.A have the most cordial relations with each other, as their objects and ideals are very similar, and the appearance of the Y.W. general secretary at a Y.M. meeting has done much to deepen the existing friendly feelings on the part of these organizations.

With other George Street folk, Y.M.C.A. officials were much concerned during the big fire at the Quaker Oats plant, for the sparks and firebrands were falling all around the Y.M.C.A. building. A few of the largest burnt pieces were picked up from the front steps of this building and laid aside as souvenirs.

The Quaker Oats Co. has contributed liberally to the support of the Y.M.C.A. work in Peterborough and among the soldiers at the front, so the blow that this company has sustained will be felt by this association among the other institutions of the city. The Y.M.C.A. would express sympathy for the families of the employes who were lost and to those who are doubtless thrown out of employment by this great disaster.

Three Suppers

Three suppers are being served this week to members of leaders' corps and boys' Bible classes, and next Tuesday evening junior and intermediate leaders will commemorate the holiday season with a turkey dinner. The sedate members of the board of directors, who hold their monthly meeting on this same evening, will also pick turkey bones while considering the final problems of the year.

The association greatly appreciates the response on the part of its subscribers for the payment of outstanding pledges. Mr. T. W. Robinson reports that it is a pleasure to receive these payments as such a fine appreciation of the Y.M.C.A. work is held by its supporters and the public in general.

OBITUARY

REV. SAMUEL McL. FEE

At his late residence, The Manse, in New Liskeard, New Ontario, the Rev. Samuel McL. Fee passed to his reward on Tuesday, the 6th inst., at 6 a.m. The late Mr. Fee had just completed a pastorate of almost fifteen years at Newdale, Man., and had completed his 21st year in the work of the ministry. He arrived in New Liskeard about the first of December to take charge of the Presbyterian church there, to which he had been recently called, and was to have been inducted on the 6th inst. He was taken with heart failure on the preceding Monday and passed away yesterday.

His was a life of strenuous activity and painstaking care in every detail, always considering duty a privilege. He wore out in the work he loved, which doubtless contributed to his early demise at the age of 46. He believed that it was not necessary for him to live, but it was necessary for him to be up and about his Master's work.

He leaves to mourn his loss his wife (Miss Effie Best), formerly of this city, his sister, Mrs. (Dr.) Longmore, of Campbellford, and three brothers, Rev. John Fee of Portland, Oregan, Rev. Wm. Fee of Treherne, Man., and Dr. Donald Fee, who enlisted for overseas service and is now in England.

The remains were brought here today and are at Mrs. V. Best's, 209 Brock St., where the funeral service will take place at 2 p.m. tomorrow. Interment at Little Lake Cemetery.

MARIANI CALDERONE

Mariani Calderon, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. Calderone, died yesterday at the family residence, 617 George St. The parents will have the sympathy of their many friends in the bereavement.

The funeral took place this afternoon to St. Peter's Cemetery.

POST MORTEM REPORT READY

DR. EASTWOOD SAYS QUESTIONS WERE ANSWERED SATISFACTORILY.

Doctors Eastwood and Amys made the post-mortem examination on the body of the late Mrs. Louise Kleenmann last evening and will report to the coroner at the inquest on Thursday of next week.

The remains of Mrs. Kleemann will be taken to Schenectady, N.Y., tomorrow morning.

In yesterday's Review the statement was made in reporting the coroner's inquest on the death of the late Mrs. Kleemann that the family had refused to answer questions satisfactory to Dr. Eastwood.

Dr. Eastwood wishes this corrected as Mrs. Loescher answered all questions and he issued the burial certificate after consulting Coroner Greer as is customary in cases of sudden death.

We don't blame some men for refusing to take their own advice.

BARRAGE FIRE, ADVANCE BY BRITISH AND REPULSE GERMAN COUNTER ATTACK

Lieut. Hill's Battalion Congratulated by the G.O.C.

A HOT CORNER

Lieut. Harold Hill, 38th Batt., sends an interesting letter to his father, Mr. W. H. Hill, general manager for the Sun Life Assurance Co. The young officer tells of a bombardment by the British, an advance by the troops, and the repulse of a counter-attack made by the Germans.

Lieut. Hill is engaged in the hazardous work of bringing in the wounded and having them taken to the dressing stations. A short time ago he spent four days in the trenches without sleep and little food and in a continuous rain. After acknowledging letters and boxes of cigars sent by his father, Lieut. Hill says:—

"The 38th went over the parapet on the 18th inst. and made a most successful attack, gaining about one thousand yards in all and about 350 prisoners. At 6:15 the start was made, and a few seconds later the artillery commenced. Their barrage was absolutely perfect, being more or less of a wall of iron. Needless to say the Bosche could not face it and hurriedly retired to his dugouts, where they were bombarded out or came out and surrendered when the first wave reached them. Then their artillery started in, increasing the already terrific noise many times. The barrage was then lifted and the advance made to the next line. Here a more strenuous resistance was shown, but the objective was surely taken, and when the counter-attack was delivered some hours later it was easily beaten off with heavy losses. Our casualties were very heavy and the battalion certainly doesn't resemble its old-time self in the least. Two officers and myself now represent C Company, and one of the other companies is worse off, having only one, and he a lieutenant.

"As you might imagine, the strain was something tremendous, but, as one man said in a letter tonight, "It is a privilege to be in a battalion like the 38th after this, and I'm proud to possess it.'

"The G. O. C., after extending numerous congratulations, said: 'The 38th have always done just exactly what we thought they would do—never left a dirty billet, never objected to even the most strenuous work, and when they were called upon to go over they did so gloriously.'

"Now we are trying to re-establish ourselves as a battalion, and as soon as we receive a few drafts things should become normal to an extent at least.

Rescue of the Wounded.

"Four of the officers could not be taken out, and were left where they had fallen when the battalion was relieved, so the colonel asked (not ordered) me if I would mind taking charge of a party and do my best at it. Naturally, I readily consented, for they were all great friends and one was my O. C. company. So off we started. It was not a pleasant task by any means, for the bosche was shelling heavily, but I succeeded in locating three of the bodies and had them taken to the first field dressing station. I spent a lot of time searching for the other, but finally came to the conclusion that a shell had blown him up, for, as you might imagine, the wohle place was simply one shell hole running into the other and more being added every minute. I decided to get out of the danger zone as soon as possible, so with ten men off we went. I had been congratulating myself on being so lucky in getting this far without a casualty and in fact thought we were all together safe, but it was not to be. We had covered about 300 yards and were getting on famously, when it seemed to me as if every German battery on the front opened fire on us—apparently so, anyway—for the shells certainly changed the landscape around us and four landed in our midst. For some reason or other I escaped an injury, although I did hit the earth with considerable force, and the first words I could think of were, 'All right, beat it'; and luckily so, for shells still came over at a very unpleasant rate. About a second after there wasn't a person left nearby except another officer and myself, and we were probably too stupefied to move. There were eleven casualties in all, six of which were very bad, but I got them out fairly rapidly under the circumstances, the men returning to assist as soon as they saw us there. I never saw so much grit in al my life. One little Scotsman named McCrae (a bad egg in Bermuda but a perfect wonder over here) had his leg broken below the knee and simply hanging about six inches above it, but, though I ripped his clothes from the hip to the boots and fixed up his wounds as well as possible, he never uttered a sound and the others just as bad acted likewise. I never felt so bad about anything in all my life.

"Enclosed is one of the shoulder straps off one of the prisoners. I have a few more I will forward from time to time. I also secured a Mauser revolver with a few clips of ammunition, so in future some time I hope to have the pleasure of using it myself.

"Will close here. Hope this will give you some idea of what an attack means and is like. But I'm afraid I don't regard it in quite the manner required to write a really decent account.

"Your affectionate son,
"Harold."

CAPT. BURNHAM WRITES OF VISIT TO BATTLE FRONT

With Party of Canadian Officers He Inspected Canadian Hospital---Will Return to Canada to Aid in Recruiting.

Editor Review: The Overseas Minister of Militia and Sir Thomas White decided that it would be advisable to send a small party of Canadian military members of parliament to inspect the Canadian forces and hospitals in France and summoned eight of us accordingly to proceed to France, where we are to be conducted by Lieut.-Col. Sims. The object of the visit is to enable us to return to Canada and do what we can for recruiting by telling the people the situation of the Canadian troops in France, what they need in the way of reinforcements, etc., in order to maintain the Canadian army at the front, and how they are provided for in hospitals, etc. It is a rather large order, but we are anxious to do what we can for the cause. We pay our own expenses.

Having crossed the Channel in company with Sir Douglas Haig, the Commander-in-Chief, we proceeded in a downpour of rain to visit the great McGill (Montreal) Hospital, here directed by Lieut.-Col. Birkett, M.D., of that city. This hospital is an immense affair and housed after Ypres over two thousand Canadians at a time.

Just now, being north of the Somme, the present scene of conflict, it has more Imperial troops than Canadians. It accommodates now 1 200 patients and can accommodate 2,000. It is wholly Canadian in management. It is composed of 80 huts, each hut being about 70 feet long and 20 feet wide. There are 80 Canadian nurses and 32 of a staff besides. This, of course, does not include help. The property was originally a great Jesuit College but was appropriated by the French Government. Anything more complete and creditable to McGill University and Canada in the way of hospitals it would be difficult to imagine.

We are especially requested to ask question and are permitted to speak to any soldier or nurse. This hospital is, of course, only one of a great number in France and England. It is expected that a large number of Canadians now at the advanced stations near the Somme will be sent here as soon as they are able to be transported. Those recovering or convalescent are shipped to England. It is more a temporary hospital for serious cases than otherwise. We were shown over the 25 acres covered by the immense establishment by Lieut.-Col. Birkett himself. We shook hands with the Canadians, who seemed glad to see us.

The Safe Side

"Those of us who are wise," says a well-known doctor' "will keep on the safe side by using only those foods that contain everything Nature puts into them."

A bit of good advice, that. Many foods, as usually prepared, especially cereals, are lacking in the vital mineral elements—phosphate of potash, etc., which the body must have for perfect balance and health.

There is one food,

Grape-Nuts

which is rich in these elements, containing, as it does, all the nutriment of whole wheat and barley. It is a delicious food, affording the sweetness of dextrinized wheat and the distinctive flavor of malted barley.

Every table should have its daily ration of Grape-Nuts.

NEW OFFICE HAS BEEN CREATED IN THE DOMINION CABINET

SIR GEORGE PERLEY has been appointed Minister of the Canadian Overseas Forces in Great Britain, and will preside over a sub-militia council which it is intended to establish there. The requisite order-in-Council was passed last week. The situation leading up to the new system is outlined in the following memorandum issued by Sir Robert Borden:

"During his recent visit to Great Britain the Minister of Militia gave very careful consideration to more effective arrangements in connection with the overseas forces, and reached the conclusion that a committee or sub-militia council ought to be established. In view of the unexpected length of the war and the unprecedented efforts which are being exerted by Canada, in common with the rest of the Empire, for its defence and for the common welfare, careful attention was necessarily given to the situation which has developed.

"The forces already despatched by Canada for overseas service in Europe number about 258,000. The expenditure involved in the organization, maintenance, equipment, and direction overseas of these forces is very great, and every available effort must be made to assure not only the highest degree of efficiency, but the most thorough and prompt co-operation of the overseas forces with those of the Mother Country and of the other dominions, as well as the most economical and careful administration of the means which are appropriated for that purpose. Having regard to all these considerations, it has been thought desirable that, in connection with the proposal to establish such a committee or council, there should be a member of the Government resident in London and charged with important duties and responsibilities in connection with the overseas forces. The Minister of Militia can visit Great Britain only occasionally, while a resident Minister would be continually in touch with the British Government, as well as with all questions touching the efficiency and welfare of the Canadian Expeditionary Force.

"The necessary orders-in-Council for the purpose have been passed and Sir George Perley, who for two years has been resident in London discharging the duties of High Commissioner, has been selected by the Prime Minister to undertake the duties and responsibilities of Minister of the Overseas Forces. He will bring to the important responsibilities which he has undertaken qualities and experience which will enable him to give splendid service to the country in the discharge of his duties."

The hardest work some men do is invent excuses to keep them from exerting themselves.

THE WOODEN SAILING VESSEL

"It will be very interesting to note how long the boom in the construction of wooden ships, particularly at Canadian Atlantic ports and on the Pacific coast generally, will survive the close of the war in Europe," comments the editor of Fairplay. "From Nova Scotia it is stated that there is a marked revival in this particular industry, and that at present there is in hand about double the tonnage which was under construction in any recent year. Several new yards have been opened for wooden shipbuilding, and, although the cost of construction is 40 per cent. more than it was five years ago, there is a steady demand for vessels to share in the high freights now ruling and in the prosperity of the fishing industry. A similar story comes from the Pacific coast. There the Legislature of British Columbia is considering a bill for the encouragement of shipping and shipbuilding and proposing to guarantee 55 per cent. of the actual cost of inaugurating shipbuilding, ship repairing, and docking plants in the province, the guaranteed interest on bonds to be six per cent.

"In the States, too, the future of the windjammer is considered promising, but many owners there favor the auxiliary motor. Eight large schooners have been ordered from States yards by a New York firm, and they are all to have oil engines as auxiliaries. What makes it seem as if there is a future for the type are the facts that they are being designed by competent naval architects and are being classed some of them at least—for fifteen years by the American Bureau of Shipping.

"With motors they may have quite a respectable lease of life, but as ordinary sailers there will not, I am afraid, be much room for them when the steamers are once more free to roam the seas."—New York Journal of Commerce.

THE FARMERS TURNED SCALE

UNITED WITH LABORITES IN AUSTRALIA TO DEFEAT CONSCRIPTION.

The women of Australia voted almost as readily to send their sons and sweethearts to war as did the male voters. An analysis of the complete returns of the referendum on conscription showed that early reports that the measure was defeated because of the women's vote were untrue. While the percentage of women who voted against conscription was slightly larger than the percentage of men, the difference was not marked enough to turn the tide. The Australian farmers, coming to the support of one faction of the laborites, really defeated the measure. They voted overwhelmingly against conscription, fearing a shortage of farm labor. The latest returns show a majority of 81,000 against conscription with 300,000 votes yet to be counted, including those of men in the army who will roll up a big majority for conscription. It is not expected, however, that their votes will offset the anti-conscriptionists lead.

The newspapers are discussing reconciliation between the conscriptionists and anti-conscriptionists and laborites, but the future depends entirely upon the attitude of Premier Hughes. The political situation is tense.

At Sydney, about 20 labor members of the State Parliament have withdrawn their support from W. A. Holman, Premier of New South Wales, and formed a new party, while the Minister of Labor and Industry, John E. Estell, has resigned his portfolio owing to differences over conscription. At Brisbane, Senator Bambord has been expelled from the labor movement because he supported conscription.

For Round Shoulders.

An excellent exercise to straighten round shoulders for women who have to sit a good deal is performed by placing a thin stick or wand across the back and letting it run out through the bent elbows. The arms are bent so that the hands rest on the chest. Keep the arms and shoulders pressed back and down and walk about the room in this way for five or ten minutes.

ONE COW WORTH SIX

Remarkable results have followed the system instituted by Director of Farming Todd in selecting and supervising the various institution farms under the direction of Hon. W. J. Hanna. One cow in 315 days has given 20,000 pounds of milk, or nearly six times the average yield of one cow. The Holstein grade herd at Guelph have averaged 8,730 pounds of milk per cow, the Hamilton herd, part pure-bred and part grade, have averaged 9,825 pounds per cow, and it was on this farm that the champion cow gave her big yield. The following averages were also obtained: London, 8,101; Brockville, 8,269. Orillia, 6,636; Whitby, 7,878; Woodstock, 8,820. In all from November 1, 1915, to Oct. 31, 1916, 521 cows gave 3,169,267 pounds of milk.

THE COLONEL CAME BACK, BUT IT WAS NOT AS HIS BATMAN HAD EXPECTED

THE field kitchens had gone up the long dark road in the direction where the division had been engaged in action. It was a very successful action, and all the news which trickled back was very cheering. True, there had been many, many losses, both in officers and men, but even these, saddening as they were, were almost forgotten for the time in the exultation felt at what had been achieved.

For two years the Germans had been entrenched there, and they had, as well they know how, made the position very strong. Everything that could be contrived to ward off attacks had been contrived, and quite openly the enemy boasted that the place was impregnable.

Now, however, the joyful news came that, in the seventh attack the "old Irish Division" had won through.

The following day the victorious battalions worked hard "consolidating the ground won and digging themselves in to resist counter-attacks. When night came they would be relieved by fresh troops, and so when night did come, and it cameloweringly, with angry black clouds sweeping across the moon, the field kitchens were sent up the long dark road down which the men would march from the battlefield. Midway along the road some of the battalions would bivouac for the night at each side. So the transport officers hurried off the field kitchens to meet them and to prepare hot soup, tea and everything possible for the weary soldiers.

The great majority of the wounded had been picked up and dealt with, but after an action, singly and in little groups, wounded men are encountered—men who have been sheltering in shell-holes and unable for the time to reach assistance or make their plight known. From these returning sufferers much information is gleaned by the men of the transport as they pass along. Comrades are inquired for and officers asked after. Sometimes the answer is "Dead," sometimes "Wounded," and sometimes it is hard to get definite news.

On the night to which the writer refers nearly all the questions included inquiries as to the colonel. "How is the old C.O.? Is he all right?" Particularly anxiously did the colonel's groom ask this question.

At last there is the steady noise of marching feet. The battalion has arrived, and all is stir about the kitchens. The colonel's servant meets a man of his own company very tired, very muddy, and very careworn-looking. "Hullo, Pat! Glad to see you, old man! Is the C.O. come?"

Pat stops suddenly, and looks up a little startled and surprised.

"The C.O.? Yes, ah! yes! The C.O. has come!" And heartily rejoiced at the news, the colonel's servant hurries off to the cook sergeant for the hot tea he has arranged for his master.

The colonel's servant comes hurrying along with a steaming cup in his hand. He stops near the shelter he has put up for his master behind the wagon. There is an officer standing close by. "Very glad to see you safe, captain! Is the colonel here, sir?"

The officer looks up, his face haggard. Pointing to the shelter, he replies to the servant in a low voice, "Yes, oh, yes, the colonel is here." Very eagerly the servant goes towards the rude shelter, saying, "Colonel, indeed, I am glad you are back. I have your tea, sir, or perhaps you would like a little soup or else maybe——"

The officer interrupts him, and, laying his hand upon his shoulder, says: "Don't you understand, man—the colonel."

The two men stare at each other. In a flash the servant now understands! Very tenderly they raise the covering from the body, and by the light of an electric torch they look at the calm, dead face.

Yes, the colonel is here. He might, indeed, be sleeping, so peaceful he seems, his hands clasped across his breast, over the mud-stained uniform.

When the morning dawned they carried him in mourning and respect, to the graveyard in the little ruined town near by.

And so it was the colonel came back with his battalion!

SYMPATHY FOR BELGIUM

SPANISH INTELLECTUALS AGAINST GERMANY IN THE WAR.

Reports that Spain is to make a strong protest to Germany, perhaps jointly with the Vatican, against the deportation of Belgian workmen, go well with known existence among the Spanish of a pronounced sympathy with the cause of Belgium. This was given striking expression last May. An address "To Belgium" was then issued, signed by more than three hundred of the political and religious and educational and literary leaders of Spain. In it the ground was taken that the invasion of Belgium by the German armies was a shocking and unforgivable international crime. The address also made the point that, for Roman Catholics, the position taken by Pope Benedict on this subject was conclusive. When the Holy Father declared in his allocution of January 22, 1915, that "no one is permitted to outrage Justice, whatever his motives may be," the question was asked to what he referred. The answer was given by Cardinal Gasparri, Secretary of State at the Vatican, who wrote in the "Osservatore Romano" of July 18, 1915, that "the invasion of Belgium . . . must be considered as directly included in the terms of the pontifical allocution." After bringing out these and other facts, the address of the Spanish notables concluded with the fervent prayer that, "whatever the military issue of the war may be, Belgium may obtain full reparation for her present wrongs and a complete restoration of her national independence." To this the whole civilized world says "Amen."

Musical Anecdotes.

Those who fondly yearn for the "good old days" of music would probably be very disappointed if ever we went back to them, says The Etude. Music is treated with much more respect to-day than it was in former times. When Beethoven's great Violin Concerto was performed in public by the violinist to whom it was dedicated, Franz Clement, one would have thought that this event was enough of a novelty for any concert. Not so, however, for the program (still extant) goes to show that on the same evening Clement performed a set of variations "mit umgekehrter Violine"—with the violin upside down.

One of the first opera librettists was Pope Clement IX., who wrote seven works, according to the French historian Castilblaze. The works, however, were not strictly opera, but were rather tragedies with choruses.

Louis XIII. was one of those monarchs who, with Henry VIII. and Frederick the Great, must be numbered among the composers. He composed many airs and motets. Three weeks before his death, having rallied somewhat after receiving divine unction, he had his valet de garderobe, Nyert, sing a paraphrase of David, for which he had composed the music, to give thanks to God. Two of his followers, Saint Martin and Compeforte, who were at the bedside, also sang, and the king himself joined in at times.

The custom of whistling or hissing to show disapproval is said to have originated during the reign of Louis XIV., and Corneille's "Baron de Fondreres" is reported to be the first play to be so treated. The sons of Lully, after the opera "Orpheus" had been hissed, caused the hiss to be interdicted by law in 1690. This proved ineffectual, however, and excited much public ridicule.

The prejudice which still exists among certain puritanical souls against opera singers is not without historic justification, for there was a period when operatic artists were far from respectable in their conduct. Many stories are told of the singers who performed the operas of Lully, the worst of which are probably those relating to Dumesnil, the tenor, who used to steal the jewels of the prima donnas, and get highly intoxicated on champagne. It was said that he could drink six bottles of this sparkling beverage before the effects began to interfere with his performance.

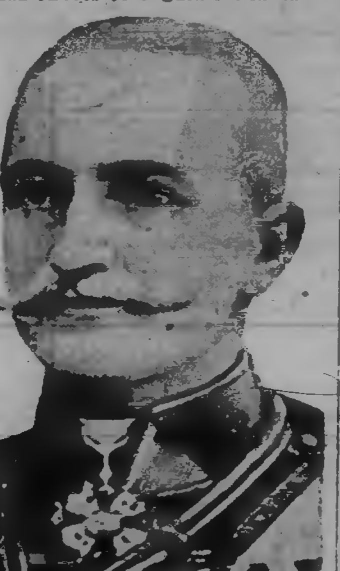
SIGNS OF VICTORY STATED IN DETAIL BY BRUSILOFF

ONE of the most important statements regarding the war recently issued is that of the great Russian commander, General Brusiloff. He has the following to say regarding the situation:

"The war is won to-day, though it is a merely speculation or estimate how much longer will be required before the enemy is convinced that the cause for the sake of which they drenched Europe with blood is irretrievably lost.

"Personally, I never since the beginning have believed the enemy had a chance of winning. While they were able to continue successful offensives it was difficult for them to realize that they were not approaching a successful peace. This summer's operations mark the definite period of defeat. That period dates from the time when the Allies, coordinating their programs, seized from the enemy the capacity to continue offensives or to dictate the strategy to us.

"From the beginning of operations this summer on the Russian southwestern front the enemy lost control of the situation. In spite of superhuman efforts to regain the initiative he utterly failed to do so. Again and again on the southwestern front the enemy's design to block our plans and to throw us back on the defensive have been ruined by the valor of our men.



GENERAL BRUSILOFF.

"Simultaneously our brave Allies in the west were beginning the summer's campaign, which by now must have demonstrated to the German High Command that with all their material [illegible] can construct no defenses which the British and French cannot surely (if slowly) destroy.

"Italy has had successes, the western Allies and Russia. Surely no intelligent German can expect victory. It is simply a question of how long they are willing to continue a war of which the end is absolutely foreshadowed to-day.

"The entrance of Roumania into the war changed the situation for the enemy at a time when hardest pressed for troops by extending the line for hundreds of miles. Though it is true we also are assisting our little ally and extending our flanks likewise, we can afford the men, while the enemy could hardly afford its losses, even before Roumania entered the war.

"If there remain any Germans still hopeful of their cause let them realize that to-day, when the Central Powers already have lost the initiative and are finding difficulty in refilling their ranks, Russia has not yet reached the zenith of her power, which will only be approached next year, when we shall have the largest and best army since the beginning of the war.

"Even this year we have been obliged to conduct the offensive with an inferiority of material and heavy guns. Next year we shall have material equality with the enemy and superiority in human resources, which steadily increases as the long war endures. The morale of the Russian people has been slowly rising for two years. My absolute personal conviction is that if it were possible to take a vote of the entire population, ninety-nine out of every hundred Russians to-day would demand a continuation of the war to a definite final victory regardless of the price.

"Our new levies come each year equal to our best troops. I believe they are far superior to anything which the enemy can find to send against us in next year's campaign.

"The recent temporary reverses of Roumania must not be considered as having the slightest significance. The enemy's trifling advance in the Dobrudja, though a regrettable incident, will have no bearing on the greater issues of the war. It would have been serious had the Germans been able to pierce the Carpathians and enter Roumania, but I believe this last attempt by them to regain somewhere the initiative is doomed to perish as all others attempted during the summer's campaign have done."

The First in History.

Prince Frederick, a Swabian nobleman, was the first Hohenzollern to figure in history. Early in the fifteenth century the Emperor of Rome sent him to subdue a revolt in Brandenburg.

Trouble About a Pig.

A councillor of the French court of appeals who is also connected with the management of a military hospital, authorized the purchase of a suckling pig which should be nourished on the kitchen wastes. The little pig had the run of the hospital yard. He was of a sportive disposition and the hospital inmates called him Little Bacon. One day the director of municipal hygiene wrote to the councilor that for sanitary reasons the little porker must be removed. The councilor thereupon offered the pig to the presiding judge of the local tribunal. Two soldiers put the pig in a wheel chair to take it to the judge. Some days later the councilor received from the office of the military health service a letter informing him that he had no right to dispose of the precious animal, but that it must be returned to the hospital. In great haste, the councilor went to see his friend, the president. He was met by a frightful spectacle. Little Bacon lay upon the sod in the judge's garden, the throat cut from ear to ear. The grunting and squealing of the pig had disturbed the slumber of the judge and he had decreed its death. The councilor wrote immediately to the military health office that he could not produce the pig. He received in answer: "You have carried away a pig, and I shall prosecute you." Between the military and the civil authorities what was he to do? He decided to obey the orders of the army. He repaired to the open market, bought a suckling pig of a farmer from Beauce and led it with great pomp to the hospital. The successor to Little Bacon is of a sombre and crabbed humor. He seeks solitude and raises the most ferocious grumblings. The soldiers have named him the Crown Prince.—Le Cri de Paris.

FOR THE GOLFERS.

"Never tee a ball in a bunker without asking your opponent to turn his head," cautions a golf expert.

"It is an indication of hopeless provincialism for anybody to deride the game of golf nowadays," says a local devotee who in season is never happy off the links at Auburn. "This sport has taken such firm hold upon all classes, has become so general and its popularity is so permanently grounded that the gibes and old wheezes no longer have force. It is a sport that demands the best brain and muscle that can be put into it."

TORONTO is CONVINCED

ARE you open to conviction? The Grand Opera season in Toronto gave music lovers an opportunity to prove the astounding claims made for the New Edison, and in a word—Toronto is convinced. Chalmers' magnificent baritone, and Zenatello's tenor that knows but one equal, carried away the audience. Then, with the glory of these voices still fresh in mind, many accepted Edison's invitation to hear the same singers on the NEW EDISON—a pitiless test—but

THOMAS CHALMERS, famous baritone of the Boston Opera, singing in direct comparison with Edison's Re-Creation of his voice. Mr. Chalmers is but one of the many great artists who have thus proved that Edison's new art successfully sustains the pitiless test of this astounding comparison. Hear Edison's Re-Creation of Chalmers' magnificent voice; then hear Chalmers himself when this great baritone is on tour.

THE RE-CREATION WAS PERFECT

THINK what it means! You have the opportunity to hear really great music rendered by the elect, but a few times in a year, then only at great expense and often at great inconvenience. With Edison's invention in your home, you have the finest renderings right at your command whenever you will.

Instead of inviting your friends to your box at the opera, you bring them to your home, where in comfort you give them the perfect re-creation of the voices of Chalmers, Zenatello, Anna Case, Emmy Destinn, Margaret Matzenauer, Marie Rappold, Alice Verlet, and a hundred other operatic stars—the masterly violin bowing of Albert Spalding, Carl Flesch, and the whole range of the world's best artists.

The NEW EDISON

THE GIFT OF GIFTS

AND what better time to introduce this instrument into your home than now—now, the season of gifts, and the problem solved—what shall be given to the family? The mere price of the instrument is but small acknowledgment to Edison of his gift to humanity for all time to come. Hear the New Edison first, then decide to act at once.

ZENATELLO, who has recently been knighted by the King of Italy. "A voice of golden tone, prodigal in its expenditure, yet responsive to every emotional shade." Zenatello shares first rank as a tenor with Caruso.

COME AND LET US SHOW YOU THIS LATEST MIRACLE OF EDISON'S GENIUS

WE extend to you an open invitation to hear Edison's Re-Creations of the voices of Chalmers, Zenatello and other artists you may choose. Your request will imply no obligations to buy and we can assure you of a delightful surprise if you have mentally pictured Edison's invention as "just another talking machine."

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

TREMAINE—IRWIN

At Trinity Church parsonage on Tuesday evening, by the Rev. J. P. Wilson, Wm. J. Tremaine, of Peterborough, and Mary Jane, daughter of Mr. Robert Irwin, of Millbrook, were united in marriage. The couple were unattended.

HANBIDGE—DAWSON

On Wednesday, Dec. 6, a very pleasing event took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Dawson, South Monaghan, when their only daughter, Hazel E., was united in marriage to Mr. George B. Hanbidge of Otonabee.

At high noon the bridal party, unattended, entered the drawing room to the strains of a popular wedding march, played by Miss Myrtle Sargeant, and took their positions under an arch of evergreens, which was decked with flags and Christmas Chimes.

The bride having been presented by her father for marriage, the ceremony was performed by Rev. W. T. Wickett of Fraserville, in the presence of about thirty immediate friends of the bride and groom.

While congratulations were being extended, Mrs. H. Taylor, a sister of the groom, sang "Orange Blossoms."

The bride looked charming attired in silk carmuese trimmed with Georgette crepe, and wore a conventional veil, which was caught up with sweet heart roses.

Shortly after the ceremony breakfast was announced and the happy company were ushered into the spacious dining room, which was artistically decorated in pink and white, with cut flowers for the table.

Under the able amanagement of Hooper & Son of Peterborough, assisted by four young lady friends of the bride and groom, the catering was all that could be desired, and after all had partaken of the bounties of a sumptuous wedding breakfast, the company engaged in a unique and very pleasant experience of proposing the toast to the bride, to which the groom made suitable reply, but all endorsed congratulations, tendered by Rev. Mr. Wickett to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hanbidge, parents of the groom, who celebrated the forty-fifth anniversary of their wedding that day.

In due time the young couple made preparations for an extensive trip, the bride wearing a travelling suit of navy blue serge, trimmed with Persian lamb, with large black hat and Persian lamb furs to match.

The presents gave evidence of the popularity and esteem in which the bride is held by her friends, as they were both numerous and costly.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Hanbidge will reside in Otonabee.

DUGGAN—WHEATING

Rev. R. G. Peever, B.D., united in marriage Daisy, daughter of Chief Dan Wheating of Chemong and Robert Duggan, of Selwyn, at the George Street Church parsonage last evening. The young couple were attended by Allen Taylor and Miss Angeline Tobee.

Doris, Sophia St., conener, is being ably assisted by Mrs. W. J. Leahy and Mrs. Perry, supervisors of the dining hall, and Mrs. Christopher and Mrs. D. McGrath, supervisors of the grill room. Britain's Reply to Germany

Reparation Must be Made and Security Ensured, Bonar Law's Statement in House of Commons---New Demands to be Made on Greece --- Admiralty Considering Arming of Merchant Ships

ENTENTE ALLIES WILL REQUIRE ADEQUATE REPARATION FOR PAST AND SECURITY FOR THE FUTURE

Bonar Law's Statement in the House of Commons---Daily Average Expenditure for War $2,500,000---New Vote Provides for an Additional 1,000,000 Men for Army Service.

ADMIRALTY IS CONSIDERING ARMING OF MERCHANT SHIPS

Allies Fully Alive to Situation in Greece and will Present Demands-- Blockade of Ports Not State of War.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Dec. 14.—Andrew Bonar Law, Chancellor of the Exchequer, announced in the Commons this afternoon that the daily average expenditure of Great Britain in the war has risen to twenty-eight and one-half million dollars a day. He said the actual expenditure had exceeded the estimate owing to the increase in munitions and additional loans to the Allies and the Dominions.

He said no proposals for peace had yet been received by the Government. He added that the Entente Allies required adequate reparation for the past and adequate security for the future.

CREDITS TO DATE TOTAL $19,250,000,000

The Chancellor of the Exchequer said the amount of the votes of credit since the war outbreak was $19,250,0000,000. The Chancellor said: "We cannot go on indefinitely on the present scale, but we can go on long enough to make sure that it will not be from financial causes if we fail to secure victory."

PEACE PROPOSAL NOT RECEIVED

LONDON, Dec. 14.—In moving a credit for two billion dollars in the Commons today Bonar Law decided to confine his speech entirely to the financial side of the war, and it is expected the debate will be along the same line.

The German peace proposal had not been received at the Foreign Office this morning, but, as it is understood to be merely formal, containing no terms, consultation of the Entente Allies regarding it is expected to be purely formal.

ANOTHER MILLION OF MEN

LONDON, Dec. 14.—A supplementary estimate issued provides for an additional one million men of all ranks for the army service during the present financial year. The original estimate was for four million men.

ARM SHIPS OF COMMERCE

LONDON, Dec. 14.—Hon. Thos. Macnamara, financial under secretary for the Admiralty, announced that the Admiralty had under earnest consideration the matter of arming merchant ships.

Lord Robert Cecil told the House that the Allies were fully alive to the unsatisfactory situation in Greece and were about to present certain demands to the Greek Government with the object of clearing it up.

A complete blockade of Greek ports, he said, did not imply a state of war between the Allies and Greece.

When the city severed relations with the county in 1860 the town held an interest in the Court House property and it is vested in the commissioners of the City Trust.

FINE MARSHALL HEATON NON-COMMITTAL ON THE FREQUENCY OF BIG FIRES

Investigation Into Fire at Quaker Oats Company's Plant Will be Opened Here Next Wednesday Morning.

Provincial Fire Marshall E. P. Heaton will open an investigation into the Quaker Oats Company's fire in the City Council Chamber next Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock. Crown Attorney Hatton will look after the interests of the Government at the inquiry.

This was the decision reached by the fire marshall this morning after considering all the details at hand.

Mr. Heaton realised more than anyone else the great strain that the local officers of the company are under and he wished to facilitate in every way the removal of the bodies from the ruins of the mill

Another matter that delays the inquiry until Wednesday is the coroner's inquest, which will be held on Tuesday night, and at which the Crown Attorney will be engaged.

The Fire Marshall left this afternoon for Toronto, leaving the work of preparing the evidence in the hands of Special Investigator A. H. Dickey, who will be assisted by Provincial Inspector John Miller and City Detectives Newhall and Meagher.

Is Non-Committal

Remarking about the frequency of fires and their probable origin, and also the fact that the number had increased alarmingly since the war, Mr. Heaton stated that the circumstances surrounding each case were different and had to be treated individually. He would not commit himself as to the probable cause of the Quaker Oats fire.

When asked about the position of the companies holding the heavy insurance, he stated that it was very difficult to get at as a large part of the insurance was held by unlicensed companies.

Combustion Not Unusual

As to the reported frequency of small fires and explosion at the plant of the Quaker Oats, the fire marshall would only say that combustion was a common occurrence in the plants of milling companies.

Body of Wm. H. Mesley Recovered This Afternoon.

Searchers at the ruins of the Quaker Oats Company this morning found the body of James Foster, who was numbered among the missing. The body was taken from the wreckage of the boiler room. He was born in England 64 years ago. The family home is at 634 Union Street. Four of six sons are enlisted. They are James, Matthew and William with English regiments, and John who enlisted with the 8th C.M.R. The two younger boys at home are George and Thomas. Four sons-in-law also enlisted. Pte. C. The body of W. H. Mesley was recovered from the fire ruins about 2 o'clock this afternoon. It was taken out at the east end of the boiler room. There were no burns on the body and the clothes were intact. There was no trouble in identification.

The deceased lived at 247 Wescott street. There are two sons and six daughters, besides his widow.

The girls were all employed by the company. Ernie Mesley, a son, was a member of the original 2nd Battalion, and wounded so badly that he returned to Canada. He is now employed in the post office.

KINGSTON, Dec. 14.—Arrangements are already under way for Barriefield camp next summer and the military authorities do not intend that there should be any impediment to an early or large camp. Lieut.-Col. Ackerman left at noon today for duty at headquarters in Kingston. He will be back on Saturday.

Pte. Harry Fagg, 275 Sherbrooke St., is the latest man to sign up with the 247th.

The 247th hockey team had their first practice in the rink this afternoon.

KINGSTON AFTER THE QUAKER OATS PLANT

Kingston's effort to land the Quaker Oats plant started in earnest yesterday when Francis King, president of the Board of Trade, wrote to the company pointing out the many adthe company of every support if it ventages of Kingston and assuring the company of every support if it decided to locate here, says the Standard. Whether the company will abandon Peterborough has not been decided, but Kingston has a fine chance to land the plant if there is a change of location.

THE WISE MEN'S GIFTS.

WHEN THE THREE WISE MEN of the East were drawn by the light of their science to the manger-cradle in Bethlehem, they laid gifts at the feet of the One Whom they believed had been born to accomplish great deeds in this world. The day we are so soon to celebrate marks the nativity of a Child of royal lineage but born in lowly surroundings. Christmas is peculiarly the holiday of the children. The example of the magi should be followed and the children furnished with substantial reasons to remember the event which means so much to them.

The wise men bestowed their gifts where they were required and did most good. The star that had guided them on their long journey to the stable in Judea marked to their cultured minds a new era in the history of the world. It was an event to be celebrated, but they did not lavish their treasure upon those who did not need it and who would not appreciate it if they had received it.

The example set by the wise men should be followed especially in this year of stress. The first Christams Day brought joy and new hope to the world. Every anniversary should be an occasion for bringing happiness to someone, for lightening some burden, helping some unfortunate. The wives and children of the men who are fighting the Empire's battles are at this season peculiarly the wards of the citizens of Peterborough. It will be a lonely Christmas at best for those whose husbands and fathers and sons are in the trenches in Flanders. Something should be done to brighten the holiday far them. Captain Burnham started a move in this direction and, practical as ever, contributed $50 to be used in entertaining the dependents of the soldiers. It is up to the reception committee to do the rest.

Probably there will be an exchange of gifts as usual, a custom which entails hardship and often means running into debt, or self-denial in some form, for those who observe it. Let Christmas generosity be as free as ever, let the holiday trade flourish as usual, but let the gifts be bestowed where they will bring the true Christmas cheer. The children of the poor should not be denied the trifles that are dear to the hearts of childhood. One Child, the most illustrious ever born since the world began, received rich gifts, and pagan astrologers humbly worshipped at His cradle.

WHERE HARMONY PREVAILED.

ONE OF THE MOST deplorable results of the Quaker Oats fire is the severance of relations between the company and their employes, relations which have always been model in every particular. All during the progress of the fire and since there has not been heard from the workmen in the destroyed factory anything but expressions of regret for the loss that the company were called upon to sustain. There was no attempt made to fix the responsibility for the tragedy upon anyone. It was everywhere regarded as something that was unavoidable.

The Quaker Oats plant with its half thousand or more employes was an entire community in itself, a community in which interests were mutual and where good feeling prevailed. Mr. Denham, in a public announcement thanks his employes for their faithful services, and the latter can reciprocate by recognizing the liberality and consideration with which they were always treated. If an entire village had been wiped out, the catastrophe would have been worse than that of Monday only to the extent that the people would be homeless as well as out of steady and desirable employment.

GERMANY SHOWS ITS HAND.

WHEN THE GERMAN Chancellor read in the Reichstag his note to the neutral powers, in which peace with the Allies is suggested, he threw his cards face up upon the table. His real object was not to end the war, but to appease those among his own people who are getting tired of the trouble. He would have them believe that those in authority would end the war if they could, while they have not the slightest doubt that, if it is carried on, final and complete triumph will come to the Teutonic army. The Chancellor mendaciously asserts that the war was forced upon his empire. To make that lie stick is the only hope the ruling powers in Germany have to retain the support of the masses.

The note as a diplomatic utterance is a fine sample of stupidity, intermingled with a trifle of craft. Any hopes that the Allies may have had that anything was likely to come out of it have been frustrated. It must be remembered, however, that the first suggestion of peace comes from a proud nation that two years ago imagined itself equal to the task of conquering the world. If Germany is now forced to climb down from her pedestal, her object is to retain a semblance of dignity while making the descent. If the Allies would make any advances toward negotiations, it is impossible to say what Germany would offer further in the way of concessions.

The peace note to the neutral nations is significant in th[illegible]. It shows that Germany realizes that she has been halted in her world-conquering campaign. No one for a moment believes that if the Kaiser had any hope of conquering France and overrunning England, he would stop even for a moment to talk of peace. He is defeated and knows it. Even if he could succeed in prolonging the war by holding his own or yielding ground slowly he would fall short of achieving the purpose he had in mind when he signed the fateful order mobilising his troops. Why, then, should he not be ready to quit if he could do so without a change in the status of his empire and with his own position as ruler unchallenged?

When a labor organization send in an ultimatum to their employers, it is not unusual for them to make demands that are unreasonable. The employers, too, may reply with a belligerency which they do not feel, but both sides believe in keeping up a bold front, realizing that before the dispute is adjusted each will be called upon to give away concessions.

Germany is making a brave attempt to maintain her dignity in this crisis. What she is really willing to admit and surrender will never be known until her case is threshed out by an impartial peace council.

During the Boer War President Kruger called upon the United States to intervene, but President McKinley's offers of mediation were rejected by the British. President Roosevelt brought peace to Russia and Japan, accomplishing by arbitration what the two powers were shedding rivers of blood to achieve. Some of the most signal victories of the world have been scored by statesmen in the council chamber, not by the heroes on the battlefield.

COMPENSATION FOR THE INJURED.

THE WORKMEN'S Compensation Act, which was framed by Chief Justice Meredith after several years of careful investigation, and which was given effect by the late Sir James Whitney, really amounts to State insurance for those who most require it, the wage-earners of the Province. It is a matter which should be dealt with by the various Legislatures and not by the Dominion Parliament. The Liberal party, which has adopted State insurance as a part of their platform, will find themselves forestalled in this as in other social reforms which they take up as part of their creed.

ANOTHER YEAR OF WAR.

IF THE WAR runs through its third year, the total expenditure, at the present rate of outlay, will for all the nations involved amount to the incalculable sum of eighty billion dollars. The number of dead and permanently disabled will be in the neighborhood of twelve millions, or one and one-half times the present population of Canada. And then the Germans may not be decisively and finally beaten, even if the Allies' present rate of progress is exceeded.

Gen. Hindenburg has boasted that the Allies cannot break through his line in thirty years. That claim is beyond all doubt a blatant exaggeration, but there is at least a slight foundation upon which to base it. Six months ago, when the drive began with such marked effect, the hope was cherished in this country that the German battle line would crumple, and collapse and that the Allies would march triumphantly to Berlin. When Roumania entered the war the event was hailed as one of cheering omen to the cause, and yet Roumania's participation has meant only new disaster. The situation is serious indeed. Little wonder that the British look to Canada for recruits and to the manufacturers in this country for munitions. Can nothing in honor be done to stem this ghastly tide of slaughter and desolation?

Viscount Grey, ex-Minister of Foreign Affairs in the British Cabinet, publicly endorsed the idea of an international court to prevent war by making compulsory the arbitration of disputes between powers. Why could not that principle be applied now, as it has been before, to bring to an end a war that is actually in progress?

There is little hope for this in the present spirit of the nations interested. Nothing like an inconclusive peace is to be considered, and the cry is that peace can never be realized until Germany is crushed into weakness. Britain has set her hand to a titanic task, but there is yet no sign of faltering.

THE DEGREE OF PREPAREDNESS.

OCCASIONALLY a pacifist raises his voice against military preparedness and argues that the present was was possible because the nations were ready. We fear that all such have lost the point. The war was thrust upon Europe by the Kaiser because he was convinced that the powers he proposed to crush were not prepared to the degree attained by himelf.

Nations prepared or nations disarmed is the world's only hope of a universal and lasting peace.

"Snub Not."

(British Weekly.)

Snub not. If you wish to be thoroughly hated, if you wish to be remembered for evil, if you wish to be a social blight, if you wish to drive from you all confidence, all affection, all sympathy, if you wish to lose the key of the hearts of others, then cultivate the art of snubbing. If you wish to get confidence and to win confidence, if you desire that some few should affectionately remember you when you are gone, if you wish to be delivered from the curse of a solitary existence—Snub not.

CAMPAIGN OPENS TO RAISE SIX MILLIONS FOR PATRIOTIC FUND

The officers of the Canadian Patriotic Fund are greatly elated over the encouraging outlook for the Fund in Ontario in 1917 owing to the generous action of the County Councils of Simcoe, Victoria and Dufferin at the fall sessions recently held. The decision of these councils marks the real beginning of the campaign which will reach its climax in January and February to raise at least six millions in this province in 1917. As this is a million dollars more than was subscribed for 1916, it has been felt by the Fund authorities that much of the success of the campaign would depend on the increase of the grants made by the county councils.

The three counties which have already acted have done so well and shown so generous an example that the chances of attaining the desired sum are now considered greatly improved.

Simcoe, which in the past has left the support of the Fund largely to the township and town councils, has decided to make a general levy in the whole county for the purposes of the Fund. This implies taxing not only the rural districts, but such important centres as Orillia, Collingwood, Barrie and Midland. The sum to be given is $10,000 a month, making the fine aggregate of $120,000 in the year. This is a large increase over 1916, and the county councillors, by unanimously supporting the grant, have shown not only their appreciation of the Fund, but their political courage, for naturally the majority of them will be offering for re-election in January and will have to justify their action before their constituents. But more than this, the Simcoe councillors expressed the hope that the voluntary grants by individuals and organizations would be continued. The county grant represents 2½ mills on the dollar.

Victoria, a county much smaller in wealth and population, has also excelled itself, and has raised its contribution from $2500 a month to $5,000, or a total fo $60,000 in the year. This means a tax of three mills on the dollar. It is a noble grant, and places Victoria well up in the front rank of Ontario counties for generous giving, as it is for recruiting.

Dufferin in the year 1916 gave $500 a month. It has decided to quadruple this for 1917, and will give $2000 a month—a splendid increase.

The Fund's campaign has certainly started with a bang!

MARRIAGE A BUSINESS CONTRACT?

(Laura Jean Libby.)

Given a peaceful, loving husband who does not raise a hue and cry at paying honest, needful household expenses, most any woman ought to be able to make a happy home for the man who has chosen her. When discontent arises, who's to blame? Why, both, assuredly, for not having a heart to heart talk before marriage concerning the home that is to be set up. Of all times in his life this is the occasion for a man to be frank. It is dangerous for him to blindfold the woman he is to wed by concealing his exact income and outside expenditures. If he evades that subject he is pretty apt to play hide and seek in dodging the money problem all the rest of his life. He has to keep her in the dark as to where his money is at the present going.

If a man enters partnership with another man in business he would have to show clearly every detail connected with it. Marriage is a contract equally binding and more serious. Every wife has a right to know just how her husband stands in regard to his income.

There should be an understanding before marriage as to just how much he is willing to expend for the upkeep of a home. The home includes the wife's personal expenses, her clothes and other feminine adjuncts. Cash to meet these expenses of the wife should be handed out to her as regularly as to the bookkeeper in the office. What would any workingman think of the employer who gave him his wages in dribs? How long would he work for him if he had to beg and plead for it? That is the pitiful condition in which some men place their wives. A husband should realise that a wife puts as much into the business of homemaking as he does. She dowers him with her youth, her love, her hopes and the womanly qualities which make earth an Eden for a man. Not one wife in a thousand would think of asking her husband for the hard dollars her service is worth to him.

Husbands are few and far between who are thoughtful enough to hand money to their wives, calling it pin money or spending money or whatever fancy name they like. Yet every man owes it to his wife. It is a bona fide debt, be she head housekeeper for her rich husband or kitchenette worker for a laboring man. The question of money causes more friction and unhappiness in households than the dwindling of fervent love into friendship ever could. No doubt the husband is a well meaning man, intending to do what is right, but he overlooks the principal problem in wedlock.

"E. L." writes:

"A gentleman has been calling on me for the last six months. By mere chance the subject of ages was touched upon. I admitted to being 25. To my surprise he declared himself to be 22, though he looks years older. He remarked that he 'had no idea I was as old as that,' and somehow he has seemed to be quite cool toward me ever since. He is an only son. Did I make an uncorrectable blunder in telling him the truth? How can I counteract the mischief done? Would you advise me to tell him I was only fooling about being so old and set myself a year or so younger than he? I was born in France and he could never find out I was fibbing."

It is not best or wise to fool a man in regard to your true age. Many men have wedded women a few years older than themselves and never regretted it. If it is to make a difference in his admiration for you it is best to find it out now than later. The man or woman who really loves is not troubling over the matter of age.

Twenty Years Ago

From The Review of Dec. 14, 1896:

Even in 1896 members of Council advocated the holding of municipal nominations in the evening to give the voters a chance to take part. No change has been made, although the agitation dates back two decades.

The cost of living does certainly climb. A local hotel-keeper sold liquor on Sunday and was fined $40. Today such a breach of the liquor law would cost him at least $200!

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

Many a man walks around on his uppers because he is unable to run into debt.

And many a girl marries the wrong man because the right one failed to propose.

Some men are born small, some shrink and some others never find out how small they really are.

If our good intentions could only be used for paving material in this world, what a saving for the taxpayers!

HOMER McKEE'S PRAYER

We do not know who Homer McKee may happen to be, but certainly Homer McKee's Prayer, as published in the August Bulletin by the Kansas State Board of Health is something that would be worth while for all of us to consider, and if we commit the principle to heart we can not go far astray. Here it is:

Teach me that sixty minutes make an hour, sixteen ounces one pound, and one hundred cents one dollar.

Help me to live so that I can lie down at night with a clear conscience, without a gun under my pillow, and unhaunted by the faces of those to whom I have brought pain.

Grant, I beseech Thee, that I may earn my meal ticket on the square, and in doing this or that I may not stick the gaff where it does not belong.

Deafen me to the jingle of tainted money and the rustle of unholy skirts.

Blind me to the faults of the other fellow, but reveal to me my own.

Guide me so that each night when I look across the dinner table at my wife, who has been a blessing to me, I will have nothing to conceal.

Keep me young enough to laugh with my children and to lose myself in their play.

And then when comes the smell of flowers and the tread of soft steps and the crushing of the hearse's wheels in the gravel out in front of my place, make the ceremony short and the epitaph simple:

HERE LIES A MAN.

TRIALS OF THE TENDER HEARTED

Never before has the problem of how to be happy though charitable so depressed the kind hearted citizen as in this Christmas season of 1916. The average resident of this city gazes daily upon his morning mail with apprehension knowing that both his heart strings and his purse strings will be painfully pulled by the letters confronting him. How his name came to find itself upon so many lists of charitable organisations, war relief funds, societies for the mitigation of innumerable kinds of misery is a mystery he cannot solve. Not a day passes that he is not reminded from many philanthropic sources that it is his bounden duty to relieve himself at once of any superfluous balance he may happen to possess at his bank.

The number of entertainments to which he is asked to purchase tickets seems to increase apace. Charity in this unprecedented period appears to cover an immense multitude of hitherto unexploited fields, and to possess avenues of approach to the kind hearted hitherto unsuspected. The contemplated addition of the prize ring to the territory recently conquered by the philanthropic illustrates the increasing difficulty that the generously disposed citizen finds in making his income conform to his charitable inclinations.

That it is more blessed to give than to receive it is difficult to deny, but there should be room in the gentle hearts of the philanthropic alms collectors of Peterborough for some pity for and sympathy with the sad eyed citizen who, both at his home and his place of business, finds himself daily overwhelmed by appeals for aid that he cannot afford to vouchsafe. The high cost of living is not conducive to holiday hilarity, but its burden is greatly increased to the vast majority of the people of Peterborough by the realization that they cannot, in justice to their families, contribute to all the charitable projects, local, national and international, that are now imploring assistance from them.

BRITISH RAISED AN ARMY OF OVER 5,000,000 MEN WITH WONDERFUL SPEED

IT is now possible to take stock of the development of the British fighting forces since the war began. Britain's contribution to the army, official figures show, has reached a total of six million men. In August 1914 the regular army, on mobilization, amounted to 450,000 men, including reserves and special reserves (the old Militia); and Lord Haldane's Territorial Force, trained to a very high degree, though not so thoroughly as the regular soldier, and only liable for home defence, added 250,000 more—an army in the aggregate of 700,000. But over 100,000 of these regulars were allocated to India and other foreign stations.

In a single day after the declaration of the war, 30,000 recruits were attested—the number provided for in a whole years of peace. The War Office machinery, at first quite inadequate, survived the avalanche, and adapted itself to the new heaven and the new earth, as everything else had to do. Members of Parliament and provincial business men were called in to help, or came in without being called; military officers who had lived in a world of their own found themselves suddenly attempting to communicate with civilians from quite another world.

What astonished the efficient civilians most in those early times was the daily snowstorm of pay sheets and forms of all kinds which descended upon them, unlike manna, from London. The 500 paid officials who were snowed under by those documents at the beginning of the war have since been increased to 7,000. In the fifth week of the war 250,000 men presented themselves for the army or the territorial force, and of that number 175,000 were passed into the regulars.

A central organization, equipped to feed, house, clothe, arm, drill, and instruct an army, at the most, of 700,000 men was confronted, a few weeks after the declaration of war, with an army of about a million and a half, and winter was at hand. Appalled by the apparent impossibility of getting huts and clothes and boots, to say nothing of rifles, ready in time for all who were demanding them, the War Office on September 11, five weeks after the opening of the war, deliberately checked recruiting by raising the standards. The expedient was all too successful. It had not occurred to the War Office then to put the superfluous recruits into reserve groups, from which they might be called as they were required. Recruiting rapidly fell off, and at the same time—everybody imagining that the country had enlisted as many soldiers as it would need—the voice of the parrot was heard in the land repeating everywhere "Business as usual." This had an injurious influence, and the great slump in voluntary recruiting ensued. The standard for recruits was lowered again in the second month of the war, and the age limit was extended, but the mischief was not to be so easily undone.

Recruiting was now entrusted in a much larger degree to the civilian organizations, and the Parliamentary Recruiting Committee canvassed 8,000,000 heads of households on their duty to contribute to the military strength of the country.

Under the National Registration Act, passed in July, 1915, all the men and women in the United Kingdom between the ages of 16 and 65 were registered, with all the information concerning them necessary for recruiting and industrial purposes.

Then took place "the last great recruiting rally for the voluntary system." The new feature of this last rally was Lord Derby's group system, under which, in the space of two months, 2,250,000 men attested under the group system, and in addition it added over 275,000 men immediately to the army. At Great Scotland Yard 2,300 recruits were dealt with in one day, and 6,200 in the [illegible] days of the scheme.

It was found by the Government, however, that an appreciably large number of single men of military age had neither attested nor enlisted, and accordingly, in January of the present year, Mr. Asquith introduced his Military Service Bill to conscript the unmarried, and it became law. A similar measure in respect of the married followed soon after, and by May 25 all men of military age in Great Britain had been made liable to be called into the army.

We know that before compulsion was introduced over 5,000,000 men in the United Kingdom had voluntarily come forward to fight the enemy. It is not known to the public how many have been added by conscription, but the British army is now spoken of in well-informed quarters as an army of at least six million men. Taking everything into account, it may be claimed with confidence that no other country has ever made or is making now a greater war effort than is being put forth in these times by Great Britain.

All the above figures relate to the United Kingdom only, and take no account of the magnificent contribution in men and money of the Overseas Dominions.

Sikh Boy Won Fame.

The story of Sirdarn Bahadar Ram Singh, whose death occurred recently, is that of a Sikh boy, born in humble circumstances, who rose to honor and distinction by his own merit and endeavor and who remained, in spite of that distinction, unspoiled, a kind-hearted, modest, genuine man to the end, "I.J." writes in The Indiaman. Ram Singh, as a lad, attracted the attention of Lockwood Kipling, father of Rudyard Kipling, and under the auspices of the famous Anglo-Indian artist the young son of a Punjabi cultivator became almost equally widely known as a designer. Later he succeeded to Mr. Kipling's post as principal of the Mayo School of Art at Lahore. In 1891 Ram Singh was ordered to proceed to England to design and supervise the decorations of the Dunbar Hall at Osborne house. The new room was to be in Indian style, and the work was executed with remarkable beauty and effect. The Queen took great personal interest in the work during its progress, and much admired it on completion. Ram Singh might have obtained many commissions in England after that, but he was a singularly unambitious, modest man. He loved his work, but in the strange surroundings he was often homesick, and in 1892 he returned to the Punjab with the treasured possession of the silver cup given to him by Queen Victoria.

STORING FOODS.

Hints How to Keep Vegetables Fresh All Winter.

EXPERT GIVES THIS ADVICE.

Most House Cellars May Be So Manipulated That They Give Good Storage to the Commonest Tubers—Just How to Make the Pit.

There are three important considerations in connection with the placing of vegetables in storage. The vegetables themselves should be of good quality, free from disease or bruises; they must not be put in too early or piled so that any heating will take place, and they must not be subjected to an atmosphere which is so dry that it will cause wilting and thereby spoil their quality. It is possible for the home gardener to keep root crops, potatoes, cabbage and squash for months in most house cellars with the exercise of some precautions, even where a cool cellar is not provided.

Vegetables should be stored as far away from the heater as possible, excepting in cellars where freezing occurs. If there is a cement floor it is best to pack the root crops in boxes or barrels and cover the top with clean sand or sifted soil in which there is not much organic matter. A covering of about two inches is sufficient. In case either the commercial grower or the home gardener lacks a storage place there is an alternative which is available to almost every one who has a garden. This is the vegetable "pit." The essentials are a well drained piece of land conveniently located and some material to cover the pit after cold weather comes.

The crops which can be successfully handled in this way are beets, carrots, parsnips, turnips, winter radishes, salsify, horseradish and cabbages. The outdoor vegetable pit is made in the following manner: On the spot selected measure off a space three or four feet wide and as long as desired. Plan to have the pit extend north and south. The soil should be removed eight to twelve inches deep the width of the pit and one-half of the earth thrown out on either side. The bottom of the pit should be made level and the sides cut straight down. The root crops are then piled on the ground the full width of the excavation and brought to a ridge about two and a half feet deep at the center. Rarely will the home gardener need a pit more than six or eight feet long, and it is wisdom for him to mix roots stored so that all sorts can be obtained at one end.

The commercial grower will do well to use the pit for each kind of vegetable stored. The roots should not be piled before the weather is cool. They should be dry and covered with about two inches of soil to prevent frost injury or wilting. As the weather grows colder and preferably after the first soil covering has frozen nearly to the vegetables more covering should be applied to a thickness of two to four inches. It is well to obtain this soil alongside of the pit in such a way that good drainage will be assured. After more cold weather additional covering of straw, meadow hay, leaves or similar good protective material is added.

PARISIAN MODEL.

How the French Are Turning Out Fall Turbans.

Turbans were never so modish. Draped, brimless, tall and squatty, they suit all kinds of faces. This one is of black velvet, a tall tam crown over a narrow banding. The only trimming is a silvery "fancy."

TOWERING EFFECT.

Renovating an Old Rug.

An excellent method of freshening up an old carpet is to scrub with the following mixture: Shave a pound of good white soap, put into a gallon of boiling water and stir over the fire until completely dissolved. Take from the range and stir well, then leave for half an hour to cool. At the end of that time add half an ounce of sulphuric ether, an ounce of alcohol, two ounces of ammonia, an ounce and a half of powdered borax and let the whole stand for twenty-four hours. Use this for scrubbing, then rinse well with cold water applied with a sponge and rub fairly dry with a rough cloth. This not only cleans the rug, but brightens up the colors.

Orange colored net, richly trimmed with spangles, gives this gorgeous evening gown. The trimming runs up the left side of the skirt, forms an apron effect across the front and makes epaulets. Velvet flowers trail over the skirt from the girdle.

BEAUTIFUL LINES.

NEW HANDBAGS.

The Kinds That Hold You Spellbound This Fall.

There are so many hand bags of velvet and silk and satin this autumn that we almost lose sight of the leather ones. Yet there are some very smart leather ones to be seen in the shops, and with the strictly tailored street suit or for morning use these are the best choice for the well dressed woman.

There are a good many rather small flat bags, almost small enough to be called purses or pocketbooks, made with a strap through which the fingers go rather than a handle. These in patent leather or in black or brown leather are decidedly effective for morning use.

The newest thing, of course, is the beaded bag. It matters not what material is used as an excuse, a background, for the bags. Sometimes it is silk, sometimes velvet. But the beads are the important point.

Fringe of the beads finishes many of these beaded bags, and they are made with silk, ribbon or cords or with silver clasps at the top.

There are some very attractive bags beaded in paisley shawl patterns. These are not strictly a novelty, for they could be found last year, but they have an added attraction this year because beads are in such high favor.

Sometimes floral designs are worked in natural colors on dark blue or black backgrounds. Sometimes the tassels which finish pointed bags are so heavy and big that they almost dwarf the bags. Sometimes bags of crocheted silk thread have heavy crustings of beads. Always the beads predominate.

FACTS ABOUT FRENCH LEGION

The romantic story of Lieutenant-Colonel J. F. Elkington, of the Royal Warwickshire Regiment, whose return to his former rank in the army was the result of his gallantry while serving in the ranks of the French Foreign Legion, has naturally re-aroused interest in that famous corps. The old idea that the Legion is a regiment of wrong-doers is exploded, most of those who compose it joined from pure love of adventure, for it is a regiment that is always on service.

By far the greater part of the men serving in the Foreign Legion are Alsatians and Lorrains, who consider themselves Frenchmen, although they have been born under German rule. It is for this they have enlisted. All Frenchmen who enlist have to produce their papers, and this is often the reason that one finds men on the strength who call themselves Belgians or Italians, when they were born and reared in the Republic.

It is said by competent authorities that the Legion is the finest fighting force the world has ever seen. It is the "Old Guard" of to-day, and its prestige in the French army is wonderful. Its men are regarded by the average poilu with the same awe and wonderment that a child bestows on a tall Guardsman in his busby and full regimentals. In this it is of incalculable benefit to the army of France. It is recruited from men of all ages, and the man who gives his age as 18 is sure to be younger than he says; the man who says he is from 35 to 40 is bound to be older. In England it is held that a man over the age of 45 is a doubtful man to send on foreign service, and yet there are thousands of men in the service of the Legion who are over that age—fighting, marching, and standing hardship better than younger men in other armies.

In his enthralling book on the Legion, Frederic Martyn tells of an ex-bishop, a professor "who was fond of war," a German nobleman, a barrister, and an ex-diplomatist, all of whom served with him. Of Englishmen in the Legion he did not meet more than half a dozen in the whole course of his service. All of them with the exception of two had served in the British army. At the same time the regimental rolls of that time said there were 51 Englishmen and 28 Americans serving then.

There are battalions known as the "Zephyrs." These are the penal battalions, and are as a rule sent to serve in Algeria, or at any rate in some colonial station where life is not a bed of roses. There is a story, too, of a French officer of the regular army who enlisted in the Legion. One day on parade he was noticed by his general and recognized. The general asked him his name and he gave his alias. This the general knew was not his real name, and he pressed him for the truth and got it. He had been an officer under this particular general, and the latter knew that it was not any disgrace that had made him join under another name. He promoted him sergeant on the spot, and soon after from sergeant this man rose to commissioned rank through an act of gallantry.

The Legion has seen a great deal of active service of the most difficult and trying kind, and at one time after the Dahomey campaign they had an aggregate of 75 per cent. of their strength on the casualty list. It is a wonderful corps, and it is not strange that there is an atmosphere of romance connected with it, for it has made many men whole again and given men back that thing that is more precious than life—self respect. In the present war it is keeping up its traditions; it is doing more, it is surpassing itself, and the German troops who meet the men of the Legion in open field are likely to find this true.

Weather Kind to England.

Weather, which is again hampering the operations of our armies, has in all times influenced the course of battles, observes The London Chronicle. Its effect, however, has generally been one-sided, and some past examples form a hopeful precedent. At Crecy, for instance, the "great rain," which Froissart records, rendered useless the bowstrings of the Genoese archers, but the English bows, being kept in cases, were not affected. At Plassey, too, a heavy shower of rain damaged the enemy's powder to such an extent that his fire slackened, and Clive was enabled to avenge the massacre of the Black Hole. Bad weather materially contributed to the failure of Napoleon's expedition against Russia; and the Austrians, in the retreat at Solferino, were saved from annihilation by a hurricane so fierce that, according to the Moniteur of that day, "nothing could any longer be distinguished on the field of battle."

"CANUCK" CITES REASONS WHY ELIGIBLE MEN ARE NEEDED FOR 247TH BATT.

Editor Review: May I be permitted to use your valuable paper as a medium to convey a personal message to the eligible men, and particularly the young men, of Peterborough and surrounding localities?

In the following paragraphs I speak as a young man to others of my class, and hope I may be able to imbue them with the same spirit that actuates myself, to reveal to them the path of duty; to impress upon them the seriousness or gravity of the situation on all fronts, and arouse their chivalry and sense of honor—and they have both— to such a degree that they will feel they cannot longer resist that persuasive appeal of conscience that prompts them to enlist.

In the light of developments in the European theatre of war, in the past week, we must admit our enemies have made important gains. If they can hold in the East what they now have till spring, it is beyond the power of the greatest military critic to foresee what will result from the resumption of their campaign at that time. They have over-run Roumania, conquered Serbia, ravaged and pillaged Belgium, devastated a large portion of France and are today in possession of much of the most fertile and richest mineral territory in the realms of our Allies. They are daily transporting into Germany hundreds, possibly thousands, of helpless, hapless Belgians as slaves, not to labor in the commercial and indutrial vocations of peace times, but to toil in munition plants, turning out missiles and death-dealing projectiles to slay their own kith and kin, who are fighting like heroes to defend them and their national liberties from the pulverising, grinding of the Prussian heel of tyranny.

The heroic sons of Belgium and France, assisted by the intrepid sons of Britain and her Allies, have arrested the German monster in his wild, rapacious career. They hold him fast in a vise-like grip, as he wriggles and squirms to extricate himself, but they can't continue so to do indefinitely. That squelching grasp must relax through sheer depletion of the ranks by casualties inflicted unless you and I speedily discern our duty and rally to their support. Neutral nations are protesting against such appalling outrages. Young men of Peterborough, do you by silence and inaction condone such diabolical treatment of our non-combatant Allies? Can you and I, as men, men with true British blood coursing through our veins, assume an air and attitude of placid indifference, follow our usual money making vocations and agree to permit these outrages to go on unchallenged? No! Certainly not! We as men and Allies must protest, and protest with such vigor that "Billy the Bully" will think an earthquake has struck his throne and it is tottering to an ignominious fall. The best way to manifest our contempt of German Kultur and impress it upon the Kaiser with telling effect, is to don the khaki and play the man at a man's job. Don't leave it for the married men, who have wives and possibly little tots to care for. We are free, no home cares. Let the married men, the ineligible men, the returned soldier, or the women remain at home to manufacture munitions. Let them make the balls and we'll go overseas and fire them. Munition work is a woman's job in Germany; why not here?

It shouldn't be necessary for the young single men to be "button-holed" to enlist. Those now recruiting find it a disagreeable and unpleasant duty, and at the end of a whole day's faithful work possibly only two or three recruits have been attested. Boys, these men have not donned the khaki to go out and accost you on the street, but to train to take the field. They can't train, nor take the field till the ranks are filled, and they won't be filled till you perceive your duty and don the khaki. Your hesitation and indecision hold up the whole machinery of war. No drill; consequence, no assistance to the boys at the front nor defence of the people at home, while all the time the German army, one of conscripts, is kept up to strength and your own hearths endangered.

Can any human words of entreaty arouse you from your lethargy? Boys, if this war is lost the fault is not that of the man in khaki. It's yours. You can't deny the fact. The destiny of Britain and her Allies is in your hands. Our freedom purchased by the life-blood of our forefathers is now maintained by that of your fathers, brothers, or relatives on every front. Our fate, your fate, now hangs in the balance. You, and you alone, are the deciding factor. With awe and suspense we await your decision. Will you be true to your country, your own conscience, and your own brothers and friends now on the firing line, spring into khaki and by immediate action turn the balance in our favor, or will you by careless indifference simply do nothing, fling your blood-bought heritage to the winds and wreck the whole Empire? Young men, an awful responsibility is yours. You have reached the dividing of the ways. Two courses are open to you. Which will you choose? You can either enlist and assist us—your old chums and associates—and your brothers in Europe, to preserve the grand old British Empire intact, or you can remain in mufti, have a good time, earn big money and thus "do your bit" for Germany as effectively as if you were in the German ranks. If you're not for us, boys, you're against us. If against us, you should be interned. Where are you? Are you in your proper place? Recruits should not be numbered by two's and three's each day, but by as many score. You may be going well financially, but do not fail to recognize the fact that possibly you owe your present success to the sacrifice some other fellow made who is now at the front, or on his way, while you hold down his job. If our heritage is worth fighting for, let us hasten to relieve the boys at the front and take them out of the trenches for a rest, at least. Many hands make light work and quick work, so don't, in freedom's name and for humanity's sake clog the wheels of recruiting and military training any longer by your tardiness in signing up with some corps, but the 247th Batt. preferably.

Boys, do you know that if you would only rally to the colors, as young men of snap and vigorous manhood should, we could throw such numbers into the field and bring such pressure to bear on the German lines that they'd soon collapse and this war be ended in a few months. The trouble is, we're trying to do it by a too piece-meal method. We can't use more men than we've got, and at present we can't get men unless they volunteer. If they won't volunteer, conscription is inevitable, for men and still more men we must have. Young men of Peterborough, do you relish the idea of being conscripted. In a nation with voluntary service, a service that appeals to a man's reason, dignity, sense of honor and duty, the conscript is the subject of reproach. He is despised and hated by his volunteer comrades at the front and reviled by the people at home. He is ostracized and even after the war, when he returns to civil life, the stigma, conscript, will remain with him as long as he lives. His own conscience will be his worst and most ruthless accuser, and smite him daily for not having headed its pleadings to volunteer to do his duty, when he could have done so with credit to himself, rather than hesitate, be forced, and lose all claim to the honor of defending his country. The conscript can claim no credit for being in the battle, though he assumes as much risk and endures as much hardship as the volunteer by his side, so come along boys, every young man of good strong physique, who loves honor, justice and British law and liberty, join the 247th Batt. and let us go now and forever crush this German menace out of existence. It can be done. It must and shall be done, and we're the boys that are going to do it. Young man, we want, we need and we solicit your help. Is it ours? Let your name on the service roll be your answer.

CANUCK.

Peterborough, Dec. 14, 1916.

OBITUARY

MRS. TERESA STEWART

One of the most outstanding personalities of Bobcaygeon, in the person of Mrs. Teresa M. Stewart, relict of the late Chas. R. Stewart, passed quietly away at her home on King Street at an early hour Tuesday morning, after a brief illness. The late Mrs. Stewart, who was 79 years of age, was born in Southampton, England, the daughter of Col. Robert Fotheringham of the East India Service Co. She married in England, came to Canada in 1862 and settled in Bobcaygeon first, then in Haliburton and afterwards returning to Bobcaygeon, so that her whole life in Canada has been lived in Bobcaygeon and Haliburton.

MERCIER ON SLAVERY

Belgian Deportations Carefully Exposed and Bravely Denounced.

Cardinal Mercier, in an open letter to the civilized world on behalf of the bishops of Belgium, makes a powerful indictment of the slave gang system of the Germans in Belgium. He says that a protest was addressed by him to General von Bissing, the German commander, and copies were handed to representatives at Brussels of the Holy See, Spain, the United States, and the Netherlands. At that time only men actually out of work were affected, "but now all sound men are taken away without distinction. They are packed into goods trucks and carried off, we do not know where, like a gang of slaves."

After exposing the German treachery in breaking repeated promises and solemn undertakings, and after disproving one by one the lying excuses and explanations offered by the modern slave drivers, Cardinal Mercier says: "The naked truth is this: Every workman taken from Belgium means one soldier more for the German army. He is intended to take the place of the German workman, out of whom a soldier is to be made. So that the situation which we now expose to the civilised world comes to this. Four hundred thousand workmen have fallen victims to unemployment against their will and for the most part as a result of the German regime of occupation. Troops of soldiers force their way into these poor homes, tear the young men from their parents, the husband from his wife, the father from his children. They guard with bayonets the doors through which the wives and mothers desire to run to bid a last farewell to those taken from them."

"LEAVE IT TO HAIG"

Cheerful Wounded Home From the Battlefields

The advance guard of the wounded men who took part in a new push on the Ancre reached Charing Cross and were given a hearty welcome. There were about 100 ambulance cases besides those whose injuries permitted them to sit up and be transported in ordinary motor cars, and they represented many regiments. As the first open car passed into the Strand a bystander inquired of the men inside: "How goes it, boys?"

"Leave it to General Haig," was the reply, given with a smile. "He's the man to lick the Boches." A hundred Red Cross men had everything in readiness when the train steamed into the station, and never were the cases handled with greater rapidity. The men were refreshed with hot drinks and light fare, and within a quarter of an hour were on their way to hospital.

The men in the open motor cars were irrepressible. One of them, a great, burly fighter with a Scottish cap over his bandages, drew a deep breath as he passed out into the station yard. "Good old London!" he exclaimed, and then sank back upon the cushions in infinite contentment.

The official recount in the Moose Jaw bye-election has been postponed until December 15.

OVERLAND CARS READILY FIND SALE IN HOLLAND

The automobiles made here have satisfactory filled the gap in Europe caused by the discontinuance of automobile manufacture by the war, is the opinion of Anton P. M. Ceurvoorst, Overland and Willys-Knight dealer at Amsterdam, Holland, who is also the distributor for these two cars in the land of dikes and windmills.

"Before the war," said Mr. Ceurvoorst, "there were only four makes of foreign automobiles sold in Holland Today scarcely a Canadian or American car lacks representation. "We sold more Overland and Willys-Knight cars during the past year than ever before; in fact, our sales would have been tripled had we been able to get the cars."

Unfortunately, shipping facilities to Holland have been very uncertain. Ninety per cent. of the space on board steamers bound for this country is used by the Dutch Government for its own needs.

"In Holland," continued Mr. Ceurvoorst, "the system of automobile taxation differs from the one in your country. Over there we are taxed according to the bore and stroke of the motor; thus an Overland model 75-B with its motor of 3 3-8 inch bore and 5 inch stroke is taxed $80 per year. The Overland Model 85-Six would cost the same, while the Models 84-B, 86 and 85-Four would all be assessed $100.

"Gasoline, since the war, has become quite an expensive item. Before the war we paid 25c per gallon, but during the past two years the price has doubled. Here is where the economy of all Overland and Willys-Knight cars proves a sale factor that enables us to make more sales.

"Naturally, all cars sell for a great deal more in our country than they do here; for instance, the Model 75-B, the factory price of which is $890, is sold by us for $1,100 without tires.' The Willys-Knight Model 84-B and the Overland Model 86 sell for $2,000 in Canadian money.

"The Willys-Knight car finds a very big market in our country. Unlike the situation in your country, the Knight motor is a very well-known motor in Holland, due to the fact that the Daimler, Minerva, and Panhard, all Knight motored, have found a ready market in Holland. However, all these cars are very expensive, costing from $4,000 to $8,000. Naturally, when we can sell the same sort of a motor in a car for $2,000 we can find a market for it without the slightest difficulty."

Mr. Ceurvoorst estimates that in Holland, a country of six million inhabitants, there are about 7,000 registered automobiles.

TO JUDGE DISTANCE

Many Useful Hints For the Fighting Soldier

Here are a few facts that will help you to judge distances. At thirty yards, assuming that your sight is of the average strength, the white of a man's eye is plainly seen, and the eyes themselves up to eighty yards. At one hundred yards all parts of the body are seen distinctly, slight movements are perceptible, and the details of the dress can be distinguished. At 200 yards the outlines of the face are confused, and rows of buttons look like stripes. At 400 yards the face is a mere dot, but all movements of the legs and arms are still distinct. At 600 yards details can no longer be distinguished. At 800 yards the men in a crowd cannot be counted, nor their individual movements distinguished. At 1,000 yards a line of soldiers resembles a broad belt. At 1,200 yards cavalry can be distinguished from infantry, and at 2,000 yards a mounted man usually appears a mere speck.

FINGER PRINTS THE MOST PERFECT SYSTEM

Has Been Attacked in and Out of the Courts.

Chief Thompson was one of the first of the chiefs of the smaller cities of Ontario to adopt the finger print identification system and it was through being able to identify finger prints on window glass taken from burglarized houses that thieves were finally jailed. Finger prints of all convicted and suspected criminals are sent from Peterborough to the record office at Ottawa.

"The finger-print system for criminals and suspects," he said, "has been savagely attacked both in and out of the courts, and it was a hard fight to get it firmly established. From my knowledge of it, there has never been a mistake made in all of the finger-prints taken in this city, and New York takes more finger-prints of enemies to society than any other city in the world. The crusade against pickpockets has practically driven them from every part of Briadway. I have taken representatives of the world's largest cities up Broadway at all hours of the day and night, and they have told me that they never before saw a great thoroughfare so morally clean as Broadway."

"It is the most perfect system in existence for identifying a criminal," said Chief of Police Thompson this morning when asked his opinion of the system, which has been in use in Peterborough about six years. "It is in use in Scotland Yard and in all the leading countries of the world. It is of the greatest assistance in tracing a criminal. Time changes a man's appearance, rendering a photograph of little use, but finger-prints never change. There has never yet been known an instance where two prints were the same."

Three Labor candidates have been endorsed by the Trades and Labor Council for Kitchener City Council.

HUNS NO MORE JOYOUS

Cheering and Writing of Early Days Replaced by Gloom

A neutral, after spending almost a year in Hunland, has this to say of the German situation: Never, so far as I can gather, in the world's history was there so complete a machine for the suppression of indivdual opinion as the German police. At the beginning of the war, when all seemed to be going well, there was no disunity in Germany. There was practically no censorship of the newspapers; the police were tolerant; every German smiled upon every other German; soldiers went forth singing, and their trains were gaily decorated with oak leaves; Social Democracy praised militarism.

Endless weary months of war have changed all that, and the Mecklenburgers and the other hosts who went singing on their way in the belief that they would be home in six weeks, loaded with loot as in 1870, have left behind homes many of them bereaved by the immense casualties, and all of them suffering from the increasing food shortage.

I have been too often to the war to prophesy. I have read too much of Prussian history to believe in the sudden collapse theory, but through the Dutch and other neutral press I watch with increased interest and keenness the effect of the coming times on the already gloomy spirits of the German peoples.

I warn the allied governments that from information that has reached me since I have been in England they will find more and more difficulty in getting news out of Germany. The German press will give less and less indication of what is going on underneath, but the very silence of the press will be proof of the pressure now exercised by Great Britain, her army and fleet, and those of France, Russia and Italy.

WOMEN OF BRITTANY

Working as Laborers and Mechanics to Support the Home

"I shall never forget my visit to a farm in Brittany run by women," says a Danish woman. "I arrived there in the midst of harvest time. There were very few men, merely a few old ones to whom were given the easiest jobs. Women mowed the grain. No mowing machines, self-binders, or combined harvesters for them, not even horses to bring the crop into the barns. Every heavy golden sheaf was carried home on the shoulders of women or children.

"I have met a young wife, still in her teens, whose husband fought in the inferno at Verdun, the chatelaine of a beautiful chateau and bearer of a name famous in the history of France, working in the fields at the side of her servant girl harvesting the grain of her broad acres. In the chief town of Morbihan I have seen women mechanics of all kinds from blacksmiths to bricklayers. I watched one of these latter carrying on her well poised head a load of mortar, watched her building a wall with the hand of an expert, using her trowel with inimitable grace."

PETERBOROUGH MARKETS

Plenty of hay was offered and sold on the market this week. The good quality brought $11 and the poorer grades to $10 and $10.50.

There is a good demand for feeding oats and the horse owners are paying 65c. The market clerk always has some customers ready for the sellers.

The fowl market is one that the farmer lady should pay considerable attention to. The buyers, who purchased large quantities of fowl, particularly turkeys, are reaping high prices from them from local customers. Bring your fowl to the Peterborough market, which is noted for commanding the highest prices in the province. There will be a good demand on Saturday for every variety of fowl.

The egg and butter market remains unchanged, with the former a little easier for the packed variety. Many of the commission houses have loaded the market with cold storage stock. The price for the real fresh kind is 50c to 52c.

The hog market has shown considerable strength during the week and has jumped another 15 cents, being now quoted at $11.40 for local delivery.

Several loads of choice cattle were shipped to the outside markets this week, the drovers interested being Morris & Brown, Gil Thompson, W. G. Howden and E. Lowes. The cattle were loaded at Lakefield, Indian River and Peterborough.

Jopling & Sons will have a special lot of fine beef for the Christmas market. Seven of the animals to be dressed were specially fed by Galloway Bros., Lifford P. O., Manvers. James Darling is feeding a special calf for the same occasion. B

Wednesday of next week will be a market day in order to get over the rush of Christmas Saturday.

THE WAR IN AFRICA

FACTS ABOUT COUNTRY IN WHICH COLONIALS ARE NOW FIGHTING.

When the Canadian public reads that the troops of the Belgian Kongo have defeated the colonial troops of German East Africa at Shangugu and that the visitors are proceeding southward from Lake Kivu in the direction of Lake Tanganyika, says a National Geographic Society Bulletin, it is hard to realize that the two colonial possessions involved have a combined area four-fifths as large as all of continental Europe, the Russian Empire excepted. Belgium's territory alone in this quarter of the globe is eighty times as large as the mother country, while the population of the jungle wilds of the Kongo basin is variously estimated at from 14,000,000 to 30,000,000. The German colony is nearly double the area of the home country, while the population is estimated at 8,000,000. In both possessions, however, the number of Europeans, chiefly officers of the home governments, does not exceed a few thousand.

Shangugu, the position recently captured by the Belgians, lies on the southern shore of Lake Kivu, a magnificent body of water having an area almost as large as the state of Rhode Island, and situated nearly a mile above the sea level, with gigantic volcanic peaks looking down upon it from the north. The march of the victorious colonials is along the Rusizi river, which conveys the waters of Lake Kivu for sixty miles to the south to Lake Tanganyika, the largest fresh water lake in the world.

The history of both the Kongo and of German East Africa, so far as the governing countries are concerned, is confined to the last thirty or forty years. Belgium owes her interest in the Dark Continent primarily to her late sovereign, Leopold II., who founded the International Association for Exploration and Civilization in Africa in 1876. As a result of this association's activities in effecting treaties with native chiefs, there was developed the Kongo Free State, a neutral independent sovereignty. Leopold, whose interest in the new region had been keener than that of any other ruler and whose private purse had defrayed much of the expense of exploration, was named as the sovereign of the new state. By a will, executed four years later, the king bequeathed the Kongo to Belgium.

After prolonged international controversies over Leopold's regime, the Belgian parliament finally voted to assume full control of and responsibility for the territory as a colonial possession. This took place eight years ago, and the first nation to recognize the new power in Central Africa was Germany, in January, 1909.

Germany's control of the territory lying on the eastern side of the continent opposite the Belgian Kongo, dates back a quarter of a century, when the Sultan of Zanzibar ceded his mainland possessions of 364,000 square miles to the European empire for a mere million dollars.

The early history of the coast of what is now German East Africa goes back four or five hundred years before the advent of Portuguese navigators who found Arabs in possession of the native villages in the sixteenth century. When the Portuguese withdrew after two centuries, Arabs again [illegible] control, extending their power far inland. England was offered control of the region by the Zanzibar Arabs at about the time that Stanley was making his famous explorations of the Kongo, but the offer was declined. Then began the activities, secret at first, [illegible] of the German Colonization Society, which eventually resulted in adding the territory to the Kaiser's overseas domain.

On the western side of the continent the Portuguese naval officer, Diogo Cam, discovered the mouth of the Kongo some ten years before Columbus set sail on his voyage which resulted in the finding of the New World. It was many centuries, however, before this river, with a basin of a million and a half square miles, larger than any other in the world save the Amazon, was explored for more than a few miles above its estuary.

One name of interest in connection with the Kongo is that of Sir Roger Casement, who was hung in England for high treason. Sir Roger, when British Consul at Boma, the Kongo capital, made a journey through the upper regions of the great river basin in 1903, after which he made a famous report alleging many atrocities in the treatment of natives.

The most interesting settlement in German East Africa is Ujiji, a town of 14,000 inhabitants, chiefly Arabs. This slave and ivory mart of the nineteenth century was first visited by Europeans in 1858, when Richard Burton and J. H. Speke discovered Lake Tanganyika, on whose eastern shores the town is situated.

Of even more interest, however, is the fact that it was here that Henry M. Stanley's famous undertaking to find the lost explorer, David Livingston, was accomplished on October 28, 1871.

CHIEF BENDER TO LEAD TORONTO MAPLE LEAFS

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.— Official announcement was made last night that Charles Albert Bender, former pitching star of the Philadelphia Athletics and last year with the Phillies, has been appointed manager of the Toronto International League team for next season. The famous Indian will succeed Russell Blackburne, who took command of the Leafs in the latter part of last season.

CARDINAL MERCIER DEFIES HUNS

Van Bissing, the harassed German Governor-General of Belgium has recently imprisoned Cardinal Mercier in his own palace. The Cardinal, tall, stately, dignified, but intensely "human," is Archbishop of battered Malines. The Germans are in possession of his city, and have tried by every means they have dared to make him bend the knee to them.

But Cardinal Mercier obstinately refuses to take any notice of their commands and threats. He openly refutes their claims to have "conquered" Belgium. Try as they will, the Huns cannot suppress him. It must be intensely galling and aggravating to them.

"This power (Germany)," wrote the Cardinal in his famous pastoral letter to his people, "has not legitimate authority. Consequently, in he secrecy of your own hearts, you owe it neither esteem, nor effection, nor obedience."

Once before the Germans made Cardinal Mercier a prisoner. Then they became afraid of what they had done. Roman Catholics the world over—in Germany and Austria-Hungary—rose up and condemned them. The Pope himself was moved to protest. And so the Germans climbed down.

"At six o'clock in the morning," said Cardinal Mercier, relating the story—he speaks excellent English, by the way—"two German soldiers and an officer brought me a communication from their commanding officer asking me to deny the statements that I had been deprived of my liberty. The letter consisted of ofur or five typewritten pages.

"Come back in the evening and I'll give you an answer,' I said.

"The officer replied that his orders were to wait in my room until he received the reply.

"'Go and telephone for other orders,' I then said.

"The officer went out, but his orders were confirmed, so he sat patiently while I considered my reply, which was that while it was true there were no manacles on my hands for three days I was restrained in the Palace."

Cardinal Mercier knows the power which his position as Primate to Belgium gives him, and he enjoys the constant dilemma in which he has placed the Germans. His eyes twinkle when he discusses it. The Huns are afraid of him; he is too clever, he has too much power at his back for them. He is the one "enemy" non combatant they have met with and dare not molest.

In his way, Cardinal Mercier works as hard as any of his people, and once, when a friend remonstrated with him on "overdoing it," he turned with a smile and said:—

"Ah, but a bishop, being so good, ought to die young, you know!"

Wit and Wisdom

Stella Makes a Name

Mary — Well, Stella has at last made a name for herself.

Maud— Poetry, art, music, or how?

Mary—Matrimony.

The Judge's Turn

The Judge—It seems to me that I have seen you before.

Prisoner—You have, my lord. I used to give your daughter singing lessons.

The Judge—Twenty years.

The New Hat

"Papa, dear, I feel it in my bones that you are going to buy me a new hat."

"Which bone, darling?"

"I'm not sure, but I think it's my wishbone."

Doing Better

A man always thinks that he can do better than he does do.

Sponger—What do you mean by telling people that I drink like a fish? You know very well I only drink when I'm invited to.

Smart—That's why I said it. A fish doesn't pay for what it drinks.

No News is Good News

"What's happened to Brown?"

"Nothing. I guess everything is going all right with him, because it's only when they're in trouble of some sort that we hear from our friends."

Rebuilds Soldiers' Faces.

When the European war broke out Lieut. Derwent Wood, the son of an American father and an English mother, had already won fame as a sculptor. Past the age of enlistment, he joined the Royal Army Medical Corps as assistant, and was sent to a London military hospital, already filled with wounded and maimed British soldiers. In a few days he was drafted into the wards to take plaster casts of damaged limbs, and in the course of his work he saw the saddest sights of the war—the men with mutilated faces—relates The Youth's Companion.

The sight so affected him that he went to his colonel and said: "Let me see what I can do for these poor fellows." Consent was gladly given. His skill as sculptor stood him in good stead here. By means of masks of thin copper, tinted to resemble flesh, he has wrought marvellous transformations in the facial appearance of horribly disfigured men.

One case among many in which happiness was made to displace despair was that of Trooper Everitt, whose face had been smashed by an explosive bullet. His nose had been carried away almost entirely and his left cheek torn open from his ear to the corner of his mouth. Before the war he was a taxi driver, and now, made presentable by the wonderful facial mask that Lieut. Wood has contrived for him—a mask consisting of false nose, cheek and moustache—he is plying his old trade and prospering.

"When he saw himself for the first time," said the sculptor, "he jumped for joy."

Doesn't Learn

"Do you think he'll ever marry again?"

"I wouldn't be surprised. He's bought eight different kinds of mining stocks without ever picking a winner."

A VERY RICH MAN

is in Canada for the purpose of raising six thousand men for the British navy, is an Irishman who was born in London some forty-two years ago. Moreover, as the eldest son and heir of Viscount Iveagh, the richest man in Ireland, he will himself, in due course, become Ireland's richest man.

Of illimitable prospective wealth, Captain Guinness has been blessed in many other respects beyond the ordinary lot of men. He is very good to look at—a fine specimen of manhood, with a frank clear-cut face and a sensible head set on sturdy shoulders. As an oarsman his name is a household word, and he is, besides, a good shot and a skilled yachtsman. He is a member of Parliament for South-east Essex, and was formerly member for the Haggerston division, one of the poorest parts of London. He has also served on the London County Council and on the London Education Committee. He served in South Africa during the war. Thus it will be seen that he is dowered with the gift of public service, as well as with many more of fortune's best gifts. As a politician he is a strong Unionist—an Irishman, if a Unionist, is usually a strong one—but his frank, cheery, breezy personality makes him popular with men of all parties. He is certainly an excellent candidate on a platform, his personality being worth a lot of votes to him. In Lady Gwendolen Guinness, daughter of Lord Onslow, who was president of the Board of Agriculture in Mr. Balfour's Administration, he has a wife of great charm and popularity.

Captain Guinness is as modest as he is manly. The name of Guinness is a name that is known all over the world. But, personally, none of the family are in the habit of advertising themselves. Lord Iveagh himself is a very reticent man. He stands very high, it is known, in the personal confidence of the King. And not without reason. For his character is a remarkably fine one. He is a thorough man of business, but his kind-heartedness and munificence are proverbial. He is a man of wide culture, and is Chancellor of Dublin University. His mind is both keen and discriminating. Among his interests art and art collecting are pre-eminent, and his family shares these interests. His London house, 5 Grosvenor place, is literally packed with art treasures. So is Elveden Hall, his place in Suffolk.

In Ireland the Guinness family is very popular. The Dublin business gives employment to vast numbers, and that the Guinness employes are treated well is a fact that is appreciated throughout the country.

Lord Iveagh was made a Peer in 1891, his oldest brother, Lord Ardilaun, having been raised to the Peerage eight years previously.

New Vegetable in Canada.

The possibility of acclimatising a semi-tropical plant in Canada within a few years has been demonstrated by Walter Burgess, of Mimico, who has had exceptional success with a variety of squash, which is a native of Mexico. The imported seed of this vegetable was first sown by Mr. Burgess three years ago, and on that occasion was started under glass in April and transplanted to the open ground in June. The squash, resulting from this first planting developed late in September and had to be protected from frost in order that it might ripen.

The first season's seed was only two per cent. vital, but the second year's sowing gave plants that developed more quickly than those of the first year and seed produced was of much better quality. This year the seed was sown in open ground direct, early in June, and the squash was fit to eat by the beginning of September; the seed is expected by Mr. Burgess to show 40 per cent. vitality, as its appearance is very good.

This new plant is a most desirable variety for the grower, as it bears a large number of squashes of a most satisfactory size and appearance. The specimens presented to the writ- Specimens measured eight inches by four inches across, and on being cooked proved solid, and their taste suggested sweet potato. In appearance, this vegetable resembles a small vegetable marrow in shape, while its color is a most attractive pale yellow.

STEFANSSON DESCRIBES WORK THAT HE WILL DO IN THE ARCTIC REGIONS

VILHJALMAR STEFANSSON, the Arctic explorer, has written Rear-Admiral Peary a detailed outline of his plans for 1916-17 in order that Peary may give the Canadian Government the benefit of his advice if it should be deemed necessary to send a rescue expedition. The letter is dated "Cape Kellett, Banks Island, January 11, 1916."

Stefansson first reviews the rescue plans for 1914-15, and defends the Canadian Naval Service, saying:

"The chief reason for writing the present communication is that the attitude of the Naval Service towards the rescue proposals of 1914-15 seems to have been interpreted by some of my friends as showing a want of care on the part of the Naval Service for our welfare and a callousness of what was considered our dire distress. I should like to have this impression removed if possible. I consider myself as having ample evidence of the opposite, for they have looked after our interests with a constant, considerate thoughtfulness, much being what could be expected as a mere matter of official routine. The attitude of Mr. Hazen and the Government generally has been most satisfactory to me, and even members of the Opposition, such as Mr. Oliver, have concerned themselves actively about our welfare. Mr. Desbarats, under whose direct personal supervision the expedition is managed, I believe to be a friend of mine personally, and I am sure of his friendliness towards the expedition as an organization. He is, too, a man in whose judgment I have a good deal of confidence, and to whom I would willingly trust the planning of any rescue expedition should one become necessary."

VILHJALMAR STEFANSSON.

Stefansson's letter then continues:

"Our plans then are to finish the geographic program of the Karluk if we can. Essentially stated as a problem to be solved, we want to try to settle the question of whether there is a considerable land mass between Alaska and the Pole east of 150 degrees west longitude. From the point of view of work to be done I consider we should try to explore the area lying west, north-west, and north of the known Parry Islands as we can go. I now put the limits at 145 degrees west and 83 degrees north.

"If we should be able to complete this spring the work outlined above and should we then be able to connect with the Bear we would try to return south (home) the fall of 1916. But completing the Karluk program is the primary consideration this year; the fall of 1917 we shall, however try to come home in any event, and shall come by the Atlantic or Pacific route according to convenience. The southern section of this expedition will return home this year, and if we can we shall send home some members of the northern section also, who are not particularly needed. The details of this will depend on various things, but especially on ice conditions. A whaling ship may possibly touch here, so we can ship the men out that way, or either the Star or Sachs may take them out.

"If we have to stay a second year, as now seems likely, we would that year (1916-17) devote all our energies to the region west and north of our new land. That year, if not this, I hope to approach so near MacMillan's farthest, coming from the west, that we can demonstrate the presence or absence of Crocker Land."

Reclaimed Heroes.

Whether good boys are committed to reformatories and industrial schools or not, good boys certainly come out of these institutions, as is shown by their splendid record of war service. Up to March last 30,000 such old boys were known to be in His Majesty's forces, and of these thirty-two have been "mentioned in despatches," four have been awarded the Victoria Cross, sixty-nine the D.C.M., eight the Russian Medal of St. George, three the French Medaille Militaire, one the Croix de Guerre, and nineteen have received commissions in the army.—London Chronicle.

Camel Riding in Egypt.

An officer of an Egyptian Camel Corps, now invalided home, tells a story current in Cairo how Lord Kitchener once described camel riding. "It's like a game of cup and ball," said he. "You throw the ball into the air and try to catch it in the cup. Well, when you ride a camel the brute plays cup and ball with you and misses nearly every time!"

Tank Heroes Rewarded.

"Tank" heroes figure for the first time among awards for conspicuous gallantry in action. Captain A. M. Inglis has received the D.S.O. for bringing his "tank" forward over very difficult ground. Although one of the wheels was blown off, he succeeded in reaching his objective and manoeuvring throughout the whole operations. The other "tank" hero is Second Lieut. G. O. L. Campbell, who has been awarded the Military Cross. When his tank broke down he sent his crew back and removed all his guns to his commander's "tank," remaining with him throughout the entire operation and personally taking charge of the guns.

Smart Frocks of Serge.

All during the summer smart one piece frocks of serge have been worn by modish women. Usually such frocks were fashioned for serge and chiffon, serge and taffeta or serge and georgette crape.

One of the smartest of the new fall serge models is of navy blue combined with soiree silk in a beautiful shade of purple. The purple silk trims the bodice and cuffs and forms a band at the lower part of the skirt, which is edged with flutings of the serge.

This model shows no curve at the waist line, but hangs uncompromisingly straight, as many of the new frocks do. Then there is the other extreme—frocks with boned and seamed round waists, which are likely to be too radical for all save the daring few. And in evidence also are radical bodices without seams and bones, but shaped to show the curves of the figure and fitting quite snugly at the waist line, if not definitely pinched in.

BULK OF LARGE ESTATE FOR CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

Late Miss Mary Orr Leaves $10,000 for Spiritual Advancement of Bobcaygeon.

TORONTO, Dec. 14.—"The whole of my estate must be used for God only," concludes the will of the late Miss Mary H. Orr, of Bobcaygeon, who died at Toronto on June 24, leaving an estate valued at $201,559.20. The lady, who was a Christian Scientist, did not bequeath as much as one cent to any of her numerous relations. To the mother Church she bequeathed $10,000 to be used in spreading the truth, $10,000 toward encouraging those building Christian Scientist churches, $10,000 to be placed to the interest of Bobcaygeon, to be used only for such purposes as will elevate the community spiritually; $10,000 for the benefit of those who are endeavoring to uplift the needy in Chicago; $50,000 to be held as a fund to help to provide such institutions as may in the near future be demonstrated to show that God's people are willing to help others to see the Light that is so real and institutions to take the place of hospitals, poor-houses, gaols, etc.; $10,000 to establish a fund to be lent at 6 per cent. to deserving people to buy small homes or farms.

Probate of the will was granted yesterday on condition that during the war no portion be distributed among alien enemies.

LAYMEN LEAD IN CHURCH WORK

INNOVATION IN MIDWEEK SERVICE AT ST. ANDREW'S.

Rev. T. H. Mitchell, minister in charge of St. Andrew's Church, a short time ago had an article in The Presbyterian, Toronto, in which he suggested that the midweek services in the churches should be occasionally conducted by members of the congregation so as to arouse a new interest. He has applied this principle in his own church.

Last night the regular prayer meeting at St. Andrew's was held under the auspices of the Young People's Society. Mr. F. E. Kerr presided, and Walter Evans, a member of the choir, sang a solo very acceptably. Mr. E. Walton read a paper giving an excellent sketch of the life of Rear-Admiral Sir David Beatty, the new head of the British fleet and upon whom there rests a responsibility heavier than that borne by any other man in the Empire. Mr Walton also gave an interesting account of the raid upon the coasts of England by German cruisers and of the battle of Jutland in which Admiral Beatty had so distinguished a part.

The religious character of Admiral Beatty was emphasized, and Mr. Walton quoted his words: "Until a religious revival takes place at home so long will the war continue."

"Surely," said Mr. Walton, "nothing portrays the Admiral better than the following quotation which he sent to the Kitchener memorial book:

"Grant that with zeal and skill this day I do
What me to do behooves, what Thou commandest me to do;
Grant that I do it sharp at point of moment fit,
And when I do it grant me good success in it."

CONCERT GIVEN IN AID OF ST. ALBAN'S MISSION BUILDING FUND

St. Albans' Mission building fund went off to a good start last night, when a most delightful concert was given to a large and appreciative audience in the Orange Hall, Brownton.

Mr. Spence, in a few brief remarks explained the object of the concert, which was organized by Mrs. Poole, a valued member of St. Albans.

The attendance at the mission had grown to such an extent since its inauguration two years ago that the present building was quite inadequate for the needs and it is hoped that sufficient funds may shortly be raised to put up a more suitable building.

This was the only church in that locality and was meeting a great want as was evidenced by the attendance. He most sincerely thanked the audience for attending the concert and also the artists who had come so far to entertain them and assured them they were assisting in a worthy cause. The enthusiasm evinced by them in responding so willingly when requested was most encouraging to him and deeply appreciated.

The numbers on the program were of a high order and were all well received, Mr. Liddell's Scotch songs being particularly enjoyed.

The following is the program:—

Piano solo—Mrs. Poole.
Drill—St. Albans' Boy Scouts.
Vocal duet—Mrs. Scholley and Mr. Ridyard.
Recitation—Mr. J. John.
Comic song—Mr. M. E. Ketcheson.
Violincello solo—Mr. R. Farthing.

It seems to be a pretty safe axiom that silk coats of whatever style are long, tweed and worsted coats short. Even the silk coats to sport suits grow longer as the days pass and are already well down half the length of the short skirt.

THE VALUE OF WASTE PAPER

TORONTO SCHOOL PUPILS EARN MONEY IN UNIQUE CAMPAIGN.

The value of waste paper is being demonstrated by the boys of Kew Beach School, Toronto, who are earning enough money by gathering old papers to keep the girls in yarn for their knitting. The success of their campaign of paper collecting should be a hint to other young Canadians who desire to earn money for patriotic purposes. It has been recently estimated that if all the old copies for a single year of any Toronto paper were gathered together and sold they would bring in a sum of $50,000 for the year. That figure demonstrates the value of the old papers.

The Kew Beach campaign started a few weeks ago with a rapidly increasing demand from the girl pupils of the school to knit socks for soldiers. Money was needed for wool yarn in large quantities. Mr. Kenneth Dunstan learned of the need and he suggested to Principal Farmery that the boy pupils collect and sell waste paper.

Mr. Farmery gave the tip to the boys, and those who acted on it produced ten dollars in one week. That got all of the boys into the game, and the second week brought close to $50. That made Mr. Farmery sit up and take notice. He at once organized the school by classes, offering prizes for best results. The prizes are framed pictures for classrooms.

Now there is plenty of money for all the wool yarn demanded, and also more than enough for the prizes. From $10 to $12 per week came in readily. One boy has a neighbor who had a big accumulation of old papers and magazines in the cellar. Four boys made the lot into bundles and took it away in Mr. Farmery's automobile.

Mrs. Farmery teaches the girls how to knit the socks, and the work is done between 3.30 and 4 p.m., when there is no interference with studies. Civic officials interested in fire prevention declare that this collection of waste paper removes one of the causes of fires.

There is a sock-knitting story going the rounds, and it is put upon a woman in Hamilton who is a regular contributor of socks to soldiers, and who places in each pair her address and a request for a letter from the recipient. One of the recipients is said to have written her as follows:

"Dear lady, I got your socks. Some fit!
I wear one for a helmet, the other for a mit.
Am glad to know you are doing your bit;
But where in —— did you learn to knit?"

Gun Concealed in Hat.

"Hands up!" is not such a disconcerting command after all, provided one wears a certain hat of recent invention. When the highwayman gives directions as to how he would like to have you hand over your valuables you look him calmly in the eyes and then shoot him by simply blowing a tube passing from the mouth to the trigger of the gun mounted in the top of the hat.

Several cartridges are provided in the magazine, so your aim need not be perfect. Furthermore, the recoil from the explosions will not unseat the hat. It cocks the hammer for the next shot and ejects the used shell. The cartridges are automatically fed to the breech of the gun, and when the magazine is empty the trigger cannot be operated. A new magazine is then substituted by removing the hat. The gun is aimed by the turning of the head and by blowing through the tube a bulb is expanded which trips the cocked hammer, exploding the cartridge.

DUMBELLS AND MEN ASCEND

W. L. LANE REAL STRONG MAN AT ST. ALPHONSUS LYCEUM.

W. J. Lane, a recent arrival in the city, held the attention of a large audience at St. Alphonsus' Lyceum last night with his feats of strength, that place him in the strong men class with a vengeance. He handled iron dumbells weighing over 100 lbs. with comparative ease and as a thriller he invited several men from the audience to take a seat on the irons, after which he elevated dumbells and men, a feat that brought down the house.

He will repeat his feats of strength at the Lyceum on Friday night. He is engaged to appear at Campbellford tonight with the T. A. S. minstrels. Lane was introduced to M. J. Maher by W. M. Lang and employment was found for him at the Metal Products Co., where he handles the heavy shells with much the same agility a youngster displays with a rubber ball.

At the Lyceum tonight the program will be given by the pupils of the schools, assisted by the orchestra.

Sunday, Dec. 11th. Rev. T. H. Mitchell, B.D., of St. Andrew's [illegible], Peterborough, spoke at both morning and evening services.

GREECE MEETS ALLIES' DEMANDS

BERLIN ANNOUNCES BUZEU IS CAPTURED

Pursuit of Russians Continues.

4000 Prisoners

Berlin Version of the Meuse Fighting.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

BERLIN, Dec. 15. — A headquarters statement says: On the west bank of the River Meuse the French tried three times in vain to regain by attacks trenches on Hill 04, captured by us a short time ago. East of the river, after a strong artillery preparation extending far into terrain behind the lines, they repeatedly launched attacks. The advance of storming waves failed on Pepper Ridge under our defensive fire. An attack on the south of the slopes before Fort Hardaumont was unable to be developed under our destructive fire.

Russian attacks yesterday on the Transylvania front for the most part failed, as on preceding days. The enemy succeeded in gaining a footing on one height. Burning villages mark the way through Wallachia along which the Russians retreated before Von Mackensen. Teutonic troops under most unfavorable weather conditions, are rivalling each other in a plan to prevent the enemy getting any further rest on his march. In the mountains the enemy offered resistance in advanced positions. These were pierced. Buzeu has been captured.

The ninth Army reported as a result of its operations yesterday and the day before the capture of 4,000 prisoners.

Near Futesti, stronger Bulgarian forces have crossed the Danube.

German troops entered Russian trenches in Galicia, taking 90 prisoners.

Partial advances near Paralovo and at Gradechnitza on the Macedonian front, and on both sides of the Eastern Cerna River, resulted only in enemy losses.

There have been patrol skirmishes on the lowlands of the Struma.

QUALIFIES AS AIRMAN.

Capt. Harold O. D. Wilkins, son of Mr. F. W. Wilkins, Norwood, has qualified for the British aviation service. Capt. Wilkins was seriously wounded in France over a year ago, but recovered, and after furlough was sent to serve in Egypt and Saloniki. He returned to England to enter the aviation service, with the above successful result.

THREE VESSELS ARE SENT DOWN

ONE STEAMER WAS FORMERLY GERMAN OWNED.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Dec. 15.—The Norwegian steamer Kaupanger has been sunk. The Portuguese steamer Leoa, formerly the German steamer Enos, and the British steamer Glencoe are also reported sunk.

GRILSE IN PORT

Six of Her Crew Lost and Two Are Injured.

HALIFAX, N.S., Dec. 15.—Storm-battered and leaking badly, the Canadian torpedo boat Grilse, which the Canadian Naval Service officially announced as lost at sea, limped into the south short port of Shelbourne at 10 o'clock last night. Six of her crew were lost and two are injured. All are showing the effects of their nerve-racking experience during a 48 hours' battle with the wildest tempest of the season.

As the Grilse crept slowly into Shelburne harbor she bore many evidences of her battle with the hurricane which swept the coast Tuesday night. Her radio apparatus had been carried away, her boats and davits smashed and she was leaking badly. It is understood that her engines became disabled, and having little free board and much beam she was severely buffeted by the waves before repairs could be effected.

The members of the crew drowned were:

Albert J. Harris, able seaman, Mayo, Ireland.

Gilbert Ashwin, leading seaman, South Norwood, London.

Harry McAuliffe, leading signalman, Halifax.

Walter J. Trimbee, chief petty officer, Toronto.

Robt. Wilkinson, artificer engineer, Wellington-on-Tyne, England.

E. Clement, warrant officer, North Hamilton, Ont.

The injured are: Sub-Lieut. Cyril McL. Fry, Ottawa, seriously injured about the head; Frederick Chandler, leading seaman, leg broken, West Worthing, England.

NATIONALIST STANDS BY SIDE OF GOVERNMENT

Desire for New State of Things Not Confined to Irishmen Bonar Law's Reply.

New War Credit for $2,000,000,000 is Passed.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Dec. 15. — The new war credit for two billion dollars, introduced in the Commons yesterday, passed through all its stages in the Lower House this afternoon.

LONDON, Dec. 15. — During the debate in the House today on the vote of credit, Major W. K. Redmond, Nationalist member for East Clare, said that he in the past had been in bitter opposition to most of the new ministers, but that he had come to the conclusion on the question of a government for Ireland, that an understanding for a settlement between the Irishmen of the North and the South was quite possible.

Troops from Ulster and the South provinces, he said, were in pretty close contact with it, and it had been remarkable that there had not been under any circumstances anything but the very best and kindliest feeling between them. Major Redmond paid a glowing tribute to the Irish troops and said the only thing to do was to back up the men at the front.

Bonar Law, Government leader, replying to Major Redmond, said the desire for a new state of things in Ireland, if it could be attained, was not confined to Irishmen. It was a great thing, he added, that for the first time an official of the Nationalist party stood on the side of the Empire. It was his heartiest wish, as deeply seated as that of Major Redmond, that some change between Ireland and the rest of the United Kingdom and between one part of Ireland and the other should take place. One thing that would influence the people of the United Kingdom more than anything else, he said, was that Irishmen were willing to run the same risks as they were running.

HOLLAND INCREASES HER SUPPLY OF MUNITIONS

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Dec. 15. — The Premier of Holland, addressing the Dutch Parliament yesterday, said the country's munitions supply was constantly increasing, and that, in view of the international situation, it was unavoidable that sufficient military forces be kept at the immediate disposal of the Governmnt.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

A Paris newspaper says the Allies are about to hand new categorical demands to the Athens cabinet, having chiefly to do with the movement of Greek troops.

LONDON, Dec. 15.—The Greek Government has accepted the ultimatum presented by the Entente Allies, says a Central News Agency despatch from Athens.

Mayor Martin is to be retained as ex-officio chairman of the commission, as he cannot be deposed. No appropriations will be made for five years, in an attempt to straighten out the city's financial tangle.

SETTLEMENT OF STRIKE AT THE HENRY HOPE CO.

25 CENTS AN HOUR FOR TIME WHEN MACHINES BREAK DOWN.

The strike by the employes of the Henry Hope Company has been settled and all the men have returned to work. In the dispute between the company and the men, the latter asked for a mediator and when the company agreed Adjt. McElhiney was called upon to act, and a settlement followed.

J. C. KEMP IS DEAD

Shock Contributed Largely to His Death.

Monday's fire claimed another victim at Nicholls Hospital this morning when John C. Kemp, who lived at 595 Division St., succumber to his injuries. Shock contributed largely to his death. Had he lived till Dec. 28, he would have reached his 68th year. Deceased was born in England and had lived in Peterborough about 30 years. His wife died on Aug. 19 last and his father and mother, who reached an advanced age, predeceased him, as did also his daughter, during the past five years.

He is survived by three brothers, William Kemp, Bethune St.; Lance and Thomas Kemp of Douro, and two sisters, Lizzie of this city and Mrs. Fred Stenton of Bay City, Mich.

Mr. Kemp's work at the Quaker Oats Company's plant consisted of keeping the men in the feed room supplied with bags. To him this duty was as important as any work in the plant and he was diligent at all times in the discharge of his work. Conscious to the end, he talked with his relatives about the fire, his statement being that it was caused by combustion.

Since the death of his wife deceased had been living with his son-in-law, Mr. William McMillan.

One of his last wishes was that his funeral be held from his own home. This desire will be caried out on Saturday afternoon, the funeral to be under the auspices of Court Peterborough, Canadian Order Foresters. Interment at Little Lake Cemetery.

Warehouse Ruins Burn

The fire is still burning on the upper story of the west building. Two streams of water have been playing on the fire night and day, so that the outer edge has a regular Niagara Falls winter appearance.

The curious public are barred from paying close visits to the ruins as the company have guards and "danger" signs at all approaches.

The temporary office at the plant is about completed and will be ready for use on Monday. The Bell Telephone Co. have a gang of men busy replacing the poles that were partially burned on Hunter Street.

Search for Bodies

It is not likely that any of the bodiesof the missing men will be recovered for some days. The heavy steel beams will have to be removed from the tcp of the brick which fell into the boiler room and before this can be done the surrounding brick walls will have to be wrecked. The danger to the workmen would be too great to allow any further debris to be removed today. It is expected that when the charges of dynamite which have been placed in different parts of the wall, are exploded, it will take several days to remove the brick.

The company are putting on additional men and teams at night and exceptional efforts are being made to locate the remains of the victims.

The walls of the old office building which fell on Hunter Street are being hauled to the old raceway in Ashburnham.

JURY FINDS DOLLY TAYLOR NOT GUILTY

Charged With Having Concealed Birth of Child.

"Not guilty" was the verdict of the jury at noon today in the case of Dolly Taylor, charged with concealing the birth of her child. The charge was laid following investigations by Inspector Miller.

The evidence occupied the attention of Judge Huycke and jury all yesterday afternoon, last evening and part of this morning.

Joseph Wearing defended the prisoner and Crown Attorney Hatton prosecuted.

McGee Jury Out

The jury in the case of Andrew McGee, charged with being an accessory to the concealment of the birth of the child of Dolly Taylor are out considering the verdict.

D. O'Connell defended the prisoner and made a very strong appeal to the jury for the release of the prisoner.

Crown Attorney Hatton very carefully reviewed the evidence and thought that the jury would find no difficulty in convicting the accused.

Judge Huycke's charge was impartial and gave a clear and concise statement of the law dealing with the offence.

The Presentment.

The Grand Jury concluded their work for the County Sessions and presented their report to His Honor Judge Huycke last evening, who thanked them for their efficient work and tht celerity with which it was accomplished. They were discharged, and afterwards received their pay cheques from County Treasurer Elliott.

To His Honor Judge Huycke:

We, the Grand Jury for the County Court Sittings, December, 1916, beg leave to report to you as follows:

According to your advice and directions, pointing out our respective duties, we have endeavored to discharge them to the best of our ability. Referring to the great struggle now going on to ensure the safeguarding of the principles so dear to the Empire, and the painful experience as a result of the recent local fire, we have been forced to bear, suffice it to say that we heartily concur with your Honor in the sentiments expressed by you and, failing words to reply consistent with those expressed by you, we simply hope and trust that all energies available will bend toward the satisfactory conclusion of the war.

Our duties insofar as the cases that came before us were probably more than some preceding juries, yet although somewhat appearing criminal in character, we believe that as a result of court investigation, better onditions will prevail in the future.

We visited the county gaol and found incarcerated seven inmates, six male and one female.

Everything appeared satisfactory and consistent with the requirements of such institutions. It is very creditable to the officials, who, although disconcerted as a result of the recent fire, discharge their duties as cheerfully as under ordinary circumstances.

We also visited St. Joseph's and Nicholls Hospital, as well as the House of Providence, and every evidence of care seems to be the endeavor of those entrusted with the management of tht institutions, and provision is made in every case to comply with the requirements of the various Acts demanding such.

We inspected the County House of Refuge and found 41 inmates, 27 male and 14 female, apparently contented.

In conclusion, we would emphasize our appreciation of your instructive and kindly advice and trust you may long be spared to occupy the exalted position you now hold to deal with the matters that may come before you in the same able and fair manner, adding to the dignity of our courts; and that the members of your family now engaged in the gigantic warfare may safely return to their devoted parents, bringing glory with them.

C. J. DARLING,
Foreman.

ANOTHER SHOT AT THE SLACKERS.

"CANUCK" WRITES a letter to the local papers, in which he appeals to the slacker to realise his duty, accept the guidance of his conscience, and get into uniform. The Review welcomes another volunteer to the ranks of those who for the past two years have been trying to arouse the young men for whom the uniform of the King has no charm. Columns of arguments and appeals have been written, volumes of oratory have been reeled off, all with the same high purpose in view, all with rather indifferent success, it must be admitted.

"Canuck" puts the case clearly. His arguments are unanswerable. Like the majority of speakers and writers on this subject, he holds above the head of the slacker the threat of conscription. If he does not enlist of his own free will he will be forced into the service. His comrades-in-arms who voluntarily entered the ranks will despise him as a coward, and when the war is over he will be a marked man to the end of his days.

The slacker has been listening to that line of talk for the past year or more. It has lost all its terrors for him and now he calmly regards it as a bluff. Filling up the cards that will be distributed by the National Service Commission does not worry him in the least. The average slacker will not be above allowing himself considerable latitude in the matter of answering these questions, if, indeed, he decides to answer them at all. If the Government have any idea of resorting to conscription in the near or distant future, they are certainly leading up to it by easy stages.

What the slacker needs is something more drastic than arguments and appeals or threats that he is convinced will never be carried into effect. If he can be made to realize that conscription is not only possible but probable, the belief will do more to induce him to do his duty than anything that can be addressed to him by writer or speaker.

The Militia Act is still in force. All men of military age can be called to arms to save the country from invasion, a danger to which Canada will always be exposed while the war lasts. If that Act was put in force the slacker could be reached. After a short tour of military training he might be persuaded to consent to go overseas in his country's service. At all events, the drilling and discipline would have him prepared in the event of conscription being finally resorted to.

CONSCRIPTION OF WEALTH.

LET ANY MAN lift his voice in favor of compulsory military service, and someone on the back benches raises a cry that if there is to be conscription of men to win the war, then why not a conscription of wealth. Such people lose sight of the fact that wealth is already conscripted. At the last session of Parliament, Finance Minister White put through a law by which the profits of all manufacturers, munition makers included, are subject to a heavy tax. Government officials have the right to examine the books of any business firm in order to ascertain the amount of their net earnings and to exact their just proportion of the war tax. If that is not conscription of wealth, then what does conscription of wealth imply?

The Review has never believed that the manufacturers in Peterborough or elsewhere who have war contracts with the Government are making "ungodly profits out of their country's pain," as so many party papers assert for political purposes. The "ungodly profits" are sought by the partisans rather than by the manufacturers. In the early stages of the war the price of munitions may have been high, for England was bound to have them at any cost. We have never held with the Opposition press and agitators that Canadian manufacturers were taking advantage either of the necessity or the inexperience of the British Government, being convinced that the latter were and are well able to take care of themselves in any ordinary business transaction. The appointment of a guardian to prevent them from wasting their resources was never required.

Munition-making soon reached normal conditions. Canadian manufacturers had to meet the competition of American firms who were experienced in the industry and who had unlimited capital to extend their operations when the call came for the new products. The Canadian firms have been running night and day to keep up with their orders, and their employes have been earning abnormal wages working on the piece system and putting in many hours of overtime. All profits above a certain amount are taxed, while the earnings of the men are practically free of taxation.

A local firm engaged in the manufacture of munitions is having trouble with its men, finding it necessary to reduce expenses. While all will regret any industrial disturbance of this nature, we trust that the lesson will not be lost upon a local contemporary. Is anything else required to convince it that Peterborough munition makers at least are not making "ungodly profits out of their country's pain." This conviction will deprive our contemporary of at least one of the sling-shots with which it is wont to assail the Administration at intervals.

BUTTER SUBSTITUTES.

THE REVIEW BELIEVES that the Government would make a popular move if they decided for a time at least to remove the embargo on such substitutes for butter as oleomargarine and margarine. Even if the prohibition of its importation was not raised, the manufacture of the substitutes might be permitted in this country. The consumers have asked for it, and we fail to see how such action would in any way injure the business of the dairymen who have petitioned that the present conditions be continued.

An exchange, intent upon its favorite and innocent and innocuous pastime of peppering the government with bird-shot, says it does not know, because the Government won't turn on the official searchlight, what interests are between the consumer and a reasonable price for many important items of his daily bread. A searchlight, official or otherwise, is not required in this case. A tallow dip would suffice to illuminate what is puzzling our contemporary. The embargo was placed upon butter substitutes in the interests of the dairy business, and the result is that that industry has reached a state of efficiency high above that attained by any other country in the world. The dairymen are naturally opposed to any steps that would tend to lower the standard of their produce.

The danger of permitting butter substitutes lies in the likelihood of attempts being made to palm off the imitation for the real article. In the United States, where the manufacture of oleomargarine is permitted, this fraud is one which the authorities are continually trying to suppress. If the substitutes were imported from the other side, unscrupulous dealers would beyond a doubt attempt to take advantage of the consumer. A contemporary says that it is next to impossible to tell the difference between the substitute and the real article, although there is a wide margin between the prices. Here then would be an excellent opportunity for sharp practice.

We do not believe that the consumers or any other class should yell to the Government for aid every time they find themselves in a tight corner, but that they should rely upon their own efforts to overcome adverse conditions, when such action is all that is required. Any one who believes that money can be saved by home-baking is at liberty to set up in competition with the professional manufacturer.

The consumers of butter should take the same stand. If they cannot afford the real article, there is no law to prevent the manufacture of the substitute for home use. The ingredients are cheap and easily procurable. Any housekeeper, after one or two lessons, can make oleomargarine. It is a simple matter compared with the baking of bread at home. No governmental action is necessary. The man who daubs the substitute on his bread will probably know the difference, however, just as the inveterate smoker who, when deprived of his usual supply of tobacco for any reason, may fill his pipe with tea or some other article never designed for the purpose. To outward appearance, the substitute may fill the bill, but the man most directly concerned knows to the contrary.

A SCRAMBLE FOR THE QUAKER OATS.

THE ASHES OF THE RUINS of the Quaker Oats Company's plant are not yet cool, the bodies of all the victims have not yet been recovered, the insurance is not adjusted, and yet even now other cities and towns are crowding each other in an attempt to induce the company, when they rebuild, to leave Peterborough and locate in their midst. This is as unseemly as applying for the place of a dead man before the lid of his casket is screwed down for the last time.

We believe Lindsay was the first to speak. That ambitious hamlet on the Scugog is not satisfied with the honor of being the unofficial abiding place of Gen. Sir Sam Hughes and the home of an arsenal which may prove something of a white elephant on the hands of the villagers when the war is over. The town must needs reach out for more, and flamboyantly declare that it can take care of such an industry as the Quaker Oats, a plant that would, if it was suddenly installed, with its army of employes, in Lindsay, crowd that town off the map entirely.

Lindsay should be cautious. Has recent experience taught it nothing? Sometimes, we are afraid, it bites off more than it is able to Fletcherize. Only a month or so ago it greedily appropriated a murder case that properly belonged to this county. When the excitement died down and the bills began to come in, Lindsay attempted to welch, and regretted that its enterprise had carried it beyond the boundaries of discretion.

Kingston, too, thinks there is no place like the Limestone City as a new home when Peterborough's destroyed cereal mill gets ready to rebuild. But Kingston in such matters is seldom taken seriously. Like Lindsay, favors thrust upon it by the Government have had a tendency to whet its appetite for more.

Few if any cities in Ontario possess the manufacturing advantages that Peterborough does, with its cheap power, that is not even yet fully developed, and its excellent railway facilities. When the Trent Canal is completed, this city will be to all intents and purposes a lake port. It has a future, while other towns have nothing but a past to boast of. The Quaker Oats Company and the citizens here dwelt together in harmony, the interests of the one being interwoven with those of the others. The plant will in all probability rise, Phoenix like, from the ashes of its ruins right here. At least, neither Lindsay nor Kingston is likely to secure the prize which it covets so brazenly.

A NEW YORK MAN poisoned an enemy with a compound kept in a whiskey bottle. Our temperance friends will say that the glassware was not diverted from its original purpose and that there was nothing original in this form of wickedness.

POULTRYMAN WAILS OF HIGH COST OF EVERYTHING IN HIS BUSINESS

Listen to what a farmer, who keeps hens and regularly brings his eggs to market for what he can get, has to say of the hardships which beset those engaged in the industry. Here is his plaint: —

If it be true that men who gathered together great quantities of eggs last summer are now attempting to force the public to pay an exorbitant price for their wares, then I have nothing to urge against a boycott whose purpose is to frustrate the cold storage plotters. If, however, the boycotters are proposing to force down the price of fresh eggs, then I can only state that they are unaware of existing conditions and that their activities if successful will result merely in driving all poultrymen out of busness.

The seemingly high price of fresh eggs is due to a number of causes, of which the following may be especially noted: The cost of labor, of material and of poultry food, the stubborn insistence of the hen that she must have a well-earned vacation annually, and finally, the ignorance and inefficiency of the average city housekeeper.

Today I am paying my farm help practically double the wages that they received two years ago. The lumber which went into hen houses constructed on my place last summer consisted of the chepest "culls" that I dared use for the purpose. Yet the building cost considerably more than a far more pretentious building would have cost two years ago.

And now for the city housekeeper. Next summer, when the price of eggs is low, she should put down a large number of eggs in water glass. These eggs will not be first class for table purposes, but they will prove as good as any for cooking purposes and as good as many "fresh" eggs now offered for sale. The city housekeeper, however, will pursue no such course. She prefers to attend the theatres and the movies until someone tells her that she is being deeply wronged. Then she and her friends call a meeting and agree that everyone is to blame save themselves.

Financiers, speculators and manufacturers have made millions during the past two years. Labor has had its wages increased. The dairyman, after being driven into the corner, has finally succeeded by fighting back in obtaining a small portion of what has been due him. The salaried man is poorer today than ever before. The same is true of the poultryman. For him there is no profit in the "seventy cent eggs." So high is the price of poultry food that I am seriously thinking of disposing of my old birds and of keeping only this year's hatch.

If the boycott is against fresh eggs and if the boycotters are successful there will be no eggs produced in Canada two years from date.

OUTSIDERS DISCUSS BIG FIRE

(Catholic Register.)

The comparative freedom from calamitous industrial accidents which Ontario happily enjoys makes that at Peterborough on Monday especially conspicuous. The explosion and fire at the works of the Quaker Oats Company caused the death, as is supposed at present writing, of from fourteen to sixteen persons, four of whom are known to be dead. The number missing is variously stated at from ten to twelve, while it is further said that as many as four of the injured are believed to be past recovery. This means a sad Christmas season in many homes in Peterborough and its vicinity. Then, too, the loss, if reports be true, of some four hundred carloads of prepared foodstuffs, in the present state of supplies, is no inconsiderable matter.

Ahe ascription, in the very first reports, of the cause of the accident with so much definiteness to spontaneous combustion, would seem, seeing that a boiler explosion was involved, to be at least a hasty conclusion. There will no doubt be careful inquiry into the matter. The plant was one of the largest of the kind in Canada and was a branch of a well-known Chicago business.

Rigid Inspection Required

Writing to the Toronto Globe, R. O. Wynne-Roberts of that city, says:

Although I have no definite information concerning the Quaker Oats building in Peterborough the news published in your columns certainly suggests combustion or ignition of the dust.

A serious explosion occurred in Liverpool a few years ago, and the result of the investigations and experiments made went to show that the dust from China beans, oil cake and locust beans caused the disaster and the death of several men. Coal dust is highly explosive; indeed, it is possible to utilize the explosive force due to the ignition of coal dust to drive a coal engine.

It would seem that in the execution of orders scrupulous care was not taken to get rid of the dust, so as to remove the danger of explosion but evidence will doubtless be submitted on this point at the coroner's inquiry.

The Peterborough disaster serves to direct the attention of the authorities to the need for a careful inspector of factories where carbonaceous dust of any kind is an inseparable feature of the manufacturing operations. A little supervision and care at present may be the means of removing any risk which might exist.

2 BELOW ZERO

WEATHER MAN SAYS MORE SNOW IS DUE.

The temperature was down to 2 below zero last night. More snow is due, and it looks as if winter were now here to stay. The old saying, "If we have no sleighing before Christmas, we have little afterwards," is undoubtedly borne out by statistics, and this winter is not likely to prove an exception.—W.P.

ENGLAND WILL CHANGE

Throughout the length and breadth of the British Empire there is a vague and uneasy feeling that after the great war things will be different—that a new order will arise. There are prophets who predict that England will fall back in the rank of nations, and that some other European power will take precedence over it; perhaps France, perhaps Russia, which is the land of possibilities. Lord Northcliffe, the outstanding figure in British journalism, is a prophet himself. Of broad vision, he sees what a majority of his fellow Englishmen only feel, and his forecast is of a new social order. Writing to his newspaper, The London Times, from France, he says:

One day I saw the arrival of a train carrying wounded soldiers at one of those hospitals which look out on the sea and are situated on the northern French coast, which long before the war was recognized as a great healing place. The medical journals tell their readers in their own language of these wonderful hospitals—converted casinos and hotels and miles of perfectly equipped huts. Our hospitals in France are a world of their own. I do not know how many women and men they employ, but I should say more than one hundred thousand. In the Etaples district alone there are thirty-five thousand beds. Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Newfoundland, India, and the whole of the empire have given with both hands.

Those of the wounded who can be made well quickly enough—and they are, of course, the immense majority—go back to their war duties at the front, some eagerly, all without murmuring. As they lie there in these wonderful huts, in which every provision for speedy convalescence, for happiness and reasonable amusement is afforded, tended as they are by the best surgeons and physicians of the English-speaking world and by ladies simply and gently born they all tell you the same story—they would like to get a glimpse of "Blighty" before going back again to fight.

I went on board one of the white hospital ships marked against submarines on each side with a huge red cross, to see them going home. Arriving on the quay in the British Red Cross and St. John ambulances, and gently carried, with the peculiar slightly swaying walk of the trained stretcher bearer, they pass on to the ship and descend in lifts to the particular deck on which is their cot or bed. There can be nothing of the kind in the world better than these speedy, perfectly lighted and ventilated vessels.

Once on board, and yet another stage nearer "Blighty" and the beloved ones, all are contentment itself. Some of the lesser injured men were on deck singing merrily. Others of the wounded on deck were discussing a newspaper article outlining a project for the settling of soldiers on land in the dominions after the war.

"Many will go to Canada; some to Australia, I dare say," said one man; "but I am one of those who mean to have a little bit of 'Blighty' for myself. We see enough in France to know that a man and his family can manage a bit of land for themselves and live well on it."

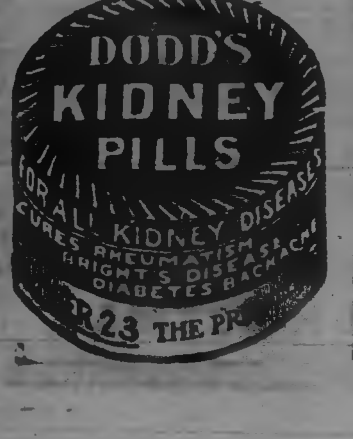
I remember a similar conversation a year ago close to Ypres, when a young sergeant, who had been gamekeeper at home and a workingman Conservative, observed:

"The men in the dugouts talk of a good many subjects, but there is one on which they are all agreed. That is the land question. They are not going back as laborers or as tenants, but as owners. Lots of them have used their eyes and learned much about small farming here."

As I watched the swift ship and saw her speeding away to England at well over twenty knots, I wondered if people and politicians at home are beginning to understand that the bravery and camaraderie of the officers and men in the field have broken down all class feeling; that our millions of men abroad are changed communities of whose thoughts and aims we know but little.

Just as Grant's soldiers, the Grand Army of the Republic, dominated the elections in the United States for a quarter of a century, so will the men I have seen in the trenches and the ambulances come home and demand by their votes the reward of a very changed England—an England they will fashion and share; an England that is likely to be as much a surprise to the present owners of capital and leaders of labor as it may be to the owners of the land.

One taste of success is better than a meal of defeat.



A WOMAN DIVER.

Aviation Is Too Risky, So She Merely Sinks.

ONCE AN EXPERT AVIATRIX.

She Learned the Trade In the West and Now Applies It East to the Tune of From $20 to $50 a Day—She Dives to Lay Pipes.

At Black Tom, N. J., where the serious explosion occurred a few weeks ago which shook three states, Mrs. Alga Bryant was recently hired to dive for the thousands of allied shells which went to the bottom of the bay when munition, scows and ships burned and sank. Seriously disturbed by the fate of her husband, who met a horrible death when his aeroplane, high in the air, got beyond his control and dashed to the earth, Mrs. Bryant gave up aeroplaning, at which she was an expert, and took up the "less risky" employment of diving. She is only twenty-six, yet has crowded into her young life more adventure than any girl of her acquaintance. At diving she earns from $20 to $50 a day, which she says is part of the attraction of the job, though she likes the work itself best. Captain Fitch, the well known western diver, taught Mrs. Bryant her new occupation. Her first work was at Seattle, Wash., where she was for three months laying pipes in the bay. The shells she is now removing from the water bottom are worth about $25 apiece.

INTERESTING BREAD.

Points For Mrs. Newlywed About the Staff of Life.

The staff of life occasionally palls on the fastidious appetite. We wish sometimes that bread were flavored with vanilla or that it were rose color or that in some other way it deviated from the monotonous simplicity of its daily characteristics.

Bread can be served in so many different ways that it need never become monotonous. Of course there are many kinds of bread—made with rye or corn or graham or some other flour. But we are talking about plain white wheat flour bread.

To begin with, bread for dinner may be served in the form of small blocks, perhaps two inches square, cut from the crumb or inside of the loaf without crusts. These are served without butter.

Then the bread may be served in thin slices, cut in half, and two half slices, folded together, served at each place.

The bread may also be browned and dried in the oven. For this purpose it may be cut in many ways. Very thin slices cut across twice give good pieces. These are put into a lukewarm oven and dried until they are crisp, curled and golden brown, or the bread may be cut in thicker pieces and browned and dried slowly.

Pulled bread, too, is good. To prepare this take the inside of a fresh loaf, pull it to pieces and dry and brown to a light golden color these pieces in a lukewarm oven.

For luncheon bread and butter sandwiches are always good instead of bread and butter served separately. The sandwiches should be made of thin slices and should be fresh and dainty.

With the luncheon creamed soup bouillon long, narrow strips of bread and butter in sandwich form are good. Brown bread of any sort is delicious served in this way.

Save Costly Shoes And Doctor's Bills By Wearing Rubbers In Bad Weather

Rubbers and Overshoes Practically The Only Things That are About the Same Price as Before the War

Have you bought a pair of shoes lately, either for yourself or for one of the children? If you have, you will realize just how expensive leather is now. It is scarce, and getting scarcer—and the soldiers are needing enormous quantities for shoes and equipment. Clearly it is a patriotic duty, as well as common sense, to save shoes in every possible way.

The best way, of course, is to wear rubbers whenever it is wet or snowy overhead or underfoot. Nothing rots and cracks shoe leather like getting it wet, particularly if it is none too good, as is often the case now, even in high-priced shoes.

It is fortunate, indeed, that rubbers have not joined the general upward movement. Crude rubber, in fact, costs no more than before the war, thanks to Great Britain's benevolent control of the supply. So, in spite of the 50% to 100% increase in the cost of cotton and other materials used in rubbers, prices are still normal.

As a pair of rubbers, costing 60c to $1.25, will almost double the life of a pair of shoes costing eight or ten times as much, there would be no doubt about the economy of wearing them, even if they did not save many a cold and worse sickness, with the attendant expense and loss of time.

But saving shoes is more than private thrift—it is public service! The leather so thoughtlessly wasted is needed at the front to help win the war, and saving it for that service is real, practical patriotism.

Every Member Of Your Family Should Wear Rubbers This Winter

He Had a Letter.

A large and fat Bavarian soldier was recently taken prisoner. As he was brought into the French lines he took out an envelope and waved it, saying, "Bon Boche, Kamerad." He added that he had charge of French prisoners in a fort in Bavaria, and had looked after them so well that they had given him a letter of recommendation if ever he should be captured himself. An officer opened the letter and read as follows: "We French prisoners, interned in fort X, have found Fritz a thief and swindler who robbed us outrageously whenever we commissioned him to buy things for us. Fritz is both cunning and stupid. He played us the dirtiest tricks. We recommend him to the tender mercies of whoever of our countrymen, as we hope, takes him prisoner. He deserves the best thrashing he can get." The French officer laughed out loud, and the Bavarian, not understanding a word of French, joined the laughter, exclaiming again, "Bon Boche," and rubbing his hands with delight.

VOLUNTEER BIBLE CLASS CLOSE SUCCESSFUL YEAR

A Life Membership in W.M.S. Presented to Mrs. A. McKenzie.

The officers and members of the Volunteer Bible Class of Knox Presbyterian Church held their annual meeting at the home of the president, Miss Margaret Kennedy, 224 Park St. Reports of officers and convenors of committees were presented. The secretary's report showd a total enrolment of 64. The treasurer's statement showed over $75 had been raised during the year $5.61 had been contributed to missions. The remainder of the funds had been divided for the Sunday School, Red Cross work and flowers for the sick and bereaved. The officers and members feel greatly encouraged by the progress made by the class during the past year.

At the close of the missionary secretary's report Mrs. A. McKenzie, teacher of the class, was presented with the following address:—

To our dear teacher: To me has been given the very pleasant task of extending to you the most hearty good wishes of the girls of your class at this Christmas season. Although we may not often express our appreciation and gratitude for the kindly interest and the warm-hearted sympathy that you have extended to each one of us throughout the past years when it has been our privilege to be associated with you. We have always and shall always appreciate it deeply. At this Christmas season we should like you to know that no matter how widely the coming years may separate us, the recollection of the helpful Sunday afternoons spent with you will always be one of the sacred pictures that adorn memory's wall.

And so this Christmas, 1916, we ask you to accept this token (a life membership of the Women's Missionary Society) with our very best wishes for a joyous Christmas season and a bright and happy new year.

(Signed on behalf of the Volunteer Bible Class), Margaret Kennedy, president; Margaret Bulmer, secretary; Ethel Buckham, treasurer.

Mrs. McKenzie was completely surprised. She thanked the class for their kind appreciation and hoped the time would come when some of the members would volunteer for the foreign field.

A very enthusiastic meeting was brought to a close by all joining in singing O Blest be the tie that binds, and God Save the King.

The class officers are: Teachers, Mrs. Ross and Mrs. McKenzie.

President—Miss M. Goodfellow.

First vice-president—Miss M. Kennedy.

Second Vice-president—Miss C. Ross.

Missionary treas.—Mrs. Roy McKenzie.

QUIET NIGHT FRENCH REPORT

NO MOVEMENT OF IMPORTANCE ON FRENCH FRONT.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, Dec. 15.—An official communication given out by the French War Office this afternoon on the progress of hostilities on the French front is limited to declaring that nothing of importance transpired during the past night.

PARIS, Dec. 15.—A German attack on Lassigny, that part of the front nearest to Paris, was made on Monday in great force, says La Liberte's correspondent with the French armies. It appears to have been concerted to coincide with von Bethmann-Hollweg's note, probably with a view to impressing the French by a local success.

"The Germans brought together about 40,000 men from the best divisions," adds the correspondent, "and concentrated corresponding quantities of artillery. The attack was preceded by an intense bombardment, lasting for hours.

"The French were not taken by surprise, and received the assaulting waves with a fire from their three inch guns and machine guns, tearing the ranks terribly. A barrier fire thrown to the rear of the Germans caught the supporting reserves.

"The Germans reached the French trenches over a frontage of 300 yards but an immediate counter-attack enabled the French to regain the trenches. Only a few survivors of the attacking columns escaped. Most of them were killed after stubborn resistance.

"The Germans renewed the assault an hour later, without success. The French heavy artillery dispersed the reserves as they came up."

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS.

Five hours after the body of Mrs. Madeline Kramer, aged 19, had been found in a ditch just outside Detroit, Dr. Henry A. Lounsbury, 53, a native of Pelee Island, Ont., was under arrest.

A meeting in Guelph city hall to discuss reducing the high cost of living called for meat at only one meal a day, civic monopoly of potatoes and putting a maximum price of 45 cents for eggs and butter.

Wm. Willover, Jr., and James Jones, Jr., from Bridgeburg, were acquitted on the charge of car robbery, though two alleged accomplices turned King's evidence and told the whole story of the robbery.

Montreal, a seaport, has contributed only 32 recruits for the Royal Navy, whereas Winnipeg, a thousand miles from the nearest ocean port, has given already 86 men.

It is understood that over sixty chaplains of the C. E. F. have already been notified that their services will not be required at the present time. Those useful in recruiting will be retained.

Five Austrians who went to Hamilton from Sarnia to avoid the $5 poll tax were fined $10 each for not registering. They had $2200 amongst them concealed in their clothing.

During the St. Lawrence shipping season just closed there was not a single serious accident to ocean-going vessels on the St. Lawrence route. It is 62 years since a season has closed with a clean sheet.

And many a man fails to make good because he loves to take things easy.

FINED $2 AND GIVEN LECTURE

MAURICE VENER'S STEED STOOD ALONE ON CHAMBERS STREET.

Maurice Vener, a Hebrew from Ashburnham, left his horse unblanketed and tied on Chambers Street from 6 to 10 o'clock on the eve of December 5, and Police Magistrate Dumble fined him $2 at the Police Court this morning.

P. C. Blade received a complaint regarding the horse and took the outfit to Blewett and Middleton's stables, where it was claimed by the defendant after 11 o'clock the same night.

The Magistrate gave the defendant a very severe lecture and advised him to take better care of his horse in future.

SHOULD BE REGULAR TEST OF MILK SAYS DR. CLINTON

All Bottles Used by Milkmen Should Be Sterilized.

The Peterborough Board of Health held their last meeting for the year last evening. There were present Messrs. Geo. Duncan (chairman), M. Murty, W. Buller, Mayor Duffus, and Dr. Amys, M. O. H.

Dr. George Clinton of Belleville, chief medical officer of health for this district, addressed the Board briefly. He backed up Dr. Amys in his action in condemning the carcass of beef which was found in Ashburnham. The animal had been suffering from a growth on its shoulder and the meat had been offered for sale. There was no growth that was a normal growth, and it was dangerous for human consumption. He told of his efforts to keep the waters in Stoney Lake and other resorts pure, and stated that he had the promise of the Stoney Lake Navigation Company to equip their boats with sterilising apparatus for use in their closets. The necessity of having all houses built under the supervision of a capable building inspector was pointed out.

Should Test Milk.

Danger from not having the city's milk supply tested regularly caused some pointed remarks from the visiting officer. The bottles should be thoroughly sterilised before being refilled. The average milk man did not have the facilities for thoroughly cleansing their bottles. This should be done under the supervision of a sanitary inspector.

The advisability of having the school nurse under the control of the Board of Health was recommended to the members for serious consideration. The Provincial Board were endeavoring to have the inspection of children transferred from the Education to the Health Department. It was pointed out that there was no inspection for the Separate or Normal Schools or the Collegiate Institute.

Miss May Spears, the nurse at the Queen Mary Hospital, was given an increase in salary of $5 per month from December 1st.

Queen Mary Hospital expenses from Jan. 1st to Nov. 30th, 1916:

	During November	Total
Drugs and medicines		$ 192.89
Groceries, provisions	$ 27.58	856.93

Telephone		42.90

	$166.45	$4056 44

Appropriation, $4400.00.

Salaries at Queen Mary Hospital, November, 1916:

H. Reid, acting matron	$ 58.33
May Spears, nurse	20.00
Mr. J. Cowan, caretaker	40.00
Mrs. C. E. Milbourn, laundress	15.00
Total	$133.33

The members expressed great gratification over the report, and also on the fact that at present there are no cases of contagious disease in the hospital.

The following accounts were ordered paid when certified:

POLICE CHIEF'S ROCKY ROAD

EVERY MAJOR BONE IN HIS BODY BROKEN IN 30 YEARS' SERVICE.

CHICAGO, Dec. 15.—Charles C. Healey, chief of police of Chicago, has resigned in consequence of charges preferred against him that he permitted pernicious dives to operate, and the Mayor's request that he give up the position. He claims to have filled the position honestly and to the best of his ability.

Retiring Chief Healey has served on the Chicago police force over 30 years, during which time every major bone in his body has been broken while in the performance of his duties. His most serious injuries have consisted of the breaking at various times of both thighs, both legs, right arm, five ribs, collarbone, nose and four fingers. His right wrist was shattered by a bullet, and his shoulder and right arm dislocated. In addition to this, he has suffered from knife and razor cuts and clubbings.

FINED $2 AND GIVEN LECTURE

MAURICE VENER'S STEED STOOD ALONE ON CHAMBERS STREET.

Maurice Vener, a Hebrew from Ashburnham, left his horse unblanketed and tied on Chambers Street from 6 to 10 o'clock on the eve of December 5, and Police Magistrate Dumble fined him $2 at the Police Court this morning.

P. C. Blade received a complaint regarding the horse and took the outfit to Blewett and Middleton's stables, where it was claimed by the defendant after 11 o'clock the same night.

The Magistrate gave the defendant a very severe lecture and advised him to take better care of his horse in future.

SHOULD BE REGULAR TEST OF MILK SAYS DR. CLINTON

All Bottles Used by Milkmen Should Be Sterilized.

The Peterborough Board of Health held their last meeting for the year last evening. There were present Messrs. Geo. Duncan (chairman), M. Murty, W. Buller, Mayor Duffus, and Dr. Amys, M. O. H.

Dr. George Clinton of Belleville, chief medical officer of health for this district, addressed the Board briefly. He backed up Dr. Amys in his action in condemning the carcass of beef which was found in Ashburnham. The animal had been suffering from a growth on its shoulder and the meat had been offered for sale. There was no growth that was a normal growth, and it was dangerous for human consumption. He told of his efforts to keep the waters in Stoney Lake and other resorts pure, and stated that he had the promise of the Stoney Lake Navigation Company to equip their boats with sterilising apparatus for use in their closets. The necessity of having all houses built under the supervision of a capable building inspector was pointed out.

Should Test Milk.

Danger from not having the city's milk supply tested regularly caused some pointed remarks from the visiting officer. The bottles should be thoroughly sterilized before being refilled. The average milk man did not have the facilities for thoroughly cleansing their bottles. This should be done under the supervision of a sanitary inspector.

The advisability of having the school nurse under the control of the Board of Health was recommended to the members for serious consideration. The Provincial Board were endeavoring to have the inspection of children transferred from the Education to the Health Department. It was pointed out that there was no inspection for the Separate or Normal Schools or the Collegiate Institute.

Miss May Spears, the nurse at the Queen Mary Hospital, was given an increase in salary of $5 per month from December 1st.

Queen Mary Hospital expenses from Jan. 1st to Nov. 30th, 1916:

	During November	Total

Groceries, provisions	$ 27.58	856.93
Fuel		486.23

Telephone		42.90
Water		60.00
Incidentals	4.85	408.41
	$166.45	$4056.44

Appropriation, $4400.00.

Salaries at Queen Mary Hospital, November, 1916:

H. Reid, acting matron	$ 58.33
May Spears, nurse	20.00
Mr. J. Cowan, caretaker	40.00
Mrs. C. E. Milbourn, laundress	15.00
Total	$133.33

The members expressed great gratification over the report, and also on the fact that at present there are no cases of contagious disease in the hospital.

The following accounts were ordered paid when certified:

The Board, before adjourning, left the subject on file for the members of the 1917 Board to consider.

POLICE CHIEF'S ROCKY ROAD

EVERY MAJOR BONE IN HIS BODY BROKEN IN 30 YEARS' SERVICE.

CHICAGO, Dec. 15.—Charles C. Healey, chief of police of Chicago, has resigned in consequence of charges preferred against him that he permitted pernicious dives to operate, and the Mayor's request that he give up the position. He claims to have filled the position honestly and to the best of his ability.

Retiring Chief Healey has served on the Chicago police force over 30 years, during which time every major bone in his body has been broken while in the performance of his duties. His most serious injuries have consisted of the breaking at various times of both thighs, both legs, right arm, five ribs, collarbone, nose and four fingers. His right wrist was shattered by a bullet, and his shoulder and right arm dislocated. In addition to this, he has suffered from knife and razor cuts and clubbings.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Mr. John Smith, baritone, has been engaged to sing in Pontypool, at a concert given by the L.Q.L. on Dec. 15th.

Picton Times.—The concert on Thursday evening, Nov. 30, in the Assembly Hall, from which the Armenian relief fund realized $120, was an unqualified success, as to numbers attending, while the choir musicians taking part in the artistic program fully came up to expectations.

It is probably safe to say that on no other similar occasion in Picton have an equal number of famous composers been represented on a program.

Mrs. Perrin, of Peterborough, appearing for the first time on a concert stage in Picton, made a most favorable impression with her superb contralto voice, her attractively youthful appearance emphasizing greatly the charm of her singing. This artist was on the program for three songs and for one duet with Mr. Barrett McMullen, but as the singer was encored each time, double numbers were given. "What the Chimney Sang" and "The Page's Song," from "Huguenots," were particularly enjoyed, but each of the others gave opportunity for expressing tenderly and musically the spirit of the composition.

Mrs. Currie, Miss Platt, Miss Van Dusen and Mr. B. McMullen were the local soloists of the evening, their numbers being given with the distinctive impressiveness which always is noticeable in their work.

Mrs. Perrin while in town was the guest of Miss Platt and Miss Holmes.

RECITAL BY ST. JOHN'S CHOIR

MISS DE LA LOWE DELIGHTED AUDIENCE WITH HER SINGING.

The choral recital given by St. John's choir last night was not largely attended but the audience present enjoyed to the full every number. The choruses given by the choir deserve great praise and once again exemplified what splendid results can be attained by a purely voluntary body of singers by faithful, regular rehearsing. Miss de la Lowe from the Hambourg Conservatory gave three oratorio numbers very finely. Possessed of a pure coloratura soprano voice of unusual range, Miss Lowe sang easily, especially in "Hear ye, Israel," and "Come unto Him," using the Italian method of tone production. Mrs. Amys tastefully selected and beautifully sang a setting of "Abide with Me" by Liddell in D flat. Miss Quartermaine also sang well in her number, "Lead Thou me on," and Mr. H. W. Morphet, always a favorite singer, finely sang the opening solo to "O come let us worship." The male quartette, "Softly now the light of day," sung by Messrs. Marshall, Hutchinson, C. Devey and Flowers was expressively rendered. The "Wailing" chorus, seldom heard out of the complete work (Stainer's "Daughter of Jairus") was unusually well presented by Mrs. R. J. Devey, Miss Agnes Horsfield, Mrs. G. Evans, Miss Quartermaine and Messrs. Hutchinson and Marshall. The unaccompanied section was very fine, and the oboe solos in E minor, played on the organ, which occur in this number, were very effective.

Mr. Cyril Devey ably performed an offertoire by Batiste on the organ as the first number on the program, and as a postlude a "Lutspiel" overture.

Mr. Richard J. Devey presided at the organ for all the vocal numbers and is to be congratulated on the whole recital, especially on the fine work of the choristers.

Rev. Canon Cornish opened and closed the recital with prayer and the Benediction, also reading out the names of choristers to the number of fourteen who are now serving with the expeditionary forces.

OUR CHRISTMAS NUMBER

The Review presents its annual Christmas Number in the issue of today. Whatever other merits it may possess, there is one feature in which the publishers feel special pride—the work has all been done in this city by local labor. The number is filled with matter of interest to the general public, prepared in this office, and not resurrected from other newspapers by a free use of the editorial shears. It is filled with the advertisements of live local merchants and with arguments in favor of patronage for those dealers who have money invested in the city and who help to carry the civic burdens.

Peterborough has a future, and The Review will always regard it as one of its chief duties to help develop that future to the limit.

J. CLARK HAS REMEDY FOR RUST BLIGHT IN WHEAT

South Monaghan Farmer Offers to Sell Secret to Government and Guarantees a Preventative--Negotiations in Progress.

On Sept. 28 last the following editorial appeared in The Weekly Review under the heading, "What Causes Rust."

That mysterious plant disease, rust, blighted the wheat crop in some places of the West, and the Dominion Goverment is taking prompt steps to look into the question, and, if possible, to fin preventative remedies. Laboratories are to be established in various cities of the West, and the matter will be thoroughly investigated.

The rust menace is a new one to the prairie farmer, at least he has never yet suffered severely from this source. The West has had two rust visitation within a decade. The latter wa much more serious than the first, and the one this season was so destructive as to excite general alarm. Ordinarily it takes hot, muggy weather to develop rust to the danger point, and, while the prairies may be happily free from this kind of weather, there is no saying when it may come.

Rust is a fungus growth on the wheat plant. That much has been established, but it remains yet for science to devise some measures to ward off the danger.

This article fell under the notice of Mr. Joseph Clark, the well-known farmer of South Monaghan. He wrote to Minister of Agriculture Burrell advising the Government to save the money they proposed to invest in laboratories. Mr. Clark claims that he has a remedy for rust, the result of long years of study of the subject and he offers to sell his secret to the Government for a consideration. If he saves wheat threatened by rust on 75 per cent. of the cases treated he asks for compensation. Otherwise he will not expect a cent.

Minister Burrell, after acknowledging the receipt of Mr. Clark's letter, turned the matter over to H. T. Gussow, the Dominion botanist. Six letters in all have been received by Mr. Clark. The officials ask him to have faith in their integrity and to experiment with his specific on their assurance that if he is successful he will be adequately remunerated. Mr. Clark, however, says he has had considerable experience with Government officials, especially with regard to the settlement of his claim for damage against the Trent Canal, and is inclined to be suspicious. No guarantee no test is his ultimatum, and there the matter rests.

Mr. Clark will test his remedy in his own wheat fields next summer and his son, who ha a farm in the West, will do likewise, both preserving the secret unless the Government in the meantime comes to his terms. He ays that the blight known as rust is caued by excessive moisture and heat, which bursts the stems of the growing grain. That's the cause. The cure is his little secret.

WILL DECLARES LIFE OF LATE MISS MARY ORR

MR. R. J. TODD DISCUSSES WILL OF CHRISTIAN SCIENTIST.

Discussing the life of the late Miss Mary Orr of Bobcaygeon and her remarkable will, with The Review, Mr. R. J. Todd said the will expressed the deceased lady's life. "I would say it is a real pen picture of Miss Orr as I knew her for the past sixteen years," said Mr. Todd. "I had financial dealings with her, and she gave us friendly calls when she visited our city, and her will is perfectly consistent with her life, her devotion to and love for that which she believed to be the highest interest of her fellow-man, and the establishing of the Kingdom of Heaven (reign of harmony) on earth.

"The $10,000 to be spent in Chicago is but just, as I am informed a goodly portion of her money came from her brother, whose home was in Chicago.

"The $10,000 to help in making homes for the deserving is just what she aimed at while here, to encourage and help others to make homes for themselves, not to give them and thereby encourage laziness.

"The way in which her money is to be spent in her home town is quite in accord with her Master's teaching, 'Seek first the kingdom of God and all these things shall be added.'

"Consistent with the same teaching is the $50,000 to establish institutions to take the place of poorhouses, gaols, etc.

"As to relatives overlooked, when Jesus was told he had relatives, he asked a question, then answered it by saying, 'They who do the will of My Father the same is my brother and sister and mother.' Altogether I think she was guided by wisdom beyond the human and her humble consistent life is not ended, but will yet bear fruit to the honer and Glory of God and the benefit of humanity."

Close to 100,000 Men Went to the Attack After German Line Had Been Hammered for Seventy Hours and Enemy Surrendered Freely--No Counter-attack Made.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, Dec. 16.—In Gen. Nivelle's victory on the Verdun front yesterday eighty guns were captured, according to reports reaching Paris at an early hour this morning. Prisoners are said to number nearly 9000.

The French assault on the Verdun front, which resulted so successfully, was made by five divisions (close to 100,000 men) under command of Gen. Mangin. Behind the French line Gen. Nivelle had distributed groups of powerful batteries, which hammered the German lines for seventy hours prior to the attack. Promptly at 10 o'clock Friday morning the five attacking divisions, each covering a front of a mile and a quarter, advanced behind a screen of fire from guns of all calibres, and swarmed rapidly into the German trenches. The Germans, surprised by the suddenness of the attack, offered little resistance. As they rushed to the attack the French soldiers cheered, and from time to time "La Marseillaise" could be heard above the roar of the cannon. Having lost Vaucherauville and Pepper Hill, the Germans realized that resistance would be futile, and retired in fairly good order, but on the Vaucherauville-Beaumont road the French, having made a detour, suddenly appeared in the rear of the Germans, who bolted, throwing away their rifles and all equipment. From the top of the hill the French could see them running, and, shouting with joy, dashed after them. Soon the Germans were surrendering freely all along the line, and the communication trenches were choked with prisoners. Everywhere the French showed splendid form, and nothing could stop them. Nothing went wrong. By 11 o'clock twenty guns were taken, by noon forty, and by 5 o'clock seventy-five had been counted, besides those destroyed, which were many. Positions taken yesterday were lost to the Germans Feb. 25 last.

Prisoners From Five German Divisions.

PARIS, Dec. 16.—Although there has been violent bombardment along that part of the front from the River Meuse to the Woevre, over which the French swept in the advance yesterday, no couner-attack was delivered by the Germans during the night, says today's war office statement. Four French divisions engaged in yesterday's attack took prisoner soldiers belonging to every regiment of five German divisions.

BERLIN ADMITS THIS ONE.

BERLIN, Dec. 16. — An official statement today says: The French on Dec. 15 succeeded on the northeast front of Verdun in pushing us back from most of our advanced positions into a prepared second line on the Talou Ridge heights north of Louvemont, Chambrettes, and south of Bezonvaux.

It is expected the Government will be ready by Tuesday to make a statement regarding the German peace proposals.

JUDGE HUYCKE'S SONS.

THE MEMBERS of the Grand Jury express the hope that Judge Huycke's gallant sons will get back safely to Canada, bringing glory with them. If the boys return, as we all hope, there will be no mistake about the glory. That has been already won and has reached their home city months in advance of them.

DEALING IN THE DARK.

THE DOCKETS of the courts all through the country are cumbered with cases that have grown out of deals in Western real estate. A man purchases an alleged town lot in a prairie city and pays one or two instalments, as the case may be. Perhaps he goes West to see his property, and is able to locate it only with the assistance of a chart and a guide. Then he realizes that the case has not been submitted to him according to the facts. It may be that the alleged bonanza is simply a swindle. His land in some cases is under water and far from human habitation. Then follows the invariable lawsuit with all its expense and annoyance.

It is no longer considered good business form to buy a pig in a poke. When a man purchases a horse he insists on seeing the animal, and if he is not sure of his own knowledge of horseflesh he will probably engage an expert to help him out. When he invests money in a home, he inspects the residence from cellar to garret.

Why, then, should any man buy a lot, two thousand miles away, on blind faith? It is certainly not because he lacks warning. It must be that dreams of wealth easily and rapidly acquired have warped his usually sound business judgment. There have been gigantic frauds in land deals, just as there have been in mining stocks, and these frauds will be possible just so long as the public remain gullible and give the crafty and unscrupulous agent the opportunity to take them in. The scheme that promises sudden riches is suspicious on the face of it, and the wise man will religiously let all such propositions alone.

HOW GUELPH SOLVES THE PROBLEM.

THE CITIZENS of Guelph held a mass meeting called by an ambitious and public-spirited alderman, and set themselves to the task of solving that greatest of all problems, the high cost of living. Various views were advanced as to the cause, while there was no doubt whatever as to the effects. Some of the citizens stood for municipal coal yards, bakeries, milk supply depots and the like. Mayor Mahoney's cool judgment, however, prevailed, and a compromise was finally effected. Guelph binds itself to use meat only once a day until prices are reduced to the normal, and to economize in other lines.

If Guelph decides to submit to semi-starvation, that is peculiarly its own affair, but the process is painful and the results in the main rather dubious. The pledge made at the mass-meeting is not likely to be generally observed. The pangs of hunger will chill many a worthy citizen's enthusiasm in the cause of economy. Those that have money to buy meat will indulge as often as their appetites prompt them, just as they have done in the past.

The demand for municipal control of supplies showed how little the majority of the people understand this phase of the case. The advocates of this measure held that all goods could be furnished at cost. They took no account of the expenses or of those who would be pauperized if the municipality stepped in and expropriated their business. If a municipality went into the coal business, let us say, a force of employes would be required to handle the fuel, including rigs to deliver it. The popular fallacy has to do with the compensation of such a working force. They are to be paid out of the general funds of the city and not out of the proceeds of the business. The taxpayer who did not require coal for his own use would, under such a system, be required to help pay for heating his neighbor's premises. As well might a city that owned its own street railway decide to allow the public to ride free, and defray the operating expenses of the system by a general tax. The man who never entered a street car might easily pay more for rides than the citizen who rode to and from work every day in the week.

The majority of people do not object to parting from their money, provided they are deprived of it without violence. The man who picks their pocket, rifles their safe, or goes through their homes with burglarious intent, is regarded as rather a clever personage so long as he manages to work quietly and escape undetected.

NO PUNISHMENT THIS,

For not having a job when jobs are plentiful through the scarcity of men, Martin Rowley was today sent down for four months.

ALL THIS HAPPENED in Brantford and the incident was deemed of sufficient importance to be telegraphed all over the country, probably in the hope that it would prove a warning to the indolent. The State is certainly easy. One can imagine Mr. Rowley laughing in his sleeve at his easy victory, as he was led away to the bastile. The chances are that he did not want a job. What he was looking for was a term in jail sufficiently long to carry him through the winter into the spring, and that is what he got. The authorities, if they ever thought they were heaping vengeance upon his head, were simply laboring under a delusion. In the language of the street, Mr. Rowley "put one over" them. The subject of this sketch will be warmly housed in his new quarters and allowed sufficient food to at least keep him alive. The high cost of living has no terrors for him now, if it ever worried him. A beneficent State has released him of all anxiety on this score. There is no work he can do that will even approximately pay for his keep. The people who are willing to work will be called upon to settle for his board and lodging.

We gather from the above despatch that the estimable but trifling Mr. Rowley is a man able to earn his own living. Then why not compel him to do so? Men are wanted today as they have not been at this season for years. There is surely something he could do around a munition factory or in some other line. Giving him free board and lodging for the winter is a joke upon all except those who will foot the bill. Mr. Rowley would probably term it considerable of a snap.

LIQUOR IN PRIVATE HOUSES.

It was on July 1st, 1915, that hotel bars and private liquor shops throughout Saskatchewan gave place to government dispensaries established in a few centres. After nearly a year and a half of this partial prohibition the people have voted strongly for total prohibition—that is to say, for abolition of the government stores. There may be a certain amount of illegal business in smuggled liquor, but even what was once the "wild and woolly West" has found that it can get along without the old traffic in intoxicants. In Ontario, the closing of the bars was a war measure, but we doubt if they will ever be re-established. The Hearst legislation grows in popularity as does the Premier when he announces that there will be no turning back so far as his government is concerned. The Daily News does not think, however, that the Administration would be warranted in passing any legislation that would violate the privacy of the home. The people would scarcely submit to the constant search of their houses by police officials.—Toronto News.

THE TEMPERANCE organizations are, we are told, to make a united move upon the Dominion Parliament at the coming session to ask them to make the interprovincial traffic in liquor illegal. There is no use in attempting to dodge the cold fact. Prohibition can never be made thoroughly effective while the use of liquor is permitted in the home.

That is really what the temperance people desire to see prohibited, although they say that their object is to see stopped the importation of liquor from a wet into a dry province. The Dominion Parliament last year went as far as it was possible for it to go under the Constitution, as Minister of Justice Doherty so clearly explained. Parliament cannot pass a general prohibition law and so force any particular province into the dry column. If a province makes the private use of liquor illegal, importation into such province must stop, so that the matter is really in the hands of the various legislatures. Why, then, should the provinces attempt to throw the responsibility for unpopular legislation upon the Federal Administration?

Very naturally, a man will object, as The News intimates, to having his private residence searched for liquor. If, however, he is suspected of keeping a gambling house, of having counterfeit coin in his possession, or of breaking the law in any other respects, the police are not backward about making a search of his premises from top to bottom. The way for the householder to preserve his home from official espionage is to strictly observe the law.

The whole temperance question turns upon the use of liquor in private life. If all the provinces in the Dominion went dry, and Parliament passed a law forbidding the manufacture or importation of liquor, the commodity would then become contraband, and it would be illegal for any man to have it in his possession either in his residence or in his office. That is what we are coming to; that is what has already been done in other dry territories. Another agitation on the part of the temperance people for Federal action will end in nothing so long as Quebec elects ot maintain a license law. In the meantime, however, each dry province can stop the importation of liquor under the Act passed last session to cover this point.

GIVE TO WOMEN WHO GAVE

The time for giving is coming.

But to tens of thousands of Canadian families it came long ago, and they gave of their best, without thought of cost, full measure pressed down and running over. They gave their bread winners—the sons who were the apples of their eyes, the husbands who were the strong arm of their support, the fathers upon whom they leaned.

These sons, husbands and fathers are today facing death for our sake, but their arms are strengthened by the confidence that those they have left behind are in the care of a loving and a grateful country.

Are we seeing to it that the confidence is rightly based?

Are we as individuals making sacrifices in order that the Patriotic Fund may be able to expend the six million dollars that will have to be spent in Ontario next year if the dependents of our soldiers are to be properly card for?

Christmas time is here—the time of giving—the time that commemorates the greatest gift the world ever received. Why not this year dedicate our gifts to those who have dedicated their dearest and their best to our service and the service of humanity? Why not hold our hand from the useless gift, the gift that is not indispensable to the recipient, and translate that gift into the imperative one—the one that we must make to keep our faith with those men in yonder trenches?

And if we withhold from wife or sweetheart or child the present that would have been theirs, let them know that what they have lost, the dependents of these men have gained—and wife, sweetheart and child will be the richer from the knowledge and the prouder for the sacrifice they have made.

FOODS THAT EXPLODE

Many mysterious explosives which at one time baffled the ingenuity of our keenest detectives have been recently explained by the cold, methodical researches of our chemists, who, it will be remembered, also warned the Government not to let Germany have cotton to manufacture guncotton.

The men of science have not been able to wipe out the miseries that have been caused to the thousands of persons who have been convicted or condemned of arson, and other similar crimes, without a cause; but they have certainly succeeded in teaching the police to be very careful before they blame any householder or manufacturer or servant for an explosion. And the key to their researches has been always the same—dust.

How many cooks, for example, realize that the ordinary everyday flour they use in their kitchen is one of the most dangerous of explosives? Recent calculations show that the contents of a 25-pound sack of flour mixed with 4,000 cubic feet of air, will, if ignited, throw a mass of iron weighing one ton 45 miles through the air. Indeed, many disastrous explosion have occurred in big flour mills from this cause, wrecking huge buildings and causing heavy loss of life.

Every now and then a candy factory gets blown up in spite of the vigilance of the government inspectors, the watchfulness of the insurance companies, and the zeal of its foremen. Such an explosion occurred not long ago in Boston. It originated in a room where marshmallows were being made. These sweets are coated with finely-pulverized sugar, and the hot and dry air on a summer's day became laden with sugar dust, with the result that the mixture ignited, a lot of workers were injured, and many of the buildings were set on fire.

It is nothing new to hear also of explosions of starch in starch mills and of the rice in rice mills, and in each instance the blame is to be attributed to the innocent-looking commodities, and not to the malice or carelessness of the employees. Oatmeal, too, has been known to go off with dire results, and a great breakfast commodity will not long ago fast commodity mill not long ago to some maize dust getting mixed with air.

Spice dust in spice mills has wrought similar damage, and all linoleum is now manufactured under special precaution against fire because sad experience has shown how easily cork dust and the cement used in linoleum manufacture will ignite, or even take fire of their own accord.

Soap is another domestic suspect. It has even set fire to a ship in the mouth of the Thames. Only a few years ago there was a great explosion in a soap factory engaged in the production of a finely powdered soap. "Some enemy hath done this thing!" muttered the proprietor, but as a matter of fact he and the detectives who hunted for criminals were for months on the wrong scent. "Soap is fat, and therefore combustible," the chemists reminded him. "Your soap powder was dry, and so it got freely distributed through the air, when it exploded with more violence and greater heat than flour or starch."

Zinc has been known to cause explosions. The story is often told how a workman was once handling a quantity of finely powdered metallic zinc when he got a spell of laziness, and, to save further trouble, threw a shovelful into a flaming furnace. There was a terrific explosion. The blade of his shovel was driven into the roof of the building, and he got half killed.

Malt mills are also not immune from perils of explosions. In fact, detectives nowadays when they are faced with explosions, the origin of which they cannot fathom, are always instructed by their superiors to remember human agency may not be the cause, but—dust.—Pearson's Weely.

NOTED MUSICIAN OF MONTREAL

Advises The Use Of "FRUIT-A-TIVES", The Famous Fruit Medicine.

MR. ROSENBURG
589 Casgrain St., Montreal.
April 20th, 1915.

"In my opinion, no other medicine in the world is so curative for Constipation and Indigestion as "Fruit-a-tives". I was a sufferer from these complaints for five years, and my sedentary occupation, Music, brought about a kind of Intestinal Paralysis—with nasty Headaches, belching gas, drowsiness after eating, and Pain in the Back. I tried pills and medicines of physicians, but nothing helped me. Then I was induced to try "Fruit-a-tives", and now for six months I have been entirely well.

I advise any one who suffers from that horrible trouble—Chronic Constipation with the resultant indigestion, to try "Fruit-a-tives", and you will be agreeably surprised at the great benefit you will receive". A. ROSENBURG.

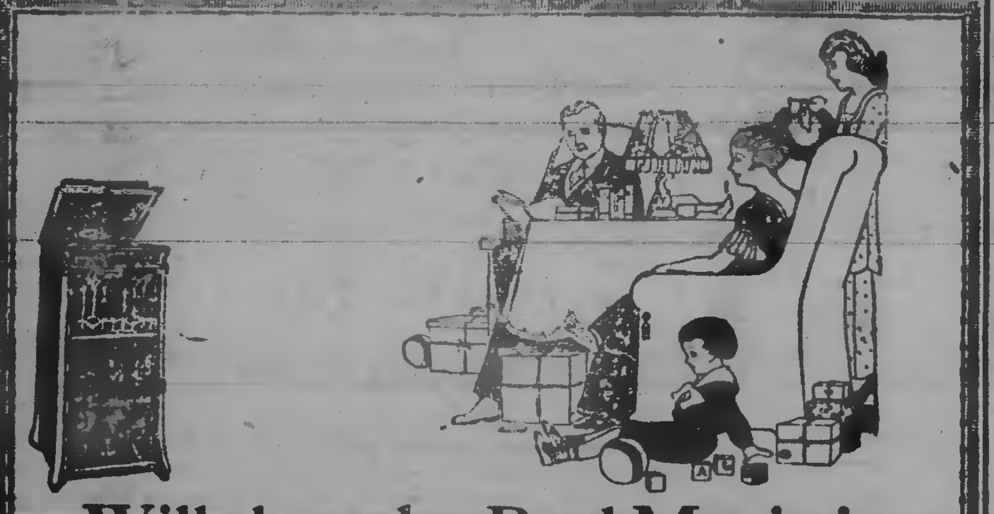
EDDY'S MATCHES

Although somewhat increased in price owing to the continued high cost of Potash, Glue and other raw material, are of the usual High Standard of quality which has made them famous for two-thirds of a century.

ALWAYS ASK FOR

EDDY'S MATCHES



Will there be Real Music in your home at Christmas?

There is no one so unmusical as to believe that a talking machine produces real music. At best, a talking machine, no matter how much it costs, no matter what artists make records for it, no matter what claims are made for it by its manufacturers, gives only a hollow imitation of the original music.

The NEW EDISON is not a Talking Machine

This new invention of the world's greatest inventor is in no real sense a talking machine.

It represents more than two million dollars spent in research work by Mr. Edison.

It represents the achievement of his ambition to produce a musical instrument which Re-creates all forms of music so perfectly that the original cannot be distinguished from the Re-Creation.

By hundreds of tests, before hundreds of thousands of music lovers, it has been proved conclusively that when an artist sings or plays—in comparison with the New Edison's Re-Creation of that artist's performance, it is impossible to distinguish the original from the Re-Creation.

The music critics of more than 200 of America's leading newspapers testify to this fact in the columns of their own papers. We shall be glad to show you what the critics say.

Hear this new Invention

Come to our store and let us give you a concert of Re-created music. Come at any time. You will always be welcome. There is no obligation to buy. We merely want you to hear what we consider the world's greatest musical instrument.

King of Spain Orders Four More Willys Knight Automobiles

KING OF SPAIN ORDERS FOUR MORE WILLYS-KNIGHT CARS.

The highest compliment to our manufacturing supremacy was paid recently by Alfonso, King of Spain, when he ordered four Willys-Knight cars—two touring cars and two limousines.

This order is all the more notable because of the fact that King Alfonso ordered one Willys-Knight touring car last spring through his foreign Ambassador. This car, especially equipped with wire wheels, was forwarded to him last April.

Reports from Madrid after the car had been delivered indicated that his Spanish Majesty was highly pleased with his new purchase.

Yet no official word was received until the arrival the other day of the cablegram ordering four more four-cylinder Willys-Knights, to be dispatched at the very earliest opportunity.

This royal endorsement of the Knight-motored car, manufactured by the Willys-Overland factories, can be taken as a supreme triumph for builders of Knight-sleeve valve motors. Such a large single order means, without doubt, that King Alfonso considers the Willys-Knight motor car at least the equal in accomplishments of the renowned Daimler, Panhard, Minerva and various other European Knight cars that sell from $4000 to $8000.

Col. W. O Morris, O. C. the 215th Battalion, has accepted another position, and Major Hedley Snider will take command.

A mix-up among Windsor fire apparatus delayed arrival at a blaze which did $2000 damage to Thomas Maw's home in the early morning.

A bonus of five per cent. will be paid to the women teachers in Hamilton next year.

MUNICIPAL LEAGUE WILL TAKE PART IN ELECTION

Voters in North Ward to Work for Nomination and Election of Good Men -- Say Mayor Duffus Should be Given Walkover.

The voters in the North Ward, which is now represented by Aldermen McIntyre and Langford, will take a prominent part in the coming municipal campaign. That is the voting sub-division of the city in which prominent ratepayers have formed the Municipal League, the first organization of the kind ever launched in Peterborough. The organization is unusual for a ward meeting to be so before nomination day next Friday and the north ward voters will be heard from.

The scope of the league is wide. In the first place the members will see to it that there are no more snap nominations due to public indifference. In the past it has been nothing unusual for a ward meetign to be conducted with a bare quorum present and for some candidate to be given a walk-over. The league will use every effort to get the voters to turn out to the nomination and select men who are really representative to stand for election. In the North Ward Ald. McIntyre's term expires so that it is the Chairman of the Board of Works who will be most directly concerned with any action that may be taken by the new league.

A Campaign Worth While

After the league nominates a man settled upon by a majority, the members will turn out and work for his success. Voters will be brought to the polls on election day and the nominee of the league will be sent to Council with the prestige which a candidate returned by a large majority only can possess. But even when the election is won the work of the league will not stop. The members will stand behind their alderman all through his term of office. They will meet to discuss every public question of importance that comes up in Council and adopt resolutions for the guidance of their representatives. No alderman under such circumstances can be in doubt as to the sentiments of his constituents and will know how to shape his official course so as to give the people what they want. He will be in close touch all the time with those who elected him.

Acclamation for the Mayor

The members of the league are not concerning themselves with the question of the mayoralty. One of the moving spirits in the organization said to The Review this morning that Mayor Duffus is on his record and by every precedent entitled to another term by acclamation. If any man comes out against him the Mayor will be returned by a larger majority than ever. Men who voted against him a year ago would support him now, believing that in all fairness he should be given a chance to finish his work.

Ashburnham Civic League

The Ashburnham Civic League was organized a year ago, with Mr. R. B. Rogers as president, to advance the interests of the East side. Aldermen Weir and Evans are members. It is likely that the league will be called together for campaign work and to get representation for the ward on the School Board by the election of Mr. A. A. Fowler, who will be a candidate.

ACTIVITIES AT Y.M.C.A.

The monthly meeting of the board of directors will be held on Tuesday evening next at 6.30. This is the final meeting of the year, so the presence of every director is needed.

Mr. James Dutton of the William Stock Co. will address the Y.M.C.A. meeting on Sunday at 4.15 o'clock. Mr. Dutton's address will be on a timely subject and will be of considerable interest. All men and older boys are invited.

On Friday evening supper was served to the four winning teams in the recent membership contest. Captains of these teams were Ross Dobbin, Bruce Hamilton, Reginald Brown and Herman Whitcroft. Forty men and boys were present.

Arrangements are being made to flood the tennis courts for a skating rink. It is expected that this rink will be in condition for use before the holidays.

Special arrangements are being made to care for the schoolboys who will throng the building during the two weeks' holiday. Also a special open house and gymnasium entertainment is being arranged for New Year's Day.

In view of the patriotic work that the ladies are engaged in at the present time, the usual reception and refreshments will not form a part of the New Year's programme. However, a great effort will be made to throng the building with the young men and boys of the city on this day.

In making up the usual list of Christmas gifts, do not forget a Y.M.C.A. membership ticket for son or brother. Perhaps father could be persuaded to renew his youth in the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium or bowling alley if he were given a Y.M.C.A. ticket for Christmas. It is poor policy to let father grow old too soon.

OTONABEE CHAPTER, I. O. D. E.

The work room of the Otonabee Chapter will be open both morning and afternoon on Monday and it is hoped there will be a large attendance, as there is a quantity of work to be finished.

As the room will be closed the two following Mondays on account of Christmas Day and New Year's Day, those in charge are most anxious to have the work on hand finished next week.

HOKA MOKA MINSTRELS SCORE AT CAMPBELLFORD

Peterboro Amateur Talent Played to S. R. O.

The "Hoka Moka" Minstrels, a local organization headed by those two old-time favorites, O'Brien and Houlihan, journeyed to Campbellford on Thursday evening, where they put on a very successful show and were greeted by a packed house. The S.R.O. sign was hung early that afternoon, leaving standing room only for the fifty or sixty people that accompanied the minstreal men from here.

The first part, which was a lengthy one, went off without a hitch, the audience demanding encore after encore. The funny end men were Messrs. Houlihan, Collins, Grady, O'Brien Murty and Moher. Their jokes were original and really funny and were fully appreciated by the crowd. To Mr. V. McCabe fell the role of interlocutor, which he filled in a very able and efficient manner. His original way of acting the part added much to the enjoyment of the evening. Mr. McCabe opened the first part by singing that beautiful ballad, My Grandfather's Girl, which her endered in good voice. It would be unfair to mention anyone in particular in the circle, as they all sang their songs in a finshed style, an encore being demanded in every case.

The feature of the olio was Mr. Lane, a new resident of Peterborough, better known as Ajax, the Strong Man. He gives a very interesting exhibition of strength. He thinks nothing of lifting five men above his head while holding a sixth man in his teeth. He toys with a 250 lb. man in one hand above his head and a number of other things, each one more wonderful than the other. "Ajax" alone was well worth the price of admission, and several comments were heard among the crowd to that effect.

Mr. James O'Brien amused the house for half an hour with his funny speech. He had the audience convulsed with laughter from start to finish. Then followed Mr. Sam Houlihan in a soft shoe dance and waltz clog. Mr. Houlihan has lost none of his old-time sprightliness" and he was at his best. Mr. Joe Parkins and Son put on a tango entertainment that is not equalled by any of the big time vaudeville artists. Last, but not least, came Mack Murty in his mile-a-minute tep dance. Mack is young at the dancing business but will make some of the old heads sit up and take notice.

To Miss Marion Gorman, the brilliant young pianist, fell the arduous task of musical directress. This role carries with it a great deal of worry and responsibility, and to Miss Gorman much credit is due for the able manner in which she looked after the musical end, which, after all, is the most important part of a minstrel show. Miss Gorman was ably assisted by an eight-piece orchestra and many flattering remarks were passed upon its playing. The personel of the orchestra was as follows: Piano, Miss Marion Gorman; cornet, Mr. J. Minicola; violins, Mr. V. McCabe, J. Condon and J. McCabe; trombone, Mr. D. Memmo; horn, Mr. Ed. Hanrahan; and drum and traps, Mr. F. Lynch.

Some Christmas Novelties

A barber shop that hasn't got a cigar box with a sign on it, "Remember the Porter."

A husband and father who is agreeably surprised with what he finds in his sock.

A piece of gilt fancy work that isn't a dust catcher.

A woman who doesn't want to know what the other woman received.

A person who doesn't suddenly realize that he overlooked some one who was expecting to be remembered.

An office boy who hasn't his "mitt out."

A miss who studiously sidesteps the mistletoe.

A cigar dealer who doesn't pat himself on the back because women will buy their husbands cigars.

A boy of six who doesn't break one of his new toys before the day is over.

A grown person who doesn't protest that he never used to get half what his children do.

A boy who doesn't wish it would snow.

A young man who doesn't receive a silk muffler.

A man with children who doesn't have to get up four hours sooner than he wants to on Christmas morning.

Various Trees For Christmas.

In the middle west nurserymen grow large quantities of Norway spruce for Christmas trees. But the tree most commonly used in the northern and central states is a short needle pine found in the woods of northern Michigan and Wisconsin. Early in September the Indians about the lumber camps in this territory are set to work cutting these trees for the market, and by early November a little fleet of vessels makes its way down Lake Michigan to Chicago, whence the trees are shipped to various cities all over the country.

An Old Christmas Saw.

He that maketh at Christmas a dog his larder and in March a pig his gardener and in May a fool a keeper of wise counsel, he shall never have a good larder, fair garden nor well kept counsel.

"I saw your wife and daughter the other day, but they didn't see me."

"So they said."

Some Christmas Celebrations

IN many homes the same customs are followed year after year at Christmas. Thus in one home where there are always visitors for the holidays an enormous square wicker hamper which has done service in the same capacity for twenty years is brought from the storeroom and placed in the general hall. Festive holly wreaths are tied to the handles and to the top with big red bows, giving it a decidedly holiday appearance. As gifts arrive they go at once into the hamper. On Christmas morning after breakfast the father of the family opens the hamper and with fitting ceremony and humorous remarks distributes the gifts.

A large bag resembling a mail pouch and made of brown and tan denim with "G. R. Mail" marked in large black letters on it hangs each Christmas season near the fireplace in the large living room of another house. Into this are slipped family presents and those sent by outsiders. The leather strap which fastens the bag is regarded as sacred, and no one would think of tampering with Santa Claus property till Christmas morning.

A huge red Christmas stocking, large enough to hold all the family gifts, makes its annual appearance in a western home. It is constructed of a firm bright red cotton cloth and a barrel hoop encircles the top, holding it open. It is suspended by wide red ribbons from the second floor stairs landing, and before Christmas boxes and packages of all sizes and kinds are dropped in from above. On Christmas morning the family gathers beneath this well filled receptacle, which is lowered and dragged by the ribbons into the center of the living room, where the contents are distributed.

Several years ago the young daughter of another family established a little custom which is still carried out each Christmas eve. On large red placards, hung with red ribbons, she writes with phosphorus the names of the different members of the family. These she places about the room. The mother's card hangs over the piano, on which her gifts are to be laid. Over the library table is suspended the father's card, designating his allotted space. The deep window seat, the davenport, etc., are other places assigned to other members of the family. Late Christmas eve all the lights, except a dim flicker in the hall, are extinguished, the armfuls of presents are brought down, and by means of the bright signs the gifts are put in their proper places.

For the past ten years a miniature sleigh drawn by six papier mache reindeer has appeared on the Christmas breakfast table of a New England family. Surrounding jolly little St. Nick, who, seated in the sleigh, holds the red lines, are piled the choice gifts, those that fit into small packages, such as jewelry and money. The boxes are opened before breakfast is served, and the Christmas tree festivities come later in the morning.

A pretty custom observed by several musical families is for the entire household to come downstairs together early in the morning singing carols.

In some homes the celebration begins on Christmas eve. At a country place near New York the custom is to have a small tree hung with joke gifts in the center of the dining room table. Piled about the tree is the collection of substantial worth while remembrances. After the latter have been distributed the family and house guests adjourn to the main room, which is hung with garlands of holly and mistletoe. Then the Yule log is brought in and laid on the andirons of the big fireplace. The lights from the blaze and from numerous candles furnish the only illumination. While the gifts are taken from the miniature tree and the attached sentiments read the health of Santa Claus is drunk.

The Yule Festival.

The festival of Yule was held at the winter solstice in honor of the return of the sun. As the year drew to its close and the sun daily sank lower in the horizon the old time Anglo-Saxons regarded the phenomenon as a typification of the end of the world. As the sun began to regain its power and ascend the horizon once more, deciding that a restoration of light and a new lease of life was to be theirs, the ancients gave themselves over to wild enthusiastic celebration of their good luck. Eating, drinking, dancing, sacrifices and rites, more or less religious in character, were the great features of this Yule or "Noel" celebration.

Christmas Day is coming - I'm as glad as I can be-'Cause I know there will be Plenty on our great big Christmas Tree!

Holiday Season Plants.

Among the red berried plants the most beautiful of all are the holly trees and aucubas from Holland, shapely ardisias, brilliant fruited Christmas peppers, the old time favorite Jerusalem cherry trees, otaheite orange, ponderosa lemon trees, with their larger fruits of dark and light yellow, and those pretty little trailing plants, the partridge berries, grown in glass berry bowls, raised in America.

When Christmas Comes.

While passing days are short and cold and drear,
While nights are long, the longest of the year,
While cruel winter solstice reigns supreme
O'er earth and air, o'er field and wood and stream,
Glad Christmas comes with glowing heart of cheer,
The brightest, bravest day of all the year.

—Ladies' Home Journal.

A Merry Chrismas to all.

Hearty Christmas Greetings

Various Names For Christmas

CHRISTMAS signifies Christ's mass, meaning the festival of the Nativity of Christ. During the many centuries since the advent it has been variously spelled. It is found in the old source books changing from Crystmasse, the very old English, through phases of Cristenmas, Crystynmas, Christenmas and Christmes to Christmass and eventually, as today, Christmas.

The French call the holiday Noel or Nowel. This is a derivation of the French nouvelles, meaning tidings. Some, however, take it as an abbreviation of the Provencal nadau or nadal, which means the same as the Latin natalis—that is, dies natalis, the birthday. We find Chaucer in his "Canterbury Tales," in that part of the narrative told by the Frankeleyn, alluding to Christmas and employing the French term Nowel as a festive holiday cry.

It is said that noel is a corruption of yule or jule, meaning a festival of the sun. The name yule is still used by the Scotch, and the Scandinavians call their festival Juletide. The Welsh call Christmas Nadolig, signifying a birth, and the Italians speak of it as Il Natale, which is cognate with the Spanish term and a contraction of the Latin.

Not only is the derivation of the word itself in doubt, but whether the 25th of December is the real date of the advent has long been a controvertible subject among chronologists. Early Christians were divided as to the date, some contending that it was the 1st or the 6th day of January, others the 29th of March, the day of the Jewish passover, and still others declaring for the 29th of September, the feast of the tabernacles.

Julius I., a bishop of Rome, in A. D. 337-352 seemed to settle the dispute by declaring Dec. 25 as the date. The western church accepted this, and the eastern church eventually came around, but the Armenian church still adheres to Jan. 6. Julius seems to have established authoritatively the 25th as the anniversary from what must have been authenticated tradition or it would have been since disproved in these days of enlightened archaeology. There are still, however, some unconvinced ones, who hold that the description given in St. Luke is more indicative of the spring than winter.

Mistletoe and Its Meaning.

Among the Saxons the fact that mistletoe was suspended from the roof of a dwelling intimated to the wayfarer that the hospitality of the house was at his disposal, and beneath its branches friend and stranger, vassal and lord, gathered together in comradeship and good cheer. The religious aspect of the mistletoe tradition, which had its origin in the Druidical rites, and the gathering of it by the arch Druid with his golden sickle merged later into a purely social symbol, and the idea of simple hospitality developed into one of merrymaking and a somewhat riotous entertainment.

The kiss of the Scandinavian goddess expanded into the custom of a kiss given for every berry that grew on the bough. Small wonder that, in spite of the mistletoe having originally existed in the odor of sanctity, the church came to regard it as an entirely pagan symbol and refused to allow it to participate with the holly and the evergreen in the Yuletide decorations.

There is an ancient belief that the mistletoe was the tree from which the holy cross was hewn and that after this was made the plant withered.

"Safety First" at Christmas.

Do not decorate your Christmas tree with paper, cotton or any other inflammable material. Use metallic tinsel and other noninflammable decorations only and set the tree securely so that children in reaching for things cannot tip it over.

Do not use cotton to represent snow. If you must have snow use asbestos fiber.

Do not permit children to light or relight candles while parents are not present. They frequently set fire to their clothing instead. The tree itself will burn when the needles have become dry.

Do not leave matches within the reach of children at holiday time. Candles are meant to be lighted, and if children can get matches they will experiment with them. They imitate their elders.

The Lord of Misrule

Until quite recent times it was customary in England for the court, each parish and sometimes wealthy families to appoint a "lord of misrule" in connection with the Christmas festivities. His appointment was usually on Halloween, and his rule lasted until after the new year. The lord of misrule was master of ceremonies at the revels, and it was part of his duty to provide entertainment for the court, the parish or the household. His power was absolute, and it was he who, in the guise of St. Nicholas, distributed the gifts on Christmas eve. Card playing, pantomimes, mask dancing and festivities of every kind came under his jurisdiction. He looked after the decorations. In England holly and ivy were the chief materials for the purpose, and in all households there was good natured rivalry between husbands and wives to see whether the husband should first bring the prickly holly or the wife the smooth holly across the threshold, indicating the superiority of the one or the other in the family councils for the coming year.

Christmas Limericks

POOR JACK!

There once was a youngster named Horner
Ate a whole Christmas pie in a corner.
Then he cried out: "Oh, my!
'Twas a cooking school pie!"
And so poor Jack was a goner.

FOR A WELL FILLED STOCKING.

There was a young lady named Gertie,
Who said to her best friend: "Now, Bertie,
We'll be good all the year,
But I'll tell you, my dear,
At Christmas it pays to be flirty."

—Ethel Bostick Ritchey.

The Broker's Christmas.

Brokerage houses have more beggars visit them than does any other class of business men. At Christmas time they fairly swarm. Some are "down and outs" from unlucky speculation and the mixing of business and alcohol; others are simply the unfortunates who have kept from drink, but who have lost their nerve and money and are merely trying to live.

A story is told by a Chicago broker of how he fell a victim to one smooth stranger recently and how the smooth stranger thereupon fell a victim to him. The visitor came to his office with a more or less familiar hard luck story of his wife being sick, his rent overdue and himself out of work ever since the market went against him in the old days. "I'm just going to work tomorrow," he said, "and I want to borrow $20 for expenses."

The broker, impressed with the story, handed over the money. The man who had seen better days stood around a few minutes and then said, "Won't you have something with me?" "I don't mind," said the broker, with the fellow feeling of the market. "We went to a nearby barroom," he said afterward, "and the poor man ordered a bottle of wine and a bunch of twenty-five cent cigars. Next I saw the twenty dollar bill that I had lent him put down to pay for the drinks and cigars. When the change was brought I reached over and took it and said: 'This is my money. But the drinks are on me.'"

The man who had seen better days before the market went against him moved on to the next broker's office.

Afraid of Santa.

"I'll be glad when I'm grown up," said the small boy.

"What for?"

"So I can get my Christmas presents without having any Santa Claus slipping around to find out whether I've been good or not."

CHRISTMAS SHOPPING GUIDE

Shop Early and Buy at Home

OF COURSE, it is the part of wisdom to do your Christmas shopping before the final rush. But whether you do it now or on the Saturday before the holiday, do it in Peterborough. Patronize the local merchants and pass up the mail order houses in other cities. And, above all, do your shopping, Christmas or any other variety, with the dealers who advertise in The Review.

Make this city what it ought to be, a community of interests. The local merchants pay city taxes and high rents. They are fixtures in this city. The mail order houses have no claim upon your patronage. They may claim to be able to sell you cheap goods, but the price everywhere is regulated by the quality of the stock handled. You can do just as well or better at home, and when you spend your money with the merchant in this city you are taking no chances by buying a pig in a bag.

You are loyal to your country when you invest in goods made in Canada. You are true to the welfare of your city when you help out the man who has his capital invested in Peterborough. The city can prosper, your own success in a worldly sense can only be achieved to the full when sellers and buyers work in unison.

Christmas is the children's holiday. There will be hundreds of dollars spent during the next week for toys for the little ones. See to it that your preference is given to the playthings that are made in Canada. Every cent paid for a toy or any article manufactured in a country at war with the Empire is so much substantial aid given the enemies of your country.

Lose no time in making your holiday purchases. Do it now, and give the overworked shop girls a chance for their lives. They would be rushed to death if all the shoppers put off their Christmas buying until the eleventh hour. And once more let us repeat: do your shopping at home. Don't let a mail order house work off any shopworn goods upon you. See what you buy before you pay for it.

You are not under the necessity of buying at random if you do your shopping at home. The advertising columns of The Review are an infallible guide, telling you just where to go for any article you may require. Patronize the dealer who advertises. Do not deceive yourself with the idea that the advertising cost is added to the price of the goods. It is the dealer who uses the newspapers to reach the public who can afford to sell cheap. Let us explain this statement for your benefit.

Suppose a merchant who does not advertise has one hundred regular customers from whom he has to make a profit of $1,000 a year in order to live. Out of each customer he has to make a profit of $10 a year.

Suppose, on the other hand, the same merchant is wise and spends $500 a year in Review advertising. This brings his name and business before more than 4,500 homes in Peterborough city and county, or over 13,000 people in all, if you accept the usual basis of calculation and reckon three persons to every family. This investment should bring him at least 300 new customers during the year. He has now 400 patrons. In order to make that $1,000 clear he has to secure a total profit of $1,500 to pay for his advertising. But he has now 400 customers. In other words, he needs to make only $3.75 out of each customer instead of $10. Isn't that argument clear?

This argument not only favors you financially, but the merchant who advertises is able to dispose of his goods quickly. No stock accumulates on his hands and he has no shelf-worn stuff to palm off on you unsight unseen, as we used to trade jackknives and other juvenile treasures when we were boys.

There is no dust, no cobwebs in the store that advertises. Publicity through the newspapers brightens up everything. It quickens the intelligence of the salesmen. It acquaints the customer with the new things that are coming out from day to day. The stock that is advertised never lasts long enough to have a birthday.

The merchant is losing money every day he does not advertise in The Review. The purchaser who fails to patronize the dealer who keeps the public posted as to his stock is simply standing in his own light.

BE A PATRIOTIC CITIZEN AND HELP YOUR OWN CITY AND LOCAL DEALERS

There are probably three hundred families in Peterborough today in which all the wage earners are out of work as a result of the destruction of the plant of the Quaker Oats Company. That calamity has meant a decrease in the payroll of the city of fully $1,000 a day, money which was not only earned, but spent to a large extent in the city.

Probably nine-tenths of the families in Peterborough who have no means other than their wages, run bills at the various stores in which they deal. The merchants are obliged to extend this accommodation in order to keep their trade, but the majority of the accounts are perfectly good.

At a conservative estimate, the 300 families now out of work owe the different merchants in the city $5 a family, or $1,500 in all. The dealer cannot press for his money while his customer is out of work, but will be obliged to wait until he secures other employment and catches up with what he has lost through his enforced idleness.

This is only one of the burdens that the local merchants have to carry at this season of the year. Owing to close competition none of them are making any extraordinary profits even if prices are high. The higher the selling the greater the buying price and sales are naturally limited when all costs are in the air. The buying public can help out the dealer by simply purchasing their supplies at home. Give the department store in a distant city the go-by. Do not do a blind business any more. Don't enrich the railways by paying fare to Toronto in order to do your shopping. Every cent so spent, every dollar you send out of Peterborough is so much money lost to the city. You cannot hope to ever get it back again. Give it to the home merchant for what you want and in less than a week you may have it in your own wallet again or in the bank, credited to you on the books of the institution.

You are not only injuring the commercial life of your own city when you spend your money outside, but you are really paying a piper for a dance that is enjoyed by others. The merchants here have as good to offer you as you can buy anywhere and you can really save money by dealing with them. If you are under the impression that you can buy cheaper away from home you have another guess coming. You can sell anything here just as readily and profitably as you can anywhere in the country, and the reverse of the proposition is equally true.

If you deal with a merchant in Toronto where rent and taxes are higher than in a city the size of Peterborough, he must levy on you in order to meet his expenses. Do you consider it the part of a good citizen to help pay the big rents and high taxes of Toronto and allow your own town to take its chances?

Perhaps you are ambitious to wear clothing prepared by the maker with a reputation in Toronto. Of what use will that be to you. You cannot go to a church or theatre or parade on George Street with the name of the outside firm prominently displayed on your garments. The chances are the goods neither look nor really are any better, and few outside of your own immediate circle have any idea of your fastidious taste in these matters.

A local man wished to purchase a diamond. He had an idea that he could do better in Toronto. He paid his fare to that city, lost a day, wearied himself almost to the point of exhaustion tramping through the metropolis. Finally he found just what he wanted in the store of a diamond merchant who has a national reputation as purveyor for the wealthy. The price was $62. Then it dawned on the Peterborough man that he could do better at home. He returned to his native city diamondless but with a new stock of wisdom. He bought the gem he wanted from a local dealer, same stone, same setting, even the same case, and the price was only $41. He saved $21 besides making a patriot of himself by dealing at home.

And this is only one of the thousand similar cases that could be cited. The moral is obvious.

Christmas and the Man In the Moon.

Frisians say that one Christmas eve an old man, thinking of his next day's dinner, climbed the fence and stole his neighbor's fine cabbages. Just as he lifted his burden on his back, however, the Christ Child rode by on his white horse carrying gifts for the good children and, spying the thief, said, "Because thou hast stolen on the holy eve thou shalt stand in the moon and be seen by every one forever and forever." So there he is, and on every Christmas eve he is permitted to turn around once.

CHRISTMAS SHOPPING GUIDE

Christian Unity Will Mean Peace on Earth Indeed

THE CHRISTIAN RELIGION dates from the first Christmas morning when a white-robed celestial choir sang the anthem of a world redeemed. For ages there was only one church. Then man sought out inventions of his own, and branches were formed. The different factions drew so far apart that when they reached the limit of divergence they began to wave the olive branch to each other. Today the world is filled with the talk of church union. Three denominations have decided to abandon their several ways and to follow one trail.

The Rev. T. H. Mitchell, minister in charge of St. Andrew's Church, is noted among his professional brethren in this city and also in the church throughout the country for his charitable views and his breadth of vision. He is ready to receive as his brother any clergyman, no matter what his creed, who is engaged in the Master's work. The union of the Presbyterian, Methodist and Congregational Churches, while gratifying to him, is only a step toward the desired goal. He would have all creeds and denominations united under one banner, and he believes that Christian unity will yet be realized. It may not be for another hundred years, but it is coming. The Church that had one Founder, one faith, at the beginning, one system of human government, one mode of worship and one aim, will yet be banded together for a fresh start in the work of the vineyard.

Mr. Mitchell set forth his reasons for the faith and hope that is in him when he read a paper on Christian unity at a recent meeting of the Ministerial Association in this city, a paper which has been highly commended by his fellow-clergymen. At the outset he showed that the difference between the creed of the Baptists and that of the three churches that propose to unite is only, after all, exceedingly slight. Immersion is by the former no longer regarded as an essential to eternal salvation. Presbyterian ministers will use this mode in baptizing any adult that prefers it. There is no quarrel between these sects on this or any other point.

Mr. Mitchell sees encouraging signs in favor of unity in the Anglican Church. As long ago as 1886, 1,160 clergymen, including 32 bishops and over three thousand lay members in the Anglican Church in the United States, joined in a memorial setting forth four great principles, all of which were in practical accord with the creeds of other denominations except with regard to apostolic succession.

Even after the Reformation it took the different reformed sects a century to completely sever their relations. For one hundred years the churches, including the Anglican, sat together in the same synods, interchanged pulpits and professors' chairs, and recognized the validity of one another's sacraments and ministry.

The modernism that is creeping into the Roman Catholic Church is regarded by Mr. Mitchell as a hopeful sign of Christian unity. The recently published letter of the head of that church to the hierarchy of Canada breathed a spirit of toleration and Christian fellowship. The two great branches of the Christian Church are slowly but surely drawing closer and closer together. The members of each are no longer standing apart on material issues. In Megantic County, in Quebec, where both classes are represented, in a recent election on local option only one vote was recorded against the measure. Catholics and Protestants worked shoulder to shoulder during the campaign, and those of different faith spoke in the church buildings owned by the others. In London, Ont., at the dedication of a Catholic hall, it was announced that the building was open for use by the Protestants at any time.

The above is only a bare outline of Mr. Mitchell's address that occupied thirty-five minutes in delivery. The fact that such a topic was taken up in an association in which every Protestant denomination in the city is represented; and that it was favorably received is in itself significant. It is not so many years ago since all such subjects were barred as contentious, and the man who held such views was regarded as a romancer.

Mr. Mitchell's dream of a united Christendom, with one creed and one church government, will no doubt be realized, but the consummation for which he and other broad-minded men so devoutly wish will be delayed so long as the religious adventurer is allowed at large, going about in the adopted garments of a sheep, seeking whom he may proselytize and make ten-fold more a child of evil than himself. Another obstacle in the path of unity is the publication that fattens on the sectarian strife it creates in a community.

Milling Companies Have Fared Badly in Peterboro's Fire History

Up to Last Monday, Fire Loss of $160,000 at the Hilliard Property in 1896 was Highest.

HISTORY of fires in Peterborough does not contain anything that approaches the results of the fire at the Quaker Oats Co.'s plant in the number of lives lost and the destruction of property. Up to last Monday, the fire at Hillard Mills on May 14, 1896, when the loss to property and contents of the mills totalled $160,000 held first place. The mills were located on the river front across the river from the Auburn Woollen Mills. The buildings were totally destroyed, along with several houses across the street. The origin of the fire was laid at the door of spontaneous combustion.

Peterborough had a $70,000 fire on January 19, 1897, at the extensive mills of the Conosolidated Milling Co., which stood on the site of the Quaker Oats Company's plant. The mill, elevator, storehouse and workshop were burned. Many citizens will remember this fire. The buildings were of fram construction and the fire, which broke out in the afternoon, soon laid the entire plant in ruins.

On August 11, 1861, a fire broke out in the rear of Chartrain's saloon at the south-east corner of Hunter and George Streets. In those days the fire department boasted a hand engine, and, on this occasion it required an hour to get the engine in operation. About half of the block, bounded by George, Hunter, Water and Simcoe Streets, was destroyed, the loss being $65,000. It was the first fire in Peterborough up to that date.

Lumber was cheap in the year 1855. Over two million feet of lumber and S. Dickson's mill were destroyed by fire on June 8, the loss on mill and stock being given at $45,000.

There were four fires in 1904 which caused a total loss of $103,-00. One was at the original plant of the Quaker Oats Company, then called the American Cereal Company. It started in the departments where the dust collectors were located. The sprinkler system practically saved the mill. The damage was estimated at $30,000. The other three fires were the Cox-Laplante block on Hunter Street, the compound building of the C.G.E. plant and Mann's planing mill on Dublin Streets, the losses being $38,000, $5,000 and $10,000 respectively. In this year, the Peterborough Curling Rink was burned to the ground. It stood on the site of the present curling rink and was of frame construction. The fire occurred at night.

A Memorable Fire

On Feb. 28, 1900, which was a very cold day, fire broke out in China Hall, where the Dominion Bank now stands at the corner of George and Simcoe Streets. China Hall was gutted, and the George Matthews retail store to the south was badly damaged. The total loss was over $30,000. Members of the fire brigade will remember this fire as long as they live, several of them having been badly frost bitten. The fire hall was on Simcoe Street, where the offices of the Utilities Commission, the tax collector's and city engineering offices are now located.

A fire on November 6, 1882, at White's foundry (now G. Walter Green's) was made somewhat noteworthy by the fact of the horses hauling the fire engine refusing to make the trip. The animals baulked, causing a delay that gave the fire a chance to makeg reat headway.

This review shows that milling plants have fared badly at the hands of the fire fiend. More evidence is given of this fact by reference to a fire at Denne's mill at the corner of Water and King Streets on May 8, 1891. The site was historical, as it was there Adam Scott put up the first small mill in Peterborough. Four mills on this location were burned down.

New Branch of Royal Bank Will Open When New Year Dawns

Bank is Giving Peterboro Handsome Addition to Busy Corner of Business Section.

WITH THE ushering in of the New Year, the new home of the Royal Bank of Canada in Peterborough will be opened to the citizens of this city and surrounding district. It will be a handsome branch and besides reflecting credit upon the Royal Bank as a progressive banking institution, it will be a source of satisfaction to the citizens in the fact that it is a step onward to the greater Peterborough that is to be.

The Royal Bank was established in Peterborough ten years ago last month and has always been under the guiding hand of Mr. Vincent Eastwood, the manager, who has lived practically all his life here. The new enterprise is a high testimonial to his ability which has, to a large extent, brought about the great progress made by the bank here.

The new premises now being made ready at the corner of Hunter and George Streets are 52 ft by 100 ft. Ohio sandstone facings are used in the walls, one storey high, on Hunter and George Streets, being topped with a highly ornamental cornice. The bank will be lighted from Hunter Street by five plate glass windows each 9 ft. wide by 5 ft. high, and on George Street by two plate glass windows of the same dimensions and two smaller windows. A ventilator will be placed over each window. The basement will extend the whole length and width of the building, provision being made for the vaults and toilet rooms for the convenience of the bank employees and accessible by separate stairways reading from the bank. Provision is also made for a coal chute from George St. and an ash lift on Hunter St.

The Bank Premises

The bank proper will occupy the first floor the full width of the building and a depth of about 60 feet. The remainder of the space to Chambers Street will be taken up by a stairway leading from Hunter Street to offices on the second and third floors, and a store on the first floor.

Large swinging doors will give entrance from George Street to a vestibule and the bank. To the left will be found the manager's office, to the right a ladies' waiting room from which it will be possible to transact business with the teller as this department will have two wickets, one for the general public and the other convenient to the ladies' waiting room. Next to the manager's office will be an aisle for the bank staff to enter their respective places of duty. The departments will extend around the interior of the bank, leaving a space 21ft by 48ft. for the public. The furniture will be of light oak and the floor of marble.

Office Suites

The front of the upper stories will be reserved and fitted up for suites of offices and the remainder of the floor space used for offices each 22 feet deep There will be toilet rooms and vault accommodation on both the second and third floor, as well as other conveniences.

The new building will be a made in Peterborough product so far as circumstances will permit. Practically all the material used was contracted for here. The operations are being carried on by Perdue-Henderson Co., of Montreal and Vancouver, who carry on this class of work for the Royal Bank throughout the Dominion, supplying the plans and supervising the operations through their own superintendents.

Col. J. W. Miller's Experiences in Libby War Prison

IF COL. J. W. MILLER had not exceeded the age limit we would not find him today holding an office in the city or engaged in business. He would be in Flanders in the thick of the fight. The colonel has not only had a long training with the militia in this country, but has had actual experience in real warfare. As a member of the Sixth Regulars he was in the American Civil War for three sanguinary years, the terms of his enlistment.

Col. Miller during these three years had a vacation from actual fighting for three months, as an inmate of the famous—or rather infamous—Libby prison in Richmond. His term of confinement was worse, sevenfold, than the horrors of the battlefield. The Confederacy's treatment of the Northern soldiers who were taken prisoners is one of the darkest stains that has ever marked the military history of a belligerent. Col. Miller's experience in Libby prison makes a term in a German prison camp look like a summer vacation by contrast. It may be said, however, that the world has no idea of how the Allies' prisoners fare in Germany as it is not likely that any soldier interned there will be permitted to write to his friends of his true condition. Still, men who have escaped, been discharged or exchanged, do not tell any harrowing tales of death, disease, and slow starvation.

Col. Miller Captured

Col. Miller was taken prisoner by Gen. Lee's forces at the Battle of Gettysburg, near the close of the engagement, after three days of fighting in which the casualties on both sides, in proportion to the number of men engaged, exceeded that of any battle on record before or since. There were about 80,000 men in the of killed and missing, not to speak of the wounded, was nearly sixty thousand.

With his companions in misfortune Col. Miller was taken to the military prison in Richmond, where the captives were farmed out on the Oliver Twist plan, the keeper of the prison being allowed so much a day for each man under his charge. The prison itself was an old tobacco warehouse. When Col. Miller arrived the place was so crowded that the inmates were obliged to sleep "spoon fashion" on the floor or any place they were able to find space. They were so thick that it was impossible for one to turn over unless all made a move. When some prisoner cried "spoon" that was the signal for a general change from one side of the aching body to the other.

Shifted to an Island

Finally the place became so crowded that it was necessary to find additional quarters and Col. Miller, with a number of others, was moved to a small, sandy island at the mouth of the James River, where superannuated tents were all the covering they had to protect them from the weather. They had two allowances of food a day, but neither could by any stetch of imagination be called a meal. In the morning they received two ounces of meat and two ounces of corn bread. The bone was weighed in with the meat and it often happened that one man's portion would be nothing but bone. This was highly prised by the prisoners, however, as it gave them samething upon which they could gnaw for hours. The bread was simply corn meal wetted and partially cooked and containing no salt or any other seasoning. The diet was all that was required to bring sickness upon the prisoners. The afternoon "meal" consisted of a half pint of thin soup. Men slowly starved to death or went mad with hunger. Some of them who had been able to hide their money when searched, bought from the guards pies as large as an ordinary saucer for $1 each. The greatest secrecy was necessary in order to get the money to the guard When the latter delivered the goods he threw the dainty in the general direction of the purchasers. Often the prisoners fought like animals for the prise and Col. Miller says that he has often seen the rightful owner, when cheated out of his due by a stronger man, weep like a child.

Fed on Dog Flesh

The commanding officer of the prison owned a spotted dog that used to visit the camp occasionally. One day it disappeared. The officer lined up the prisoners and announced that no rations would be served until the dog was produced. Then one man declared he had killed the animal. He was ordered to produce the body and did so. Then the officer, calling the cook, had him cut a slice of meat from the dog's carcass and made the man eat it in full view of the others.

It was really no punishment. The man who had killed the dog was half mad with hunger and had taken its life with the object of cooking and eating the remains.

Men died off so rapidly that their captors tired of burying them and Col. Miller, after three months of this hades on earth, was exchanged and finished out his term of enlistment. He says that he has since met men who were confined in the same tent as himself and at first failed to recognize them, they had been so wasted away by prison life.

Soldiers' Rations Then

In the days of the Civil War the soldiers on neither side received any dainties. No parcels from friends were sent to the Libby horror chamber such as go to Germany today. The daily ration of a Northern soldier, dealt out to him each morning, was a pound of raw pork, a pound of biscuits as hard as the fragment of an asphalt pavement, and a dole of coffee and sugar. He was to prepare it as he best could. The pork was nearly always eaten raw as a matter of necessity. The fighting in those days was at close range and the toll of death was frightful. Only a small percentage of the wounded ever recovered owing to an indifferent medical service. When Sherman uttered his famous metaphor concerning war he spoke with the authority of a man who has actually seen what he describes. Of Col. Miller or any other man who spent a term in a Southern military prison the same can be said as was remarked of Dante by the awe-stricken children of Florence as he passed through the streets after the publication of his Inferno.

The Horror at Andersonville

Libby prison was bad enough, but the one at Andersonville, in Georgia surpassed it in horror. Capt. Wirz, the monster who kept it, has been execrated by the North, while the South has raised a monument to his memory. Between February 15, 1864 and April, 1865, 49,485 prisoners were received, confined only in a stockade without any shelter from the weather. Of these 12,926 died of starvation and various diseases bred by the horrible privations to which they were subjected Hundreds were shot by the guards while attempting to escape

German prisons are doubtless bad enough, but for anything the world has yet heard to the contrary, Libby and Andersonville hold the record for atrocity.

Modern warfare may be frightful, but it is so in a lesser degree than the feuds of old The Civil War was the fiercest in history. It had all the elements of a personal quarrel in which brother fought against brother, father against son and friends against friend.

56 CHILDREN PASS THROUGH SHELTER; OFFICERS OF CHILDREN'S AID RE-ELECTED

Receipts for Year Were $3482.02 and the Expenditure $2682.10---Some Additions to Board of Management---Inspector Spence Suggests Typewriter for Office, Lantern and Camera for Publicity Work and an Auto, as Means Towards Better Execution of His Duties.

The annual meeting of the Children's Aid Society was held yesterday afternoon in the Bank of Montreal Chambers. The president, Mr. E. A. Peck, occupied the chair and after a few congratulatory remarks about the development made during the past year, he called on the secretary for his report, which was presented by Assistant-Secretary Spence as follows:—

I have much pleasure in submitting my first report as secretary of your society:—

During the year important changes have taken place in the administration of the work, which which, it is confidently expected, be of material advantage to the Children's Aid Society, enlarging its scope and influence.

Mr. George Cochrane, who had for so many years been our able and energetic agent, found it necessary, owing to increasing age and infirmity to relinquish his position, and Mr. C. A. G. Spence was unanimously appointed by the executive to take his place, entering upon his duties on June 1 last.

He has been busy reorganizing the work, visiting wards throughout the county, investigating complaints, etc. He has now started a publicity campaign to cover the whole of the county, forming county committees in the more important centres. A good modern lantern is required for this work. As we hardly feel justified in view of the condition of our finances in making this purchase, perhaps some friend of the society would make us a gift of this description, which would be greatly appreciated.

The management of the Shelter has undergone alteration. It was thought expedient by your committee to place the superintendents of the shelter on a salary basis, instead of the method employed previously.

This was carried into effect, but on account of inharmonious relations subsequently occurring between the superintendents and the committee, it was finally decided to advertise for applicants. After careful consideration of the applications, Miss Coulson, who had had experience in this work, was appointed.

Mr. Spence has prepared a report of the statistical work of the society, as far as he is able, dealing particularly with his own work since his appointment, so that it is not necessary for me to say anything upon this point.

The receipts for the year ending Nov. 30, 1916, amounted to $3,482.02 while the expenditure reached $2,682.10, leaving a balance of $799.92. It was most gratifying to note that in spite of the many calls on the purses of our citizens that the tag day receipts amounted to $1,303.84, an increase of $138.84 over last year.

This we take it, is a proof that the public recognize and appreciate the important work that the C.A.S. is doing. This is a society that should not be allowed to suffer because of the war, if only just because the war makes its work more vitally indispensable. With the awful decimation in the human race as a consequence of the present almost world-wide conflict, any work that has for its object the preservation of the rising generation, and the transforming of neglected children into reputable citizens should be heartily supported, if only for national economic reasons. The Hon. Mr. Hanna has stated that for every man or woman who is saved from becoming a ward of the state or of the public, whether represented by the municipality or the province, a saving of $800 is effected, so that a donation to such a society as this is simply an investment that will yield a profit in actual cash.

In conclusion, I desire to thank the ladies who so kindly and untiringly worked for the tag day campaign, the citizens who have from time to time made donations in cash and clothing, and the fraternal societies who responded to our special appeal. All

MR. E. A. PECK, Ex-M.L.A.
Re-elected President of which is respectfully submitted.—Jos Wearing.

Inspector's Report

Inspector Spence presented his report for the six months ending Nov. 30 as follows:—

Ladies and gentlemen: The following figures will convey some idea of the work that I have been able to do, covering the period from June 1 to Nov. 30, 1916, and in addition it should be noted that much time has been occupied in revising the records pertaining to the wards of the society and other office work.

Applications for children	37
Children brought to Shelter (not wards)	31
Children placed o nparole (not wards)	5
Children returned to parents (not wards)	23

During the year Nov. 30, 1915, to Nov. 30, 1916, 56 children passed through the shelter; 13 children were inmates of the Shelter on Nov. 30, 1915, making a total of 69 having been cared for. Of this number 49 were males and 20 females; 41 came from the city and 28 from the county; 16 were wards, 37 were returned to their parents, 20 were placed out. The total number of days' stay was 4,973, or an average of 72 days per child. There were 8 children in the Shelter on Nov. 30, 1916, all of whom were boys, and four of them were being paid for wholly or in part privately.

Maintenance of Wards

There seems to be some kind of a tentative agreement between the society and the city and county councils that their money grant shall relieve them of their liability for the maintenance of wards from their respective municipalities. This may be commendable as a sentiment but it is poor business. The Children's Protection Act distinctly states that when committing a child to the custody or control of a Children's Aid Society, the judge shall make an order for the payment by the corporation of the municipality to which the child belongs of a reasonable sum, not less than $2 weekly, for the expense of supporting a child by the society. Although these orders have always been made, it appears the payment has never been applied for and the society has consequently been the loser. For instance, the County Council made a grant of $300 for this year, while the maintenance of children belonging to its municipality has cost over $800. I do not think the Councils would object to paying what they are legally responsible for in addition to their usual grant for the general work of the society, and I would suggest that the executive adopt this policy for the future.

For the more efficient execution of the work, better office equipment is needed, more particularly a typewriting machine. For the publicity work a good modern lantern and also a camera are absolutely necessary, and for travelling the county an auto although not indispensable, would save much time and enable more to be done. Many complaints come from the outlying townships where transportation is difficult. The expense of investigating these complaints has to be borne by the society and will amount to a considerable sum. My object in referring to these requisites in this report is, that possibly some well-wishers of the work are present who would be glad to increase its efficiency by presenting them to the society.

All of which is respectfully submitted.—C. A. G. Spence.

This Christmas

Let us Give Moderately to Each Other and Generously to the Soldiers' Families

Nineteen hundred and sixteen years ago came the very first Christmas, and for all these centuries there has recurred the Great Anniversary with its message of good will to men.

And so we give gifts.

Men and women of Ontario! We who stand for good will among men and nations; we whose men fight that there may at last be real peace on earth—let us make this a Christmas worthy of the day it commemorates—let us lay aside a generous proportion of our Christmas money for the families of those who are fighting the good fight.

Give to the Canadian Patriotic Fund

The fund that guards the soldiers' families from want.

Great as the result will be among the families of our soldiers, greater yet may the blessing be among us, the givers. Christmas will have a more vital meaning for us than perhaps ever before, and as for the children, who can measure the impression they will receive and keep of that Christmas Day when they shared their Christmas with the loved ones of the men who saved their country!

Let each Canadian boy and girl get a lesson from this historic Christmas which will go with them all through life.

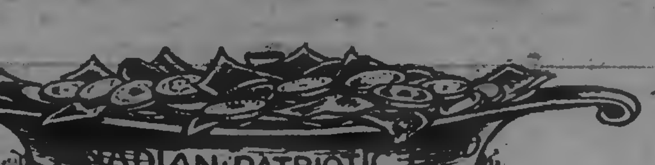
Good men and women of Ontario! Can the need of our soldiers' families cry in vain for the relief which this Fund alone makes possible? Can we—can we, in the face of it all, again give lavishly among ourselves? Shall we not this year, with hearts full of the spirit of Christmas, lay aside a generous proportion of our Christmas money for the cause which so urgently needs it?

"Somewhere in France" he is fighting the good fight.

Somewhere in Ontario all that he holds dear is depending upon our decision.

Truly "It is more blessed to give than to receive."

Ontario will be asked in January to assure the Canadian Patriotic Fund that it can depend on having six million dollars in 1917 for the families of Ontario's soldiers.



Four million of these dollars must be secured from individual subscriptions. If there is no Branch of the Fund in your town or county send your subscription direct to the Head Office, Canadian Patriotic Fund, Vittoria street, Ottawa.

56 CHILDREN PASS THROUGH

ter. It was quite likely that the county would increase their grant when it was shown to them that the society paid out over $500 more than the grant, or $800 for county children alone.

Adjt. McElhiney remarked that the last county council had turned down a bill for $192 due the society.

Mr. Peck stated that it was not turned down, but had been referred to the incoming council. He thought that the best way was to get the council to increase the grant substantially and not bother the townships with the magistrate's order for maintenance. When the township branches were formed the finances of the society would benefit considerably.

Father Phelan advised that statement be prepared showing what had been expended on county children in the past two years.

Treasurer Walker stated that when the bills for the children's shelter were all in the society would have only $100 left to operate.

It was finally decided, on a motion of Adjt. McElhiney and Mrs. Gibbs, to adopt the reports.

Committee Reports

Mrs. Hopwood presented a report of the ladies' auxiliary showing that out of the monthly grants allowed them they had finished the year with a credit of $19.97.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered to the ladies on a motion of W. A. Howard and Fr. Phelan.

Mrs. Gibbs presented the report of the ladies who looked after the sewing for the shelter and in it great praise was given to Mrs. Rogers' Bible Class for assistance rendered.

The thanks of the society were also tendered to the ladies in charge by motion of Adjt. McElhiney and H. Walkey.

Officers Elected

The officers were all re-elected and the membership of the board of management enlarged as follows:—

Hon. President—Mayor Duffus.

President—E. A. Peck.

Vice-president—Father Phelan.

Second vice-president—Mrs. Birdsall.

Secretary and Solicitor — Jos. Wearing.

Treasurer—H. Walkey.

Board of Management—The warden of the county, the president of the Ministerial Association, Mesdames Hopwood, Stocker, Gibbs, McElhinney, Howard, W. A. Sanderson, Denham, Meldrum and Montgomery; Messrs. W. A. Howard, D. Thompson, G. W. Green, Geo. Cochrane, E. L. Goodwill, H. L. Beal, John Edgar, R. H. Parsons, G. N. Gordon, C. Pennefather, Herb. McCannon; Fr. McCall, Adjt. McElhinney, Dr. Fortune and Dr. King.

It was decided to hold the monthly meeting of the society on the second Tuesday of each month and that any seven members of the Board of Management would constitute a quorum.

GIFTS FOR MOTHER

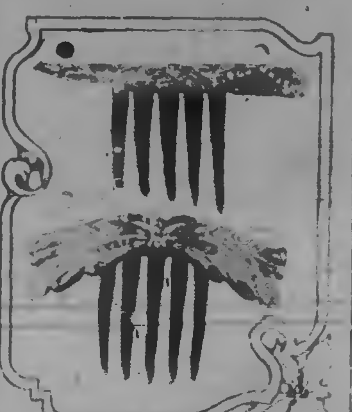
THE last minute shopper or one who has almost forgotten some one in her Christmas list is often at her wits' end to think of something acceptable, and the gift is of more importance than the price. While the stores are full of shoppers she wanders bewildered among the host of presents on every side.

Where one has to search it is best to begin early.

A happy present for mother is a nest of tea tables, those long, narrow tables so proportioned that one is smaller than the other. They fit one under another.

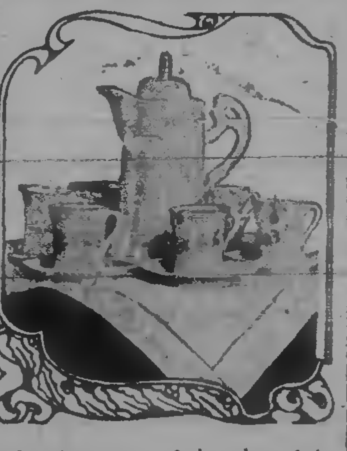
Beautiful ornaments for mother's hair lie enticingly on another counter. The cut shows two jeweled ones rather conservative in design. The stones are inlaid and delicate carvings are outlined with enamel in soft tones.

A glittering array of crystal and glass greets the shopper and offers innumerable suggestions for really beautiful Christmas gifts. White rock crystal pieces of great variety and in many sizes and prices compose one group; gold incrusted rock crystal pieces are included in a special group; cut glass pieces, most of them having the delicate, light cutting that looks like frost on the window pane, and Bohemian glass in white and gold, white and black, white and colors and in solid colors make up the collection.



Muff foundations can be bought from which a pretty, round muff may be quickly fashioned, for 24 cents to $1.69.

Hand woven linen pieces, embroidered by hand in rich and beautiful colors, are offered, Russian koustar work. The linen is white, gray, linen color and dark brown, and the colors of the embroidery are sometimes very vivid, blue, red, orange, etc., and sometimes delicate or somber. Some of the pieces are embroidered in silver thread also, but the most characteristic ones have the deep and warm tones of coloring.



Then comes china—beautiful odd pieces for fruit or entrees, delightful cups and saucers, ramekins and platters. The chocolate set pictured is of fine china decorated with a Japanese pattern in oriental blue, so cozy for winter afternoons and Sunday night suppers. The moderately priced foreign sets and pieces are lacking. American china manufactories are running full speed to meet the opportunity open to supply china for ordinary use. They have improved their patterns. You will find in your rounds sets made in the east and middle west displaying attractive patterns, conservative and in good color. The supply of hand decorated china, studio made, is on the increase, with assurance of welcome.

Sale of the Christmas Seals.

More than 80,000,000 Christmas seals, approximating in value $800,000, were sold in 1915, according to C. M. De Forest, chief field agent of the National Association For the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. This was an increase of 25,520,000 over the sales of 1914, which then set the record.

The sales in New York state were more than 17,000,000, in Missouri 3,000,000 and in Iowa 2,000,000. Large increases also were made in Ohio, Illinois, Minnesota, Michigan, Florida and Virginia.

Approximately $800,000 was thus raised in the past season to aid in the fight to minimize the white plague. This brings the total sales of seals since the idea was started up to $3,285,000, including $4,500 raised in 1907, the initial year, when the experiment was confined to Delaware.

The plan was nationalized in 1908, when $138,244 was realized. The totals since then have been: 1909, $237,152; 1910, $304,320; 1911, $339,650; 1912; $384,900; 1913, $436,314; 1914, $550,000.

Where Bayberry Candles Come From.

It was the women of Hingham, that quaint old Massachusetts town, that first brought down from their attics their grandmothers' old candle molds and began making the sweet smelling green bayberry candles for a few appreciative people who wanted them to burn in homes furnished in antiques. The women of charming old Deerfield, in the same state, shortly followed suit, and then the housewives of Cape Cod saw their opportunity, all of them using the molds that had been in the towns for generations.

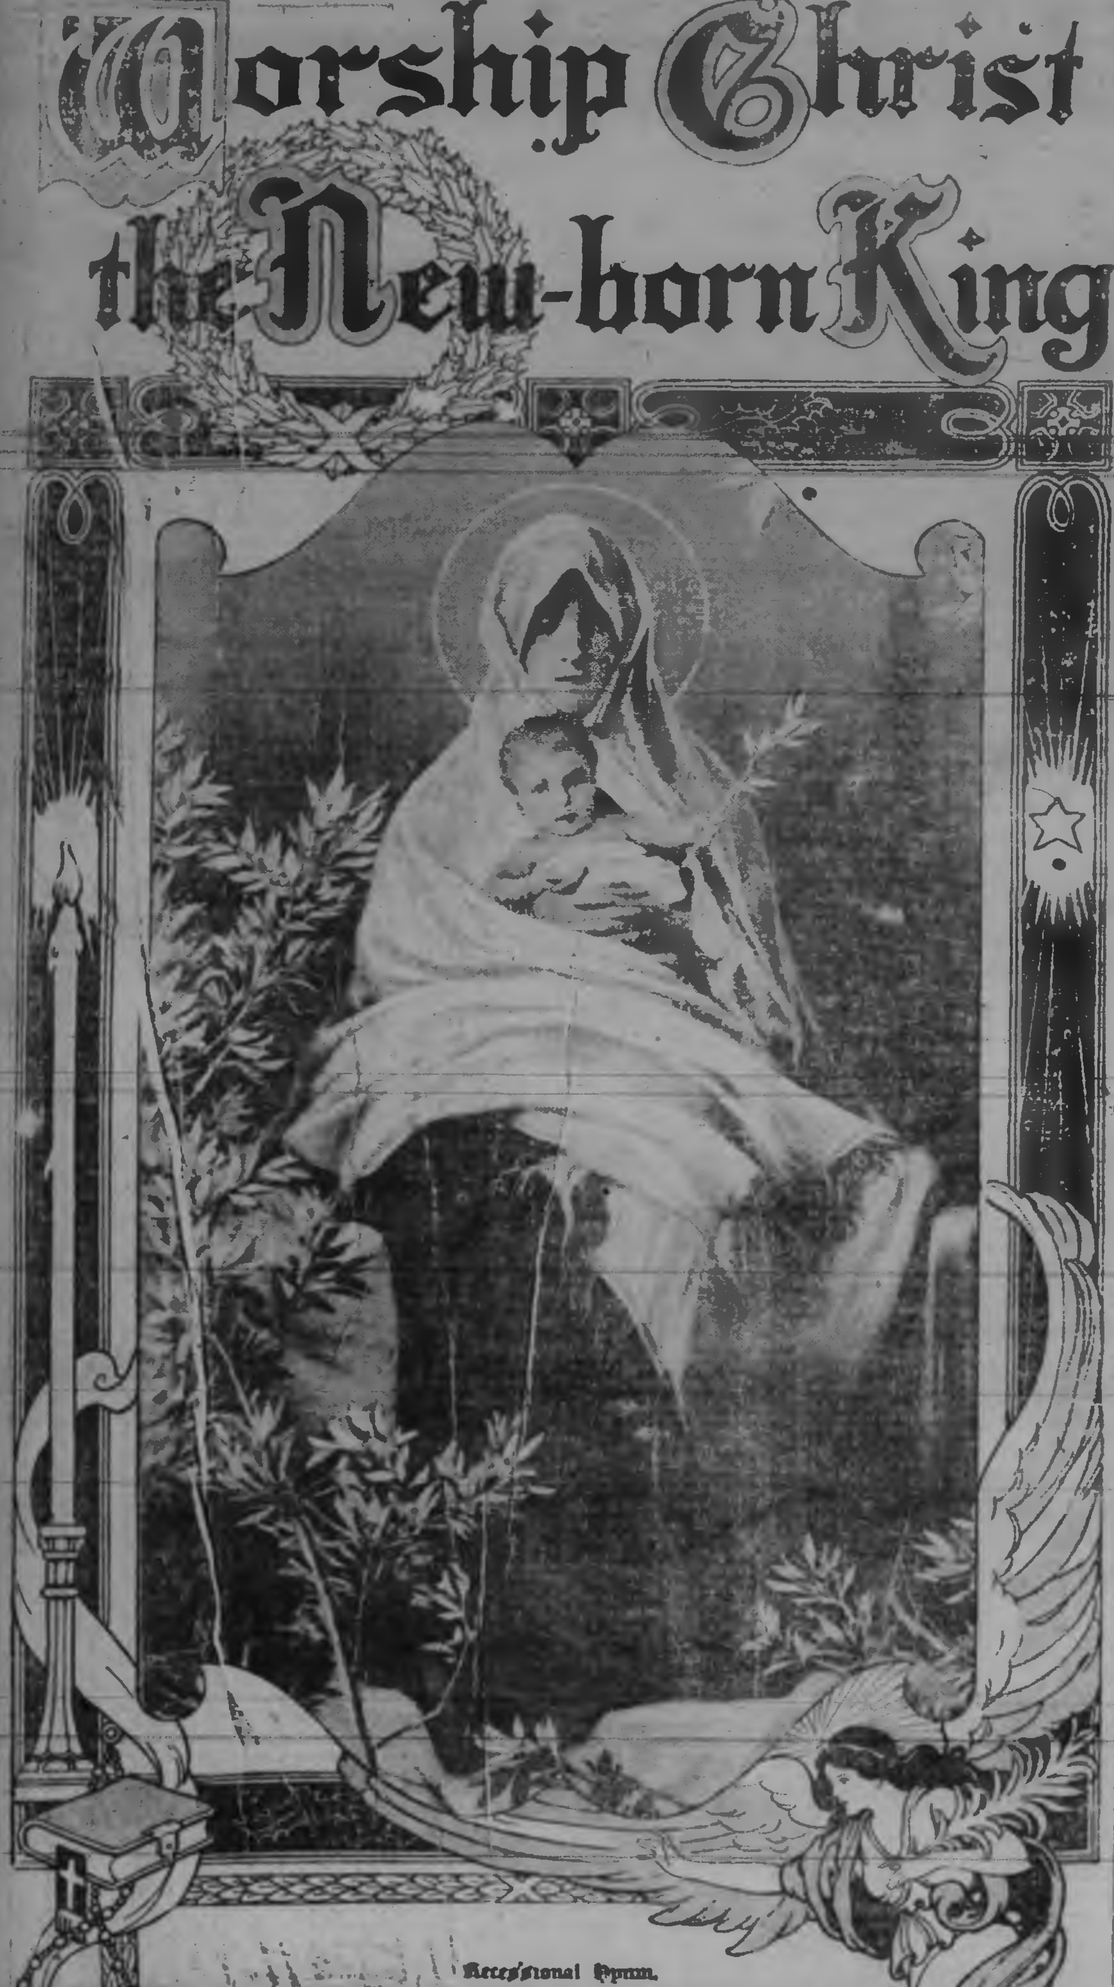
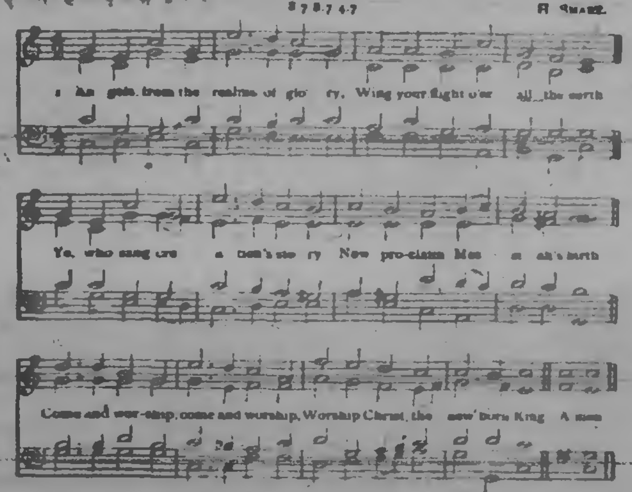
Worship Christ the New-born King



Recessional Hymn.



8 7 8.7 4.7
H. Smart.
1 Angels from the realms of glo-ry, Wing your flight o'er all the earth
Ye, who sang cre-a-tion's sto-ry Now pro-claim Mes-si-ah's birth
Come and wor-ship, come and worship, Worship Christ, the new born King A-men

2 Shepherds in the field abiding,
Watching o'er your flocks by night;
God with man is now residing,
Yonder shines the infant light;
Come and worship,
Worship Christ, the new born King.

3 Sages, leave your contemplations,
Brighter visions beam afar
Seek the great Desire of nations,
Ye have seen His natal star
Come and worship,
Worship Christ, the new born King.

4 Saints before the altar bending,
Watching long in hope and fear,
Suddenly the Lord, descending,
In His temple shall appear:
Come and worship,
Worship Christ, the new-born King. Amen.

J. MONTGOMERY.

Had the Christmas Spirit

THAT the Christmas spirit of good will and charity penetrates even behind prison walls was made plain in a letter received by the "Good Fellow Editor" of a Detroit newspaper from a convict. The letter follows:

I don't know whether I would be considered a good fellow or not. Society has decreed that I was a bad fellow and has segregated me for a period. In spite of the fact that I transgressed the law I am being clothed and fed and taken care of, while hundreds of people, especially children whose only crime is poverty, are actually suffering for the bare necessities of life and through no fault of theirs are facing the Christmas season with scant hope of happiness.

I am sending $2, which I hope you will be able to use in some small measure to bring gladness to some little one. You need have no fear of this money being tainted, for it was honestly earned at the rate of 15 cents a day.

I have two little girls of my own, and, while I am sending them their Christmas money, I am sure they will be glad that I shared with some others less fortunate. Yours in Christmas spirit,

INMATE MICHIGAN STATE PRISON,
Jackson, Mich.

Quarantine was placed on all dogs entering Canada from the towns of Niagara and Wheatfield on the American side of the border, because of rabies.

When you read, "a curtain of fire" it means one of two things:

Either that the tremendous expenditure of munitions saved thousands of our soldiers' lives by protecting them during an advance, or that the enemy attack was smothered before it reached our defences.

These "curtains of fire" use up more munitions in an hour than were used in a month during 1915.

This may help you to realize the importance of munitions to our soldiers.

NOTED MUSICIAN OF MONTREAL

Advises The Use Of "FRUIT-A-TIVES", The Famous Fruit Medicine.

MR. ROSENBURG

389 Casgrain St., Montreal.
April 20th, 1915.

"In my opinion, no other medicine in the world is so curative for Constipation and Indigestion as "Fruit-a-tives". I was a sufferer from these complaints for five years, and my sedentary occupation, Music, brought about a kind of Intestinal Paralysis—with nasty Headaches, belching gas, drowsiness after eating, and Pain in the Back. I tried pills and medicines of physicians, but nothing helped me. Then I was induced to try "Fruit-a-tives", and now for six months I have been entirely well.

I advise any one who suffers from that horrible trouble—Chronic Constipation with the resultant indigestion, to try "Fruit-a-tives", and you will be agreeably surprised at the great benefit you will receive". A. ROSENBURG.

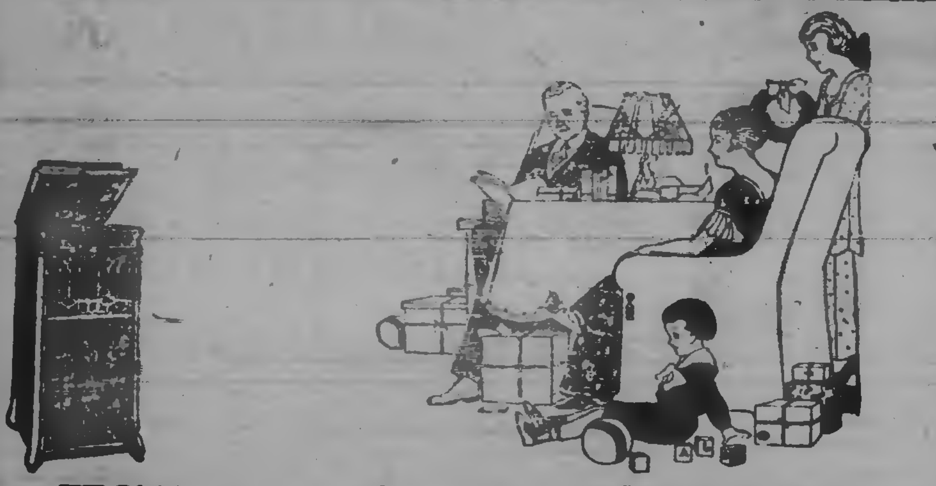
EDDY'S MATCHES

Although somewhat increased in price owing to the continued high cost of Potash, Glue and other raw material, are of the usual High Standard of quality which has made them famous for two-thirds of a century.

ALWAYS ASK FOR
EDDY'S MATCHES



Will there be Real Music in your home at Christmas?

There is no one so unmusical as to believe that a talking machine produces real music. At best, a talking machine, no matter how much it costs, no matter what artists make records for it, no matter what claims are made for it by its manufacturers, gives only a hollow imitation of the original music.

The NEW EDISON is not a Talking Machine

This new invention of the world's greatest inventor is in no real sense a talking machine.

It represents more than two million dollars spent in research work by Mr. Edison.

It represents the achievement of his ambition to produce a musical instrument which Re-creates all forms of music so perfectly that the original cannot be distinguished from the Re-Creation.

By hundreds of tests, before hundreds of thousands of music lovers, it has been proved conclusively that when an artist sings—or plays—in comparison with the New Edison's Re-Creation of that artist's performance, it is impossible to distinguish the original from the Re-Creation.

The music critics of more than 200 of America's leading newspapers testify to this fact in the columns of their own papers. We shall be glad to show you what the critics say.

Hear this new Invention

Come to our store and let us give you a concert of Re-created music. Come at any time. You will always be welcome. There is no obligation to buy. We merely want you to hear what we consider the world's greatest musical instrument.

King of Spain Orders Four More Willys Knight Automobiles

KING OF SPAIN ORDERS FOUR MORE WILLYS-KNIGHT CARS.

The highest compliment to our manufacturing supremacy was paid recently by Alfonso, King of Spain, when he ordered four Willys-Knight cars—two touring cars and two limousines.

This order is all the more notable because of the fact that King Alfonso ordered one Willys-Knight touring car last spring through his foreign Ambassador. This car, especially equipped with wire wheels, was forwarded to him last April.

Reports from Madrid after the car had been delivered indicated that his Spanish Majesty was highly pleased with his new purchase.

Yet no official word was received until the arrival the other day of the cablegram ordering four more four-cylinder Willys-Knights, to be dispatched at the very earliest opportunity.

This royal endorsement of the Knight-motored car, manufactured by the Willys-Overland factories, can be taken as a supreme triumph for builders of Knight-sleeve valve motors. Such a large single order means, without doubt, that King Alfonso considers the Willys-Knight motor car at least the equal in accomplishments of the renowned Daimler, Panhard, Minerva and various other European Knight cars that sell from $4000 to $8000.

Col. W. O Morris, O. C. the 215th Battalion, has accepted another position, and Major Hedley Snider will take command.

A mix-up among Windsor fire apparatus delayed arrival at a blaze which did $2000 damage to Thomas Maw's home in the early morning.

A bonus of five per cent. will be paid to the women teachers in Hamilton next year.

MUNICIPAL LEAGUE WILL TAKE PART IN ELECTION

Voters in North Ward to Work for Nomination and Election of Good Men -- Say Mayor Duffus Should be Given Walkover.

The voters in the North Ward, which is now represented by Aldermen McIntyre and Langford, will take a prominent part in the coming municipal campaign. That is the voting sub-division of the city in which prominent ratepayers have formed the Municipal League, the first organization of the kind ever launched in Peterborough. The organization is unusual for a ward meeting to be so before nomination day next Friday and the north ward voters will be heard from.

The scope of the league is wide. In the first place the members will see to it that there are no more snap nominations due to public indifference. In the past it has been nothing unusual for a ward meetign to be conducted with a bare quorum present and for some candidate to be given a walk-over. The league will use every effort to get the voters to turn out to the nomination and select men who are really representative to stand for election. In the North Ward Ald. McIntyre's term expires so that it is the Chairman of the Board of Works who will be most directly concerned with any action that may be taken by the new league.

A Campaign Worth While

After the league nominates a man settled upon by a majority, the members will turn out and work for his success. Voters will be brought to the polls on election day and the nominee of the league will be sent to Council with the prestige which a candidate returned by a large majority only can possess. But even when the election is won the work of the league will not stop. The members will stand behind their alderman all through his term of office. They will meet to discuss every public question of importance that comes up in Council and adopt resolutions for the guidance of their representatives. No alderman under such circumstances can be in doubt as to the sentiments of his constituents and will know how to shape his official course so as to give the people what they want. He will be in close touch all the time with those who elected him.

Acclamation for the Mayor

The members of the league are not concerning themselves with the question of the mayoralty. One of the moving spirits in the organization said to The Review this morning that Mayor Duffus is on his record and by every precedent entitled to another term by acclamation. If any man comes out against him the Mayor will be returned by a larger majority than ever. Men who voted against him a year ago would support him now, believing that in all fairness he should be given a chance to finish his work.

Ashburnham Civic League

The Ashburnham Civic League was organized a year ago, with Mr. R. B. Rogers as president, to advance the interests of the East side. Aldermen Weir and Evans are members. It is likely that the league will be called together for campaign work and to get representation for the ward on the School Board by the election of Mr. A. A. Fowler, who will be a candidate.

ACTIVITIES AT Y.M.C.A.

The monthly meeting of the board of directors will be held on Tuesday evening next at 6.30. This is the final meeting of the year, so the presence of every director is needed.

Mr. James Dutton of the William Stock Co. will address the Y.M.C.A. meeting on Sunday at 4.15 o'clock. Mr. Dutton's address will be on a timely subject and will be of considerable interest. All men and older boys are invited.

On Friday evening supper was served to the four winning teams in the recent membership contest. Captains of these teams were Ross Dobbin, Bruce Hamilton, Reginald Brown and Herman Whitcroft. Forty men and boys were present.

Arrangements are being made to flood the tennis courts for a skating rink. It is expected that this rink will be in condition for use before the holidays

Special arrangements are being made to care for the schoolboys who will throng the building during the two weeks' holiday. Also a special open house and gymnasium entertainment is being arranged for New Year's Day.

In view of the patriotic work that the ladies are engaged in at the present time, the usual reception and refreshments will not form a part of the New Year's programme. However, a great effort will be made to throng the building with the young men and boys of the city on this day.

In making up the usual list of Christmas gifts, do not forget a Y.M.C.A. membership ticket for son or brother. Perhaps father could be persuaded to renew his youth in the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium or bowling alley if he were given a Y.M.C.A. ticket for Christmas. It is poor policy to let father grow old too soon.

OTONABEE CHAPTER, I. O. D. E.

The work room of the Otonabee Chapter will be open both morning and afternoon on Monday and it is hoped there will be a large attendance, as there is a quantity of work to be finished.

As the room will be closed the two following Mondays on account of Christmas Day and New Year's Day, those in charge are most anxious to have the work on hand finished next week.

HOKA MOKA MINSTRELS SCORE AT CAMPBELLFORD

Peterboro Amateur Talent Played to S. R. O.

The "Hoka Moka" Minstrels, a local organization headed by those two old-time favorites, O'Brien and Houlihan, journeyed to Campbellford on Thursday evening, where they put on a very successful show and were greeted by a packed house. The S.R.O. sign was hung early that afternoon, leaving standing room only for the fifty or sixty people that accompanied the minstreal men from here.

The first part, which was a lengthy one, went off without a hitch, the audience demanding encore after encore. The funny end men were Messrs. Houlihan, Collins, Grady, O'Brien Murty and Moher. Their jokes were original and really funny and were fully appreciated by the crowd. To Mr. V. McCabe fell the role of interlocutor, which he filled in a very able and efficient manner. His original way of acting the part added much to the enjoyment of the evening. Mr. McCabe opened the first part by singing that beautiful ballad, My Grandfather's Girl, which her endered in good voice. It would be unfair to mention anyone in particular in the circle, as they all sang their songs in a finished style, an encore being demanded in every case.

The feature of the olio was Mr. Lane, a new resident of Peterborough, better known as Ajax, the Strong Man. He gives a very interesting exhibition of strength. He thinks nothing of lifting five men above his head while holding a sixth man in his teeth. He toys with a 250 lb. man in one hand above his head and a number of other things, each one more wonderful than the other. "Ajax" alone was well worth the price of admission, and several comments were heard among the crowd to that effect.

Mr. James O'Brien amused the house for half an hour with his funny speech. He had the audience convulsed with laughter from start to finish. Then followed Mr. Sam Houlihan in a soft shoe dance and waltz clog. Mr. Houlihan has lost none of his old-time sprightliness" and he was at his best. Mr. Joe Parkins and Son put on a tango entertainment that is not equalled by any of the big time vaudeville artists. Last, but not least, came Mack Murty in his mile-a-minute step dance. Mack is young at the dancing business but will make some of the old heads sit up and take notice.

To Miss Marion Gorman, the brilliant young pianist, fell the arduous task of musical directress. This role carries with it a great deal of worry and responsibility, and to Miss Gorman much credit is due for the able manner in which she looked after the musical end, which, after all, is the most important part of a minstrel show. Miss Gorman was ably assisted by an eight-piece orchestra and many flattering remarks were passed upon its playing. The personel of the orchestra was as follows: Piano, Miss Marion Gorman; cornet, Mr. J. Minicola; violins, Mr V. McCabe, J. Condon and J. McCabe; trombone, Mr. D. Memmo; horn, Mr. Ed. Hanrahan; and drum and traps, Mr. F. Lynch.

MARKET PRICES

The market this morning was very large and the people crowded the upstairs all anxious to purchase their favorite fowl for the Christmas dinner. Those who were not lucky will have two more chances as next Wednesday will be an additional market day.

There have been several changes in the grain market this week, but it has not affected local prices to any extent as the millers paid an even price all week, despite the fact that several drops took place which the next day came back again.

The cattle market will be quiet now until after Christmas as the packers in Toronto and Montreal are well supplied for the holiday trade.

The hog market remains a rising one, although it is not expected that there will be any great demand for the next week. The price for next week is $11.75.

Butter is unchanged, selling at 45c and there was lots of it on sale this morning. There were a few sales made at 44c.

Eggs were scarce, particularly the strictly fresh kind, and the ladies who have a reputation for having three-day old eggs sold them readily at 60c and over. Packed eggs sold at 45c to 48c.

The turkey supply was not large and as a result the prices were higher than ever before. Generally they sold for 35c to 38c. The butcher shops held their supply at 38c.

Geese were plentiful and there were plenty of buyers for this fowl. Good ones sold for $2 to $2.50 while the smaller and not so well finished ones sold at $1.50 to $2.

Chickens of exceptional quality were on sale and there were quite a few good ones sold for 1.25 each and plenty of others that got $1.00. The general run was 75c to $1.

Ducks were in demand and slightly higher prices were realized owing to the supply being short; 90c to $1.25 each was the scale of prices.

Dressed beef of fairly good quality sold on the outside market for $10.50 to $13. Pork at 19c for the front and 20c for the hind quarters.

Good honey can be bought for 75c to 90c per 5 lb. pail. The quality is this year the best for some years.

THRILLING ESCAPE FROM GERMAN PRISON CAMP

German Dog Took Part in Chase After Canadian.

FORT WILLIAM, Dec. 16.—Nearly fifteen hundred people crowded into St. Paul's Presbyterian Church to welcome home Pte. Jerry Burk, the first and only Canadian to escape from a prison camp in Germany. To listeners who hung upon every word with rapt attention, Pte. Burk told the story of his escape, simply, hesitatingly and modestly. The occasion was unique in the history of Port Arthur, if not of Canada, for before that large audience stood one who had dared the duresse of German prisons, worked underground in the mines, worked above ground in the fields, and finally made a successful getaway, his eleven days' journeynigs filled with hairbreadth escapes and providential deliverances.

"In one of the fierce engagements in which we were engaged," said the returned soldier, "Lloyd Owen asked us if we should keep on or give in. We al lanswered, 'Give 'em Hades.' So we did give them Hades until an English officer told us we had better hold up our hands. So we hceld them up, as high above our heads as we could. (Laughter.) We were all lined up and were taken back of the main line about 12 or 18 miles down. Then we were packed in box cars and taken into the camp. A big German officer asked us who were the men who had been gassed.

Carpentry Work.

Almost all of us had been gassed, so we lined up, and he told us we would be put to do rough carpentry work as he said the open air would be good for us. After that we were put at the coke ovens for several months, working their eight or nine hours a day. Then again we were lined up and went into the mines. After two or three months in there there was an accident in the mines and we were all brought up and put back into tht camp. There we chopped down trees, etc.

Looking for His Chance.

After a while I tried to hunt up some loophole of escape, and I managed to get out of the camp with a chum. We ran about 200 yards ahead into a big town. My friend, in getting over the barbed wire entanglements, had got his hands badly torn down to the bone, so we made bandages of our underwear and tied up his wounds We made about 12 miles, and at dusk we hid in the corner of a big wood. We were bothered constantly by Germans. A man who was hunting partridge had a dog with him. We were hiding in the bush and the dog came within a yard or so, but he kept on going. (Laughter.) At 9:30 we went out again. We bumped into a wire which made a noise, so we hid in a hedge next day.

The Alarm Is Sounded.

An old man came running out of a barn and shouted out that two Englishmen had got away from the prison camp. Later a boy and a girl were going along the hedge picking berries, and came down past us. The Germans are in the habit of going to bed early—about 9 o'clock—and getting up early; so we always left our hiding places about 9 or 9:30. Dogs howled at us all that night. Their howls were taken up by other dogs, until it seemed as if there were 800 or 900 dogs barking at us. (Laughter.) So we changed our course from the westerly direction in which we were going, and hid at the edge of an old road. A man was coming down the road, so we changed our hiding place, and then hid at the edge of a wood. This man looked into the place where we had been hiding and actually looked at the boughs which I had broken off.

Gave Hound an Oxo Cube.

He had a dog with him which was sniffing around where they were and my chum reached out his hand and gave him an Oxo cube. (Laughter and cheers.) When we were within a short distance of the Holland border, I bumped into one of the German bell wires. This, of course, gave the alarm, and the Germans opened up on us. We crouched down and ran and crossed over the border on the [illegible] (Loud cheers.) Then we were all in and fell on the road. After a rest we walked down the road and met two guards. We did not know whether they were Hollanders or Germans, but found they were Hollanders. (Cheers.) They gave us their lunch—two big sandwiches of ham and bread. I remember I dropped my ham in the mud, but ate it just the same. (Laughter.)

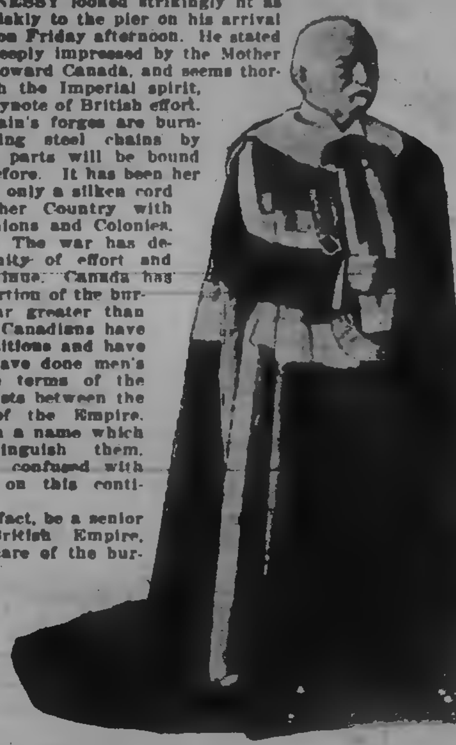
Had a Shot of Rum.

They brought us a jug of rum and two bowls. After we had finished it we couldn't walk. (Laughter.) We had a warm bath, a good meal, then we were handed over to the English consul and were taken over to England."

The cheers were loud and long as Jerry Burk sat down after giving his interesting talk. The crowd gave three hearty cheers, the band played For He's a Jolly Good Fellow, and the reception was over.

Major Hugh Niven, D.S.O., London, with the Princess Pats, has been promoted to the rank of lieutenant-colonel.

Canada As Senior Partner



LORD SHAUGHNESSY looked strikingly fit as he stepped briskly to the pier on his arrival in New York on Friday afternoon. He stated that he had been deeply impressed by the Mother Country's attitude toward Canada, and seems thoroughly imbued with the Imperial spirit, which is now the keynote of British effort. He went on: "Britain's forges are burning fiercely, creating steel chains by which her integral parts will be bound together as never before. It has been her boast for years that only a silken cord connected the Mother Country with her overseas Dominions and Colonies. That time is past. The war has demonstrated that unity of effort and direction must continue. Canada has assumed a heavy portion of the burden of the war—far greater than anyone anticipated. Canadians have stood in critical positions and have held them. They have done men's work, fulfilling the terms of the partnership that exists between the various members of the Empire. Canadians have won a name which will forever distinguish them. Never will they be confused with other nationalities on this continent.

"Canada will, in fact, be a senior partner in the British Empire, bearing an equal share of the burdens; reaping an equal, proportionate share of the profits and filling a prominent seat at the council table. Lloyd George's elevation to the premiership, undoubtedly is the outcome of a desire on the part of the more aggressive party in the House of Commons to have a Government that will prosecute the war with more vigor. The change merely indicates that the people of Great Britain wish to utilize every resource and every force at their command to ensure victory. Britain wants peace just as soon as the demands made by her and her allies are won from Germany. Anything less is not victory. The masterful way in which Britain is financing the war is no less impressive than the achievements at the front. Her wealth and resources are almost limitless and are being freely and gladly pledged. This war is developing the individual. Every man, woman and child must do a share. Women in the United Kingdom are taking the men's places at home. They have demonstrated that they can do the work heretofore done by men and just as efficiently. They work on the railways, manufacture munitions, do the farm work, in fact, there is nothing except the actual fighting in the trenches that they are not doing. Every woman at man's work, puts another rifle on the firing line.

"As to Canada's future, I have always been certain. The war has only hastened development. With a population nearly equivalent to that of New York State, and a territory larger than the United States, her possibilities are vast. The quality of her fighting and her share in the war has carried her fame to remote corners. Before the war immigration was rapid but not a measure to what it will be when peace is declared. I firmly believe that Canada will have an influx of population not unlike that in the United States about fifty years ago. A great deal of money and many thousands of settlers have already gone to Canada from the United States. The investor finds there a good field for his wealth, and the settler a fertile soil for his plow. Rewards have come quickly to both. Canada looks to the United States more than ever she did before for two reasons, money and men are plentiful here and the supply from overseas is cut off."

CURLING

The members of the Peterborough Curling Club will meet on Monday night at the rink to select the personnel of the rinks for the 1917 season.

Angus McIntosh has a good foundation of ice ready for laying out the curling arena.

The veterans are watching the progress with envious eyes and many of them are polishing up their stones.

Barber—Wouldn't you like some tonic, sir, to make your hair stay in?

Henpeck—Nothing doing! The easier it comes out the less it hurts.

A class of recruits was being put through a preliminary examination in first aid work. Finally it came to Pat O'Flynn's turn to answer.

The sergeant asked him the following question: "Now, Pat, suppose a man were to fall in a drunken fit, how would you treat him?"

"Faith, sergeant," replied Pat, "Oi wouldn't treat him at all; I'd consider he'd had enough."

"My luck with the girl reminds me of a parlor lamp."

"How so?"

"Oh, getting turned down all the time."

"This story says: 'The song died on her lips.'"

"Oh, she probably murdered it."

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

JUNKIN—STINSON.

BOBCAYGEON, Dec. 16. The marriage of Miss Marie Junkin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Junkin, of Red Rock, to Mr. Harry Stinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Stinson, of Brandeston, was celebrated Wednesday evening at the home of the bride's parents. Rev. P. H. Neville officiating. On account of recent bereavement in the bride's family, the death of Pte. Percy Junkin, in France, the wedding was very quiet. The young couple are among the most popular in the community, the bride having been organist of Providence Church.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Thurston, of Toronto, are visiting in the city on their wedding trip.

Mr. Eric Holt of Marmora has joined the staff of the Dominion Bank in this city.

At Queen Street Methodist Church, Lindsay, on Thursday, Mr. Geo. E. Esson of Fraserville was united in marriage to iss Lena Mason of Rosedale. Rev. J. S. McMullen performed the ceremony.

The death is announced from Oklahoma of John Douglas, son of the late John Douglas, for many years a well-known resident here. The family lived on Gilmour street in the residence occupied by Mr. F. R. Yokome. John Douglas, Jr., about 20 years ago, was a reporter on The Morning Times. His sister, Mrs. Wagner, lives in Oklahoma.

All the members of the family of their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of Devonshire are now in Canada. Lady Dorothy, Lady Rachel, Lady Anne, and Lord Charles Cavendish, the four younger children of their Excellencies, have arrived from England. Lady Maud and Lady Blanche Cavendish accompanied the Duke and Duchess to Canada last month.

The Tweed News says: Our music loving people were given a great treat at the organ and vocal recital in the Methodist Church on Monday evening. Mr. John Allan, organ soloist, of Peterborough, and his daughter, Miss Dorothy Allan, provided the musical program, with Miss Myrtle Fawcett contributing two readings. Mr. Allan's work at the organ was most pleasing and demonstrated his ability as an artist. His numbers were splendidly varied, and the response with which the audience received them showed that the player had reached their hearts and won their favor.

The singing of Miss Allan was the best, or at least the equal of anything, ever heard in the church, and that is saying a lot. She complettly captured her audience and was recalled again and again. Her rendering of La Marseillaise (L'Isle) was exceptionally fine. "Spring's Awakening" (Sanderson) and "Hark, Hark, My Soul" (Newton) were very greatly enjoyed. Miss Allan is assured of a very warm reception before a Tweed audience at any future time.

Mrs. W. H. Merrell of Orillia is spending a few days with her husband at 386 1-2 Water Street, while he is on business in this city.

The many friends, both in Norwood and Peterborough, of Mr. Bert Weese, son of Mrs. A. Weese, 193 Brown Street, will be pleased to hear that he is recovering after undergoing a serious operation at Nicholls Hospital.

A very special meeting of the Canadian Kitchener League is called for Monday, Dec. 18, at 8 o'clock sharp, at the Y.M.C.A. It is most important that every member be present.

RETURNED SOLDIERS

The returned soldiers of Peterborough will hold a meeting in the recreation rooms at the Armories on Monday night at 8 o'clock. A full attendance is requested.

BIG INCREASE IN INDIAN OCEAN FREIGHTS.

Teas during the past seven weeks have advanced at the auction in London, Calcutta and Colombo, from six to ten cents a pound. In addition to this, sea freights have advanced two and one-half cents a pound. Inevitably this means dearer tea for the consumer, but "SALADA," so far, has only advanced five cents a pound, and, whatever the price at any time, the quality will always remain exactly the same.

Speaking at Cobourg, Brig.-Gen. Hemming, O.C. the Third Military District, said the great wave of indifference over the country the past few months was possibly partly due to the optimism of the Canadian press, giving inflated prominence to events termed victories for the Allies and minimizing reverses.

WITHOUT REPARATION PEACE IS IMPOSSIBLE DECLARES LLOYD GEORGE

JOFFRE GIVES UP HIS COMMAND TO NIVELLE

Germans Make Raid North of Sailly-Sallisel Without Permanent Success.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, Dec. 20.—The War Office announces a raid was undertaken by German troops last night on the Somme front north of Sailly-Saillisel but it was without permanent success.

On the Verdun front active artillery fighting occurred in the regions of Louvemont and Chambrettes.

General Joffre yesterday handed over the command of the North and North-East armies to General Nivelle.

DAVIS AND WM. HILL TO IDENTIFY C. SAMPSON

Crown Attorney Will Ask for Their Release From Prison to Appear at Trial.

Prisoner's Counsel Gets Bail Bonds Reduced.

Clarence Sampson appeared before County Magistrate Langley this morning for trial on several charges of cattle stealing. The Crown was not ready to proceed and an adjournment was granted until Dec. 29.

The prisoner had elected summary trial and the first case called was that of stealing cattle from A. E. Carveth. Crown Attorney Hatton at once gave notice that he might have to ask for an adjournment before closing his case as it would be necessary to have Davis and William Hill, now in the penitentiary, present for identification purposes.

E. Gus Porter, who is acting with N. E. Dixon for the defence, stated that the defence was ready to proceed and that while he did not wish to hamper the Crown, he must ask that the bail of the prisoner be reduced and suggested two sureties of $1,250 each.

Crown Attorney Hatton, after considerable argument, consented, when Mr. Porter agreed to the extension of the adjournment.

The Crown Attorney wanted to add Kate Hill as a co-defendant with Sampson, but this was left over pending the outcome of the present trial.

Sampson's wife and their relatives were present in the Police Court this morning.

SIR T. W. WHITE'S MESSAGE TO CANADIANS AT HOME

Speaking at Massey Hall, Toronto, last night, Sir Thomas White, Minister of Finance, said:—

The message which I should like to give to the people of Canada tonight is that we must back those heroic men of ours who are fighting for us in the trenches. We must back them with reinforcements to fill the gaps and strengthen the lines. We must back them with munitions which will save their lives and shorten the war. We must back them by tenderly caring for those they have left behind. And we must back them when they return victorious to Canada, which their sacrifices have ennobled, and their valor will have saved four ourselves and for our children and the generations which are to come.

PLUMBING INSPECTOR WILL APPEAR BEFORE PROPERTY COMMITTEE

Mr. Thompson Apparently Played a Lone Hand When Inspecting Work at Mayor's Residence and Aldermen Are Not Satisfied.

"HIGH-HANDED" SAYS ALD. DUNCAN

Where is the plumbing inspector's report on the mayor's house? This was the query of Ald. Duncan at the property committee last night.

Chairman Saunders told of having wasted a couple of hours waiting for the plumbing inspector to show up at the mayor's residence at an appointed hour.

Mayor Duffus stated that an inspection had been carried out in a way when neither the chairman or Mr. Rose was there.

Ald. Duncan was of the opinion that the plumbing inspector had been too high-handed in not following the demand of the committee for a report on the inspection, and for not carying it out in the manner directed by the Council.

The plumbing inspector will have to explain personally to the committee on Dec. 28.

INCREASE IN BUSINESS AT POST OFFICE

M. O. PAID $24,907.

The volume of business at the post office this season is in advance of the amount of business transacted for the ame period last year, and the end is not yet. To handle the large quantities of mail matter at the post office fifteen extra hands will be employed this week and part of next week. C. H. Stuart, of the 74th Battery, Kingston, and W. Thornton, of the Cobourg Heavy Battery, are back at their posts to help relieve the rush. There are four returned soldiers employed on the regular staff.

Big returns are reported by Postmaster Edgar for the month of November. Postage stamps sold amounted to $8215.25; money orders to a total of $14,698.28 were issued and money orders paid amounted to $24,907.

Postal notes sold reached the exceptionally high figure of $5,445.86 and postal notes paid amounted to $2,578.50.

And people are not spending all their money, as the savings department reports deposits of $2,279 as against $1,763 for the same month of last year. All the figures quoted are increases over November, 1915.

93RD BAND IS AT HALIFAX

Six Recruits Added to 247th Batt. Today.

Many homes have been gladdened by the receipt of the news that the 93rd band has arrived at Halifax. The messages from the bandsmen were received here this morning. Bandmaster Hughes, Sergt. Naples and practically all the members of the band are at Halifax and they will be home in the course of the next few days.

The officers and men of the 247th Battalion are all smiles today, not because it was the regulation pay day, but because the 100 mark of enlistment bears promise of fulfilment before Christmas. Six men were attested today, four of them at headquarters here and two at Cxe Hill.

The four who signed their attestation papers here were:

Pte. Reginald Peter O'Gorman, of Indian River.

IMPOSSIBLE TO TAKE ENEMY'S REQUEST FOR PEACE SERIOUSLY

Settlement of Irish Question Would be a Great War Measure---Put Head in Noose by Accepting Proposals.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Dec. 19. — When the Commons assembled today every seat on the floor and in the galleries was filled. Diplomatic representatives of the Entente Powers have seats in the distinguished strangers' gallery. On the benches reserved for the peers were many members of the upper house.

The Prime Minister said it was felt that they should know before entering on negotiations that Germany was prepared to accede only to those terms whereon it was possible for peace to be obtained and maintained in Europe. The Premier said that without reparation peace would be impossible. He also said there were no proposals for peace. To enter into proposals of which they had no knowledge was to put their heads into a noose with the rope-end in the hands of Germany.

Much as they longed for it, the Premier added, the Central Powers' note and the speech preceding it afforded little encouragement and hope for an honorable and lasting peace. Mr. George said: "Our answer will be given in full accordance with our allies. Each of the Allies has separately and independently arrived at the same conclusion. I am glad of the first answer given by France and Russia."

He said that the Allies would insist that only the end of war must be a complete guarantee against Prussian militarism disturbing the peace of Europe.

When the Premier entered the House just before 4 o'clock he was cheered enthusiastically from all quarters. Former Premier Asquith, who entered a moment later, also was cheered vociferously by the Liberals. Sir William Robertson, chief of the Imperial Staff, dressed in khaki, was in the gallery. The formal reply of the Allies, the Premier announced, will be given in the course of a few days.

"OUR TRUST IN OUR UNBROKEN ARMY."

The Premier said: "We will wait until we hear what terms and guarantees there are surer than those which Germany broke. Meanwhile we put our trust in our unbroken army." After declaring that peace without reparation was impossible, the Premier asked whether "all the outrages on land and sea" had been liquidated by "a few pious phrases about humanity." During the war, the Premier said, shipping would be nationalized in a true sense.

STRONG ACTION IN ROUMANIA.

Dealing with the war situation, the Premier said he had to paint a stern but not a gloomy picture. The Roumanian blunder was an unfortunate one, but at the worst it only prolonged the war and could not affect it. It might have a salutary effect in calling the attention of the Allies to the obvious defects of organization. To prevent the Roumanian siuation from becoming worse they had taken strong action. In Greece they were taking no risks. They had decided to recognize the agents of former Premier Venizelos.

Speaking of the Western Front, the Prime Minister referred to the growth of the British armies there, and continued: "I am convinced that ultimate victory is sure if the nation shows the same spirit of endurance and readiness to learn as the mud-stained armies at the front."

Turning to the more purely political of the domestic problems before the new Ministry, Mr. Lloyd George said: "We are anxious to avoid all controversial questions. The functions of the Premier and the leader of the House of Commons have been separated because it was believed the double tasks were too much for one man. The organization of a new Cabinet is best adapted for the purpose of war.

DISASTERS DUE TO TARDY DECISIONS.

"In war you want prompt decision, and the Allies have suffered disaster after disaster from the tardiness of decision. The Prime Minister said the time had come when the dominions should be consulted more formally as to the war. An imperial conference would be summoned at an early date to discuss the vital questions. The speech of Chancellor Von Bethmann Hollwegg in the Reichstag was characterized by the Premier as constituting in substance a denial of the only terms upon which peace was possible. The Prime Minister analyzed the German chancellor's speech and then declared emphatically, "Without reparation, peace is impossible. Moreover, what guarantee is there that subterfuges will not be used in future to overthrow any treaties of peace whereinto we might enter? We must keep a steadfast eye on the purpose for which we entered the war.

Remember the Children at the Shelter

The Children's Aid Society appeal to the citizens of Peterborough to extend their generosity to the Children's Shelter this Christmas time. There are nine boys at the Shelter and seven or more children are expected at the Shelter this week. Citizens have always been very kind and thoughtful toward the children at this institution and the officials are looking forward to a generous response this coming Christmas.

Parcels may be left at the newspaper offices or sent direct to the Shelter.

CAPT. BLAIKIE NOT TO SHARE THE FATE OF CAPT. FRYATT

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Dec. 20. — Bonar Law announced in the House of Commons today that the German Government had assured the American Embassy at Berlin that Captain Blaikie, captin of the sunken British steamship Caledonia, would not share the fate of Captain Fryatt, of the steamship martil on a charge of attempting to Brussels, who was shot after a court ram a German submarine. The Germans considered the Caledonia an armed cruiser and that Blaikie had only done his duty in attempting to ram the submarine.

ALD. McINTYRE PROPOSES TO RELY ON HIS RECORD

Will be a Candidate to Succeed Himself---William Taylor to Enter Lists Against Ald. Edgar---Ald. Dobbin to Run Again.

Ald. McIntyre will be a candidate to succeed himself in the North Ward, and is in a position to take on all comers, convinced that his record for the past two years and especially on the last lap of his term, while he held the second place of honor in aldermanic office as chairman of the Board of Works, is his best recommendation. He is not afraid of criticism. He says he has done the best he could for his constituents and for the city at large.

Ald. Edgar has every propspect for a lively fight in the South Ward. There are a number of residents of that section of the city who are ready to enter the public service, but William Taylor appears to have the poll. If he consents to run the other dark horses will withdraw in his favor. T. H. Hooper, mentioned as a candidate, says he will not enter the race against Mr. Taylor, although if the latter was out of it he would be quite willing to tackle Ald. Edgar.

Ald. Dobbin will be a candidate for re-election in the West Ward and the active interest he has always taken in patriotic work should assure him popular support as his usefulness in this line is increased by his position in Council.

In the East Ward Ald. Evans is likely to have opposition. John Smith, who failed of re-election to the School Board last year, has ambitions to hold a seat again among the city fathers and will likely be a candidate. Ald. Evans would probably be as willing to meet Mr. Smith as any other resident of the ward, as the result is likely to be the same in any case.

LABOR PRESIDENT HAS NO COMPLAINT AGAINST PETERBORO MERCHANTS

After the Men Higher up Who Play Important Role in High Cost of Living.--Outside Buyers Grab up Fowl.

The high cost of living resolution to investigate any complaints as to excessive prices being demanded in Peterborough for necessaries of life, came up befor the lgal committee last night and it was thought that it was a good matter to leave for the incoming Council to consider. In the meantime, the members of the committee will get all the information possible and have it filed so that the committee of 1917 will have some information to start with.

President Frost, of the Trades and Labor Council, was present, and had a talk with the committee. He had no complaint to make against local merchants but would like to get after the man higher up. He questioned how the Board of Education got coal for $5.75 per ton and it cost others $8.75, and why the outside buyers were allowed to grab up 2,400 fowl on the market, which made the prices higher for the taxpayers of the city.

Mayor Duffus pointed out that the School Board contracted for coal early in the season and used soft coal. The city have no control over the shipping of fowl to outside points.

Baby Beef 9c lb.

Ald. Edgar pointed out that the prices in Peterborough were not higher than in other places, and instanced a man buying a 50-lb. quarter of baby beef on the marked for 9c lb.

The committee will get a copy of Dr. Hastings' report to the Toronto City Council, on conditions in that city.

HOW TO MAKE OLEOMARGARINE.

IF ANY HOUSEKEEPER in Peterborough is anxious to overcome the high cost of living by providing her family with a cheap substitute for butter, she is at perfect liberty to begin the manufacture of oleomargarine for home use. No special legislation or order-in-council is required. The only restriction is that the enterprising housewife cannot legally offer her product for sale among her neighbors.

The ingredients required for the making of oleomargarine are simple and easily obtainable. The main requisite is a generous supply of beef tallow. Next in importance is cotton seed oil. This, of course, must be imported from the United States—that is, the cotton seed, at least—as this raw material is not produced in Canada. Edible cotton seed oil, such as that used for canning fish, is admitted to this country duty free, so that on this phase of the question there is no chance for agitation or argument. The game is in the hands of the Canadian consumer who elects to work out his own remedy without calling for government action.

To mix the tallow and the oil in the proper proportion is a matter which can be easily adjusted after a few experiments. The ambitious amateur manufacturer may aspire to make the substitute resemble the genuine article as closely as possible. To do this, peanut oil is required, and this is procurable only from Holland. This oil, too, is admitted free of duty, if imported for food purposes. Mustard seed oil would answer the same purpose, although the use of either will not add to the dietary value of the substitute. Their addition will simply color the oleomargarine to resemble butter without enhancing the quality.

To give the substitute something resembling the flavor of butter, it should be soaked in buttermilk for a short time until it absorbs some of the taste of that beverage. Following these directions closely will result in a substitute calculated to deceive the untrained eye and the uncultured palate.

It is this coloring and flavoring of the substitute that has led to all the trouble in the United States, where the manufacture is permitted, and it is one of the chief objections raised by the dairymen of Canada, who fear that their industry will be injured by unfair competition if the embargo is lifted. The law could, and probably would, provide that oleomargarine should be sold only in sealed wrappers properly stamped. This would protect the private consumer against fraud. It would, however, be impossible to prevent an unscrupulous restaurant proprietor or an hotelkeeper from tearing off the wrapper and serving the substitutes to his patrons for the genuine article. The general public might in that way be forced to part with their money by false pretenses. It is easy to see how the dairy industry would suffer while the consumer at the same time was victimized.

Milk, cream and butter, it is true, are sometimes used to a limited extent in the manufacture of oleomargarine, but this is done only when the object is to make the deception as complete as possible.

Food experts have long ago investigated the relative food values of oleomargarine and butter. Dr. E. V. McCallum of Wisconsin has done some very valuable work along these lines. He has discovered that butter contains a certain element, that which is necessary for the growth of the young and which is not found in oleomargarine. By feeding rats and guinea pigs on a diet of oleomargarint alone their development was entirely checked. By giving the same animals a diet of milk or butter it brought them around to their normal growth.

It would appear from this that a serious injury would be inflicted upon children who were forced to eat this substitute for butter. These days we hear a good deal about the advisability of taking special care of the children so as to fit them to take the places of the best physical specimens of the race being destroyed by the war. Denying the rising generation articles of diet essential to their proper development would certainly defeat the high purpose set before the adult public today.

A PLACE, BUT NO SHOW.

> The election by acclamation of Hon. A. E. Kemp, Minister of Militia, is gratifying as showing that partisanship has no place in Canada during the duration of the war. — St. Thomas Times.

THERE IS A PLACE, unfortunately, for partisanship in Canada, but happily there is little show for it. The Liberals moved heaven and earth to find a man to oppose Hon. A. E. Kemp in Toronto. Permitting his return by acclamation was, after all, a case of Hobson's choice with them. The party that has never missed an opportunity to attack the war record of the Government would have regarded the defeat of the new Minister of Militia as their highest triumph. But they had no temperance issue to help them out, such as they had in Southwest Toronto a few months ago.

A FINE SIGHT INDEED.

> Sir Robert Borden and Sir Wilfrid Laurier are both engaged in the patriotic and necessary work of stimulating recruiting. It would be a fine sight to see both of them on the same platform, symbolising the unity of this country in the war and its determination to assist in carrying it on to a successful conclusion. — Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

IT WOULD be a fine sight indeed to see the leaders of the two great political parties working in harmony. But none of us are ever likely to see it. Sir Wilfrid Laurier destroyed the last patriotic hope for such a spectacle when he bluntly refused to co-operate with the National Service Commission

SILENT UNDER FIRE.

NO GOVERNMENT that Canada has ever had has carried the burden that the war has imposed upon the Borden Administration. No Government has ever been more bitterly, more shamelessly assailed. No Government has so completely made self-interest secondary to the national good and submitted to criticism without any attempt at reprisal. The hour when the Empire is in agony is no time for political discussion. That time will come, and the Government that has met every call made upon it will speak in terms that cannot be misunderstood.

THE WIRELESS IN WAR.

ONE OF THE MOST important factors in modern warfare—correlation of infantry and artillery action by means of the wireless telegraph—is not going to be lacking in the modern army if the genius of Thomas A. Edison can be brought to bear on it. This is indicated in Mr. Edison's comment on an article sent to a Chicago newspaper from France, in which it was set forth that a closer relation between infantry attack and artillery preparation is needed and that the wireless may have an important function to perform in bringing this about.

In a personal letter Mr. Edison wrote the following comment on the article: "I have made a note of this. It is very important. Our Uncle Samuel will have something very desirable in this line before long if I am not mistaken."

The article in question says: "A new system, a system of constant, direct communication between the artillery and infantry, will perhaps be invented one day. Electricity, wireless telegraphy, or, better still, wireless telephone, may be the means, but until this system is invented, artillery, which it would set into motion in an attack, or the heavy artillery which could crush all enemy resistance, will remain as it is—a terrible arm, used at times successfully, at other times unskilfully, extravagantly, entailing much useless expenditure of force—an arm that lacks the controlling sense of sight."

In recent cable despatches from the French front correspondents have commented on the strides made in correlating artillery and infantry, and the wireless is named frequently as the best medium.

WHAT TO WEAR ON WINTER TOUR

Not less important than the choice of a place in which to spend the winter vacation is the decision as to what to wear. Individual taste will govern in large measure, but fashion for the coming summer will point the way in the selection of the wardrobe.

One of the most practical novelties originated by the tailors in many seasons will come into use on the trip south. That is the coat dress. Its name describes it accurately, for it certainly is a dress, and it goes on like a coat. The garment is open down the front, and can be easily taken off or put on while on the Pullman. Serges and jersey cloth are favorite fabrics. Colors may be left to personal preference. For those who will wear an ordinary tailored suit, the new crepe de chene waists in flesh and white will appeal.

Of styles in general it may be said that skirts will continue full, though there will be a tendency toward straight lines, giving them the appearance of being somewhat narrower — an appearance which is not supported by any reduction in the quantity of the goods. They may fit closely about the waist or loosely and be drawn in with the belt. Belts will be narrower than heretofore. The waist line will remain high. This is especially true with separate skirts.

Russian Blouse a Novelty.

One of the newer garments which is expected to find much favor among holiday seekers in the South is the Russian blouse. It is long and loose and is worn over the skirt. A belt gathers it at the waist, but not too snugly. The garment is being shown in a variety of colors and fabrics. Style followers believe it will become immensely popular.

There is an endless variety of things for sport wear. Riding habits will be of palm beach cloth, heavy linen or light wool. There should be, of course, a pair of riding boots and puttees. Sport skirts will be of a great many bright materials. Jersey cloth, which is utilized so extensively in other garments, is equally popular for this use. Satin and light weight wool will also be stylish.

For travel and street wear the hat will be small. It may have much handwork. Early models that are being shown are rich in braiding, shirring, pleating and embroidery. Satin and georgette will be a popular material in these small hats.

For afternoon and also for sporting wear, the models will be larger. The afternoon hat will be of thin material. Jersey cloth, linen and batiste will be employed extensively in the sport hats.

Same Styles in Footwear.

One of the favorite shoes for afternoon wear is a white kid or calf boot, eight inches high, usually with a Spanish wood heel. Another model is of patent leather with white tops, and there are others of tan, or tan with buck or kid tops.

No woman should start away without a pair of Pullman slippers. They come in various forms, one of the most attractive of which admits of folding into a flat packet that fits nicely into the suit case or travelling bag.

The man's problem of dress offers small difficulty. He will follow the styles pretty much as he does now, taking care to provide himself with flannels and ducks, palm beach suits, light hats, and, among his shoes, a pair or two of white canvas or buck skin.

HUMAN TOUCHES IN THE BIG WAR

Lady Smith-Dorrien tells a rather touching story of a private who had just recovered from a severe wound.

Feeling ill and very homesick, he went to headquarters to obtain leave of absence. Said he, in a most dejected manner, "I haven't seen my wife for more than a year."

"Why," said the colonel, "I haven't seen my wife for nearly two years."

"Well," said the soldier, quite earnestly and respectfully, "that may be, sir, but me and my wife ain't them kind!"

The furlough was immediately granted.

Gen. Sir Julian Byng, who commanded the Canadians at Courcelette, tells the following story as illustrating the temper of the men who took part in that fierce hand-to-hand fight.

While awaiting the orders to advance, it appears one of them found a bit of looking-glass.

Taking it in his hand, he gazed long and earnestly at the reflection of his face.

Then, "Good-bye, old man," he said, and handed it to his nearest comrade.

The latter repeated the grim performance, chuckling audibly and in this manner it was passed down the crouching ranks, each man repeating the formula to his next-door neighbor as he handed him the broken fragment of mirror: "Have a last look at yourself, old man, and bid yourself good-bye."

So the laugh went round.

Then "Advance!" and in five minutes they were in the thick of it.

REV. J. R. WEBB IN KINDLY SPIRIT CORRECTS STATEMENT IN REVIEW

Editor Review: In your article published on Saturday in the Christmas number of The Review entitled "Christian Unity wil mean peace on earth indeed," you have a few words of which I would like to speak. You represent a city mininster as saying that "The Baptists no longer regard immersion as an essential to eternal salvation." I cannot think that any of our ministers ever gave currency to such a statement, for every student of church history is well aware that baptists never believed or taught that immersion had anything to do with eternal salvation.

No minister whose work is worth our attention would risk his reputation for scholarship by saying that the Baptists ever had such an idea and I feel that the implication of your article is one that I am bound to correct. I have spoken with the one whom you intended to quote and he agrees with me that his thought has been wrongly interpreted, but it has gone to the eyes of the public, and this correction is therefore a necessity.

The sentence reminds me of a Sunday School teacher who some years ago prepared a temperance pledge for the boys of her class and who was grieved because they all declined to sign it, until she discovered that her wording committed them to a "giving up" of the use of wine, ale, beer and all spirituous and malt liquors." The boys did not wish to put themselves on record as "giving up" a practice in which they had never indulged and Baptists rightly resent the implication that they "no longer" believe what has always been foreign to their teaching.

The position of the Baptists has always been that no one is a proper candidate for Baptism who has not already accepted Christ as personal Saviour and Lord, and it follows that baptism can have nothing to do with his salvation if it is an ordinance for those only who profess to be already saved through faith in Christ.

Were I to say that Presbyterians no longer believe in theft or that Methodists no longer believe in murder there would be some truth in my statement, but it would represent the past history of these great churches as poorly as for anyone to say that we "no longer" believe in immersion as necessary to eternal salvation.

J. R. WEBB.

The Review regrets the error. The statement would have been perfectly correct if it had read: "Immersion by the former was never regarded as as essential to eternal salvation."—Ed.

STRONG ACTION IN ROUMANIA

We entered it to defend Europe from the aggressions of the Prussian military caste. We must insist that there be most complete guarantees against this caste ever disturbing again the peace of Europe. Prussia has been a bad neighbor, and now that the war has really been undertaken, it would be folly not to see to it that this swashbuckling through the streets of Europe and this disturbance of peaceful citizens was dealt with here and now as the most serious offence against the law of nations."

The Premier said it was proposed to appoint a director of national service and that industries and services would be scheduled as essential or non-essential to the war.

Irish Question a Misunderstanding.

Mr. Lloyd George was convinced that the Irish question was a misunderstanding and he hoped this misunderstanding would be removed. The settlement of the Irish question would be a great war measure. Referring to the mobilization of labor, the Premier said no man would be taken into the army if he were capable of rendering more useful service outside of it. Arthur Neville Chamberlain, he announced, had been appointed Director General of National Service.

"Anyone who wants only to prolong this conflict has a crime on his soul which oceans of tears could not cleanse," the Premier declared; "but anyone who abandons the struggle without attaining its object would be even more guilty. Are we likely to attain our object by accepting German proposals? To accept the proposals would be to put our heads into a noose. Historic example causes us to regard the disposal with disquiet."

It was ten minutes past 4 o'clock when the Premier rose before the House of Commons. "I appear before the House," he began, "with the greatest responsibility that has fallen on any man as chief adviser of the crown, in the midst of the most gigantic war ever waged, on which depends the destiny of nations and humanity. The responsibilities of the Government are accentuated by the declaration o fthe German chancellor and the note communicated through the United States. Our answer will be given in full accord with our allies."

IMPOSSIBLE TO TAKE REQUEST SERIOUSLY.

PARIS, Dec. 19. — Premier Briand announced in the Senate today that the Entente Allies would send to-morrow a concerted reply making known "to the Central Powers that it is impossible to take their request for peace seriously."

AWARDED $100

Edith Tully of Smith was awarded $100 damages against Thomas Rath by a jury at the County Sessions this afternoon.

Then several of my friends advised me to try "Fruit-a-tives". I began to improve almost with the first dose, and by using them, I recovered from the distressing Stomach Trouble—and all pain and Constipation were cured. John Had Not Forgotten

A party of neighbors were met in Mrs. Lovatt's house for a gossip. The subject on hand was as to whether it was right for lovers to kiss one another, etc., before marriage. Opinions were about equally divided, when Mrs. Lovatt happened to hear her husband approaching.

"Here's my John coming. He will settle it. Now, John," she said, "we have been arguing whether kissing and such carrying on is proper before marriage. Of course you remember I knew very little about such things."

"Well" said John reflectively, "you might not have known very much about it, but a more willing creature to learn there never could be."

COME ALONG TO THE MOVIES

CHRISTMAS DAY ENTERTAINMENT FOR FAMILIES OF THE SOLDIERS.

WILL COST $120.

The city legal and reception committee met last night and thoroughly discussed the best way of entertaining the wives and children of the soldiers now overseas, at Christmas. Capt. J. H. Burham, M.P., had sent $50 to Mayor Duffus for this object and it was thought that other citizens would be glad to contribute towards the fund.

After considering everything in the way of accommodation, comfort for the children and the facilities for handling the twelve or thirteen hundred that will likely attend the members decided to accept Mr. Weber Turner's proposition—to furnish an up-to-date picture show of two and a half hours' duration, consisting of "The Heart of Maryland," a comedy, and a travelogue, and the orchestra, for $120 on Christmas Day afternoon.

This leaves $70 to be raised by the committee in some way or other. How to do it was left for Chairman Dobbin to solve.

The wives and children have already been given their tickets.

Mitchell Valois abused Harvey Smith, who with a number of boys were skating near the canal in East City.

AT THE GRAND

MRS. LESLIE CARTER IN MOTION PICTURES ON CHRISTMAS NIGHT.

Four great names — every one meaning much to the public, are featured in the stupendous motion picture which will occupy the screen at "The Grand" theatre on Christmas night.

First of all, the star—Mrs. Leslie Carter—is as famous as any actress on the English-speaking stage. She has been the favorite of an adoring public for many years, and has retained and increased that early fascination which brought her to fame some twenty years ago.

The second name of the four is that of Herbert Brenon, the master director of film plays.

The third name is that of the play itself, "The Heart of Maryland," which made an instant success upon fame some twenty years ago.

The fourth name is David Belasco — that wizard of stage direction and play-writing, who has done more to elevate the American stage thany any other two men in theatricals.

The net result is this—Metro presents, Mrs. Leslie Carter in David Belasco's immortal success, The Heart of Maryland, picturized by Herbert Brenon.

The seat sale will open Friday morning at 10 o'clock and as Christmas night usually means a capacity audience, patrons would do well to make their reservations early.

Brother Killed in Somme Fighting

Mrs. A. Rowe, 2 Anson Street, has been informed that her married brother, Pte. Robert Conlon, who enlisted in a bantam battalion, was killed in action in the fighting at the Somme on Oct. 12.

Another brother of Mrs. Rowe has been a prisoner of war in Germany for two years. Recently Mrs. Rowe lost her five-year-old child and Corp. Rowe lost a brother. Thus it will be seen the family is under a heavy burden of sorrow at this festive season of the year.

Mrs. Rowe and family have returned to the city after spending a few days in Lakefield.

The coal miners at Taber, Alta., have not yet returned to work.

DEATH OF MR. JAS. JOHNSTON

WAS FATHER OF EX-ALD. W. J. JOHNSTON; LIVED HERE 59 YEARS.

At 10.45 last night death claimed Mr. James Johnston, who since 1857 had been a resident of Peterborough. Mr. Johnston had been in failing health for some time and as he had reached an advanced age hopes for his recovery were not entertained. Had he lived till Jan. 4, 1917, he would have reached his 82nd year.

Deceased was born in County Cavan, Ireland, and on coming to Peterborough 59 years ago, followed his trade of plasterer. He was of a retiring disposition and was content to give his undivided attention to his home and family. His wife predeceased him five years last June. Surviving are four sons and one daughter: Ex-Ald. W. J. Johnston, Joseph, who went overseas with the 93rd Battalion; Herbert and Ernest of the city; and Mrs. Fred Allison, 49 Benson Ave., with whom he had made his home since the death of his wife.

Mr. Johnston was a methodist in religion and a member of George Street church.

The funeral will be held on Wednesday afternoon at 3 p.m. from 49 Benson Ave. to Little Lake Cemetery. Service at the house at 2.30. Rev. R. G. Peever, B.D., will officiate.

NATIONAL NEEDS OF THE COUNTRY TODAY

Farmers in the vicinity of Lakefield met yesterday to hear experts discuss questions of interest to the profession, lectures that are designed to add to the farmer's stock of vocational knowledge and to better his environments. These organizations were formerly known as Farmers' Institutes but at the last session of the Legislature the name was changed to the more euphonious and comprehensive one of Boards of Agriculture. The society in West Peterborough has changed only in name and in the matter of progress. The same members and their friends turned out yesterday to the meeting here only in larger numbers than ever. The old officers are still in charge. Mr. J. A. McGregor is president and Mr. Allan B. Mann still fills the important dual position of secretary and treasurer.

The first meeting of the society under its new name was held yesterday, two sessions in all, in the town hall, Lakefield. The speakers for the occasion were all well known in the work of Farmers' Institutes in the past. Best known of them all was Miss M. V. Powell, of Whitby, who has the distinction of being the first woman in Ontario to be elected a member of the school board. That honor was conferred upon her three years ago by the people of Whitby and one year ago she was returned by acclamation as an appreciation of her faithful and competent service. Miss Powell is the owner of one of the best fruit farms in Ontario, which she manages herself. This year, owing to the scarcity of labor, she was unable to secure men to harvest her crop, but with her own hands she packed the entire produce of her orchard with the exception of a few boxes. She has travelled from one end of the Dominion to the other on work connected with the Women's Institute and is an excellent speaker, in addition to her capacity for organization and administration.

Mr. H. Grose, an ex-master of the Grange, another of the speakers at Lakefield last night, comes from Lefroy, in Simcoe county, where he owns a fine farm that was his father's before him. He was a school mate of the late James Duff, Minister of Agriculture in the Ontario Cabinet. He is 67 years old, according to his own admission, although no one would suspect it if he chose to remain noncommittal on the subject. It seems that Mr. Grose has learned something of every subject of interest to humanity and is still picking up information except with reference to the art of growing old. For four years he held the office of Master of the Dominion Grange. He has been active in patriotic work ever since the war broke out and never makes an address on any subject without apealing to Canadians to do their duty as it is given them—to fight, pay or produce until victory is assured.

The Evening Session

At the meeting last night President McGregor occupied the chair. Secretary-Treasurer Mann took up his position at the door and enrolled the members as they entered, incidentally collecting the annual fees. F. C. McRae, of Norwood, District Representative, was the first speaker and gave an interesting sketch of the work the Department of Agriculture is doing through its district representatives, especially in this county. The community under his charge contains fifty rural schools, with about 1,000 pupils. During the past season seven school fairs were held. The competition was keen at each and the attendance good. In the past three years 43 classes have been held, six hours a day for four days a week for instructing the coming farmer in farm work, and over 100 young men have taken advantage of these short courses. Two prize winners will spend a term at the Agriculture College at Guelph at the expense of the Department. All the pupils who avail themselves of this special instruction represent the best elements in the farming community and will be all the better farmers for their vocational training.

National Needs

Miss Powell spoke entertainingly and eloquently of the work the Women's Institute has done and of that which lies ahead of it. The flower of Canadian manhood is being cut down in the war. Special care must be taken of the children to fit them for taking the places of those who are losing their lives on the battlefield. First of all, then, physical development must be the care of their seniors, for without health life is a burden, while with health it is a joy. They must be grounded in the laws of hygiene. The 250,000 pupils in the public schools, who never attend a higher institution of learning, must be given every chance. The rural school buildings should be improved and made more homelike. Supervised playgrounds, coming more and more into favor, are one of the best possible methods that can be devised for the training of children. The address closed with an eloquent description of the resources of Canada and the opportunities that will be enjoyed by the citizens of the country if they are properly trained for life's duties.

Mr. Grose spoke at considerable length on the war and all that it means to the Empire, impressing upon his fellow-farmers the obligations they owe to the British navy, without which they would not be able to market a bushel of wheat in Europe. He referred to the patriotic work done by the Women's Institute, the Red Cross and other organizations, and counseled liberal contributions to the various schemes proposed to help on the war. His address was one of the most practical and telling recruiting speeches ever heard in Lakefield.

Mr. Allan B. Mann sang a solo, "When I was a Dreamer," in excellent voice, and Mr. Elmer Milburn rendered that old favorite, "Bonnie Mary of Argyle." Miss N. Nelson, organist in the Lakefield Presbyterian Church, accompanied on the piano. The meeting adjourned after singing "God Save the King."

Mr. J. A. Sexsmith, of East Peterborough, was one of the most interested auditors.

THE AFTERNOON MEETING

The farmers who gathered in the hall for the afternoon meeting listened to two interesting and highly practical addresses, Messrs. Grose and McRae being the speakers. The latter explained in detail the new Standard Dairy Act, which goes into effect next season. He neither commended or condemned the new measure, but simply stated its provisions and left the final verdict with those interested. All questions asked by his hearers were fully answered.

Mr. McRae at the beginning of his address explained how under the pooling system in vogue so long in Eastern Ontario, the man who furnished inferior milk reaped the same rate of profit as the cheese factory patron whose product graded high. This had a tendency to retard the development of the industry.

What New Act Provides

The new dairy act authorizes two systems, a test of milk for fat alone or for fat plus two, a technical point which the initiated alone can grasp. The patrons of each cheese factory can decide among themselves what system is to be employed.

Mr. McRae showed how the new order would act as an inducement to the producers to improve their herds. The man who brings the best milk to the factory will secure the best price. Under the pooling system the owner of the dairy farm was not likely to make any advances along these lines so long as quantity instead of quality was the object.

"Will this new Act have a tendency to drive men from patronizing the cheese factories and lead them to ship their milk to Toronto or other outside points?" asked Mr. McRae.

Answering his own question, he said that for milk shipped to the large centres a certain standard was required and this was likely to be raised from time to time. The cheese industry is not likely to suffer as a result of the new legislation.

Testing Will Cost Nothing

One of the last official announcements made by the late Mr. Duff, Ministre of Agriculture, dealt with the cost of making the tests under the new law. These will be made by the dairy instructors as required for the first year at least, and this will cost the patrons nothing. All objections to the measure on the score of expense are accordingly removed.

The Act Endorsed

"The new Dairy Act should have been passel twenty-five years ago. It it just what was required," said Mr. Gavin Graham at the conclusion of Mr. McRae's address. This endorsation seemed to represent the unanimous sentiments of the entire audience.

Mr. Grose on Seeds

Mr. Grose said that in his official capacity he had been all over Ontario and never yet had he heard so clear an explanation of the new Diry Act as that submitted by Mr. McRae. He opened his address with a touching appreciation of his old friend the late Minister of Agriculture, giving a short account of his end so startlingly sudden. Then he addressed his fellow farmers on the selection of seeds, taking oats as a standard. There is a vast amount of inferior grain in the province this year, and more care than ever should be exercised in choosing that which is to be sown next spring. Farmers were advised to find out the variety of oats suited to their soil and climate and stick to that variety, taking care, however, to keep up the standard. The old theory about a frequent change of seed from one locality or from one kind of soil to another has long since been exploded. Oats for seed should be cleaned and recleaned, and the time to do it is now.

The large kernels should be sown, the smaller ones fed. The value of the latter for feed exceeds that of the other, so that the man who follows the above instruction is out nothing, but rather the reverse.

The Difference in Yield

Two fields of oats may look exactly alike to the unexperienced eye and yet one may yield fifteen bushels more to the acre than the other. The seed used in each accounts for this. Once in a field-judging contest in North Simcoe Mr. Grose had incurred the displeasure of the contestants in making the awards. When the grain was threshed his judgment, however, was justified. The field which he had awarded first prize yielded five bushels an acre more than the other. The owner of the latter had cleaned his seed twice, but the first prize winner had, with the assistance of his family, hand-picked his. That was the secret of his success."

How to Test Seed

Anyone can test the fertility of seed. Mr. Grose's plan is to place about three inches of sawdust in a box, cover this with a cotton cloth, mark the space off into four squares, plant 100 seeds in each, cover that with another layer of cloth, add a few more inches of sawdust, and keep the whole moist and in a summer temperature near the stove. At the end of eight days examine the seed and count the percentage that has germinated.

Mr. McRae in his tests uses light blow sand instead of sawdust and plants the seed in this. When the seed has grown it is easy to count the sprouts that come through. The idea is that grain that will germinate in blow sand will grow in any variety of soil.

Mr. Grose told his audience that peas intended for seed should not be put through a threshing machine, but should be flailed out. Even if the machine does not break the peas it is likely to crack them and such seed will never grow. Large wheat kernels that look all right may be so cracked as to be valueless for seed, and the farmer sowing such grain wonders why his crop is so thin.

The Deadly Sow Thistle

The greatest weed enemy that the Ontario farmer has to fear today is the deadly sow thistle which is in evidence all over the province. Experience has shown that there is only one sure way to kill it, and that is the old-fashioned summer-fallow. The pest should never be allowed to get a start from the time the ground is first plowed in the spring until it is seeded in the fall. All other farm work must be made to take second place to that of fighting this weed. A hoe crop is one means of overcoming it, but this plan is no longer feasible on account of the scarcity of labor.

Where Making of Butter Substitutes Is Permitted by Law and Where Prohibited

An expert in the dairy industry has furnished The Review with the following interesting facts concerning oleomargarine, the embargo on which the Canadian Government has been asked to remove by one section of the community and to continue in force by another:

The manufacture and sale of mixtures of butter and oleomargarine is specifically prohibited in Austria, Belgium, France, Germany and Norway.

Persons desiring to manufacture oleomargarine must give notice to the officers of the governments of Austria, Denmark, France, Germany, Luxemburg, the Netherlands, Norway, Portugal and Sweden before doing business.

The manufacture of oleomargarine is prohibited on the premises where butter is made and sold in Austria, Belgium, Denmark, France, Germany, Great Britain, Luxemburg, Norway, Portugal and Sweden.

The sale on the premises where butter is sold is prohibited in Belgium, France, Germany, Luxemburg, and Russia.

In Austria and the Netherlands, oleomargarine may be sold on the same premises where butter is sold, provided the oleomargarine is kept in special receptacles separate and apart from those used for butter and the part of the premises where oleomargaraine is sold contains signs plainly indicating that fact.

Receptacles containing oleomargarine must be marked in plain indelible letters "Margarine" in the following countries: Austria, Belgium, Denmark, France, Germany, Great Britain, Italy, Luxemburg, the Netherlands, Norwayfi Portugal, Russia and Sweden.

Oleomargarine must be designated as such in invoices, bills of lading, contracts and commercial agreements affecting it in the following countries: Austria, Denmark, France, Italy, Norway, Portugal, Sweden and Germany.

All places where oleomargarine is sold must display signs indicating the fact in Austria, Belgium, Italy, Luxemburg, the Netherlands and Portugal.

The addition of coloring matter is prohibited by law in France, Germany and Portgual.

In Italy and Russia it is forbidden to give oleomargarine the color of natural butter.

In Denmark the color which may be added is regulated by a card system. They must not color higher than a shade they term "No. 9," which is practically white.

Oleomargarine must contain prescribed quantities of sesame oil in Belgium, Portgual and Sweden. This is done for the purpose that it can be detected very readily in certain tests.

Tht water content is limited to 16 per cent. in Great Britain.

A number of these countries, in addition, have laws regulating the inspection of the ingredients used in the manufacture of oleomargarine. I might say that in investigating this subject in a number of European countries three years ago I found the fraudulent sale of oleomargarine carried on more extensively in Great Britain than in any other country, and I think this was due to the fact that they have no laws prohibiting the coloring of the product in imitation of butter.

GARBAGE CONTRACTOR MUST MEND HIS WAYS

Committee Object to Refuse Being Used For Feeding Porkers and Chicks.

The sins of the garbage collector were brought to the attention of the Property Committee last night and Chairman Saunders and the sanitary inspector were given full power to see that the spirit of the by-law is carried out.

The chief complaint was that the collector and others were using table refuse for feeding purposes, contrary to the health regulations. The majority of the committee did not think there was any harm in anyone collecting the waste if it was boiled before being fed to hogs or chickens.

Collecting of Rags

The committee were unanimous that the practice of collecting rags and other material must stop and the imperative order given that all such stuff must be burned and the sanitary inspector was instructed to bring police court action against anyone offending in this respect.

Always the Tenants!

Better collection of the garbage in the centre of the city will be arranged for. Sanitary Inspector Cooper stated that in some instances the tenants were to blame.

Contractor Graham will be present at the next meeting of the committee to explain his troubles.

Chairman Saunders reported to the Property Committee last night that the eaves-troughing on the scale house at the market needed repairing and he was authorized to have repairs made at once

TEA MARKET STILL RISING

An increase in the ocean freight rates of two and one-half cents a pound added to an advance of from six to ten cents a pound in the cost of tea at the primary markets, has necessitated the recent increase in the cost of tea in Canada. To keep faith with the public and maintain exactly the same high standard of quality as always, "SALADA" has advanced in price, but as yet only five cents a pound.

THE craftsmen of an earlier day who were responsible for the first Nordheimer Pianos possessed that unique proficiency commonly called genius.

Their successors of to-day are equally worthy of the tribute we pay to genius. To them has fallen the privilege of developing an ideal. On them has rested the responsibility of delving deeper into the myriad intricacies of the piano-maker's craft. For them has been reserved the honor of producing the present-day

GERMAN SOLDIERS WITHOUT KNOWLEDGE OF PROPOSALS

Hindenburg Sees the Danger in Allied Air Activity.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

With the British armies in France, Dec. 20.—Out of a group of German prisoners taken in one section of the British front on Sunday, only a non-commissioned officer had heard anything of the German Emperor's peace proposal. This circumstance, coupled with the fact that there have been absolutely no demonstrations from any part of the German trenches, caused speculation among British officers as to whether the new peace overtures had been permitted to reach the men actually on the fighting line.

CONTEST AIR SUPREMACY

In documents captured within the last few days, Von Hindenburg is quoted as having issued orders that the supremacy of the air must be sharply contested and the audacity and initiative of the allied airmen is repeatedly mentioned. The German chief of staff has ordered that where German lines are crossed by hostile aviators, German machines must penetrate an equal distance over the Allied lines.

GERMAN TROOPS DEPRESSED

German artillery has recently been quite active, and according to prisoners, the preponderance of British shells had depressed German troops in the trenches, who thought their own artillery was not supporting them with the same vigor as the English gave to their men.

ALD. EDGAR'S INSTALMENT PLAN FOR PLUMBING WORK.

The Peterborough Utilities Commission met last night and discussed with Aldermen Evans and Edgar the idea of putting in plumbing for small householders on the instalment plan.

Alderman Edgar explained the plan very thoroughly and the commissioners were so favorably impressed that they referred it to their solicitor as to whether they could extend their powers to undertake the work.

BURGLARS IN TWO STORES AT LAKEFIELD

THIEVES GOT $15.00 FROM H. J. SHERIN'S STORE.

20 CENTS AT BURGESS'.

(Special to The Review.)

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 20.—Early on Tuesday morning two burglaries took place in Lakefield. The stores were apparently entered by the use of skeleton keys, and bad it not been for Mr. Amys being on night duty at Tanner's drugs store, it is possible more places might have been entered.

The premises burglarized were Mr. Harry J. Sherin's, where the thieves got $15 out of the till, and Burgess' drug store, where they got 20 cents. When the burglars entered Tanner's drug store they found the night man present and made a quick getaway.

Mr. Amys is confident that he can identify the criminals.

TEUTON TROOPS FLEE IN DISORDER

Russians Broke Through Wire Entanglements Before Advanced Posts.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PETROGRAD, Dec. 20. — Russian troops operating in the region of the River Bystritza, in Galicia, says a Russian official statement today, broke through the barbed wire entanglements in front of the Austro-German advance posts yesterday and penetrated into Bohorodczany Stare, southwest of Stanislau. The Teutons are said to have fled in disorder, leaving some prisoners.

TEUTONS REPULSED ON DANUBE.

PETROGRAD, Dec. 20. — Fighting has been in progress on the west bank of the Danube, nearly opposite Kirsova, in Dobrudja, between Russian and Teutonic forces, the war office announced today. Attacks on the Russian lines were repulsed. Outpost engagements of considerable violence have also taken place on the Dobrudja side of the Danube.

RAIN AND FOG IN MACEDONIA

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, Dec. 20. — The French official communication on the Macedonian front, given out this afternoon, says there is nothing to report other than some patrol fighting on the Macedonian front, where rains and fog continue.

PARIS, Dec. 20. — Official Statement: "There was nothing to report last night other than heavy artillery exchanges in the region of Louvemont and Chambrettes."

HOLD IMPERIAL CONFERENCE

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Dec. 20. — At a meeting of the Empire Parliamentary Association today, Walter Hume Long, secretary of state for the colonies, said the time of holding the Imperial Conference mentioned by the Premier in his speech yesterday depended on the overseas dominions. Their premiers were engaged in work as strenuous and anxious and as important as that of the Home Government.

BRITISH BOMBARD ON WEST FRONT

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

BERLIN, Dec. 20. — The war office says on the Western front on the Somme and Aisne, in the Champagne and on the east bank of the Meuse in isolated sectors, there were at times strong artillery bombardments and artillery activity.

In Roumania on Von Mackensen's front there is nothing new. There were no important developments on the eastern front. In Macedonia artillery was more active at some places.

ENEMY TROOPS DISPERSED

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

ROME, Dec. 20. — In the Arsa Valley our artillery fire dispersed enemy detachments and silenced enemy batteries, says today's report from the war office. In the Upper Astico Valley and on the Asiago Plateau activity of artillery on both sides was marked.

On the Carso the enemy's artillery was rather more active against our advanced positions. Our batteries dispersed enemy troops on the march while our infantry drove off an enemy force which was attempting to advance.

OFFICIAL SEARCHLIGHT IS TURNED ON FIRE IN QUAKER OATS PLANT

Provincial Fire Marshal Heaton Begins Investigation to Ascertain the Cause---Supt. Denham on Stand Gives Detailed Information Bearing Upon Tragedy.

Mr. W. H. Denham, superintendent of the Quaker Oats Company, explained the probable origin of the fire which destroyed the plant, when he was sworn as a witness in the investigation which began this morning before Provincial Fire Marshal E. H. Heaton. The only definite information which he has on the subject was obtained from the foreman of the oat meal mill, William Walsh, who is now in the ohspital and too ill to give a very coherent account. Mr. Walsh, it seems, stopped the grinder, and, raising the cover, discovered the fire. Then came the explosion.

Mr. Denham stated that there were several ways in which the fire could have started. The rule against smoking was always rigidly enforced, but it is likely that a small stone or metallic substance passing through the grinder caused the fire. Such accidents have happened before and there have been explosions, but none at all serious before the tragedy of last week.

There was a fire in the plant three weeks before it was destroyed, but the sprinkler system and the fire extinguishers of the company were sufficient to cope with it. The explosion of last week not only put these preventatives out of commission, but injured the city water main.

Without a fire there was no danger of explosion. Every precaution against fire was taken. The boiler, too, was regularly inspected and the automatic sprinklers and the extinguishers were carefully looked after and reported upon every week.

An Array of Witnesses

Seated on the platform of the Police Court with Fire Marshal Heaton when the investigation opened this morning were Mr. James S. Costigan, B.A.Sc., vice-president of the T. Pringle Company, hydraulic engineer and mill architects of Montreal and Toronto. He is here to watch the case on behalf of the Government. A. H. Dickey, deputy provincial fire marshal, was also on hand. There was an array of legal talent around the lawyers' table. Crown Attorney Hatton conducted the case. A. E. Peck and F. D. Kerr appeared on behalf of the company and E. H. D. Hall for the Utilities Commission. Chief Howard, in full dress uniform, acted as court crier. Miss A. M. Dunde was the official stenographer. Superintendent Denham was accompanied by his two chief aides, Assistant Superintendent Geo. Edwards and Engineer Kirn. The lobby was filled with former employes who expect to be called as witnesses. The novelty of the proceedings lies in the fact that it is the first investigation of the kind ever held here.

Object of Investigation

When the court had been called to order by a stentorian mandate from Chief Howard, Fire Marshal Heaton explained that the object of the investigation was solely to find out the cause of the catastrophe. It was neither a persecution nor a prosecution, nor yet was it a trial. Evidence and information will be received from any person in a position to give it. While the investigation will be conducted with due expedition, it will be adjourned from time to time to suit the convenience of those interested.

"We can," said Mr. Heaton, "only express regret and sympathy for those who have been bereaved and for those still in suspense. The sympathy of the public will also go to the company and no attempt will be made to impugn any motives."

A History of the Company

When Mr. Denham was sworn he gave a history of the company since it began business in this city in 1902. The headquarters are in Chicago, and there are branches in Arkan, Ohio; Fort Dodge, Iowa; Morris, Ill.; Richford, t.; and other American cities, and in Saskatoon, Sask. The capacity of the rolled oats mill had not been increased, but that of the flour mill, established about 12 years ago, had been gradually raised from 500 to 1,800 barrels a day.

All the buildings in this city had been constructed according to plans and specifications prepared by the company's chief engineer at the headquarters in Chicago. Mr. Denham has been connected with the company for 23 years, twelve of which have been spent as chief executive in this city.

Mr. Denham has no information as to the companies that carried the insurance, as that was arranged at headquarters. He believes, however, that the total amount on the destroyed plant was $1,200,000.

Plans of the Dry House

A blue print of the dry house, the first scene of the fire, was then gone over in detail, from basement to the top floor. The men in charge of this department at the time were William Walsh, foreman of the oatmeal mill, and Thomas Grant, foreman of the shipping department. C. Fife was the company's electrician. Fred Mesley and R. Allan looked after the fire protection. Alex. Miller in the ordinary course of his duty would have made the weekly fire inspection. Owing to the death of his wife he was not at work and the inspection had been made by Mr. Mesley.

Mr. Denham's first notice of the fire came to him as he sat in his office about 10 o'clock on the fateful day. He felt a shock and this was followed by a roar. He started out in the direcion of the sound and saw the fire bursting out of the dry house. The explosion put the company's fire fighting apparatus out of business and reduced the pressure of the city main.

At the conclusion of Mr. Denham's evidence the investigation was adjourned until 2 o'clock.

Water Superintendent Called

Upon the court reopening this afternoon Ross L. Dobbin, superintendent of water department, Peterborough Utilities Commission was called. The first alarm received was the explosion. He noticed the indicator on the gauge at the office had dropped considerably. It was as low as 45 lbs. Later it went back to normal—70 lbs. This caused him considerable worry for a time, and he called up the pump house and found that no alarm of fire had been sent in. An alarm was sent in a short time after. He then went to the Quaker Oats plant and shut off the sprinkler connections from Hunter Street at Bridge Street. This was done to improve the pressure. He knew when he got on the scene that one of their mains to the sprinkler system had been broken off by the fall of the last wall. He also shut off the connection on Quaker Street. Mr. Denham and Fire Chief Howard advised leaving the sprinkler system on the west building.

Later on he tried to shut off the last connection right opposite the building that collapsed, but could not locate the valve owing to construction work interfering with the marks. When he could not locate this he went back to Hunter Street and shut the main off on Hunter Street, then went to the back of the Court House and shut off the other end of the main. This left Quaker Street "dead" and pressure at once went up. He had given the men at the pumping station orders to run the pressure up to 100 lbs., and later to 120 lbs..

Superintendent Dobbin a report to the Peterborough Utilities Commission was read, showing that the guages registered the following pressures: —

Time	Pump house pounds	Office pounds
10.00	75	60
10.15	70	68
10.31	95	68
10.45	98	68
11.00	110	65
11.15	120	97
11.30	120	102
11.45	120	102
12.00	120	110

In reply as to maximum pressure obtainable, Mr. Dobbin replied 130 lbs., but this was dangerous to the plumbing on the mains. The plant is a direct one and can handle 16,000,000 gallons per day. He had worked on construction work of a water plant at Woodstock for three years and had been two and a half years in Peterborough as superintendent.

The underwriters require sufficient pressure to supply twenty streams at Hunter and George Streets, and there were seventeen going at the Quaker Oats fire, in addition to other supplies. It was not necessary to use the steam plant as the hydraulic pumps were capable of doing the work. In reply to a question by Mr. Heaton, Mr. Dobbin could not state the exact time that he shut the sprinkler mains off on Hunter St.

Fred Roy identified several photographs taken by him during the day of the fire, and fixing the time each photograph was taken.

Fire Marshal Heaton stated he had never seen so many photographs or so fine a set showing in detail the progress of the fire.

Fire Chief Called

W. A. Howard, chief of the fire department here for nine years, was the next witness. He arrived at the scene of the fire shortly ahead of the fire department. He had made his plans in case of fire at this plant and was ready to give orders. On the east side of the building the evidence of an explosion was shown by the walls bulging out on the dry room. The first work with the ladder company was to get some people out of the building. Two hose wagons were used. The engine was also got out in consequence of pressure being

KEEP THE HOME FIRES BURNING.

"Keep the home fires burning" is the text of a song that is sung beside every camp fire throughout Canada or wherever our splendid men are gathered together to assist in upholding the traditions of the British Empire. We believe that the Peterborough Health Association is, in some small degree, assisting in carying out this request. Our nurses and our supplies are at the service of those needing them, free if necessary, or at such remuneration as may meet the necessities of the patient.

We trust that our citizens will show their interest by assisting in making the reception at the Empress Hotel on Friday, Dec. 29, a complete success.—Peterborough Health Association.

GIFT OF GOLD FOR REV. DOUGALD AND MRS. BROWN

Santa Claus at the Park Street Church.

Santa Claus paid several visits last night. At the Park Street Baptist Church, where a Christmas entertainment was held, three presentations were made by the congregation. The pastor, Rev. Dougald Brown, and Mrs. Brown, were presented with a purse of six $10 gold pieces and an illuminated address; the organist, Mr. A. Nichols, received $10 in gold; and Mr. Barrie, who has given long and faithful service in connection with the dispensation of communion at the church, received $5 in gold.

Mr. F. A. D. Fry, Sunday School superintendent, was chairman, and the presentations were made by Mr. H. Goodwin, clerk of the church, and Mr. O. S. Matchett, the secretary.

It was a happy evening for everybody. The congregation feel that they owe much to Mr. and Mrs. Brown for the good work accomplished in the compartively short time they have been in Peterborough. Rev. Mr. Brown came to the church highly recommended as a pastor and church leader, and the progress made by the church is a tribute to his worth and the assistance given by his estimable wife.

At Knox Church

At Knox Church lecture hall the annual tea and entertainment for the younger children was held amidst great jubilations. Santa Claus, in the person of Mr. H. J. McCannan, distributed from his pack many good things, to the great delight of the youngsters. A program of songs, readings and recitations was given by the scholars, under the direction of Miss Margaret McDonald.

At Trinity Church

The annual Sunday School entertainment for the scholars of Trinity Church Sunday School was held in the Reid Street hall. Here, also, Santa Claus arrived and distributed gifts to the scholars. The Christmas visitor was no other than Fire Chief Howard.

THE REVIEW AND PROHIBITION.

EVER SINCE the agitation for a dry Ontario, during war-time at least, was started, The Review has championed the cause of the temperance forces. It was not slow to recognize that the move was made by the people generally and that no politcal clique was behind it for its own profit. When the Committee of One Hundred first organized, the only hope of the members was that the Government would submit the question to a popular vote. The people could not be brought to believe that Premier Hearst would assume the responsibility of passing a prohibitory law unless a majority of the people declared for it, not by signing a petition, but by recording their votes.

The Review was the first Conservative newspaper in the province to come out in favor of a plebiscite, and this fact was duly noted at the time by our contemporaries all over Ontario. This paper lost at the time more material advantages than any it has gained in any way since that time. As far back as November 23, 1915, The Review declared itself in a lengthy editorial, the closing paragraph of which was as follows:

> When the people of Ontario, by a plebiscite vote, declare for prohibition, there is nothing left for any legislature that may be in power at the time but to give the mandate effect with all legal expedition. We believe this, both because it would be good politics to do so and because a somewhat long experience has not led us to assume, as so many insinuate, that governments are altogether without a sense of honor.

When the local committee of temperance workers got down to regular work The Review published their activities in detail. On January 17 of this year a report a column in extent gave an account of a meeting held at the Y. M. C. A. on a Sunday afternoon, when addresses were made by Mr. J. W. Flavelle and others prominent in the cause. In an editorial in the same issue The Review said in part:

> There is no suspicion of political partisanship in the temperance activities in Peterborough in the movement to make Ontario a prohibition province by July 1st next. It is a sane effort in the interests of the cause. No professional politician appears in it. The campaign follows in the wake of no creed or sect, the temperance wagon is hitched to the rear of no party platform.

The same editorial contained the following:

> While the campaign for a dry Ontario has everything to commend it, the same can hardly be said for the proposition to ask the Federal Government to pass a nation-wide prohibitory law. This request will in a few days be laid before the Dominion Parliament. It will open up the whole question of Dominion rights, and the claim will in all probability be re-asserted that the liquor question is one that belongs to the various provinces.

The Review was right in this forecast. Minister of Justice Doherty explained clearly to the temperance forces that the Dominin had no right to arrogate the functions of the provinces. Parliament went as far as the Constitution permitted it to go when authority was given the provinces to stop the importations of liquor by making its use illegal in the home. If that was good law a year ago it is good law today.

A few days after the publication of the above editorial, Mr. G. A. Warburton, chairman of the Committee of One Hundred, wrote The Review as follows:

> Editor Review: Will you allow me to thank you most sincerely for your very temperate and helpful editorial that appeared in your issue on Monday, January 17th, and which I have just had the privilege of reading.
>
> Your action will help other papers to take a decided stand in favor of this movement, and we appreciate your co-operation very much indeed.
> G. A. Warburton.

During the campaign that preceded the enactment of the Ontario Temperance Act a local contemporary never raised its editorial voice to endorse the movement. With characteristic caution it waited the course of events, the signal from its party. In the meantime it published the paid advertisements of the liquor party which contained arguments intended to defeat the movement. The Review did not publish these articles. Now our contemporary makes an unseemly parade of its virtue even before it has become accustomed either to its seat in the ashes or its mantle of sackcloth. That newspaper never assumed a risk as did The Review or the Ontario Government, which for its bold action has already lost two supporters in the Legislature, the only bye-elections held since the passing of the Act going against the Administration by heavy majorities.

Ministerial Associations all over the country are adopting resolutions protesting against the publication of liquor advertisements by the newspapers. The ministers in London have decided to ask the Legislature to make it a misdemeanor for any paper to publish such matter.

With all due respect for the members of the clerical profession, it seems to us that they have laid hold of the wrong horn of the dilemma. The importation of liquor into Ontario is still a licensed and therefore a legal business. It can be made illegal by the Legislature. It strikes us that ministerial associations would serve the cause better by concentrating their energies upon having this particular business outlawed rather than another. It is possible to make Ontario dry in very truth. Stopping the advertising will not, however, keep liquor out of the province. About all such a move would accomplish would be to promote the circulation of Quebec newspapers here.

TRY THE ICE on the river if you like, but remember it is only when it is strong enough to bear your weight that nothing happens.

IT IS IN THE AIR.

THE TRUE OLD-TIME spirit of Christmas seems to be in the air these days. The Quaker Oats Company has been munificent in dealing with its employes, not only those who were injured but those who have been thrown out of employment by the burning of the plant. There is no longer a place in this world for the aphorism that corporations have neither hearts nor souls. The aid that the company has given the victims was entirely voluntary. There was no legal claim upon them for any damages. The Workmen's Compensation Act absolved them from all responsibility. They had discharged their full duty under the law when they paid into the Government fund their allotted share to provide for those who might be injured in their employ and to pension the families of those who lost their lives while on duty. There is no benevolence like that which is inspired by altruism.

The jurors selected to look into the tragedy that attended the fire have generously donated their fees to help defray the expenses of a Christmas entertainment for the lonely wives and children of the soldiers overseas. It was like M. J. Maher to propose such a plan, to which his fellow-jurors heartily agreed. This old world is certainly getting better, and it is coporations like the Quaker Oats and citizens like Mr. Maher and the rest of the coroner's jury who are helping to improve it and to infuse the proper spirit of goodwill into the Christmas season.

WHAT IS PATRIOTISM?

IS IT TRUE repentance to change the mode of life for the better after the apple has been eaten and the flaming sword prevents a return to the scene of former sins?

Is it patriotism to attempt to defeat the will of the people when nearly ninety per cent. of them join in a petition asking the Legislature for a reform?

When the campaign was on for a dry Ontario the cautious and mercenary publication on George street took no chances. It did not commit itself in favor of prohibition until assured that it was to be put in force. Its hope was to see the Government forced into a bole. It did, however, publish as paid matter the arguments used by the liquor party against provincial prohibition. Having done all the harm it could to the cause, it professes to espouse it now.

When the enactment of prohibition became a certainty The Examiner made its last bid for the favor of the liquor party when it advocated compensation for the dealers. There were plenty of good temperance people who favored such a measure, but that is not the point. The Examiner was opposed to the idea of compensation when its own political party was making a football of a compromise temperance measure.

Our contemporary has eaten the forbidden fruit until scarcely a core remains, and the gates of Eden have been closed against it. Adam and Eve, finding themselves in like circumstances, probably professed repentance, too.

THE FARMERS AND THE WAR.

MR. H. GROSE, who has been lecturing this week to the farmers at the meetings of the West Peterborough Agricultural Board, never makes an address without appealing to his hearers to do their bit to help the war to a successful conclusion. If they cannot fight they should pay or produce.

If there is one class in the community who should contribute generously to the various patriotic funds it is the farmer. As a rule he has done so. The tax imposed upon his holdings does not represent all he has done. Every county in Ontario has its Patriotic Fund, to which the farming class are among the most generous contributors.

The war has raised the price of almost everything the farmer has to sell. It has opened a new market for his horses. It has almost doubled the price of his wheat. Even allowing that owing to the increased price of labor the expense of producing a bushel of wheat has been increased, the war means a profit of at least twenty cents on every bushel. The British navy has made it possible for the farmer to send his grain and his other produce to Europe to feed the armies of the Allies. This is a protection which the farmer should appreciate and recall every time he is asked for a war subscription.

The farmer brings a load of live hogs to market, sells them for $11.75, and receives his pay in paper. There is a scarcity of gold in the country. If he takes that paper to a bank and attempts to change it for gold coin the chances are that he will be refused. Does the farmer ever pause to think what would happen to him if the Germans should triumph and overrun this country

He can in the light of past events read his own probable fate. He knows what heavy financial toll the Huns levied upon the people of Belgium as a war indemnity. They practically took all the money in sight. When they got possession of the capital of Roumania they levied a tax of $400 on every head of the population.

How do the Germans deal with the farmers in a conquered territory? How did they deal with the agriculturists of Alsace and Lorraine when those provinces were taken over after the Franco-Prussian war in 1870? They exacted tribute to the tune of seventy-two per cent. on the value of every farm and set that value themselves. This amounted to confiscation of the farmers' lands. They would do the same in Canada if they ever got a footing in this country.

The farmer is vitally interested in the outcome of the war. The paper money which he holds today will be as worthless as the note of a bankrupt if the Germans triumph. The farmer will feel the burdens of the war less if he realises what he has at stake.

CABINET CHANGES AT TORONTO

W. D. McPHERSON, M.L.A.,
For Toronto North-west, who succeeds Hon. W. J. Hanna as provincial secretary for Ontario

Two Cabinet changes of far-reaching importance were announced by Premier Hearst Tuesday afternoon. The first is that the Premier himself will take over the portfolio of Agriculture rendered vacant by the death of Hon. Jas. S. Duff; the second that Hon. W. J. Hanna has resigned as Provincial Secretary through pressure on private business, and W. D. McPherson, member for North-west Toronto, has been appointed as head of this department.

In taking personal charge of the Department of Agriculture the Premier recognizes its importance in view of the conditions produced by the war, and it is essential that every section of the community bend every effort to assist not only in placing men in the field, but in maintaining production at home and encouraging thrift so that the maximum of energy may be applied to the task before the Empire. Special study will be paid to the problem of placing as many returned soldiers as possible on the land, and this work will be assigned to Professor Creelman of the Ontario Agricultural College, who will be made Commissioner of Agriculture, with the assistance of such other experts as may be necessary. It is also the intention to co-ordinate the work that has been carried on under the Provincial Secretary's Department and the Department of Lands and Forests and making this available for the whole Province.

Hon. W. J. Hanna leaves his Department with a splendid record of achievement in connection with prison reform and the care of the feeble-minded, and the new Minister will bring with him a capacity for public service demonstrated as chairman of the Soldiers' Aid Commission.

Mr. Hanna has introduced in Ontario a system of prison reform that is being investigated and adopted by penologists all over the world. He has always been regarded as one of the outstanding figures not only in the Ontario Cabinet but in the public life of Canada and the country's misfortune is that it is about to lose his invaluable services.

PEACE ASSURED IN NINETY DAYS IS PRIVATE ADVICE TO NEW YORK

Belief that within ninety days peace will be well on the way was expressed last night by Leopold Zimmerman, head of the firm of Zimmerman & Forshay, of New York, which has acted as local representatives of large German financial institutions.

He bases his belief on advices from reliable institutions in Germany. Among rulers and diplomats in Europe the end of the war is regarded as a realization, he said.

Broker's Statement

Mr. Zimmerman's statement follows:—

"The activities of the firm of Zimmermann & Forshay with reference to the sale of German and Austrian bonds and time exchange, since Germany's attitude on peace was announced recently, have resulted in much speculations among those in this country and abroad whose commercial interests are immediately dependent upon the end of the war.

"Leopold Zimmercan, head of the firm and personal representative in this country of German governmental financial institutions, was asked whether there was any special significance in the offer of his firm, known to have been made in the past few days, to large American importers to sell them German and Austrian exchange at present prices, payable ninety days after date at the Deutscher Bank, Berlin, or at the Wiener Bankvere in Vienna.

"It was pointed out that it is the first time since the commencement of the war that time bills of exchange on either Germnay or Austria have been offered inthe American market and Mr. Zimmercan was asked whether he was acting in co-operation with the Central Powers and whether the transactions proposed reflected the view of the latter that the war would be over in ninety days.

Most Delicate Phase Passed

"Mr. Zimmerman replied to the question by saying that the most delicate phase of the movement to end the war has been passed. The ice has been broken and it but remains for the excitement of the situation to wear off so that the conservative element may prevail.

"It may be stated realiably that in well informed quarters among the rulers and diplomats abroad the end of the war is regarded as a realization dependent only upon terms of adjustment which can and will be agreed upon. In well informed circles where leaders of European commerce prevail preparations are already in the making in anticipation of an early peace.

"I think that by the end of ninety days the belligerents will be well on the way to agreement as to the terms of a lasting peace. I have every reason to believe that in places of highest authority commercial activities are being encouraged with this view in mind."

Acknowledgment By Employes of Quaker Oats Co.

OF GENEROUS TREATMENT GIVEN THEM BY THE COMPANY.

JOIN IN REGRETTING LOSS OF LIFE AND PROPERTY.

The employes of the package department of the Quaker Oats Company have addressed the following letter to W. H. Denham, superintendent of the company:—

Dear Sir: We, the undersigned employees of the package department, wish to place on record to you, first, our sincere regret at the appalling loss of life to some of our fellow-employees, and also the great loss we have all sustained in the loss by fire of the company's plant here at Peterborough. We regret it, when we consider the enoromus trade the company had worked up here in Peterborough. Then again, we regret it from our own viewpoint when we remember the feelings of fellowship that existed between us as workers, to be so rudely broken up just one week ago. Then when we saw the announcement in the press of the company's spontaneous generosity to all the employes, it brought home more clearly than ever how great our loss had been, and we take this means of thanking you personally, Mr. Denham, for your kind consideration of us, when we realize how heavy your responsibilities are just at this time; and we also thank the company which you represent in this city, for their kind and generous gift to us of the full month's wages.

Trusting it will not be long before the company will again have their buildings erected on the old site and we shall be able to demonstrate our appreciation in a closer application to duty, and thanking you once again, we remain — Employees of the Package Department. very low, which lasted for twenty-five minutes. After that time he had an abundance of pressure—all the men could handle—without the aid of the engine. It was kept there for several hours at the request of Mayor Duffus and Mr. Denham. There were 17 streams used and during the low pressure period the fire gained rapidly, the water turning into steam before reaching the flames. He had turned his attention to saving adjoining building and was successful in all but one building—the Court House. The lack of sufficient hose was also a factor. There were sixteen men on duty at the department at the time. The police, Quaker Oats employees and ex-firemen volunteered and he had upwards of 100 men engaged. The Lindsay Brigade also assisted and were stationed at the fire hall and made two calls. With all his help he was taxed to the limit. It was only once in a lifetime that such a fire would occur in a place of twenty or twenty-five thousand. He had no knowledge of the origin of the fire. He had no calls to the Quaker Oats plant in 1916. He had had one in 1915. It was in the basement of what was known as the dry house. It was only a small fire. He did not recall the cause, but it was on record at his office. The explosion in the recent fire had driven fire in all directions through the building.

Smoke was very strong, showing evidence of fire. The alarm was sent in at 10.15, and a record is kept automatically both at the fire station and in the telephone office, and in addition on the morning of the fire the drop in pressure would indicate the time was right.

Real CHRISTMAS Music

Let These Artists Sing in Your Home

SUPPOSE Thomas Chalmers came to your house Christmas Eve and sang "O Holy Night." It would be a treat, wouldn't it? And suppose while you were all enjoying Christmas dinner, a famous choir sang carols outside your window—and then in the evening as you settled down by the fireside, Carl Flesch and Marie Rappold and Spalding and Christine Miller all came in and gave you their best music—wouldn't it be a Christmas to remember?

THOMAS CHALMERS
Famous baritone of the Boston Opera, singing in direct comparison with the New Edison, a test that has been made before, and astounded, thousands.

Do you know that the music these artists render is reproduced so perfectly on that you cannot tell which is the human rendering and which the Edison Re-creation? That sounds like an extravagant statement, doesn't it? But it has been proven in public. It is a fact. The New York Globe refers to the instrument as "The Phonograph with a Soul," after having heard the Edison and the living artist sing together for comparison.

The NEW EDISON

CHRISTINE MILLER
The great concert contralto.
Miss Miller sang in Detroit in direct comparison with her voice re-created by the New Edison. The Detroit Free Press summed up, "It was not possible to distinguish one from the other."

There will be Joy in Your Home

Will there be Real Music in your home at Christmas? Edison has made it possible. It is for you to take advantage of his genius. Come to our store and hear the re-created voices of the great artists and the music of violin, 'cello, flute, harp and piano. We ask only that you come and listen. A visit implies no obligation to buy.

VICTIM IDENTIFIED BY CORONER'S JURY

Jury Make Cheques Payable to F. H. Dobbin to Help in Entertainment for Families of the Soldiers.

We, the jury sworn to inquire into the death of Walter Thomas Holden, believe from the evidence submitted that the deceased came to his death on December 11 in the City of Peterborough from shock, as the result of burns received while at his work in the Quaker Oats Building

This was the verdict of the jury summoned by Coroner Greer to inquire into the death of Walter Thomas Holden, the first of the injured men to die as a result of the fire at the Quaker Oats Co.

The jury were Messrs. T. Barrie (foreman), W. Menzies, R. J. Kidd, L. Dobbin, J. W. McDermid, H. Routley, Jos. Stewart, R. Turner, M. J. Maher, T. Irwin, J. M. White, W. H. Meredith

Coroner Greer, in opening the inquest, told the jury that all that they would have to do was to identify the body and ascertain how, when and where the deceased came to his death. They would not inquire into the origin of the fire as a special inquiry by the Fire Marshal would take that responsibility.

Helped Carry Holden

Thomas McMahon was the first witness. He worked in the boiler room of the Quaker Oats Co., but had been in the packing room when the explosion took place. About twenty minutes later he had helped to carry an injured man from the ruins. He knew Holden personally and knew that he worked in the feed room. He could not identify the body carried out as Holden owing to the burns, but after it had been taken away in the hose wagon someone had said it was Holden.

Alfred Mesley was working in the packing room and had helped to place what he afterwards learned was Holden's body on the hose truck. He had remembered that the deceased had a deformed arm and the thought came to him later that the injured man's arm had been crooked.

Herbert Johnston, a fireman who drove the hose cart, remembered that a body was placed on it and later removed to an auto. The man was suffering great pain, judging from his moans. He did not know Holden.

Told the Doctor

Dr. Morgan, who treated Holden at the Nicholls Hospital, stated tht when he went into the ward to see the injured man it was evident that the burns were serious and likely to cause death. The deceased was able to talk and had told the witness his name and stated that he lived on Euclid Avenue. Dr. Morgan had attended different members of the Holden family so he notified them and Holden's wife, sister and brother-in-law were with him until death. It was impossible for Mrs. Holden to identify the deceased except by his conversation.

Coroner Greer: Did the deceased make any statement?

Dr. Morgan: No; but he had asked what happened. The patient was partly delirious. He was in great pain and knew he was going to die and had asked to be given chloroform to end his misery. He had later seen Holden's body at the family residence.

W. H. Denham, superintendent of the company, did not know Holden, butp rabably knew him by sight. He produced a copy of the payroll sheet showing that the deceased had checked in for work on the morning of the disaster.

Roland Hunter, the company's custom clerk, did not know the deceased but did know that he worked in the dry room as sweeper.

This concluded the evidence and after a short instruction by the coroner the jury retired.

Generous Gift

After Coroner Greer had discharged the jury he informed them that they were entitled to $2 each from the city for services. It was moved by M. J. Maher, seconded by Reginald Turner, that the coroner be requested to make the order payable to Mr. F. H. Dobbin and the money devoted to the Christmas entertainment of the wives and children of soldiers overseas.

Col. John Stanfield, M.P., Conservative whip, and his brother Frank, a member of the N.S. Legislature, have resigned their seats because of differences with Hon. Frank Cochrane.

Already 1,600 hospital beds have been secured in various centres for the Canadian sick and wounded, who number nearly 20,000, in England, and who will be brought home to Canada.

SKY-HIGH PRICES FOR TURKEYS, GEESE AND EGGS

One Farmer's Better Half Said She'd Take Goose Home Again if She Did Not Get Her Price.

It was a wise or unwise person who visited the Peterborough market this morning with the intention of buying his or her Christmas dinner. The prices asked for fowl were such as would startle the economy of a millionaire. The best-looking young turkey on the market weighed 21 lbs., and the farmer's wife asked $7.50 for it without a semblance of a blush. Another had two fair birds and asked 38c per lb for them. She threatened to take them home and eat them unless she got her price. There were several loads on the outside market and a man driving along with a load of lumber got off his wagon and when he was asked 37c a lb. for a turkey he remarked. "Take the load of lumber."

Geese without feathers or wings were flying high. One lady was asking 25c per lb. for a common goose. The average price was 22c.

Ducks were few and far between and sold at 90c to $1.25 each.

Chickens were sold from 90c to $1.25 each for real good ones, while the common barn yard fowl brought 90c to $1.50 per pair.

Butter was easier; 45c was general and some sold as low as 43c.

Eggs were like gold nuggets and sold at 60c to 70c per doz., and very few were offered. One farmer's better half remarked that indeed, they were worth it. She had 80 hens and only got 24 eggs in two weeks.

There was little change in the other produce.

Hogs remain unchanged at $11.75 for selects.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

ANOTHER SHIPMENT TO THE TRENCHES.

Kitchener League Send Gifts Valued at $115.

The Canadian Kitchener League have sent forward another shipment to the trenches. The boxes contained 137 pairs socks, cake, candy, tobacco, lead pencils and literature, valued at $115. These were sent to the following addresses: Cecil Bennett, 20th Bat. (93rd), France; Norman Saxby, 21st Bat. (93rd), France; Lieut. Meredith Huycke, 2nd Howitzer Battery, France.

The league wishes to thank everyone who donated or helped in any way to gil these boxes for the boys.

Every letter from the boys in the trenches calls for socks. Although there are a great many pairs of socks going forward, we do not seem to be able to meet the demand. The call comes to everyone who can knit to get busy. The Canadian Kitchener League have lots of yarn and will gladly give it to anyone who will sacrifice a little time and help to make our boys a little more comfortable in the trenches.

PTE. J. B. COPP IS SERIOUSLY ILL

93RD BANDSMEN HELD UP BY DERAILMENT OF TRAIN.

The casualty list gives the name of Pte. J. B. Copp of Havelock, who is seriously ill. Pte. Cop went overseas with the 93rd Battalion. Lieut. Fred Hubbs is officially reported arrived in Switzerland for interment.

The members of the 93rd band, homeward bound from Halifax, arrived at Quebec yesterday, after having been delayed on the trip west because of a train derailment.

The Review has received a handsome Christmas greeting card from Capt. Vivian Lancaster of Peterborough, now overseas with the 109th (Lindsay) Battalion.

Some time ago an order was sent out from Ottawa prohibiting the wearing of khaki by civilians. From Winnipeg comes the announcement that military headquarters there have ordered that civilians wearing uniforms which even resemble those adopted by the military are to be fined $50 or sentenced to three months in jail. The order was sent out from Ottawa for the purpose of putting a stop to hundreds of parents dressing their children as soldiers.

It is believed theP remier and the Chief Secretary for Ireland are inclined to this course The Irish conference committee in Dublin has sent out a circular to County Councils and other Irish public bodies, asking opinions as to the desirability of holding a conference to solve the existing political differences. The conference committee believes there is more widespread desire in Ireland than ever to settle these differences.

QUAKER OATS COMPANY TOOK EVERY PRECAUTION TO GUARD AGAINST FIRE

$25,000 Paid Out in Wages

Last night the employees of the Quaker Oats Co. were handed cheques equivalent to the pay they would have drawn up to the end of the year, had work continued, including the first two weeks of the month.

Nearly 500 employees benefitted and the amount disbursed is said to be in the neighborhood of $25,000.

Many homes in the city will enjoy a happy Christmas through the generosity of the company.

Magnetic and Pneumatic Separator Used to Take Metallic Substances From Grain Before it Entered Grinder---Fire Exits Were Ample---Investigation by Provincial Fire Marshall Heaton Adjourned Subject to Call.

The investigation into the Quaker Oats fire conducted by Provincial Fire Marshal Heaton, has been adjourned subject to call. When he made this announcement at the close of today's session, Mr. Heaton stated that it would be useless to call any more witnesses at the present as any testimony submitted would be merely a repetition of that already given The men who are now in the hospital have, probably, first-hand knowledge of the fire as they were in the thick of the disaster. When they recover sufficiently they will be called as witnesses. All who have any information to impart are asked to submit it when the investigation is resumed.

No Light So Far

The investigation so far has failed to throw any light on the disaster. The public are as much in the dark with regard to the cause as ever. None of the witnesses examined were in the room where the trouble started and no witness has been found who can suggest an explanation that has not been already volunteered.

Every Precaution Taken

From the first it has been understood that there was always danger of a dust explosion in the Quaker Oats plant, in common with all other cereal mills. Without fire, however, there was no fear of an explosion and fire was most likely to originate in the grinders owing to metallic substances or stones getting into the grain.

The company took every possible precaution against this danger. Magnets were installed throughout the plant to remove fragments of metal from the grain, as Mr. Robert Stuart, the company's inspector, testified today. This evidence was supplemented by Assistant Superintendent Kinn who stated that in addition to the magnets a pneumatic separator had been in use for the past eight years. This machine, the most up-to-date for the purpose, removes such small objects as pins and tacks from the grain.

The Witnesses Today

The witnesses examined this morning were Mrs. Annie Hopcroft, whose husband worked in the mill and who witnessed the outbreak of the fire from her home on Driscoll Terrace; John James Cunningham, the checker of the daily output; John Parkenham, millwright; Robert Stuart, inspector; Alex. Reid, the well-known expressman, who was delivering a grip at Mrs. Hopcroft's home when the fire broke out; and Thomas E. McMahon, steam pipe fitter.

Chief Howard was recalled, and submitted a list of the fire alarms sent in from the Quaker Oats plant since June 21, 1909. These were as follows:—

June 21, 1909, caused by children and matches; no damage.

Oct. 16, 1911—Cause, spark from machine; damage, $50.

July 30, 1912—Cause, Short circuit in power house; damage, $500.

Sept. 20, 1912—Cause unknown; damage, none.

May 14, 1914—Grass fire; damage, none.

June 10, 1914—Fire in sawdust pile; damage, none.

July 17, 1914—Fire in sawdust pile; damage, none.

July 22, 1914— Fire in sawdust pile; damage, none.

July 28, 1914 —Fire in sawdust pile; damage, none.

It will be noted that of the nine calls five were for fires outside the premises, and that the total damage for seven and a half years amounted to only $550, until the plant was wiped out entirely.

Referring to the part of the building that blew up at 5.45 on the evening of the fire, sending sparks in showers all over the city, Mr. Heaton asked Chief Howard:—

'Did you notice anything peculiar about that building, and did it develop a greater amount of heat than any other part?"

"I noticed a tremendous heat and there was a terrific explosion," said the chief. "The entire building collapsed.'

"Would that explosion be caused in the case of a large fire by confined air?"

"By that and the presence of some other substance of which we have no knowledge."

More Credit for the Company

It was brought out in the evidence today that there were about 225 girls employed in the plant. These were seated while at work. The fire exits and escapes were so complete that the entire numbr got out of the building promptly and without injury. If any suffered, it was due chiefly to fright.

SESSIONS CONCLUDE

Action for Damages Against City Laid Over.

The County Sessions concluded this morning, when the court disposed of a number of cases.

Judgment was given in the case of Wm. Garnsey and his wife against Mrs. Sampson, J. Beatty, W. J. Hancock and Wm. Wedlock for illegal seizure of goods and chattels under a judgment and chattel mortgage.

Judge Huycke found that the defendants had made illegal seizures and awarded damages to Garnsey in the sum of $150, which is to be set off against the money he owes under the chattel mortgage; to Mrs. Garnsey, $50; and to Miss Hill $25 for wrongful seizure of property that belonged to her. The court fixed the costs against the defendants Beatty, Hancock and Wedlock and stated that they might hold against Mrs. Sampson, under whose authority the seizures were made. County Court costs were allowed the plaintiffs.

O. A. Langley appeared for the plaintiffs and D. O'Connell for the defendants. A stay of 20 days was granted.

The case of Barrett vs. Heard was adjourned for argument to a date to be fixed, as counsel on both sides were out of town.

Judgment for $505

In the case of Kingdon vs. John H. Vance and J. A. Tedford, consent judgment was given the plaintiff for $505.

Peck, Kerr and McElderry for plaintiff; Hall and Hall for defendants.

REPORT OF M.O.H. TO MONAGHAN HEALTH BOARD

Measles is the only contagious disease reported in the township of Monaghan by Dr. T. N. Greer, Medical Health Office for the township, in his annual report. The outbreak was limited to thirty-five cases reported.

The report to the Board of Health of North Monaghan follows:—

Gentlemen: In submitting my report for 1916, it is gratifying to note that health conditions in the municipality are quite satisfactory at the present time. In the early part of the year measles occurred in epidemic form, spreading, I think, from the city of Peterborough to the township. By the strict measures we adopted to control it, however, the outbreak was limited to 33 cases reported. I would like to point out in this connection that it is now believed the most infective period of measles is at the very beginning, before the rash appears, hence the importance of early recognition and isolation during the pre-eruptive stage. This we were able to do in a few cases, but it could not be systematically caried out in the absence of provision for proper inspection of school children. Arrangements are now under way whereby your Medical Officer of Health will make monthly inspections in co-operation with the teachers, especially at May's School. This should be sufficient to meet ordinary demands, but should an epidemic occur a nurse would have to be engaged to make more frequent inspections and otherwise assist the M.O.H.

On account of the close proximity of Monaghan to the city of Peterborough, the danger to the residents of the township of contracting disease from that source is always present, and the utmost vigilance on the part of your health authorities and of the public, as well must be exercised to guard against it.

In a former report I referred to a serious outbreak of diphtheria which occurred in the township three years ago, and which was traced to a house in the city of Peterborough where no precautions had been taken to prevent the spread of the disease.

It is to b hoped that the sewage disposal plant question will soon be settled to the satisfaction of the township ratepayers and that in the final settlement the interests of every resident in the district affected shall be properly safeguarded, especially in relation to the health of the community. I am glad to know the city has conceded to Monaghan residents the privilege of connecting up with sewers running through the township and I trust the people will take advantage of the opportunity when the time comes.

Except measles, no other cases of contagious diseases have been reported during the year. A few unimportant nuisance cases occurred and were promptly and satisfactorily adjusted.

WILSON'S SUGGESTION TO FOREIGN OFFICE IS UNDER CONSIDERATION

Rights of U.S. Nation Are Becoming Involved.

ON VERGE OF WAR

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Dec. 21—The suggestion of the United States for an exchange of views among the belligerents has been received at the Foreign Office and is under consideration, pending which, no statement will be made.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—Secretary Lansing today explained the sending of President Wilson's note to the belligerents, declaring it was because the situation for neutrals was becoming increasingly critical and the United States itself was being drawn near the verge of war. "It isn't our material interests we had in mind when the note was sent, but more and more our rights are becoming involved by belligerents on both sides."

Mr. Lansing's statement says: "We are drawing nearer the verge of war ourselves and therefore we are entitled to know exactly what each belligerent seeks in order that we may regulate our conduct in the future. No nation has been sounded."

PLUMP CHEQUE IS RECEIVED BY THE CITY

City Tax Collector Green received today a cheque from the Hydro-Electric Commission for $9,123.41, being the amount of taxes due the city for the year 1916. When the Government took over the Peterborough Light and Power Co., the Street Railway, the gas plant and the Seymour power interests, the different municipalities had struck their tax rate for the year.

Mayor Duffus and other representatives of municipalities interested were successful in getting the Government to consent to paying the taxes for this year, but as it is Government property, no taxes will be paid in future.

Government Preparing Measures for Further Control of Liquor Trade---Irish Distilleries for Munitions Work.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Dec. 21.—Newspapers learn that the Government is preparing measures for the further control of the production and sale of alcoholic beverages, which may go as far as absolute prohibition. It is stated that the manufacture and sale of whiskey in Scotland and England will likely be virtually prohibited, and that the Government will take over the Irish distilleries for the manufacture of munitions, but that the retail sale of whiskey from existing stocks will not be affected.

NO DEVELOPMENTS IN MACEDONIA

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, Dec. 21. — On the Macedonian front an official statement says there has been intermittend artillery fighting on the Struma front and in the sector of Majadagh. Exchanges were more violent in the region of Hill 1050. Snow and rains continue on the frug i Macedonia.

FRENCH AIRMEN BOMBARD BEHIND GERMAN LINES

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, Dec. 21. — An official statement this afternoon says there has ben relative calm on the front in France with the exception of aerial activity. Four enemy airplanes have been brought down by French pilots, and French machines have been employed in throwing down explosive bombs behind the German lines.

ITALIANS HAVE SUCCESSES

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

ROME, Dec. 21.—Yesterday artillery and aircraft were more active along the whole front, the weather being fine, says today's announcement of the War Office. On the Trentino front, there were artillery bombardments of particular violence in Adige Valley and on Asia go Plateau enemy aircraft attempted raids over our lines, but in all cases were driven off by anti-aircraft batteries.

On the Julian front, the enemy's artillery was more active in the Plava sector on the middle Isonzo, east of Verterbizza, and against Gorizia and Monfalcone. Our batteries replied effectively and obtained direct hits on the enemy's billts of Gomeno.

Our airplanes dropped bombs on the railway station at Dorimberga in Frigido Vippach Valley and in the enemy lines on the Carso. Notwithstanding the fire of numerous batteries, all our machines returned safely.

VON BISSING SERIOUSLY ILL

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—A news agency cable despatch says General von Bissing, the German Governor of Belgium, is reported seriously ill with pneumonia.

UNVEIL TABLET AT ST. JOHN'S CHURCH TONIGHT

The mural tablet placed in the nave of St. John's Church in memory of Lieut. Gordon Stanley Fife, P. P. C. L. I., who was killed in action on June 2, 1916, will be unveiled tonight at the eight o'clock service, today being the festival of St. Thomas, Apostle and Martyr. The brave soldier was well known here, and an opportunity is offered to show tribute to one who "laid the world away, and poured out the red sweet wine of youth." Citizens are invited to be present.

TWO MORE CANDIDATES IN THE WEST WARD

Two possible candidates for aldermen in the West Ward are Robert Morrison, the well-known carpenter, and Robert Ross, with Richard Hall & Son. Their names will probably be presented by their friends at the nomination tomorrow. The interests of the ward would be safe in the hands of either.

The 118th (North Waterloo) Batt. expect to leave soon after New Year's for the Old Country.

DAN CADIGAN LOSES 17 HEAD OF CATTLE IN LAKE

Mr. Dan Cadigan, of Ennismore, met with a heavy loss on Tuesday, when 17 of his cattle wandered on to the ice on Pigeon Lake, and breaking through the ice, were all drowned. The cattle had been in the habit of going to the lake to drink, a hole having been cut for their accommodation. Tuesday they wandered out on the ice and reached a spot where it was thin.

Mr. Cadigan's loss will be over $500.

PETERBOROUGH, THURSDAY, DECEMBER 21, 1916

THE COUNCIL OF 1916.

MAYOR DUFFUS and the aldermen who were elected last year were returned on a platform of economy. They pledged themselves to use every legitimate means to keep down the tax rate of the city, and these pledges have been kept. The civic business, when wound up at the end of the year, will show a general surplus. All the chairmen of committees and the heads of departments have co-operated in this policy of economy.

No council Peterborough has ever had held so many special sessions in order to fix upon the tax rate for the year. There were unusual difficulties in the way, but in every case where it was possible to pare an estimate, the knife was applied.

The Ontario Temperance Act, with the resultant loss to the revenues of the city, also complicated matters. The tax rate first agreed upon had to be raised at a special meeting to cover this loss.

When the Government took over the public utilities this meant a loss of $7500 in taxes to the city. Mayor Duffus exerted himself in the interests of the city and finally induced the Government to make up this deficit. It is only simple justice to say that the elected city officials, from the Mayor down, have worked in harmony to keep down civic expenses, and yet no department of the public service has suffered.

NEW BLOOD IN THE CABINET.

A DESPATCH sent out from Toronto yesterday says that the appointment of W. D. McPherson as Provincial Secretary to succeed Hon. W. J. Hanna is regarded as an event of more than ordinary significance. It means that temperance legislation will likely be more drastic than ever, and that Mr. McPherson's selection was made with this object in view.

Mr. McPherson is having a ready-made program thrust upon him. We are told, for example, that at the next session of the Legislature he will father a bill to forbid the publication of liquor advertisements in Ontario papers.

We cannot believe that Mr. McPherson, his colleagues in the Cabinet, or the public generally have entirely lost their heads. No such legislation will ever be enacted for the simple reason that it is neither advisable nor necessary.

It is not necessary because every newspaper in the province will eventually place a ban on liquor advertisements as soon as their contracts expire. If the Legislature should pass such a law, the province would be flooded with newspapers from Quebec. Such papers would be furnished at the expense of the liquor interests to all who did not care to pay the regular rate of subscription. The importation of papers is something over which the Legislature have no control, while it is within their power to stop the importation of liquor.

Which of these two courses is a Provincial Government, clothed and in its right mind, more likely to adopt? Ministerial associations and temperance organizations, we take it, will after due consideration arrive at the conclusion that it would be the part of wisdom to outlaw the liquor business rather than any department of a press that is supposed to enjoy all the rights that are vouchsafed individuals.

OFF THE TRACK AGAIN.

AN EVENING CONTEMPORARY has uncovered another mare's nest. Last night it had a long and labored attack on the Government, charging it with exporting power from Niagara to the United States while factories and munition plants are standing idle in Canada for the lack of it.

There is as little in this new election cry as there was in the contention that Canadian nickel is going to Germany. A despatch sent out yesterday from Washington pricks the little sensation our contemporary was so zealously engaged in exploiting. The despatch says that Senator Wadsworth's resolution to authorize an increase in the amount of water diverted from the Niagara Falls to increase the electric power output of plants on the American side of the river has been passed by the Senate. The measure aims to increase the American power output to make up for the curtailment of power from the Canadian side, which is being kept at home for munition plants and other military purposes.

What, then, becomes of the alleged charges against the Canadian Government for sending abroad that which is required at home?

STRONGER THAN EVER.

THE RESIGNATION of Hon. W. J. Hanna as Provincial Secretary has been expected for months, as it was known that he was anxious to be relieved of his public duties so as to be able to devote all his time to his large private practice. Mr. Hanna will, however, remain in the Cabinet without portfolio, and the country will not be deprived of the benefit of his ability and long years of experience in affairs of state.

The Opposition press will seize upon his resignation as an indication of disintegration in the Hearst Government. This claim has already been set up, but the fact remains that the Ontario Government is stronger today than it was even in the days of the late Sir James Whitney, when it was all but omnipotent. It has more claims upon the confidence of the public, irrespective of political leanings. It has been a government for all the people, not for any particular faction. The good work that Sir James Whitney began is being carried on with fidelity to the principles of the man who was "honest enough to be bold and bold enough to be honest," a man who was never swayed by any clique, never influenced by a selfish consideration, a man who wore himself out in the service of his province and died a poor man at the last.

The Liberal party, when in power in Ontario, dallied with the temperance question for years. Their ambition was to play to the temperance gallery while still holding the liquor vote. They did, it is true, take plebiscites on the temperance issue, but they surrounded them with conditions that made them of no practical value. Finding themselves in opposition, they drew up a temperance platform that was a joke, a feeble compromise, and, facing the electors with it, met with disastrous defeat.

Sir James Whitney always said that he would give the people of Ontario total prohibition just as soon as there was a popular demand for it. He passed away before that demand was made, but his pledge has been carried out faithfully by his successor, Premier Hearst. When the people almost unanimously asked for prohibition during the war, they got it. The Government did not even attempt to dodge responsibility by submitting the matter to a vote.

The liquor party have asked Premier Hearst to modify the Ontario Temperance Act. He has refused. He has just appointed to the head of the departemnt which deals with the liquor traffic a cabinet minister of well-known temperance principles. Here again is another answer to the dealers.

The Liberal party professed friendship for the workingman and did nothing for him. The Conservative Government passed the Workmen's Compensation Act. A man injured while at work so as to be unable to earn his own living need not go to the poor house. If he is killed, his wife and children will not become paupers in the community.

The Conservative Government has rescued the resources of the people from the private monopolist who speculated in them for his own gain. Peterborough needs no further evidence on this point.

When the record of the Ontario Government is reviewed, is not the asertion justified that the Administration is stronger than ever with the people today?

BOYS IN KHAKI.

AMBITIOUS AND PATRIOTIC mothers in Peterborough whose boys are too young for military service have arrayed them in miniature uniforms of the King. There is no garb possible to devise that so becomes a sturdy Canadian of tender years, and boys so dressed have been noticed wherever they went, dignified colonels and captains often conferring upon them the distinction of the military salute.

But the wearing of uniforms by non-combatants has become too common. A man too proud—or too timid—to fight has donned the khaki and passed as a hero among strangers. Frauds have been perpetrated under the protection of the King's outfit. An order has gone forth making it a misdemeanor to wear any resembling military uniform by a person not regularly enlisted. This edict applies to the case of children.

It is too bad that the boys can no longer appear in their cute military habiliments. No one would mistake these little fellows for the one who was trying to make his way in life under false pretenses. The sight of a boy of four or five years with sturdy frame encased in khaki has caused many a young man to consider his own duty in the matter and has sent him to the recruiting office.

SAFETY FIRST.

DID YOU EVER NOTICE how The Examiner will burn up columns of space in discussing the municipal outlook and grooming candidates for office in the townships, while it has nothing to say of civic matters at home?

Cautious as usual, waiting to see what way the feline jumps before it makes a move itself.

THE ROYAL BANK.

The annual statement of the Royal Bank, now going forward to shareholders, indicates that the bank has, during the past twleve months, made the greatest strides in its history. For some time past the Royal has, from year to year, established new records, but the progress and expansion during 1916 have been of such unusual proportions that it is difficult to appreciate that they have all occurred during so short a period.

It has often been pointed out that the Royal is still forging ahead among the leading banking institutions of the Dominion, but it is likely that the extent of the increase in assets and deposits for the past year will come as a surprise even to those who have been watching the growth of the bank's business. The important consolidations it has effected have given it a strong foothold in many new sections of the Dominion. While recently the purchase of the Quebec Bank by the Royal was sanctioned by the shareholders of the former institution, this undertaking only comes into effect on December 31st, and does not in any way affect the statement just given out, this being for the fiscal year to November 30th only.

During the period in question the deposits showed an increase of forty-five millions, while the gain in the total assets was close to fifty-five millions. The earnings for the year were a slight fraction less than eighteen per cent.

Any financial institution that can show such a record as this is certainly safe and is entitled to the confidence of the financial world.

IRISHMAN FROM THE HEART OUT IS IRELAND'S NEW COMMANDER

General Mahon, who is now in command in Ireland, is an Irishman to the backbone. He served for many years in the Egyptian cavalry, and took a leading part in all the Sudan fighting.

To Sir Bryan (then Major) Mahon, on reconnaissance with a force of Egyptian cavalry, came one night the King of a big Nile island with useful information wrapped up in a tale of woe.

For long the Dervishes had been raiding the river villages on the line of our advance, and this had not troubled the island chieftain so long as his little territory remained unmolested.

But the constant activities of Mahon and Lord Tullibardine and Prince Francis of Teck had so harassed the riding Emirs that they had sought shelter and a convenient base on the island, and the prospect of indefinite forced hospitality to some fifteen hundred veracious guests had roused the old king's latent loyalty and he had floated down stream on a bundle of grass to tell his story.

It seemed a glorious chance of effecting a haul, but the job presented difficulties; for the island was some twenty miles long and heavily wooded in parts, and Mahon's force was only two hundred strong. Mahon got into touch with Lieut. Beatty (now Sir David, Admiral), who was away down stream with his gunboat, and when that was obtained operations began.

Mahon and a part of his force got across to the foot of the island—on bunches of grass—under cover of night, and just before dawn proceeded in extended order to "walk up" the enemy, while Tullibardine and Prince Francis held the banks.

It was quite a spirited little affair while it lasted, for the Dervishes, who did not know how small was Mahon's force, made a stubborn fight and were driven some miles towards the centre of the island before the gunboat came up and the chugging of Beatty's paddles and the purr of his Maxim gave the coup de grace to their resistance. They were, however, now disheartened and preferred surrender to the chances of flight.

"Had we waited to begin," said Mahon afterwards, "for the gunboat to come up, they'd have been off like a covey of partridges and we should have lost the lot."

Even as it was, they did not all give in at once, and Mahon had one quite exciting experience before his morning's work was done. He came across a wounded pal in a ditch facing a wood, and in the wood were some half-dozen Dervish riflemen—still going strong. His friend had been shot through the muscles of the back and was for the time completely paralyzed.

The two officers were not relieved for more than an hour, by which time Mahon had shot two of the Dervishes and the other four were quite ready to leave their cover and surrender.

WAR HORSES TREATED LIKE MEN

Richard H. Rees, delegate of the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals of Great Britain, who is organizing a campaign on this side to raise $500,000 for the relief of the sick and wounded horses in the British army, has been invited by Right Rev. James F. Sweeney, Lord Bishop of Toronto, to address the annual meeting of the Toronto Humane Society some time in January. A similar invitation has come from J. R. Innes of the Montreal society, accompanied by a contribution of $50 raised by an entertainment given by Montreal telephone girls. Mr. Rees has accepted both invitations, and is planning to visit other Canadian cities as well, to enlist support for the work, which includes the erection, just commenced, of veterinary hospital, to cost $60,000, for the animals of the Canadian army.

Saving the Stock

With the Duke of Portland as chairman and the King and Queen and many British notables as patrons the Royal Society has saved literally tens of thousands of sick and wounded cavalry mounts, artillery horses and transport mules, which otherwise would have been lost. It is the only voluntary organization that is permitted by the British War Office to co-operate with the Army Veterinary Corps at the front. Queen Alexandra and King George and Queen Mary were among the first subscribers to its fund, which is expended under the supervision of the War Office, for the erection at the front of veterinary hospitals with "wards" and "beds" for the treatment of thousands of horses.

For the first time in warfare, animals virtually receive the same care as that given to sick and wounded men. Motor and horse-draw ambulances are used in the conveyance of wounded animals, operations are performed under anaesthetics, and the latest and most scientific methods of treatment and nursing are employed. Every effort is made to prevent needless suffering, there having been numerous cases in which humane workers, as well as troopers, have been "potted" because they exposed themselves under fire to end the misery of animals that had been injured. The work of the R.S.P.C.A. at the front has been repeatedly praised in the despatches of commanding officers.

Members of the board whose term expires are G. A. Gillespie, J. Howden, Thos. Barrie and Dr. A. Moir.

In accordance with the provisions of the constitution, the president of the association has appointed a nominating committee composed of G. A. Gillespie, H. B. Cowan, M. Lyle, J. E. Smith, Ross Dobbin and Harry Taylor. Members of this committee will meet on Tuesday, Jan. 9, to make nominations and any member of the association may submit to this committee before said date the name of any active member of the association who he desires to see a member of the board.

The final meeting of the board of directors was held at the association building on Tuesday evening. The members of the board first partook of a turkey dinner as a mutual treat, after which the various reports of the association committees and officers were received and considered. The financial report shows that the association has run pretty close to the estimated receipts and expenditures during the year 1916, although the original budget of the association which was made up on the basis of $8,000, will likely be exceeded by about $250, this being the result largely of the increase in the expense of heating the building.

The association is short on its $5,000 subscription canvass by about $329. The members of the board will endeavor to secure subscriptions to cover this shortage before Jan. 1 next. It would be a great help to the association, in view of the many obligations which must be met at this time, if subscribers would kindly mail their cheques to the association office this week.

Reports of the officers show the work of the association to be in a most healthy condition, gymnasium, Bible classes and Sunday afternoon meetings having a larger attendance than in any previous year.

The social privileges of the association are being widely used. Three bowling leagues are now using the alleys and other features are proving equally attractive.

There will be no regular Sunday afternoon meeting held until after the first of the year in view of many conflicting engagements on the part of our young men.

The hose was turned on the skating rink Tuesday afternoon for the first time, and it is expected that there will be skating by Saturday of this week.

Lieut.-Col. Tancrede Pagnuello, Montreal, late commanding officer of the 206th Battalion, was stripped of his uniform, his rank and his decorations, and sentenced as a civilian to six months in Bordeaux Jail.

ANNUAL EVENT AT ENNISMORE

BOARD OF AGRICULTURE HOLD SUCCESSFUL MEETINGS.

The farmers of Ennismore look forward throughout the year to the annual meeting of the Board of Agriculture, or Farmers' Institute as it was formerly called. It is second only in importance to the yearly church picnic. The crowd that attends is always large and enthusiastic.

Tuesday the event was carried off according to program. Father McGuire was present at both afternoon and evening sessions. In the afternoon, President J. A. McGregor in the chair, District Representative McRae spoke on the Selection of Seed, and Mr. H. Grose expatiated on the advantages of growing clover.

At the evening session the commodious town hall was packed to the doors. Mr. McRae discoursed on the new Dairy Act, and Miss M. V. Powell of Whitby spoke with charming grace on "The Makers of a Home." "Canada's Assets" was the subject chosen by Mr. Grose, and Fr. McGuire also made an address.

President McGregor rendered an account of his stewardship for the past year.

The musical part of the program consisted of a selection by a local trio, a solo by Miss Floyd Killen and solos by Mr. Galvin and Secretary-Treasurer Allan B. Mann.

The last meeting of the series was held this afternoon at Stewart's Hall, the speakers being Messrs. Grose and McRae. Owing to other attractions in the neighborhood the evening session was cancelled.

FLORIDA UNDER EXPERIENCED PERSONAL ESCORT

With the advent of winter, the questions arise, "How shall one escape the cold winds and snows of February and March?" and "Where shall one go?"

Florida is the nearest summerland, being only 36 hours distant, by luxurious trains. Travel this winter promises to surpass all records, and Europe being still "closed" railway and hotel accommodation to Florida will be at a premium.

Because of such conditions, the tour under experienced personal escort with consequent relief from worries, and the certainty of good hotels reserved long in advance, is attractive. To independent travellers, hotel accommodation will be well-nigh impossible to procure since many places report they are booked full now.

A party limited to 20 members, arranged and conducted in a high-grade manner, leaves Toronto on Feb. 14, to spend six weeks in leisurely travel down the fascinating St. John's River, and in motoring extensively over the finest roads through picturesque and romantic Florida, with nearly two weeks' stay at Daytona, St. Petersburg, De Land and a few days at St. Augustine.

This tour will appeal to the discriminating travellers for the details are as far removed from the commonplace as the itinerary. The most desirable features of Florida travel are included and the requirements of each member receive careful attention. Leisure, comfort and consideration are thereby effectively secured.

Full particulars, with descriptive itinerary and booklets furnished by Miss Florence Withrow, B.A., 130 Hazelton Ave., Toronto. Phone North 7610.

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" is the only medicine in the world that is made from the juices of fresh ripe fruits. On the other hand, the fact that "Fruit-a-tives" is entirely different from any other preparation in the world, is just why you should give it a fair trial, in any trouble of the Stomach, Liver, Bowels, Kidneys or Skin. OTONABEE TOWNSHIP COUNCIL MEETING.

At the regular meeting of the Otonabee township council M. Kenneally was present requesting the co-operation of the council to repair the well at the east end of the skating rink which is used by the township in the making of cement tile. Messrs. Eason and Howson were appointed to act, the skating company and the township each to pay half the cost.

On motion of Messrs. Eason and O'Leary, Reeve W. A. Anderson was awarded $[illegible] for his services in connection with the roads flooded by the Trent canal, as it was entirely owing to his energetic handling of the case in procuring evidence of the damage and ably and persistently presenting it to the Dominion Government, that the $3500 was procured from the Government to the township for damages.

The following accounts were passed: For gravel: W. H. Bradburn, $19.70; J. Webster, $1; R. Davidson, $4.70; J. Kelly, $15.60; D. Hayes, $42.60; D. McCarthy, $7; H. Cardwell, $10; H. JEWISH FEAST OF DEDICATION

The Feast of Dedication (Chanuukah), which is being celebrated by the Jews in the city, commenced at sundown on Tuesday evening and lasts for eight days. It celebrates the rededication of the Temple at Jerusalem after Judas Maccabeus and his brothers, leading the Jewish people in a revolt, had expelled from Jerusalem the Syrian king, Antiochus Epiphanes, who, in the year 162 before the present era, had set up a statue of a pagan god in the Jewish Temple at Jerusalem and had tried to compel the Jewish people to worship it.

The holiday is marked by special prayers of thanks and by the lighting of the Channukah lights, one light being lit on the first day, two on the second, three on the third, etc. It is customary for the lights to be placed in the windows and doorways to light up the streets.

Every time a stingy man is forced to give up a big round dollar he imagines that he is in a dentist's chair having teeth pulled.

WHAT ALD. EVANS HAS DONE FOR CONSTITUENTS

Sketch of Record He Has Made During Past Two Years.

Ald. George Evans of the East Ward is a candidate for re-election and he will be nominated by the voters of Ashburnham tomorrow. The alderman's business will not permit him to make an extensive personal canvass, but he will reach his constituents through the newspapers.

Ald. Evans has been in the Council only two years, but in that short time he has made a record which is his best assurance of being sent back for another term. An alderman will naturally, under the ward system, regard the interests of his constituents as paramount. He will keep that section of the city from which he draws his support.

During the first year of Ald. Evans' term the residents in the North end of Ashburnham received more substantial benefits than had ever fallen to them and they are not likely to forget that they owe these to the exertions of their junior representative. Oxford Street, for example, was practically shut out from the city. It resembled a thoroughfare in a country hamlet more than anything else. It has since come into its own, has lights and a concrete sidewalk like the rest of them.

During the past year Ald. Evans has held the important position of chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee. He has administered the affairs of that department to such good purpose that though the estimates for the fire department were pared to the limit at the start, he would have ended the year with a surplus of $2,500 but for the Quaker Oats fire. That disaster cost $100 for extra help and over 1,200 feet of hose was burned. During the year, too, the wages of the members of the fire brigade were raised. Ald. Evans was able to advance $600 from the funds of his department to help defray the cost of building the C.P.R. footbridge.

During the year six magnetite lights have been installed in Ashburnham. The residents of that section have now no cause to complain on this score. Water mains have been extended and a fire alarm box located in the northern portion, so that that section is no longer without adequate fire protection.

Ald. Evans realizes that Ashburnham will never attain normal growth until there is an overhead bridge at Hunter Street and the street railway system is extended to the east side. No factories are likely to locate there so long as employees are unable to reach them. He would start on an overhead bridge without further delay, satisfied that its construction would be of the greatest possible advantage to the city at large.

Ald. Evans expects opposition in his candidacy, but has little doubt of the result. From all sides he receives assurances from his constituents that his work has been appreciated and that they want him to represent them for the next two years.

Not Sure.

"Did you cure that patient you had with the failing memory?"

"I thought so at one time," replied the doctor, "but I'm not so sure about it now. He went away and forgot to pay his bill."

Father and Son.

"Now, my boy, here are the stepping stones to success—industry, frugality——"

"Stepping stones? Gee whiz, dad, show me the speedway!"

MAYOR DUFFUS' MESSAGE

To the Electors of the City of Peterborough:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:—I have been urged by many representative citizens to become a candidate for the office of Mayor of the City of Peterborough for the coming year, and hereby offer myself on re-election.

My record for the past year is before you, and I am willing to be judged by it as to my qualifications for serving the city's interests another term.

It is becoming that I should express my opinions of policy and the more pressing needs of the city.

CITY FINANCES

The finances of the city have been as carefully safeguarded during the past year as was possible under the circumstances. The policy of the new Council must continue to be one of strict retrenchment, and that no large expenditures be undertaken. We met with unforseen and difficult propositions, particularly due to the cancellation of taxes for licenses, together with the cancellation of certain taxes hitherto forming part of the city's annual assets, as well as considerable unusually heavy expenditure being incurred through litigation. It will be found, however, that the city is to be congratulated upon the manner in which its finances have been handled this year; credit for this is due to the care and diligence of the chairman and members of the Finance Committee; and it is a matter of pride to the whole Council that every department has co-operated in the laudable desire of cutting down every possible expense. The details of the financial situation will be issued by the city treasurer in a few days, and I am assured that when the figures of the year are completed there will be a balance on the right side.

BOARD OF WORKS DEPARTMENT

During the present exceptional year it was the policy of the Board of Works to do only such work as was essentially important and urgently necessary to keep faith with the ratepayers and prevent undesirable deterioration and disrepair of roads and streets.

The same applies to surface drainage, which will have to be taken up systematically and in a comparatively elaborate manner. But having regard to financial and labor conditions, this is work that, as far as at all possible and prudent, should be deferred till after the war. However, a more rigid inspection for the prevention of floods, particularly in spring, will have to be carried out.

Likewise, the matter of permanent pavements seems to be out of the question for the present.

In regard to sewers, I contend that on streets where they may be petitioned for by ratepayers in the regular way, and where they are required, as on Romaine, Prince and Princess streets in the south and other equally needed streets in other sections, they should be built, since they are very largely paid for by the property owners by a frontage tax.

There are some stretches of sidewalk which will have to be built, but as sidewalks add to the debenture debt, only such as are urgently required should be constructed at present.

The foot-bridge to East City, to be attached to the C. P. R. bridge over the river, will be completed the coming year, and will meet a want long felt by the residents of the southern and eastern sections of the city, particularly those who live on one side of the river and work on the other.

The oiling of streets to keep down dust is no longer an experiment. It is effective not only in exterminating the dust nuisance, but an important factor in preserving the street surfaces in good condition, and additoinal streets will have to be added to the oiled area.

HUNTER STREET BRIDGE

Great as seemed to be the need of a new bridge last year, the need seems to be still growing; the present bridge may be safe enough, but its traffic capacity is inadequate to the requirements and desserts of the residential and business interests of East City. I am yet strongly of the opinion that one of the first large undertakings to receive attention is the construction of a new bridge as soon as the financial circumstances of the city warrant.

Next year the city may have to take over the street railway in accordance with the understanding with the Hydro Commission; and then the extension of the street car service across the river will inevitably involve the construction of a new bridge. These conditions may, unwilling as we are to face new expenditure, justify practical consideration of the problem.

During the past year I have faithfully tried to serve the interests of the city and the citizens, and respectfully submit that in view of my past services and in view of the fact that my experience of the past year will fit me for giving better service another year, and that, conjoined with my assurance that if given the opportunity I shall devote my best ability and efforts to giving Peterborough faithful and honorable service, justify me in claiming your vote and support in the coming election.

FIRE PROTECTION

In regard to the Fire Department, a subject that is properly engaging a good deal of public attention, I may say that I am convinced that it is not adequately equipped in every respect—some of these very important for a city of the size and importance of Peterborough. It is evident that the day of horse-drawn apparatus, and the matter of one or more pieces of motor-driven fire-fighting equipment, must be practically considered, more particularly on account of the present horses being unfit for much further useful service.

We have many valuable factories and buildings, the loss of any one of which would be a serious one for the city. They are entitled to the most adequate protection from fire the city can provide. The distance of some of these is so great that good service in the matter of fire-fighting cannot be given with our comparatively slow-moving apparatus and equipment.

For the mercantile section of the city I would favor an inspection even more rigid than the present, of back yards, lanes, alleys, hallways, and basements, with a view of securing more prompt and thorough response to the demand to lessen the accumulation of dangerous combustible material.

With such indicated improvement provided and with the new force main and auxiliary steam pumping unit, installed and completed in 1916 by the Utilities Commission, would provide reasonably complete facilities for dealing with fires and for better protection to life and property.

WATER FOR NORTH SECTION

The question of city water for fire protection and domestic use in the northern parts of East City is one I have long been interested in, and one of the requirements spoken of in my message of last year. While this has not been completed a good beginning has been made, and had it not been for the large amount of work on the new force main for the western portion of the city, would have been carried out. Now, however, that a start has been made, no doubt the work will be completed the first thing in the spring. One hydrant has already been placed, and as soon as the Utilities Commission can get to work there will be no cause for complaint.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH

It gives me pleasure to congratulate the Board of Health on what it has accomplished during the past year, and especially the good services given by the present Health Officer, Dr. Amys. Cases that have required prompt attention have not been neglected, and the conservation of the general health has received adequate attention. One of the new feaures in this connection has been the inspection of school children.

NIGHT SOIL COLLECTION

A satisfactory solution of the collection of night soil is one matter which interests a large portion of the community. This matter was not satisfactorily handled during 1916 owing to certain recommendations and adoptions not working out satisfactorily. It must be taken up vigorously by the new Council and a plan worked out which will ensure satisfaction. I feel confident that the work could be handled efficiently for a sum equal to about twenty cents per month or less.

THE SEWAGE DISPOSAL PROBLEM

The completion of the sewage disposal plant will require the careful consideration of next year's Council. During the present year much time has been spent endeavoring to settle the question of a suitable location. The Provincial Board of Health, through its chief engineer, recommended what they claim to be the suitable location, having regard to all the circumstances, and gave the city an order and sufficient authority to take possession. Those living in close proximity to the location offered certain objections and the Council has been taking precautionary steps to overcome the objections so as not to antagonize any one, and at the same time safeguard the city's interests.

A number of meetings have been held and the sewage question discussed from every angle in order to arrive at a satisfactory solution, which I believe, if carefully handled, will terminate satisfactorily and in the best interests of all concerned. If the whole proposition could be deferred for a year or two, looking at it from a financial standpoint, it would be in the interests of the city. However, the present system of depositing sewage in the river is objectionable to the adjoining townships, and the Provincial Board of Health, who cannot reasonably allow these conditions to exist much longer.

NEW INDUSTRIES

The question of securing new industries will need the most careful consideration of the new Council. From now on this is a matter upon which considerable time and energy must be spent. More advertising of the advantages of the city, and all the influences that can be brought to bear should be exercised for the purpose of the city getting its full share of new industries that are likely to locate in Canada to manufacture goods which were formerly manufactured in the United States and in European countries.

Mr. S. R. Armstrong, our Industrial Commmissioner, has worked faithfully during the past number of years, and a great deal of preliminary work and negotiations with different firms have been going on, which should be followed up, and no stone left unturned to secure as many industries, on as favorable conditions, as we possibly can.

In wishing the electors of the city a New Year of happiness and prosperity, I trust you will give me the opportunity to co-operate with you and your City Council in giving effect to this wish as Mayor of the City of Peterborough.

Yours faithfully,

JOS. J. DUFFUS

Cured His RUPTURE

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation, if you write to me, Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 845 Marcellus Avenue, Manasquan, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.

LINDSAY HOSE PUT IN USE AT FIRE IN SHORT TIME

Couplings of Local Equipment Were Adjust- By Use of Hose Expander---Commendable Feature Says Fire Marshal.

At the fire investigation yesterday afternoon the fire marshal commented favorably on the fact that Chief Howard was able to make a quick change in couplings so that the hose of the Lindsay fire department could be linked up with the local hose. It was a commendable feature, and it would be a good thing if other municipalities were in the same position.

The chief had explained that the couplings of the Lindsay hose were cut off and the Peterborough couplings placed on the house by the use of a hose expander.

Martin Kirn had been in Peterborough since 1902 and with the Quaker Oats Company since its existence. He had general superintendency of all repairs and new work. He had been on the third floor of the banner building examining some tubing on a machine when the explosion took place. He ran to the window and could see tongues of flame shooting out of the west wall. He had told Foreman Gandy to get the girls out. He had not been in the dry room or boiler room on the morning of the fire. He had listened to Mr. Denham's evidence and agreed with it. There was nothing he could add. There had been a fire in the dust room three or four weeks ago, and five or six fire extinguishers had been used to put it out. They were at once refilled after use. Over 75 were placed here and there through the plant. It was the duty of Engineer Miller to see that these fire extinguishers were always in position. There had been a little fire in the dry house previous to the explosion. This he learned from Mr. Walsh, and it was while shutting down the feeders that the explosion took place. He did not know that any of the fire fighting apparatus was out of commission. The supposition is that the six-inch riser to the sprinkling system was broken by the explosion. The pail supply was also in use on every floor. There was no fire drill for the employes that he knew of. There was no part of the drying building that was not under sprinkler protection.

Fire Marshal Heaton wanted this point made clear, and Mr. Kirn stated that the tanks and the grinders were all protected. There were nine grinding mills on the second floor. He knew of an explosion that destroyed the Cedar Rapids plant about eight years ago, and also another at Richford, Vt. Some of the men had been sent to Richford to rebuild the plant, and Mr. Denne was sent from here. He did not remmeber a fire at the Joliet plant in 1911. There was a fairly large fire here at the plant in 1908. The cause at that time was that something went through the stone and carried the spark to the dust respirator. No lesson had been taught by that fire. There is always a danger from dust gathering in flour and cereal mills. There was nothing that could prevent it, or the Quaker Oats Company would have it installed.

Fire Marshall Heaton: "I am sure you would, judging by your reputation."

Referring to the fire of three weeks ago, Mr. Kirn stated that the fire had spread by the small flame being sent into the dust-gatherer by a fan to the top floor to the tank building. These tanks had been on fire frequently in what was known as the Vern tank. He did not think it would heat.

Mr. Heaton — Would it surprise you to know that a carload of vim had heated in transit?

Mr. Kirn— Yes, it would.

Mr. Heaton then related an instance in Oxford county where such had occurred.

Mr. Kirn did not know what stock was on hand the day of the fire.

Engineer's Evidence.

Alex. Miller had been with the Quaker Oats Company since 190[illegible] as engineer. He was not there the day of the fire. Mr. Mesley, his assistant, took his place. There had been no fires in the boiler room that he knew of. He remembered that there was a fire in the mill on Nov. 1st. It occurred in the dry house. That is where most of them originate. Explaining the fire of three weeks ago, he told of hearing the explosion and seeing smoke coming from the windows of the dry room. It had been put out by the use of fire extinguishers and their own 1¼-inch hose without much damage. He remembered quite will refilling the used fire extinguishers on this occasion. No time is lost in refilling them. There was a weekly examination of the fire pump and apparatus, and a test made. The sprinklers in the dry house were released twice in 1916. It occurred in the dry house. About a month ago it was operated in the office building, caused by an overheated flue. There was no record to show how often the sprinkling system was discharged.

Thomas Grant, the shipper for the Quaker Oats Company, remembered the fire that occurred about three weeks ago. When he heard of it on Sunday, the 10th of December, there was a small fire in the shipping room. It was a bunch of smouldering hulls. It must have come from above. Messrs. Welsh, Hollihan and Wolf had put the fire out by using fire extinguishers. The shipping room is underneath the dry room. He had not examined anything but his own floor. He was in the shipping office Dec. 11th when the explosion took place. The dust came right into the office. The end of his office was blown in by the explosion. There was no flame to be seen there. He had first noticed fire some time later in the dry or feed room.

Alfred Mesley, assistant engineer, was in the packing room at the time of the explosion. He ran back to the boiler room and noticed that the north wall of the dry room had fallen on the roof of the boiler room. He had reason to believe that five men were in the boiler room, but could get no answer to his cries. The boilers were buried in brick. It was three minutes after the explosion that he reached the boiler room. He was certain that the men had been killed by the brick and not from steam or the explosion of the boilers. Several small explosions had occurred in the dry house. Some foreign matter in the grinders caused fire. He remembered having to replace 16 automatic sprinklers in the oat mill and 12 in the dry house last fall. He did not keep any record of the date. When the fire occurred last fall the sprinklers were in operation for about five minutes and they extinghished the fire.

Robert Allen worked as engineer in the boiler room. He had been with the company for 14 years. He had been working nights at the time of the recent fire. He remembered the fire three weeks ago. It occurred in the dry house. It was from a spark in the grinders. He had heard explosions several times, and they frequently knocked out the sprinkler head.

COMMITTEE OF TWO WILL GET FACTS ON MOTOR APPARATUS

Decision of Fire Committee is to Make Full Inquiry.

The Peterborough Manufacturers' Association, through J. W. Worth, asked the favorable consideration of the Fire, Water and Light Committee of motor driven apparatus for the fire department, and it caused considerable discussion at the committee meeting last night.

Charles E. Banks gave the committee some valuable information as to the different trucks. He advised the purchase of an up-to-date one, with a chassis built specially for fire fighting purposes, with a carrying capacity of 1 1-2 tons. It would cost about $3,800 f.o.b. Peterborough. He strongly advised against the use of ordinary motor trucks for the fire hall.

A. Brown and Co. sent in a letter recommending a "Red" truck with equipment, as specified, for $1,893. This truck would carry three-quarters of a ton.

G. A. Gillespie, M.L.A., agent for the Studebaker Co., offered a truck with Studebaker chassis and the equipment locally supplied for $2,000.

Ald. Evans stated that he had not asked for tenders, but had sent out specifications asking for prices.

Ald. Edgar admitted that he did not know anything about a motor car. He was in favor of leaving it to a small committee who did know.

Chief Howard stated that the specification as drawn up had been sent to four Peterborough agents and four other Canadian companies. He had been requested to call the committee's attention to Brantford's new truck, which was built by the Waterloo people. The company offered to pay the expenses of two members of the committee to go up and look it over.

Ald. Stratton would not place the city under any obligation to a company. The Council could pay their own expenses.

The Horseless Age

Mayor Duffus was convinced that the day of horses in the fire department was passed and they should be replaced with motor driven apparatus as soon as possible. He would purchase the outfits from a company that was essentially a fire apparatus firm whose reputation was well known and one that will be in existence for a number of years. A good equipment should last a life time. It was pointed out that there would be very little wear as records show that in going to fires the Peterborough department travel less than 100 miles per year. He thought Ald. Edgar's idea was a good one. It should be left with two men to conduct the preliminary investigation. They should visit cities farther north than Peterborough and find out how they overcame the snow difficulty in the winter. The more the subject is inquired into the more difficult it is to come to a decision.

Chief Howard remarked that Ald. Dobbin had suggested getting two trucks of small capacity rather than one large one.

Mayor Duffus agreed with this. It was his idea exactly.

The mayor and chairman were appointed a committee to investigate and report.

Mayor Duffus also fathered a resolution that the city give notice of its intention to apply for special legislation, giving the city power to issue debentures for an amount not exceeding $10,000 to purchase the motor apparatus, if it was decided not to raise the money out of next year's levy.

This carried.

The entertainment tendered to the families of men on service in England and at the front, will be given in the Opera House on the afternoon of Christmas Day. Doors open at 2 o'clock; to commence at 2.30 o'clock. Come early. Present tickets at door. Admission by those tickets only.

MAYOR DUFFUS DISCLAIMS FORMER OWNERSHIP OF FIRE DEPARTMENT "SKATE"

Chairman Evans Tells Committee About the Purchase.

Mayor Duffus, at the Fire, Water and Light Committee last night, drew attention to the report in circulation that he had owned the last horse bought by the fire department. He had nothing whatever to do with the purchase and did not know it was at the hall for some days. About a year ago his brother had taken the horse in a trade and a few days later sold the animal to a man in Smith. He wanted it distinctly understood that he had no interest in the horse whatever.

Ald. Saunders did not think that anyone would believe that the Mayor would do such a thing. It was only a rumor.

Ald. Duncan gave the version of the story as he had heard it and laughed at the idea. It was foolish to think the mayor would be guilty of such action.

Chairman Evans stated that it was necessary to buy a horse for the department quickly and he had called the mayor up and got his consent to purchasing the horse from a man named White. He was quite sure that the mayor was innocent of any charge whatever regarding the purchase of the horse.

Chief Howard reported that the horse was balky at first but was getting over it. The horse had been purchased just a few days previous to the underwriters' inspection to replace one that had died.

MRS. KLEEMANN'S DEATH DUE TO NATURAL CAUSES

The Opinion of Doctors Who Performed Postmortem.

The death of Mrs. Louise Kleemann of Schenectady, N.Y., at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Paul Loescher, 278 Burnham Street, Ashburnham, on Saturday, Dec. 9, was due to natural causes. Dr. Eastwood gave that opinion to Coroner Greer's jury at the City Council Chamber last evening and it was also the opinion of Dr. Amys, who, with the former, performed the post-mortem as authorized by the jury.

The report on the post-mortem was to the effect that the organs of the body were in an advanced stage of disease. There were no external marks on the body.

The evidence of Dr. Eastwood was that he was called by telephone by Mrs. Loescher to her home about six o'clock on the evening of Dec. 9. Mrs. Kleemann was dead. Mrs. Loescher told the doctor she had asked her mother if she would call a doctor and the mother declined. Mrs. Loescher had been away from the house in the afternoon.

It appears that Mrs. Kleemann was ill when she reached Peterborough the previous Friday evening, her condition being such as to attract the attention of the train conductor. Mrs. Loescher was at the train to meet her mother but they missed each other.

Dr. Amys was asked by Crown Attorney Hatton if the woman's life would have been prolonged had medical aid been given. The doctor said it was doubtful.

The jury took only a short time to reach a verdict in keeping with the opinions of Drs. Eastwood and Amys as to the cause of death.

W. R. Morris was fore man of the jury.

WANDERED FROM HOME.

Mr. John Kelly, of this place, who has been in a very poor state of health for several years past, wandered away last Saturday evening from his home on Wellington street. Searching parties were out looking for him in every direction on Sunday. During the afternoon the anxiety of his wife and friends was relieved by the receipt of a telephone message that he had been located near Hastings. He was returned to his home during the evening, apparently none the worse of his wandering about the country in the cold for eighteen or twenty hours.—Norwood Register.

1000 FEET OF HOSE DESTROYED AT FIRE

Hose Supply at Fire Hall Will be Brought up to Normal at Once.

Chief Howard sent in a report to the Fire, Water and Light Committee last night on the Quaker Oats Company fire. He informed the committee that the city had lost between 1000 and 1500 feet of hose, one 20-foot ladder, boots, wrenches, and one play pipe, which it would be necessary to replace. He also expressed his appreciation of the kindness of the De Laval Cream Separator Co. and the Bonner-Worth Co., who had lent him their firt fighting equipment. One length of the De Laval hose was destroyed.

Ald. Duncan moved that a length of hose be procured and given to the De Laval Co. to replace the one lost. Ald. Edgar seconded the motion and it carried.

Ald. Duncan thought that the city should at once purchase 1500 feet of hose.

Ald. Stratton wanted to know if 1000 feet would not do. There was no use spending money until it was known what was actually needed. The Fire Chief's report showed that he was not certain how much was destroyed. "Let us find out how much we have, and then buy enough."

Ald. Edgar thought that if 1500 feet were bought, the department would not have any too much.

Ald. Duncan would give the department enough hose.

Chief Howard, in reply to Ald. Stratton, stated that as near as he could tell there was about 3500 feet of hose left at the station. There had been 4800 feet before the fire.

600 Feet of Hose Missing.

Mayor Duffus wondered where 600 feet of hose had disappeared to. The underwriters' report to him gave 5,400 feet as the amount on hand.

Chief Howord—There is a mistake somewhere, as 4800 feet was the report of the stocktaking by the committee.

The Chief also informed the members that at present he had over 6000 feet of hose at the station, but some of it belonged to the Quaker Oats Company.

Ald. Duncan—It is not right to use their hose.

Ald. Stratton felt that the Quaker Oats Company would be only too glad to have the hose at the firehall. Let Chairman Evans find out what he wants, call the committee, and an hour later the hose can be ordered. He did not believe in putting the responsibility on the chirman.

Mayor Duffus would give the chairman authority to buy at once if it was only a matter of 200 or 300 feet. But when they did not know exactly what they required, he thought a report should be made, prices written for, and enough hose purchased to bring the quantity on hand up to 5400 feet.

Ald. Saunders would not delay the purchase, but get it right away.

It was finally decided to follow the suggestion of the Mayor and whatever hose is found necessary will be ordered at the Council meeting next Tuesday.

Write to Lindsay.

The committee asked the city clerk to write the chief of the Lindsay fire department for a list of the firemen who came down with him and assisted at the Quaker Oats fire, and also the amount of any expenses incurred by them.

Tired, Nerve-jaded Folk Find New Strength and Living Energy in Dr. Cassell's Tablets

There is nothing in medicine more certain than the strength-giving power of Dr. Cassell's Tablets. Everything they contain makes for strength and vital power—strength for nerves and muscles, richness for the blood, living energy for the whole system. In every part of the world the incomparable efficacy of this great British remedy has been proved beyond any shadow of doubt. Dr. Cassell's Tablets can and do bring health and vigour to the weak—often when every other means has failed. They are equally suitable for children, even for infants.

Sir John Campbell, Bart., C.B., formerly Major-General in the Royal Artillery, said:—"I have pleasure in stating that I have derived great benefit from Dr. Cassell's Tablets, and have found them remarkably effective in restoring the nerve energy and physical vigour which advancing years naturally impair. They suit me admirably and I have every confidence in recommending them as a safe and reliable bodily restorative."

Dr. Cassell's Tablets are Nutritive, Restorative, Alterative, and Anti-Spasmodic, and of great Therapeutic value in all derangements of the Nerve and Functional Systems in old or young. GIFTS FOR HIM

FOR men—and they are generally the stumbling block at Christmas time—there are a few new conceits. The "pipe holder" is a brand new idea.

Or try a copper chafing dish, book rack, half a dozen white dress ties, razor roll, box of favorite shaving soap and powder, bookcase, writing table fitted with assorted stationery, gloves, suit case, collar bag, Malacca cane, sapphire or opal scarfpin, bedroom slippers and seal ring.

If he travels a case fitted with toilet necessities, like the one illustrated, would be appreciated.

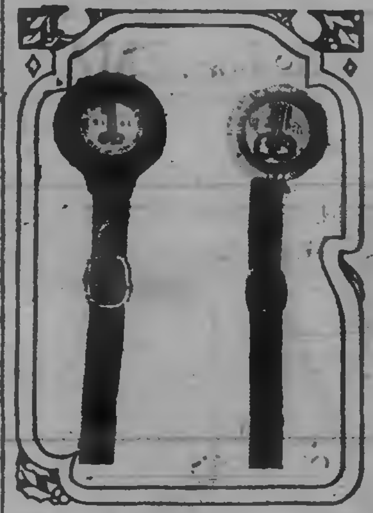
Handkerchiefs of pure linen with an embroidered initial are $1.50 for a box of half a dozen in some of the good shops.

Beautiful neckties are to be had for $1.50 and quite magnificent affairs for $3 and $5.

Heavy gloves are $1.50 and $2 a pair. Dogskin and pigskin with one button are what the man of the moment likes.

Pictured are interesting fobs; others desirable may have college or more personal emblems attached.

More mannish and serviceable are leather wallets or bill folders of pigskin, hand sewed, from 50 cents up; cardcases of pigskin for $1, cigarette cases $2, crystal and leather flasks from $1.50; morocco tie, handkerchief or collar boxes, jewel boxes of pigskin, reindeer lined, $1.75; razor rolls $2.



There is one sort of handkerchief case that is useful in traveling. It has a case on each side like a pocketbook, and the back is lined with heavy pasteboard, padded. It shuts up and fastens with a clasp. A soiled collar bag, made of linen, is a good thing. It should not be constructed with a drawstring at the top, but should have the back fastened straight on a brass rod or reed.

Or give him a gayly painted photograph frame to hold pictures.

More personal in their uses are a cane with handle of horn or ivory (in golf design if he is strictly up to date), a pipe of brier or meerschaum with mouthpiece of amber, a blanket bathrobe amply large for comfort, an umbrella with handle of hobnails, carved ivory, sterling silver or natural wood. Or, if he is fond of dancing, a stunning pair of patent leather pumps like those illustrated might walk directly into his heart.

In accordance with the provisions of sub-sections 19 and 20 of Section 56 of the Bank Act, 1913, we report as follows:

We have audited the above Balance Sheet and compared it with the books and vouchers at Head Office and with the certified returns from the branches. We have obtained all the information and explanations that we have required, and are of the opinion that the transactions of the Bank which have come under our notice have been within the powers of the Bank.

We have checked the cash and verified the securities representing the investments of the Bank at its chief office and principal branches at a date other than, and in addition to, the verification at 30th November, 1916, and found that they were in agreement with the entries in the books of the Bank relating thereto.

In our opinion the Balance Sheet is properly drawn up so as to exhibit a true and correct view of the state of the affairs of the Bank according to the best of our information and the explanations given to us, and as shown by the books of the bank.

AMERICANS, TOO, HAVE PROBLEMS

Members of the American Congress the poor resulting from the high cost talk much of their desire to do something to relieve the burdens upon of living, says the Chicago News. At the same time, it is doubtful whether Congress will approve a specific measure, offered in the national House of Representative last week by Representative Aswell of Louisiana, which ought to command general support. The Aswell bill seeks to remove the heavy tax and the license fees imposed upon the manufacture and sale of oleomargarine. Their chief effect is greatly to increase the cost of that product to the consumer.

Butter is so high in price that many persons of small means find it necessary very greatly to curtail their consumption of that article of food or even to forego its use altogether. There are substitutes for butter which not only are clean and healthful food products, but can be sold much cheaper than butter. Restrictions of the severest kind are placed by law upon the sale of these butter substitutes, not primarily in the interest of consumers, but in the interest of butter makers. Such inspection as is necessary to prevent the sale of butterine for butter could be carried on without the harassment that now attends efforts to supply persons of moderate means with acceptable substitutes for butter.

Those consumers who wish to use butterine intead of butter as a means of keeping down living costs should be permitted to do so without being heavily penalized by the Government.

GIFTS for HER

THE ideal Christmas gift is a useful luxury—a luxurious necessity, as it were—something that one wants and needs, but hesitates to buy for oneself.

A unique gift is a samovar for milady's tea table. The cut shows a beautiful one in copper, but even rarer ones may be found in the brass and copper antique shops that thrive in some places. Delectable goblets in metal on a matching tray come to serve tea in, along with samovars.

We have come to recognize the bayberry candle as typical of the Christmas season. It is made from the fruit of the bayberry bush and is a very lovely transparent green. This candle does not smoke when lighted and exudes a pungent odor, which is not unlike the breath of the pine trees.

Nothing could be more suggestive than a gift of Christmas candles, which could be accompanied with a pair of either silver or glass candlesticks in which burn the Christmas candle.

A box of silk stockings makes a fastidious gift. From the picture we get a hint of them in bright shades for sports, others in striped effects and still more that aim to match the smart silk sweater, which would also be appreciated by any man's "best girl."

Here's a regular long list to pick from: Large silver hairpin, Dresden penholders, opera glass holders, silver glove buttoner, a wastepaper basket, bag for opera glasses, a silken chair drapery or rug for chair, a leather shopping bag, silver shirt waist studs, glass or china puff box, two silver coffee spoons, sterling silver penholder, sweet grass workbasket, one silver strawberry fork (or more of them), a Dresden china table bell, Japanese bedroom slippers, belt of gold or silver braid, eiderdown dressing jackets, sterling silver heart brooch, sterling silver or gold trinkets.

Purses have a wide range. The one illustrated is rather elaborate and may be mounted on material like milady's afternoon frock. The embroidery in gold thread and jeweled clasp are in keeping with the choice fittings inside.

For the motor girl are a dinner basket, fur robes, rubber robes, foot warmer, leather coat, map measurer, set of road maps, "overnight" bag, compact mending outfit in case, small cushion, goggles, fur gloves, motor cap, automobile horn, knitted muffler, linen dust coat, tool kit, folding toilet case, automobile clock, automobile mirror, automobile flower holder and tour book.

STARTLING FACTS ---READ THEM

United States Government Statistics Reveal:

That Only 358,000 out of their 100,000,000 population report incomes in excess of $2,500 per year.

That Nineteen out of every twenty fail to provide either for their families or old age.

That Every second man of the population at age twenty-five will be dependent upon someone else at sixty-five. Which class will you be in?

That Nine out of ten men leave no estate.

That Life Insurance Companies are distributing more than $2,000,000 per day.

That Life Insurance has decreased pauperism more than thirty-three and one-third per cent. in thirty-five years.

That Less than seven per cent. of the value of American lives is covered by Life Insurance.

That Life Insurance saves the nation more than $80,000,000 per year in maintaining the poor.

Under such conditions, what is your plain duty, aye, and privilege? Clearly to insure your life while you can. You say where and how can this best be done?

We answer — A monthly Income Policy for your family or an Endowment for yourself in the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada.

With its $75,000,000 of assets, there is no Company represented in Canada, can offer you better, if any can offer you as good.

Let us show you what we have done, before placing your insurance. This places you under no obligation and may prove a decided advantage.

ALL GOOD CANADIANS HAVE FAITH IN THE COUNTRY'S BANKING

Bank shareholders in Canada these days are not looking for extraordinary profits. It is recognized that during such troubled times the banking institutions must maintain themselves in a strong position and forego many of the opportunities of profit making open to them in ordinary times. They have also special duties nad services to perform for the national government, for most of which they receive small remuneration; and they have been called upon to contribute large sums in the form of new taxation. In all of these duties and obligations, The Canadian Bank of Commerce, the annual report of which is published today, has taken its full share. It has carried an extraordinary amount of quick and liquid assets giving small returns; it has participated in the special loans to the Dominion and British Governments in connection with the war; and it has at the same time given its thousands of customers the support they required.

The results or profits shown will be accepted as satisfactory. They compare favorably with the preceding year, and there are not wanting indications that the current fiscal year will present better opportunities than the one just ended. The bank is closely associated with all the important industries carried on in the Dominion. In every province it has established an efficient organization and an extensive system of branches. These branch offices have enabled hundreds of customers to attain wealth and prominence and they have been a most important factor in helping thousands of others to operate successfully. All of these customers, as well as the shareholders of the bank, are interested in its prosperity. With the steady development and growth of the Dominion, we may be sure that this great institution will be called upon to take a more important part in the work of financing industry and trade. The business community has full confidence that its magnificent organization will enable it to cope successfully with the problems of tomorrow and of the post-bellum period. All good Canadians believe that the Dominion's growth will be rapid and steady and that the banking institutions will require to expand with the growth of the country. None of the great banking enterprises are better placed than The Commerce for responding to the heeds of the future.

"Blind Mary" Britton Spends Time in Knitting Socks for Soldiers

BOBCAYGEON, Dec. 22. — One of the most pleasant surprises of the year took place here when Miss Mary Britton, daughter of Mr. John Britton, of William street, was presented with a purse of gold. Miss Britton is commonly called "Blind Mary." Ever since the war broke out she has taken a very prominent place in knitting socks for the soldiers. She has knitted and knitted and knitted so that during the course of the war she has already knitted so many pairs that she says herself she has lost count. It is said that Miss Britton has knitted at least 100 pairs free, and perhaps another 100 pairs or nearly so for womens' organizations under the Red Cross work. Since September last she has knitted 27 pairs, an average of nine pairs per month.

OUT OF THE MOUTHS OF BABES

Little Mary was very fond of listening to Bible stories, and one day she said. "Mamma, please read that story about Mr. Moses and the bulls after him."

"Are you going to marry when you grow up?" asked a visitor of 5-year-old Kathryn.

"No, ma'm," was the reply. "I'm going to be a widow, 'cause they always have such pretty black clothes and look so happy."

One day small Willie was given a piece of shad for dinner. "What kind of a fish is this, mamma?" he asked.

"Shad," replied his mother.

"Well," said Willie, "a shad must be sure of anything when he feels it in his bones."

CITY WILL ASK FOR SPECIAL LEGISLATION

ALD. EDGAR'S INSTALMENT PLAN HAS ADVANCED ANOTHER STAGE.

The city of Peterborough will apply for special legislation to enable the Council or the Utilities Commission to instal plumbing and sewerage into houses, the owners or tenants paying for same on the instalment plan.

The city solicitor will report on the matter to the Council.

Ald Edgar at last night's meeting of the Fire, Water and Light Committee stated that the Utilities Commission thought the idea a good one if it could be worked out.

While Shepherds Watch'd

While shepherds watched their flocks by night,
All seated on the ground,
The angel of the Lord came down,
And glory shone around.

"Fear not," said he, for mighty dread
Had seized their troubled mind;
"Glad tidings of great joy I bring
To you and all mankind.

"To you in David's town this day
Is born of David's line
The Saviour, who is Christ the Lord,
And this shall be the sign:

"The heavenly Babe you there shall find
To human view displayed,
All meanly wrapped in swathing bands
And in a manger laid."

Thus spake the seraph, and forthwith
Appeared a shining throng
Of angels praising God, who thus
Addressed their joyful song:

"All glory be to God on high
And to the earth be peace,
Good will henceforth from heaven to men
Begin and never cease."
—Nahum Tate.

At the close of the nominations City Clerk Armstrong declared Mayor Duffus elected by acclamation for the same office in 1917, and Robert Hicks for member of the Utilities Commission for the next three years.

There being six men nominated for the four vacancies on the School Board, an election is necessary.

Mr. Armstrong also read the notice from the Government regarding the registration of males in Canada between the ages of 16 and 65 years.

Public Meeting

City Clerk Armstrong was asked to take the chair when the formalities had been finished, and he called on Mayor Duffus for an address.

Mayor Duffus thanked the citizens for the appreciation they had shown of his year's service by electing him unopposed. He took it as a concrete evidence of their satisfaction with the run of the city's business during the past year. He gave a brief review of the matters to be dealt with during the 1917 term as outlined in his address.

In conclusion he promised to see that the city's business was run as carefully in the future as in the past and thanked the citizens for the honor conferred on him.

Robert Hicks, re-elected to the Utilities Commission, reviewed the work of all departments, showing the improvements made during his tenure of office. The receipts from the water department for the year 1916 would be about $61,000, and there was a good surplus in sight from the electric end. He referred to the death of the late Mr. Anderson and also to the heads of the departments, Messrs H. O. Fisk, Ross Dobbin and Geo. Henderson. He hoped to be able to render increased assistance during the next three years, and thanked the citizens for their appreciation.

INSPECTOR JOS. STEWART MET HARDCUSTOMER

ABUSED BY HAVELOCK MAN WHO WAS INTOXICATED.

Inspector Joseph Stewart went to Havelock yesterday to investigate a number of complaints of the violation of the Ontario Temperance Act. In the course of his visit, he was in conversation with Village Constable Hill when a man named Hodgins came along very much under the influence of liquor and with a bottle of wet goods in his pocket.

Hodgins started in to abuse the inspector, and continued to do so after the inspector's badge had been displayed. Inspector Stewart then asked Constable Hill to arrest Hodgins, and a fight started. The two officers landed their man and brought him before Reeve Mathison, who remanded him for trial before County Magistrate Langley on Saturday morning.

The prisoner was brought to Peterborough this morning

ALL ENTENTE POWERS MUST CONSIDER NOTE FROM PRESIDENT WILSON

British Public Taken Aback as Action by Any Neutral Nation Was Farthest From Their Mind--Daily Mail Says "No".

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Dec. 22.—An Exchange Telegraph despatch from The Hague says it is officially announced that should the Entente Allies, in their reply to the peace proposals of the Central Powers, leave the door open for negotiations, Germany will make known her chief peace terms immediately.

LONDON, Dec. 22.—The British Government will make no statement at present in regard to President Wilson's peace note, considering it a question that can be dealt with only in communication with other members of the Entente. Announcement to this effect was made in the Commons today by Bonar Law. Mr. Law was asked whether a statement could be made regarding the American note. He replied: "It must be obvious to the House that this is a question that can be dealt with only in communication with our allies and that it is absolutely impossible to make a statement now."

NOTE ONLY TOPIC OF CONVERSATION.

LONDON, Dec. 22.—The general public had their first news of President Wilson's note from the morning papers, and the matter was one topic of conversation on incoming suburban trains and throughout the country. The people, like the press, were rahter taken aback as they had about arrived at the conclusion that the Prime Minister's speech had put an end to all peace talk unless the Central Powers, in their reply to the Premier, were prepared to define their terms. That President Wilson or any other neutral ruler would take any action was farthest from their mind.

Evening papers which do not print editorials came out with big headlines which expressed their views. The Evening News, afternoon edition of the Daily Mail, heads the reprint comment of the morning papers with one word "No" in large black type, and under it, "Our answer to President Wilson," and again "No, no, no," that is the answer.

BRITISH CAPTURE EL ARISH HELD TWO YEARS BY TURKS

Strongly Entrenched Positions Constructed By Enemy Were Abandoned Before British Advance.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Dec. 22. — The capture of El Arish yesterday took place after being two years in possession of the enemy, who had constructed strong entrenched positions. It appeared that they had every intention of offering a stubborn resistance. They abandoned their position Tuesday night and retreated to the east and southeast. It is a serious blow to the Turks from a moral and military point of view.

SEND PLENTY OF SOCKS SAYS SERGT. MILLER

WRITES THAT HE IS WELL AND HAVING GOOD TIME.

LOTS TO EAT.

Relief Officer Finch Mill has received a letter from his son, Sergt. Walter Miller, who says: "I am well and having a pretty good time. Although we are right near the front line we have quite a bit of fun among ourselves. We are out in divisional reserves, which are billets. We do a certain length of time in the front line trenches and then we get back to support lines, which are mostly dug-outs, and then we go back for a rest. Herb O'Heron and I are at a school taking a week's course. I am taking bombing and bayonet fighting and he is taking machine gun instruction. We get lots to eat here and we are not getting thin.

We received our Christmas pay of 65 francs last Sunday. A franc is ten pennies; twenty cents in our money; but it is not worth as much in English money. Two of our fellows in this battalion have been slightly wounded already.

Today we were throwing live bombs and firing rifle grenades. The one they call the "Mills" is certainly the best of any used so far. Doug. Loomis is well and getting along fine. I see him nearly every day when we are out of the trenches.

We have been very lucky for weather so far, but it is raw and damp at that, and it goes right through a person. We have sheepskin coats lined with felt and they keep out a lot of wind. We also have rubber boots for the trenches, and we sure need them.

If any person wants to know what to send, tell them to send socks as we can always use lots of them. I saw Art. Ringer yesterday. He is in the 1st Battalion in the same brigade as us. There are only 24 of the old 93rd in our battalion and we are divided into different companies.

WAS FATALLY STRICKEN AT C.G.E. PLANT

MR. JOHN MACKENZIE DIED SUDDENLY AFTER BEGINNING WORK.

John Mackenzie, one of the oldest employes of the Canadian General Electric Company, was taken suddenly ill while at his work early this morning, and died before medical aid arrived. He left his home at the usual hour this morning, and was making his rounds, and the supposition is that he was stricken while on his way from one department to another. One of the employes found him on the floor. Dr. Cameron was summoned, but Mr. Mackenzie was beyond his aid.

Deceased was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, 63 years ago. He was for many years in the employ of the Edison Company at Sherbrooke, Que., and came to Peterborough when the works were started here. At the time of his death he was in charge of the controller department of the C. G. E., and was very popular with the officials of the company as well as with those who worked with him.

He is survived by his widow and five children: Mrs. T. Clark, of McCrimmon, Ont., Helen V., Mary Alice, Grace E. and Ruth A., who live at home.

The funeral will take place Sunday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock from the family residence, 310 Maitland avenue, and proceed to the Little Lake Cemetery. Funeral services will be conducted by the Rev. J. A. MacKenzie.

HAROLD KNAPMAN IS PROMOTED ON FIELD

Takes the Rank Sergeant Major---Two 93rd Men Are Wounded.

CAPT. GREER WINS MILITARY CROSS

Two members of the 93rd Battalion are reported wounded today. Pte. Chas. Tenner, who enlisted from Chandos and was transferred to the Mounted Rifles, was admitted to hospital at Le Treport, France, December 13th, slightly wounded.

Pte. Sidney Ernest Allen was admitted to hospital in Leicester, England, on the same date, with a gunshot wound in the left thigh. His relatives, who formerly lived at 131 Rubidge street, now reside on Stewart street.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Knapman will use the address of Sergt.-Major Harold Knapman in future letters to their son, the young officer having been promoted on the field. In his letter this week, Sergt.-Major Knapman, who is with the 33rd Battery in France, did not make mention of his promotion other than to note that letters would be addressed as stated.

Capt. G. Garnet Greer, son of Dr. T. N. Greer, city, has been awarded the Military Cross. The official report says he attended the wounded for two hours and was under fire eight hours.

This is very satisfactory news to Capt. Greer's friends and to the citizens generally. He is attached to the 12th Field Ambulance and he has been in France for two years. Letters received from officers who know Capt. Greer and the work he has been doing have been always eulogistic of his splendid service for the wounded.

PETERBOROUGH, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 22, 1916

FIRE DEPARTMENT EQUIPMENT.

SOME OF THE LEADING manufacturers in the city, in letters to a local paper last night, discussed the question of improving the Fire Department. The opinion seemed to be unanimous that tht city should invest in motor trucks and abandon the horse-drawn vehicles as soon as posible.

Mayor Duffus in his address to the electors has shown himself to be in accord with these views. It is simply a question of present expense. The majority at least of the Board of Aldermen realize that the day of the horse in a fire department are over. No more horses will be purchased for the local brigade when the time comes to superannuate the stock now in use.

One thing is evident from the expressed opinions of the manufacturers—they all have confidence in the efficiency and fidelity of Chief Howard. Last summer they gave the Chief a substantial assurance to this effect. They believe that his judgment should govern in tre matter of equipping the department.

Chief Howard is in favor of a motor truck, believing that the horses now at the fireball have outlived their usefulness. He also says that in other respects the equipment of the department is up to date and quite adequate for a city the size of Peterborough.

The best assurance that the manufacturers and the other citizens have that the department is efficient is given by he underwriters. The insurance rates have been reduced from time to time under the present mangaement until they are little more than half what they were a decade ago. The department is always able to make a showing up to every requirement at the periodical tests made by the representatives of the insurance men.

One manufacturer says that the personnel of the brigade should be improved by paying the men better wages. Some of the members resigned last summer, but this is easily explained. The high wages paid by munitions manufacturers was the temptation. The firemen who remained asked the Council for an increase in pay and got it.

Any fire brigade, no matter how efficient the men and how modern the equipment, will sooner or later meet their Waterloo. Some fire will be too big for them to handle alone. Motor trucks would not have saved the Quaker Oats Company against a combination of circumstances not likely to occur again in a lifetime. But if a fire occurs in the outlying districts, the matter of speed in getting to it is all important, and motor trucks count in such cases.

Another manufacturer suggests that the control of the Fire Department be taken from Council and placed in the hands of a board like the Utilities Commission. We understand that there is a move on foot in Ontario to lift fire departments out of municipal politics and place them on the same basis as the police force. Some action along this line is likely to be taken at the next session of the Legislature.

The Fire, Water and Light Committee, at their meeting last night, took up the question of motor trucks. All the aldermen realize that something must be done. It is entirely a problem of ways and means. The question as to whether a motor truck will work in the event of a heavy snowfall must be considered. If there is any risk on this score, the city can still keep horses for municipal work during the summer and use them for fire purposes in case of a blizzard during the winter.

If there is anything calculated to discourage manufacturers from locating in Peterborough, it certainly is not the quality of the fire protection afforded. The city's record in this respect is all to the good. If a recommendation is required, the Underwriters' Association can be depended upon to furnish it. In the investigation into the Quaker Oats fire, conducted by Provincial Fire Marshal Heaton, not one word of criticism has been heard as to how that conflagration was handled.

THE FIRE INVESTIGATION.

THE INVESTIGATION into the Quaker Oats Company's big fire, conducted by Provincial Fire Marshal Heaton, has revealed nothing tending to throw any further light on the disaster. It has, however, established the fact that the company was in no wise to blame. This was hardly necessary, of course, but it is none the less gratifying to the public.

There is always special danger in a powder mill. In that case explosion adds to the destruction, and the great object is to prevent fire. The same condition prevails in the ordinary cereal mill. No fire means no explosion.

The Quaker Oats Company realized the double danger to which their plant was exposed. Everything that human ingenuity could devise was adopted to prevent fire, and so head off explosion. Fire is most likely to be generated in the grinders, where metallic objects get into the grain. Magnets have been used to detect these foreign substances, and a machine, the very latest contrivance for the purpose, has been in use for the past eight years.

The automatic fire extinguishing equipment of the company was modern and complete, but this was put out of commission by the explosion.

Every precaution was taken to keep strangers out of the building. The 225 girls employed there had commodious quarters, and were seated while at work. The fact that all of them escaped when so many of them were doubtless half crazed with fear, speaks well for the exits which were provided.

The investigation will increase the general regret that a company so munificent in the treatment of its employes has been temporarily put out of business in this city.

WILSON AS A PEACEMAKER.

IF THE REAL OBJECT of Germany in offering tentative terms of peace was, as so many suspect, not to end the war but, by throwing the responsibility of its further prosecution upon the Allies, arouse the flagging resentment of the German masses and excite the sympathy of the neutral nations, President Wilson has, by offering to mediate, made himself an accessory to the scheme. The United States is the most powerful and important nation that has so far held itself aloof from the war. Its interests are, however, bound up in the outcome. It has more at stake, it has profited to a greater extent, than them all by the misfortunes of others. Under the protection of the British navy its commerce has been able to enjoy the freedom of the seas.

Is it any wonder, then, that the Allies are disposed to regard President Wilson's interference as an unfriendly act, coming at a time when Germany is craftily making a bid for the sympathy, if not the support, of the powers at peace?

President McKinley offered to mediate between the British and the Boers during the South African war. Although the offer was rejected, it was not regarded as offensive. President Roosevelt made peace between Russia and Japan, but these two cases and the one now before the people are not parallel. The wars in question were small matters compared to the present struggle, and in neither was there a party crying for peace only to gain an oportunity to recover from the ravages of war to the end that the quarrel might be taken up again after a period of rest.

With ineffable assurance President Wilson insists that his country shall have a voice in the negotiations for peace. The United States was represented at The Hague Convention and was a signatory to the treaty which provided that no nation at war should pass through neutral territory in order to reach a belligerent.

When Germany flouted an international treaty and invaded Belgium, all that the United States did to preserve the integrity of the agreement was to raise its voice in feeble and ineffectual protest.

WHAT IS PATRIOTISM?

WAS IT PATRIOTISM for a newspaper to persist in publishing the made-to-order sermons of an American pastor, self-styled, when that adventurer in the realms of theology was barred from speaking in Canada, when he was deported as an undesirable, on the ground that his preaching was breeding sedition among the Canadian people?

Was it patriotism to continue the publication of these "sermons" for weeks after the "pastor" had crossed to the beyond, in order to work off a quantity of plate matter furnished in advance?

Patriotism and production go, or should go, hand in hand, but greed for the one should not entirely efface the other.

Nothing coming from that quarter will surprise us. We expect to hear our contemporary one of these days boast of its patriotism by reminding its readers that it no longer publishes these "sermons."

A TIMELY SERMON.

REV. E. A. PEARSON, formerly pastor of George Street Methodist Church in this city, and now stationed in Chatham, preached to his congregation there a timely sermon which was reported at length by the newspapers. Mr. Pearson called attention to the fact that in so many instances a great deal of money is expended in floral and other tributes to the memory of one who has passed from this life. While he did not deprecate the tribute, he emphasized the thought that it would be much better if some of the tribute was paid during life rather than after death. He said that many lives were in a measure dreary just because there was little or no demonstration on the part of loved ones when hearts were yearning for a word of cheer and comfort. He declared very forcefully that there was too much inclination on the part of the public life in general to say critical things rather than compliments, and this spirit, he felt, was not working to the best interests of the community or of the home. The speaker urged that each individual strive to see the good in other lives and to say a word of appreciation whenever the oportunity presented itself.

The speaker said that too often it was considered "gushing" if a word of compliment was paid to another for some good act or word. This, he said, was not the right attitude, and no one should have to apologise to another for paying a compliment when such was merited.

While he did not refer to the fact in his address, the speaker had in mind service of the public in an official capacity, to a certain extent, and a number of the congregation took this phase of the sermon much to heart, feeling that criticism, often unjust, is responsible in a large measure for good men not presenting themselves for public service because they fear the sharp tongue of those who criticize unjustly and often without knowing the actual condition.

One of the reasons why so many really good men refuse to enter public life is that they fear the criticism that is so often directed at them without a cause. How can respectable citizens, possessed of a sensitive nature, be expected to make sacrifices on behalf of the people while so many are afforded the opportunity to abuse them in the newspapers, and that, too, while concealing their identity under an assumed name?

WHERE CHRIST WAS BORN

Christmas Land Will See Saddest Festival it Has Yet Known.

Even in the trenches of Europe there will be Christmas trees and festivity this year, but in the Land of the Christmas story itself there is only sorrow and bitterness. At present, the thoughts of all the civilized world are turning joyfully to the "Little town of Bethlehem," but Bethlehem, and all the land of which it is a part, have no such word as joy in their vocabulary today. And across the very hills where first sounded the angels message of "Peace on earth," there echoes the tramp of armed men.

Only by devious and difficult ways is news got out of Turkey nowadays. Enough is known to make clear that it is a land of most unchristmassy happenings. Instead of good will, there is general fear, distrust and enmity. Syria, the country in which Jesus was born and lived and died, is especially the theatre of unhappiness. The Turks are persecuting the Arabic-speaking peoples, and Syria speaks Arabic. Many leaders in Syrian communities have been executed, on suspicion of plots against the government. The revolt of the Arabs against Constantinople has heightened the suspicions that formerly were held against the people who speak the ancient and beautiful language of the desert. Some persons recently out of Turkey declare that the government means to exterminate the Syrians, even as it is exterminating the Armenians.

The Sorrows of Syria

Troops are garrisoned at Jerusalem, and all the other principal centres of the Holy Land, and the poor people look upon these armies, in barracks and ever and anon marching through the land, to fight at Suez or in the Hejaz or up in the Caucasus, as a worse visitation than the plague of locusts two years ago. The army is devouring the land.

On Bethlehem's hills there are neither sheep or shepherds this Christmas. The sheep have gone to feed the voracious military forces and the shepherds have been conscripted for military service.

Not only the sheep, but the horses and donkeys—animals that were in the stable on Holy Night—have been taken by the army for transport purposes. The land has been stripped of draught animals as of food. The farmer's family has no beast left with which to plough, and no meat upon which to feed.

The Bitterness of Bethlehem

Bethlehem means "the house of bread" in Hebrew, and for centuries pious commentators have loved to dwell upon the fancies wrapped up in the name of the town where Jesus was born. Today, the place belies its name—Bethelehem is a community of no bread. Not only hunger, but actual starvation has visited it. Of business there is none, and the men, mostly workers in mother of pearl have been carried off.

That same plight afflicts all of Syria. There is no business. Oil and sugar and medicines have gone beyond everybody's reach. Flour is issued in exchange for bread tickets, and these can be bought only at highest price. Money is worth little more than half its face value, and all metal currency has been withdrawn from circulation.

Nativity Church Stands

Many Christian shrines in the Holy Lands have fallen into Turkish hands, because their custodians belonged to enemy nations, and were deportel. Fortunately, the Church of the Nativity, at Bethlehem, which covers the manger-cave, and is the oldest church edifice in the world, has escaped this fate, and is still in the hands of Christians.

Usually, at Christmas, there are great pilgrimages to this central Christmas shrine, but it is only in sentiment that the world is now saying, with the shepherds, "Come, let us go now unto Bethlehem." The Christmas spirit has not for centuries been so far away from its birthplace as it is today.

In the Wise Men's Land

It is not alone to Bethlehem and Nazareth and Jerusalem and Palestine proper that the war has brought gloom and suffering. Even away off to the East, whence the Three Wise Men came to bear gifts to the new King who was born on Christmas, there is unwonted distress and deprivation.

Poular fancy has made many curious efforts in its description of these Wise Men, or Magi. Although the Scripture explicitly states that they come from "the East," legend has made them of many nationalities. General Lew Wallace, in "Ben Hur," depicts one of them as an Egyptian, though Egypt is West and South of Bethlehem. There can be little doubt that the Magi came from Persia or Mesopotamia.

Tradition locates the Wise Men at the ancient town of Amarra, on the Tigris River, not far from Kutel Amarra, where the British were besieged and defeated by the Turks. There is situated a community of Sabeans, or star-worshippers, who to this day observe some of the rites of the ancient Magi. They are also tinged with the teachings of John the Baptist, and are popularly said to be followers of John. They live strictly apart from other peoples, and preserve in secret their own rites and usages. They make a peculiar kind of enamelled silverware, the process of which is jealously guarded, and handed down from generation to generations.

Now these mysterious Sabeans, who, though far to the East of Bethlehem are linked uniquely with the Christmas story, are caught between the contending forces of the great war, and are suffering in their business, in their property and in their lives. The Christmas peace which their forebears read in the stars is not yet for them.

W. A. Morris was foreman of the keeping of Christmas the world around is seriously affected by the great war, but no people feel it more distressingly than those who dwell in the Land which the Star, the Manger and the Child have made the Holy Land. They are the ones who find it hardest to believe that the God of battles is also the Prince of Peace.

Unless a man bawls like a baby at the funeral of his wife, the women present think he enjoys it.

THE POOR WITH US ALWAYS

Christmas and New Year's Day are always times for an open heart and for taking stock. Taking stock of ourselves this year, with an open heart, we should make the holidays of 1916 as unique as the situation in which they find us.

We boast about benevolence far more than we practise it. We always give the poor more cheers than money, and usually indorse charity after some rich man has signed the cheque.

A good deal of our own prosperity has gone to those who were in a position to profit by it. To many people, life this winter will be just the same desperate struggle for food, fuel and clothing that it is every winter. Look immediately around you at your own back door, across your own fence.

No matter where you live in this prosperous country, you will find, within reach of your hand, want and suffering that you can do much to relieve. The woman who comes in to do the washing can point it out. A post card or telephone call to organized charity will disclose many cases.

Give something. No one is so poor that he cannot give something if he will. The best, most helpful charity in the world is given by the poor to those who are still less fortunate. Put a gift for the nearby unfortunate at the top of your Christmas list.

Do it now. As Carlyle said, the poor are your conscripts, drafted into the trenches of peace while you sit snug at home. Begin today to give your debt to them a practical acknowledgment. Your Christmas Eve will be the happier for it.

And then give largely to the victims of this war.

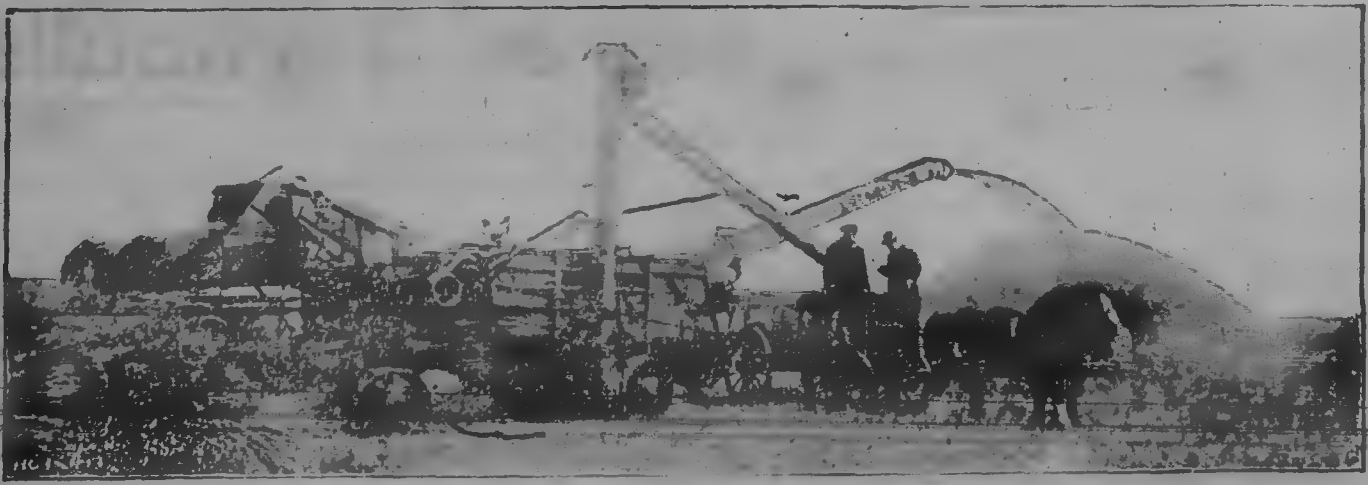
Canada's Most Successful Wheat Grower



A YIELD of 54,383 bushels of wheat from 1,000 acres of land or 54 bushels 23 lbs on the average per acre, seems to appear like an impossibility; but it is a fact that Mr. C. S. Noble, of Nobleford Alberta, has reaped this marvellous production from his farms in the harvest of 1916. This bountiful gift of nature to man is likely to attract as much attention to this country as any other remarkable incident that has yet been noticed in connection with the progress of the Dominion in the farming or the industrial sphere.

53 men, 78 horses, 2 separators and 3 sheaf loaders did their part in the work of garnering the grain. On September 19th the threshing began, and proceeded merrily for some days, during which time moving pictures of the operations were taken. The grain graded Numbers 1, 2, and 3. All of it was of the Marquis variety, which has been proved to give the best results of any species of wheat yet tried in West Canada. [illegible] seed from which the [illegible] returns sprung was [illegible] raised from a one acre field that had been sown with hand picked pedigree Marquis seed.

At a moderate estimate the land from which Mr. Noble has gathered his crop returns him $85 an acre. After paying all expenses this famous grain grower has a huge sum of money as a reward for his exertions. But he well deserves all that has come to him. It is true that a fertile soil and a magnificent climate were bountiful, but the ability with which the agriculturist managed his ground was in no small way responsible for his success. Mr. Noble is a business man, and is possessed of the gift of concentration — that quality which always discovers the right road to the man who perseveres. He has a system of his own for doing everything, and everything he does is done in the most systematic manner. With a staff of 120 men he operates three different farms. On the farms, and in the office where the farm schemes are planned, he is the supervisor. He has taught his employees to be regular in their movements as the wheels of a machine. The office telephone connects him with every one of the different departments, and if there is anything which demands his immediate personal attention while he is at the office his automobile is waiting, ready to convey him to the spot. The accounts of the property are all kept with a neatness, accuracy and regularity that would arouse the admiration of the most critical of chartered accountants.

Mr. Noble was born on a farm near State Center, Marshall County, Iowa, in the year 1873. His boyhood was spent largely on the farm. Shortly after reaching his majority he filed on a quarter section of land near Knox, North Dakota, where he lived until 1903. In that year he moved to Claresholm, Alberta, married Miss Margaret Fraser, of Hawkesbury, Ontario, and, in addition to farming interests, later enjoyed a successful real estate business with his present partner, Mr. T. C. Milnes. From this point his rise in the business world has been rapid. In the year 1909 he moved to his present location at Nobleford, Alberta, where he lives on Grand View Farm, with his family consisting of his wife, two sons and one daughter, giving practically all his attention to the farm. Thus it is seen that his life work has been that of a practical farmer.

His entire career has been marked by energy and foresight of an exceptional quality, his prominent mental characteristics being courage in meeting facts squarely, accuracy in figuring costs, and boldness and originality in making investments. Coupled with the hardest common sense and shrewd insight into human nature, he has a gift of imagination which is constantly leading him on to greater things and to blazing the way for others to follow.

He is a total abstainer from the use of all kinds of narcotics, and takes his place at work with any of his men whenever occasion requires. He is a life long church member and an elder in the Presbyterian Church at Noble.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

BY JOHN W. S. McCULLOUGH, M.D., D.P.H., CHIEF OFFICER OF THE PROVINCIAL BOARD OF HEALTH.

THE TEETH AND PURE FOOD.

WE DEMAND pure food. We insist that our factories for the preparation of food shall work under clean conditions. We have factory inspectors to see that food is properly prepared. We have health inspectors whose zeal ensure us clean milk, meat, bread, and butter. But what's the use if in the process of mastication the good food has to run the gauntlet of a foul mouth full of dirty, unsanitary, poison-laden teeth? How can a sound stomach remain sound if it has to do the work of inefficient teeth? Or if it has to undo the damage sustained in its mastication by pus-laden teeth? How does the pure food label profit us if every crunch of the jaws grinds the food under a daily pressure of 5,000 lbs. and introduces bacteria that turn a welcome guest into a centre of infection?

Human life is a constant struggle with germ life. When the good germs are overcome by the bad ones there is trouble for the chap in whose body the warfare is carried on. The condition of the mouth is often the determining facts between health and illness. Decayed teeth are due to the chemical action which destroys the enamel and pits the limey structure of the tooth. Bacteria grow in the cavity. Food accumulates and decomposes and soon the mouth becomes more unsanitary than any food which enters it.

Oral hygiene means clean teeth and a clean mouth. It means intelligent use of the tooth-brush. It means healthy gums. In infancy mother's milk is the best aid to sound teeth and a healthy mouth. Later whole cereals, pure milk, fresh vegetables, and fruit are essential for normal growth and perfect tooth structure.

In later life selected foods will do more to keep the mouth and teeth in good condition. Food acids are the best cleansing agents. Grape juice, orange juice, lemon juice, vinegars, and apples bathe the teeth with acids that clean and protect them. An apple eaten in the evening will mechanically and chemically clean the teeth and protect them from bacterial ravages in the night when most damage is done.

What profiteth the man that he gain the whole world yet lose his health? Behold the spectacle of the business man who pursues wealth at such a rapid pace that he must forsooth bolt his food, race from morning to night to attain the rank of a millionaire, and then find that he cannot eat a square meal because of the pangs of dyspepsia!

What is more mournful than the results of intemperance either in the use of drink or food? Naturalists tell us that long ago the prehistoric waters were infested with a species of enormous shark which finally became extinct by reason of the workings of its voracious appetite. Thus Nature eliminates the overfed.

The desire for ease and a full diet is universal and is the great stimulus of man and animals alike. When man becomes greedy and takes more ease, food, and drink than his share, Nature discards him.

In the race for power and place, for ease and relief from hunger, man is apt to forget that unless he is careful of his body he will soon be made to suffer for the infraction of Nature's inexorable physical law. With the loss in body tone comes an equal loss in mental activity, and the brain, which for a time was able to operate despite the complaints of an overfed, under-exercised, self-poisoned body, stops working.

The mortality rate for persons over 45 years of age is increasing. How many sons of fathers of our acquaintance who have lived to be 70, 80, and 90 years of age, drop out at 45, 55, or 60? Lack of health-giving exercise, too much strong food, late dinners, lack of sleep, over stimulation of alcohol, the high pressure of the race for gold and position, with physical neglect, bring premature decay. The goal is reached, wealth is amassed, honor, position, and power are gained—and the man is on the downward grade. The brilliant mind becomes clouded. The steady hand is no longer accurate, the eye is dimmed, and the final break up cannot be long delayed. All of this was entirely preventable.

Other things being equal, the man who leads the well balanced life, who lasts the longest, whose work to the end is uniformly the best, is he who neither over-works or over plays, neither over eats nor over-drinks, who has eight hours' sleep out of the twenty four, who eats simple food in moderation, who offsets mental work with physical recreation, and who is as honest with his own body as with his own business. When success comes to such a man he can enjoy in peace of mind and contentment of body the fruits of his labors.

Sorrow is a bitter pill that all must swallow sooner or later.

Caring for Disabled.

At the beginning of this month 2,091 disabled Canadian soldiers were under the care of the Military Hospitals Commission, according to statistics issued from headquarters at Ottawa. Of this number 426 were at sanatoria for tuberculosis, 1,626 at convalescent hospitals (682 of the latter being out-patients), while 39 members of the force were in asylums for the insane. Of the 426 cases of tuberculosis almost half were discovered in time to prevent them leaving for overseas. Up to October 5 the number of soldiers sent back to Canada because of medical unfitness was 6,208. Of these, 961 were suffering from wounds, shell shock or the effect of gas; 122 were insane; 245 were afflicted with tuberculosis; while the remainder, 4,880, were suffering from other diseases and disabilities.

GIFTS for BROTHER

THE harrowing holiday question of "what to give" is again the problem that vexes the feminine soul, the difficulty of which is increased rather than diminished by the embarrassment of riches in the way of charming things displayed in the shops. The first thing to be considered in the selection of a Christmas gift is fitness.

A pair of calf boots with excellent skates to fit, like those in the cut, would warm a boy's heart.

Or give brother a dress suit case if you would wish to be held in pleasant memory every time he takes a journey.

Or a small silver tipped cardcase which can be slipped into his inner waistcoat pocket.

Or if he is a university boy give him a huge red or blue silk muffler for his throat.

Or a set of books you have heard him express a wish for, and see, first of all, that the edition is a readable one.

Small boys like a watch, as suggested by the illustration, as well as pocketknives, tool chests, a bowl of gold fish.

Silk mufflers are from $1 to $12. For about $2.75 are imported mufflers in dark colors.

If brother enjoys his clothes give him a pair of spats, fur gloves if he motors, a good cap if he skates, a magic lantern, a microscope, typewriter, sweater, camera and book for camera prints. Wall paper for his room or a morris chair, a dog, ice cream freezer, leather sofa pillow, key ring, a desk, sleeve links, stickpin, watch chain or a motorboat, as a collective family gift, would also delight him.

If brother is small an electrical heater for his room, which may also be enjoyed by small sister, would be a happy present, enjoyable on chilly mornings.

A man never does anything desperate if fed regularly.

GROCERS' BYLAW VIOLATED BY SALE OF POTATOES?

Italian Dealer Fined For Sale of Grocery Supplies After Seven O'Clock.

Two charges for violation of the grocers' early closing by-law were tried by Police Magistrate Dumble at the Police Court this morning.

Antonio Strano, who has a fruit store on Charlotte Street, was accused of selling soap, canned goods and sugar to Mrs. Robinson, 301 King Street, after 7 o'clock in the evening of Wednesday, Dec. 13. The evidence brought out the fact that Mrs. Robinson had bought the goods mentioned, with some fruit, about 8.30 on the night in question and they were delivered to her house by Innis' express.

Constable Wigg saw Mrs. Robinson coming out of Strano's store and asked her what she was buying and she told him about purchasing sugar and other goods, and stated that only part of them were paid for. It was about 8.40 or 8.45 on Wednesday night, Dec. 13.

Defendant Strano claimed that if he broke the law he did so unintentionally. He admitted the sale of the goods but could not say as to the hour.

The magistrate imposed a fine of $2 and $3.95 costs and told defendant that it was an expensive matter to break a city by-law.

Sale of Potatoes

D. M. Minicolo, the George St. fruit dealer, was also before the court for selling potatoes after 7 o'clock.

Mr. O'Connell admitted the sale but claimed that the defendant had a perfect right to sell fruit and vegetables at any hour.

The magistrate reserved judgment in this case.

W. H. TAYLOR RUN IN S. WARD

ALD. EDGAR FACED BY A MAN BORN IN THE CITY.

When William H. Taylor, two or three weeks ago, read in The Review that his friends in the South Ward intended to put him up as a candidate for alderman against Ald. Edgar, he thought at first that someone intended a joke. He learned to the contrary today when he was nominated.

Mr. Taylor is a comparatively young man and this is his first venture in the aldermanic field. He was born and raised in Peterborough and was educated in the Public schools and the Collegiate Institute. Mr. Taylor has large property interests and has always taken an active interest in the affairs of the city. He will make a vigorous campaign himself and will be enthusiastically assisted by a host of friends.

Rabbit fur is said to be supplanting wool in felt hat making in Australia. The fur is believed to be much superior to the finest merino for this purpose, and millions of rabbit skins are used annually.

Two Canadians Escape.

Two more Canadian soldiers have successfully run the gauntlet of German guns and bloodhounds and safely arrived in London. One is a French-Canadian named Sergeant Joseph Turcotte, No. 25280, of the Royal Montreals, the other is Pte. Peter Nelson, No. 76227, of the 29th Battalion, Vancouver. Both were taken prisoners while on patrol duty, the former on last Christmas Eve, Nelson on the 1st of November. Both men are in good health, and unwounded; in fact, they escaped through their acrobatic agility, such as the ponderous Teutons would not suspect possible. Turcotte was a fireman on the Canadian Pacific. He was captured while searching for a missing Montrealer, and was taken via Lille to Munster. In this camp he made two unsuccessful attempts to escape, being penalized for so doing, then was sent in April to a camp near Riga, in which camp the treatment was horrible. He asserts that men were tied up and flogged on the slightest offence, or on suspicion. Owing to his refusal to take charge of a working party he was recently returned to Munster, where he was lucky in his third attempt to escape a fortnight ago, during which time he lived on turnips and cabbage which he plucked in fields. Nelson effected his escape about the same time. He also had made ineffective attempts to escape before. This time he heard machine guns turned on him. After escaping his whereabouts were first suggested by seeing young men cycling, which struck him would be impossible in Germany.

MAJOR SUTTON PAINTS SERIOUS PICTURE OF THE WAR SITUATION

Says War Will Continue Until We Come to Practical Realization That Germany Can Only be Beaten by the Use of Every Available Ounce of Energy Throughout the British Empire.

The letter herewith given has been received by The Review from Mayor (Dr.) Sutton of the C.A.M.C., officer commanding Hill House Military Hospital, Minster, near Ramsgate, Kent.

The writer, who is none other than Dr. Sutton of Peterboro', takes a serious view of the war situation and his letter clearly points to the duty of Canadians at home—that of putting every ounce of energy into the war.

The major writes:—

The last serious letter I wrote was during the commencement of the huge German offensive against the French at Verdun—a time of stress which seemed the gloomiest period since the initial month of the war. Much water has flowed under London Bridge since then. The German effort, so stupendous and long continued, failed in the fact of the people who are united and are ready to make any sacrifice to attain the end in view.

A nation which had found its soul and gave it its expression in the hardest, most heroic, and brilliant defence in history. A nation from which has been purged all softness born of luxury, and which has been able to put everything else aside and cherish only its national ideal.

As I write now the clouds are even darker. The latest ally is being rolled up like a crackling sheet of paper; while any day may see another enemy in the Balkans. Of Roumanian history, I remember but little. Of old, these people of Roman origin have at various times given a good account of themselves in troublous times. Of recent years they have not been tried. Their army—a strong one on paper—had in the second Balkan War a bloodless conquest of a strip of country long owing them by Bulgaria. During this present war, up to the time of their entry into it, I can recall but little about them, except the persistent stories that Bucharest was the gayest capital of Europe, that riches were easily made and freely spent. I cannot but think that this sort of thing is one of the main reasons for their failure to stand against the seasoned, experienced hordes of the Central Empires.

The Greek Situation

As to Greece, we have for a year been watching the greatest burlesque enacted in all time. But it is a burlesque which could only be laughed at in hell, whence all hope has vanished and nothing matters.

Oh, the disgrace of it; and to our Empire it belongs. Yet here is the hope of it. That the rage of Britons will sweep into the dust bin the effete methods which allowed the present condition of Greece to take form, and if necessary those responsible.

If the people of the Central part of the Empire can be but sufficiently aroused that such things may be no longer tolerated, then indeed there is hope. Then indeed we may hope for United Empire and the natural cohesion of all its parts. It would mean that at last we were within measurable distance of one ideal for all— the winning of this war for freedom from a tyranny worse than death—a tyranny the evil of which is sufficiently proved in that it launched the war.

For we are not yet a fully united Empire. In this central part, we see Nationalistic Ireland standing aloof, and busily following with uncertain steps an idea which she mistakes for an ideal. Scotland indeed, is one solid whole, but in England we still have pacifists and profiteers. In Australia, selfish factionists defeated compulsory service. South Africa has a Premier who rules, and the country is to a surprising degree united.

Who can say that we in Canada are united, with one huge province standing more aloof than Nationalist Ireland, though, like the Nationalists of Ireland, supplying some few of the best of fighting regiments.

A United Canada

Yet in the parts of Canada which have done the best in recruiting, can we say we are united? Can we say that we are yet ready to put all we have and are, into the struggle, as France has done? Can we say that we are ready for equality of sacrifice? Are we willing that power should be given our rulers that each man and woman may be put into the place where he or she will be of most service to the State, whether in fighting line, factory or farm, even as Germany or France has done, and as I expect will be done here almost immediately? I doubt very much if we have advanced anywhere approaching that point, though I think the ground is sufficiently prepared that a few rude jolts would bring us within measurable distance of it.

I must confess that it is with great difficulty that I am able to judge at all the temper of the people at home. I am away from the centre of things here, busier than I have ever thought it possible to be, and so have not, in months, seen anyone from home who could tell me what people are thinking and doing. Private letters on public matters seem impossible to get. I have written various letters asking for such news, but so far have had not a single reply; and all other officers I chance to meet have the same story. The home newspapers supply local news of the city and country, and news of the war, etc.; they discuss the local issues and each other's sins, and indulge liberally in that typically Anglo-Saxon habit of patting ourselves on the back for the great things we have done in the war; but, after all, it is only by reading between the lines that one can arrive at any estimate of what is really "doing."

When, therefore, I gather from these stray sources that the country generally is prosperous, that work and money are plentiful; that the pool rooms are more crowded than ever; that many young men can shoot deer who might well be shooting Germans, that some women refuse to work for the Red Cross, etc., because instructions vary so (how could it be otherwise when the needs vary from day to day?); that there is a general lack of knowledge of the problems and conditions of our forces over here which would be ridiculous if it weren't so serious, that the poisonous fallacy of "business as usual" is still widespread; that the politicians of either party can still busy themselves trying to "get" some member of the other party, quite aside from the question of whether he is trying to win the war or not, can it be matter for wonderment that I hesitate to say that we in Canada are united people, or that we have anything more than a glimmering perception of the wealth of meaning in the phrase, "the soul of the nation."

Dollar Madness

Living so close to that soulless agglutination to the south of us, which calls itself a nation, it is not to be expected but that we should have caught some stain of dollar madness. But in spite of that, the soul of Canada was forming, and the relentless progress of this war will bring it to birth. I cannot prophesy how long the war will last, but it will continue until we come to a practical realization that Germany, totally organized to the last available ounce of human energy, can only be beaten by a similar "levee en masse" throughout the British Empire.

That is what I meant by saying in my former letter that before the war was ended we shall be disciplined individually and nationally. That is what I meant in the early part of this letter by a nation-wide readiness to put everything to the test. Never was crusade made in a cause so righteous as this of ours. You will remember that the crusades went on and on, until there was a children's crusade. Do we want our children to inherit another conflict such as this? I trow not. This war can and will be won rightly, at whatever cost to us. It is inconceivable that the sacrifice made, the blood spilt so freely, in such a cause, should be disgraced by any failure to "stick." On the contrary, by putting our whole strength into it we will secure the end for which so many have died, and in doing so we shall rear the mightiest monument ever raised to fallen heroes—a British Empire in the highest ideal of liberty and the greatest force for good in human history.

N. H. SUTTON

As I was writing the above Mr. Asquith had just resigned and the announcement appeared in next morning's paper. It was a most unique experience that morning. One could almost hear the sigh of thankful relief that passed over the country as men said to each other: "Now we shall have a chance to get on with the war."

If you are suffering from constipation or sick headache, try Dr. Norvall's stomach and tonic tablets. Be sure you get the genuine, as they are guaranteed and should they fail to give you relief, return the bottle to your dealer and he will refund your money.

Christmas Cribs of the Tyrol

THE Christmas cribs, showing the first resting place of the Infant Christ, which one sees occasionally in the churches of this country are not to be compared with those of Europe, especially the remarkable ones made by the peasants of Italy and of the Tyrol. In the latter country there has been of recent years a decided revival of interest in these groups representing the nativity of Christ.

It is not unusual to see one with several hundred figures. Not alone the birth of the Saviour, but the adoration of the shepherds, the arrival of the kings with their soldiers and courtiers, the flight into Egypt, Jesus in the temple, and even the marriage at Cana are represented.

The Tyrol's cribs have been famous for centuries, and the people were justly proud of them until the spirit of "modern enlightenment" invaded the land and crib building was denounced as child's play. Enterprising antiquarians and art sellers eagerly bought up all the old cribs and then sold them at good profit to tourists.

Many fine specimens have disappeared from the land, but fortunately a few of the best were acquired by national museums. The best two Tyrol is known to have had, the "Ursulinenkrippe" of Innsbruck and the Moser crib of Bozen, are now in the Bavarian National museum at Munich. A third, the Jaufenthaler crib, is in the Vienna museum.

Originally it belonged to a family in Wilten, now a part of Innsbruck. It contained 154 animal figures, 24 buildings and 256 human figures. It included solid woodcarvings, figures the heads of which were wax and others whose heads and limbs were movable. Some of these date back as far as the year 1700. Seven scenes were represented.

The Moser crib of Bozen was much more extensive. Moser's "city" was in itself a masterpiece and included palaces, gushing fountains, monuments of King David and towers with six city clocks striking the hours of the night. It was valued at more than $5,000 during Moser's lifetime.

The Ursulines' crib was particularly famous on account of the gorgeous dressing of the figures. The angels were clad as courtiers of heaven in the rich court costumes of the seventeenth century.

These masterpieces are now lost to Tyrol. It can hardly cause surprise, then, that serious minded men began to entertain grave fears for their remaining works of art. This fear had a practical result in the formation of a society whose object was to prevent in future the reckless exportation and selling of old cribs and to revive the spirit that produced them.
